Planners prepare town meeting proposal

Cluster zoning plan coming

Cluster zoning — with smaller than standard house lots in return for community open space — will be an option for the annual town meeting in April.

The planning board hasn't actually voted on the warrant article but the board has been working hard to develop standards for Cohasset.

Patricia Facey, chairman of the planning board, says another thought of the board was to sponsor an apartment zone on Route 3A. Right now apartments are only allowed in business zones under special permits granted by the board of appeals.

But the planning board isn't going to back an article for an apartment zone this year, Mrs. Facey said.

"We want people to be able to concentrate on studying the cluster housing," she said. "Changes should go gradually."

She pointed out that Cohasset is one of the few towns in the area where single family homes are being developed these days.

"We're ending up wilth the same grid patterns everywhere and porkchopping," she said. "It's not good use of land. It's wasteful.

"Cluster offers an alternative. It's more creative land planning."

So far the planning board has been studying other towns for information on cluster requirements. The board has also spoken with two architects on the topic.

Bylaws from Duxbury, Wayland, Lincoln, Wellesley, Lexington, Plymouth and Brewster were among those studied.

Once the planning board comes up with something specific a public hearing will be held.

"We are still working on it," Mrs. Facey said. She said she thinks the board will adopt a middle of the road approach toward cluster with some general standards that make it clear what the planning board wants from developers.

There will be a minimum amount of land needed for a cluster subdivision. No minimum has been set thus far.

Mrs. Facey said she expects the minimum will be a fairly large parcel of land.

In 1972 town meeting considered cluster zoning. Although a majority voted for the article, it didn't get the two-thirds required for zoning changes. Mrs. Facey said she understands some people thought the standards of that proposal weren't clear enough.

"With the very high cost of building and the high cost of house lots we need to make better use of our land," Mrs. Facey said. "This housing wouldn't be low cost but it would be more affordable."

Sawchuck condo plan not dead

The eight-unit condominium project on Pleasant Street may still be alive.

The board of appeals voted to deny the special permits needed for the development last week but the decision hasn't been filed at town hall. And the developer, Wayne Sawchuck, plans to ask that the petition be withdrawn without prejudice.

He wants to have a chance to refile the petition with more information. If the petition were officially denied he would have to wait two years to refile.

All other boards have granted approval for the project.

The permits needed for the development involved one for construction in a flood plain and one for allowing use of land outside the business zone to meet the size requirements.

Abuttors have claimed the project would increase the danger of flooding. Sawchuck on the other hand says the drainage he plans to install would improve drainage in the area. James Brook runs through the land.

Deer Hill to shift its outdoor school

By Patricia Desmond

Is the outdoor school for Deer Hill's fifth grade moving from Camp Wing in Duxbury to Thompson's Island in Boston Harbor?

The teachers have already planned the switch.

Some parents are reluctant to go along with it.

The school committee hasn't discussed it publically.

The outdoor school at Camp Wing is a tradition at Deer Hill. Every May the fifth graders spend a week studying about the outdoors at their parents expense. Parents and students have been delighted with the program.

But Kenneth Ekberg, Deer Hill's principal, says the change is to provide a better program for the students. He recognizes the parental opposition and is working to allay the fears.

"We've had a couple meetings on it. The fears seem to be the possibility of inclement weather and fire safety."

To travel to Thompson's Island for the program the students will have to go at the end of March. The reason for the change in season for the outdoor experience is financial.

Ekberg said the cost would just about double by the end of spring. Thompson's Island will cost $66 a student for a four night program. Camp Wing costs $54 a student for a three night program.

The program on the harbor island is run by a group called Nature's Classroom. Facilities in a building that used to be a reform school have been leased by the organization. The island program shuts down for December, January and February.

"At Camp Wing there were cabins and a stockade for housing," Eckberg said. "The structure at Thompson's Island is heated. I think the fire safety

Water emergency declared

It's so cold that the Cohasset Water Commissioners declared an emergency.

About 20 households in town are without water already due to the extreme cold.

Residents are asked to leave a cold water faucet trickling somewhere in every house.

Commissioner William Montuori said the slight thaw this week won't help defrost the underground pipes.

"The ground freezes from the top down. The frost level is already between three to four feet. When the ground thaws, it thaws the same way — from the top down," Montuori said.

He warned that anyone with water service at four feet or less could wind up with frozen pipes if the water in the house isn't kept running.

The board met in emergency session Saturday because of the problem. They are asking the state department of Labor and Industries to go along with their declaration of an emergency so they can hire a contractor to help thaw the street pipes without going through bid procedures.

"We haven't been having much luck by ourselves," Montuori said.

The town is responsible for seven of the frozen services. Another 13 residents are without water due to frozen pipes on their land.

The town helps these residents locate the pipes but the town does not handle the actual work of thawing the pipes, Montuori said.

The problem for the town water seems centered on Elm Street but other freeze-ups are scattered throughout town.

Montuori said the problem was created when the town lowered the grade of Elm Street without lowering the level of the water pipes.

While the situation continues, the waterless homes are managing to get by with water piped in by garden house from neighboring homes.

Town workers have been able to thaw about one service a day. The contractor would dig down to the pipes and then use electric current to warm the ice. Some sort of permanent above ground connection would be installed to prevent reoccurrence of the freezing the next time the weather turns cold.

Smith Civil Service hearing begins

Arthur Clark, chairman of the board of selectmen, doesn't expect Civil Service will reverse its first ruling on the case of fired Patrolman Doug Smith.

Police Lt. Charles Stockbridge testified Monday that Clark had said he wanted to get rid of Smith before the original hearing on the case back in 1978. Clark denied every saying it and other selectmen testified they couldn't remember the remark.

Cohasset's Week

Friends need books

Friends of the Cohasset Library have issued a call for your used books — paperback and hardcover, all titles from children's to adults' — for their annual book sale which will be held in early April.

Keep warm these cold days by moving all those dusty books around on your library shelves and bring the ones you don't want anymore to the Paul Pratt Library.

Marion Garhart is chairman of the book sale this year.

Private meeting

The Cohasset School Committee met behind closed doors Monday night to discuss negotiations.

School Committee member Patricia Walsh said this is the week the committee gets the administration's proposed budget.

All town departments are cutting budgets by 15 percent.

Walsh said the teachers contract is one of those that runs out this year.

"People in town have told me that they voted for Proposition 2½ and that they voted that way because they think some of the classes are too small," she said.

A good guess is that class size will increase next year.

What else might change is still uncertain.

"I expect there will be some argument among committee members," she said.

"For instance I don't have a problem having children walk farther to school. But some people might want to eliminate debate and I think something like debate is just an extension of the regular program."

Git your cookies

It's Girl Scout cookie time again! And with escalating costs and run-away inflation, now more than ever your support is needed to continue the services Girl Scouting provides today's young women.

The importance of these services is what Girl Scouting is all about. "Too often, Girl Scouting is shrugged off as a girl in a green uniform selling cookies," said Linda Magnarelli, Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council Area Cookie Coordinator. "We sell cookies so we can continue to provide the type of program which emphasizes values and cultivates skills that build better people for the challenging society of tomorrow," Mrs. Magnarelli explained.

This year the Little Brownie Bakers Company will again supply seven delicious varieties — Samoas, Thin Mints, Do-Si-Dos, Van'chos, Tagalongs, Trefoils and Granolas.

Despite the high rate of inflation, Patriots' Trail Council is pleased to announce that the cookies will be sold at the same price as last year — $1.50 for each box. Each troop will receive 20 cents on every box of cookies they sell to help support their yearly activities. If desired, individual girls will receive camp credit of 10 cents per box towards their 1981 camp fee.

This credit can also be used for Girl Scouts attending "Wider Opportunities" which are part of the Girl Scouts program activities designed to give Cadettes and Seniors an opportunity to explore a wide range of learning experiences both in and outside the U.S.A.

Orders for Girl Scout cookies will be taken from Jan. 23 through Feb. 8.

Fair cash value

The town has been notified that its "full and fair cash value will not be less than $225 million, as of January 1, this year. Selectmen Chairman Arthur Clark was pleased with the amount and its effect on budget considerations. "This will certainly be a big help especially as far as maintenance projects are concerned," he noted.

League moving

The Social Service League of Cohasset may be moving from 83 South Main Street. No one knows where they'd be moving to.

Word is that the building is about to be sold and the league is looking around for another suitable location. League officials don't want to talk about it right now.

Bus licence issued

Selectmen have approved a license for the South Shore Bus Inc. to operate over a small area of Hull Street in North Cohasset connecting Hingham with Hull.

Dave Barry, company spokesman, told selectmen that the line will continue to run without a subsidy and he hopes that it will be restored to a self-supporting line. Fare will remain the same for 30 days and then will be raised. The line will operate under a temporary license from the MBTA for 120 days.

Selectmen chairman Arthur Clark said that he is "delighted to have the service continued." The approval of the license is subject to South Shore not competing with the Hudson Bus Company.

Beechwood design

A $2,900 contract has been awarded by selectmen to Schwartz and Silver, Inc. of Boston, architects for the design of the Beechwood Fire Station.

In discussing the proposed station which will cost about $85,000, Selectman Henry Ainslie underlined, "We want a facility as economical as possible." Selectmen also stressed the need for a final figure to be submitted for review by the Advisory Board before town meeting.

Architects assured selectmen that they will begin work, immediately. The contract is subject to review by town counsel.

Central Market sale

Selectmen will hold a public hearing next week on an application to transfer a license for a retail market and package store at Central Market.

Philip Nectow of Marshfield is buying the assets of the business with a five year option to buy the building from Louis Bravo, current owner. They plan to close on the sale on Feb. 2.

Underlining that he "will continue to operate the market as it has been," Nectow told selectmen that he will maintain the same name. The license application is in the name of Nectow's daughter, Janet Miller, who will be working there as manager. Nectow also owns the Marshfield Liquor Store, Sweetsers General Store in Duxbury and Toabe's Hardware with stores in Marshfield, Hanover, Hanson and Pembroke.

Weisenfluh leaving

Assessor F. Allen Weisenfluh wants to resign from office on April 12 but selectmen aren't sure whether that would be too late to allow a candidate to take out papers for the unexpired term so they have referred the matter to town counsel.

Now serving his fourth term as assessor, Weisenfluh notes that he ran for office last year at the insistance of fellow board members because the board was setting up procedures to have property values updated. Now that the process is almost complete, "I feel free to tender my resignation," Weisenfluh concludes.

Selectmen back anti-gambling

Selectmen agreed unanimously last week to support a petition drive by the Group Against Gambling (G.A.G.), opposing legalized gambling in Massachusetts.

Spokeswoman Carol Otieri requested that "Cohasset unite with Hingham and Hull to defeat casino in Hull." Acccording to Mrs. Otieri, G.A.G. is an active, ongoing group which is now in the process of being formed into a trust.

Members are extremely concerned, she continued, and view their work as very important because of the legislation regarding gambling which has been proposed in the legislature.

Mrs. Otieri noted the lessons that can be learned from what has happened in Atlantic City as a result of the gambling casinos, there. She pointed to the increase in congestion, crime and real estate taxes. "By uniting our efforts, we will convince our representatives that it (supporting gambling legislation) would be the saddest decision to make economically and socially," she continued.

Selectmen Chairman Arthur Clark said that he is also concerned about the effects of the proposed casino which would be located close to his home. He offered to take one of the petitions around, himself.

Cohasset coordinators for G.A. G. are Mrs. Marie LaPlante and Mrs. Julie Guild. The group is committed to educating residents about gambling, circulating the petitions and lobbying at the state house. A film about Atlantic City called "Winners and Losers" will be shown in Cohasset.

at Thompson's Island is better than the stockades, they were heated by wood stoves in cold weather."

But before the students take any overnight trip or even a trip over water, the school committee must give its approval. Eckberg said he hopes the matter is discussed soon.

Parents have already received sign-up sheets for the field trip.

School Committee member Patricia Walsh said she's heard about the parents concerns.

"I don't want to be responsible for something that could injure a student," she said. "But I have checked into the place and I've been told it's a good place. It's Mayor(Kevin) White's Camp David."

She said she was also told there is more staff available on Thompson's Island for helping the teachers.

School Committee member Martha Gjesteby is still investigating the matter, Walsh said. Gjesteby was unavailable.

An Introduction

And after the retirement . . .

By Patricia Desmond

Last week I went to a retirement party — mine.

I'm almost 35 and I'm leaving a career that's had me following fire trucks to tragedy, investigating murder suspects, spying on the insiders of organized crime, racing off to state prisons for stories of violence, tagging after Presidents and other important people and soliciting stories from victims of injustice.

I'll miss it all. The excitement. The voyeurism. But mostly I'll miss the people I've been working with.

After 15 years at The Patriot Ledger, a South Shore daily, I cleaned out my two desk drawers. (Of course the third drawer in the desk belonged to a reporter on another shift.) And I carted home three brown paper bags filled with bylines.

Anyway the party was at a disco in Quincy Center. The only people dancing were five children under 11 who came because their working mothers don't like to leave them with sitters after regular work hours. Two of those disco dancers are mine.

Marilyn Jackson of Scituate, who taught me how to write obituaries when I was still an English major at Stonehill College, pointed out to the crowd I never had the right background for the job.

"I remember when Patty came looking for a job with samples of her poetry," she laughed. The new kids in the group didn't laugh. For them the only way to get a job was by pulling down a bachelor's or better in journalism plus some experience. Well, I was the editor of my high school paper, Archbishop Williams '64, but I knew even then that glossy quarterly wouldn't count.

I thought my poems proved I valued good writing and truth. The basics.

Marilyn said I wasn't above some lies.

"When you were hired you said you had a car," she said. I cringed like the emperor without his clothes.

"I remember being in the office one Sunday when you were making the police checks. An editor called (Sundays there are no editors at the office) and told you to go to some meeting. You said, 'Sure. No problem,' and you hung up and called a taxi."

Then she introduced someone else who handed over a leather portfolio — I guess because I've misplaced a few notebooks in my time.

The state Senate sent a resolution.

"Whereas, Patricia L. Desmond has for more than a decade sought to maintain the highest standards of journalism," it began and continued with the superlatives only politicians ever use.

Sen. Paul Harold of Quincy who pushed the resolve through the senate explained most people need to have one foot in the grave before they get their acknowledgement.

Milly Potter of Hingham — now editor of the Ledger's Norwood office — sent a note saying she couldn't break away from her red pencilling to say goodbye.

"It's been fun working with you over the years and I'm sorry to see you go but I can certainly understand your leap into the wee'klies," she said.

I'd be deeply depressed if retirement meant I'd lose contact with my old friends. But I only live in Marshfield.

I had to work one last shift after that party. I left the office at 11 that night. At 10 the next morning I was on my way to my new job — the people at the Mariner probably think I'm a malingerer, sleeping late on my first day.

(Patricia Desmond is the editor of the Hingham Mariner, the Scituate Mariner and the Cohasset Mariner.)

Running water

Keep your water running.

It sounds like an anti-conservation measure but with a couple dozen homes already without water it doesn't make sense to gamble on frozen pipes.

Water Commissioner William Montuori assured the Mariner the town is in no danger of a water shortage despite the problems in nearby communities.

There is a large reservoir and a large watershed.

But make sure it's the cold water faucet that's urned on — no sense wasting heated water. And all that is needed is a small trickle.

New job for Clark

To the Editor:

In conversation with Arthur Clark at the Town Hall, this writer was gratified and delighted to hear him say that he will be willing to be a candidate for the proposed new job of Executive Secretary.

That is a piece of good news for Cohasset. No other person could be so perfectly qualified. From the start he will know what to do and everyone with whom he will have dealings will be friendly. It is understood that a job description will be prepared.

The matter of compensation will have to be decided. It is understood that the Selectmen will recommend a figure for the budget which will be acted upon by the town at Town Meeting. It is hoped by the writer that Mr. Clark's compensation will be substantial and correspond to what other top officials receive.

It can make up somewhat for his years of devoted service to the town for which he received only small recognition of about $1,000.

Rec. Dept. can live with cuts

ED.'S NOTE: The following written report was delivered verbally to the Recreation Commission by John Worley, director of the Cohasset Recreation Department.)

The 1982 Fiscal Year budget reflects a change from the proposed 20 per cent reduction as submitted to the Advisory Board and Recreation Commission on Dec. 8, 1980.

That proposal dictated large reductions in repair and maintenance of equipment and unclassified supply and material line items. The capital, which is essential to our operation, would be gained from charging a fee for the summer playground program, via the revolving account fund, and making all supply and material purchases, for all programs from that fee.

The fine print of the legislation reads that the revolving account fund may be used only for self-supporting programs, hence, we may not use this procedure to reduce our budget.

I have carefully gone over our operating budget and reduced it as much as possible. A few line items, as you will note, have been deleted entirely, but those line items are monies that are needed for a support system, not absolutely essential to operating.

The largest reduction, $4,414, will have to come out of salary portion of our budget — there is no alternative as I see it. To counter this we will be able to conduct a number of programs, i.e.: golf lessons, tennis lessons, dog obedience training, guitar, floral arranging, creative drama, etc., through the revolving account fund. We will do this on a contract services basis, where we will pay an instructor a flat fee for services rendered for the entire course, rather than paying an hourly rate as a wage.

While there are programs such as the ski lessons and Music Circus programs that must still be operated under the revolving account, we will be limited as to how many programs (how much money) we will be able to conduct in this manner. We still have the $5,000 ceiling to contend with, and will not be able to recycle any more than that amount.

In rough figures I would suggest that we could conduct $2500 worth of services for programs through the account — the remaining $2500 will be needed for ski lessons and Music Circus programs. While $2500 does not seem to be much money, it can be translated, again in rough estimation, to about 26 programs of one session each, with the salary of $6 per hour, and an average of eight weeks per session. It will go quite a ways in programs.

The secondary effect of conducting programs in this manner will be a reduced amount of revenue generated to turn back over to the Town. The reduction in revenue might exceed $3,000, or about ½ of what we returned last year. To offset this we could charge for the summer playground or, let the Town take the loss.

There seems to be no other alternative to our 20 per cent budget cut. In effect we will take a good portion of the budget cut out of the Town, via fees generated, and absorb the rest, mostly in the operating budget, ourselves. Programs will not be greatly effected.

Respectfully,
John M. Worley,
Director

Service League surveys local social needs

By Suzanne Mullett
President of the Social Service League

The Social Service League of Cohasset recently conducted a telephone survey to determine what the citizens of Cohasset see as unmet needs in town, along with suggestions as to how these needs might be met. A questionaire was used as a guideline.

The abuse of alcohol and drugs was seen as the greatest problem in town, in both our youth and adult population from the early teenage years up to and including the elderly. Suggestions included ongoing educational programs for youngsters in school and community programs for parents and other adults.

The second greatest need in town was seen as low cost housing for middle and low income families of all ages. One person emphasized a need to include all ages together in such housing rather than isolating any one group, such as the elderly, from the rest of the population.

Of great concern to our citizens are the needs of our young people who have no place to meet and no facilities for activities of their own. Unfortunately, our youth did not participate in the survey. It would be helpful to know what the young people themselves would like to see in Cohasset for them. There is also a lack of facilities for young children of working parents and a need was expressed for a day care center for pre-school children and an after school care center for school children up to the age of thirteen.

Specific needs of single parent families and combined or second marriage families were seen as significant. Suggestions included parent support groups, social activities for single parents and support groups for the children of these families.

In relation to the elderly in addition to low cost housing, a need was seen for friendly phone calls and visitors, especially for shut-ins. A need was also expressed for education for the elderly concerning financial, practical and legal affairs, as well as nutrition and medication.

Regarding health services, many citizens in town favored sex education and nutrition education in the schools. It was felt that parents would appreciate more programs for themselves on the developmental and health needs of children.

In relation to the chronically and acutely ill, suggestions included housekeepers or a homemaker service for families whose mother is ill, and support groups for families of the terminally ill. There was also expressed a need for hospice care for the critically ill of all ages.

When questioned about domestic violence, citizens responded that they need more education as to services available, where to report abuse, and how to help a neighbor victimized by domestic violence. Citizens expressed a need for more publicity regarding hot lines available for victims to call for help.

The South Shore area already provides programs to meet some of these needs. There is a hot line for domestic violence in Quincy provided by DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) 471-1234. The Social Service League provides a resource and referral service in relation to a variety of needs and problem situations which is available to all Cohasset citizens. Carolyn Housman, the social worker, is prepared to assist or refer individuals to specific services they are seeking.

Drop in or call her at 383-0771 or 383-0821. The League would also like to hear from anyone who has further suggestions or ideas in relation to the needs of our community.

Selectmen notes

Town counsel has re-requested that Atty. John Krby be named assistant town counsel for the ensuing year.

Selectmen have granted permission to Boy Scout Troop 28 to hold a celebration of its 65th consecutive year. The event will be held on the Common on May 31.

Selectmen have taken bids for the town warrant and report under advisement. Lowest all-round bidder was J and R Graphics Inc. of Hanson. Other bidders were Dennison Press of East Weymouth, Fairmont Press, Rockland, D. Irving Co. of Braintree and Golden Print of Quincy.

☐Grandma Essie's famed sugar cookies are well renown in Cohasset and now I know why. Grandma Essie (Mrs. Essie Shumaker) of Morgantown, West Virginia, has been baking her special recipe once a month and mailing it to her son James' family. Her grandchildren Lisa and David, now 11 and 10 have been eating their Grandma's cookies since nursery school days!

Every four to six weeks a fresh batch of apples, animals, angels, stars.... shapes ad infinitum, laced on both sides with colored sugar icing, arrive and enter the Shumaker's freezer or tummies, or both.

Girl Scout troops, Sunday School classes, birthday party and lunchroom friends have all munched Grandma Essie's delicious cookies.

After a recent visit with Susan Shumaker, I left with eight of Grandma Essie's cookies in a bag. My kids didn't get their share; I gobbled them all up on the way home!

Could we renew your Mariner subscription, Mrs. Shumaker, for a year's worth of cookies?!)

☐Things have calmed down a bit since the rushed arrival of the Equi's third offspring last week and little Marc Burke is settling into home life at a standard pace.

Marc arrived a little sooner than expected on Jan. 12 at South Shore Hospital, just five minutes after Cohasset firemen delivered Mom Martha, and Dad Michael, to the hospital. He weighed 9 lbs. 1 oz.

His brother is Michael James, 6, and sister is Meredith Ann, 3; grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. James D. Burke and Mr. and Mrs. Michael P. Equi and great grandmother is Martha A. McClean, all of Holyoke.

☐Richard and Anne Bunstein became the parents of a second son, Kyle Robert, born on January 4 at Quincy City Hospital. Kyle was a very respectable 6 lbs. 15½ ozs. even though his arrival was a few weeks early. He's home now and doing fine.

He has a 2½ year old brother, Neven, and his grandparents are Mrs. Dorothy Russell of Cohasset, Mrs. Evelyn Bunstein of Wareham, and Mr. Robert Noonan of Brockton. His great grandmothers are Mrs. Catherine Noonan and Mrs. Catherine Herbert, both of Cohasset.

☐Edward Sparks, a partner of Sparks, Fitzgerald & Company of Cohasset, has been elected a Fellow of the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants. Sparks received his bachelors degree in accounting from Babson College in 1967.

The Massachusetts Society of CPAs is an organization of over 5,000 members founded in 1900 to promote and maintain the high standards of accounting.

☐Allen Weisenfluh, who has served as a member of the board of assessors for ten years, resigned from that position last week. He was re-elected to a three year term last April. His last campaign was at the request of his fellow board members in order to assist in the task of revaluation work of the town's real estate. Now that that process has been set up and is expected to be completed sometime in 1981, he decided to step down.

Thanks for a job well done, Al!

☐It is a well known fact that rumors aren't allowed in this column. Rumors are flying around town about the future plans of Tanna Kasperowicz who left her position with the Mariner last week. (There'll also be no tears here, at her request.)

It is not a rumor that she may go into the lemonade/fresh baked pretzel stand business and/or write a housecleaning column for a major Boston newspaper. It is a rumor that she took out nomination papers for an elected position in town.

The fact is that her energy, humor and devotion to an all-Cohasset newspaper will be missed. And since we know she'll be reading this, we'll leave it at that. When asked if she was going to write a farewell column she replied with typical tartness, "Why should I? I'm not going anywhere!"

You could always write her a love letter and enter it in our Valentine Love Letter Contest! (Details in this issue.)

☐The Cohasset Fireman's Benefit Association is selling raffle tickets for $500 worth of Stop & Shop gift certificates now through January 31. For $1 each, you can purchase tickets that could yield several months' worth of groceries.

Proceeds will benefit the Association's general fund and their scholarship fund. Each year, beginning in the 1960's, the fund has helped a Cohasset High School graduate to further his or her education.

Tickets may be purchased at the fire station or from any member of the association. The drawing will take place at Stop & Shop on the morning of January 31.

Civil Service hearing

Civil Service backed up the selectmen's decision to fire Smith three years ago. Court ruling turned the issue back to Civil Service after Smith claimed new evidence. That evidence was Stockbridge's testimony.

Smith was charged at that time with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon. He was never indicted on the charge. Clark said the police were supposed to bring the charges but Stockbridge, who was then the police prosecutor, was not notified when the case came up in court. Charges were dropped for lack of prosecution.

Obituary

Agnes Moriarty

Miss Agnes Ruth Moriarty, 86, a retired housekeeper for Attorney Warren F. Rideout of Malden, died Jan. 13 in South Shore Hospital.

She was born in Ware and was a resident of Franville Nursing Home, Braintree, for six years. She was also a retired bookkeeper.

She leaves a brother, James C. Moriarty of Framingham, and a cousin, Mary Ellen (Shea) Barnicle of Cohasset.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Friday in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

New T.M. start

Although town meeting voted to begin future town meetings at 1 p.m., annual town meeting, this year, will again have to begin at 10 a.m. due to a typographical error.

"We must go back to 10 a.m., this year, and do it all over again," said chairman of selectmen Arthur Clark explaining that the article to change the time will have to be revoted.

Flap over police uniforms

Police Chief John DeBassio has notified his men that they have overspent their budget appropriation for cleaning their uniforms and must now be responsible for them, themselves; but they want the town to continue to pay.

Selectmen will meet with Atty. Joseph McParland, counsel for the Police Association and Patrolman Paul Laugelle, chairman of the Police Grievance Committee, this Thursday, at 8 p.m. to discuss the problem.

Book exhibit

An exhibit of books from the library's collection entitled "Winter in New England: How to Survive, Remember, Enjoy," is in the Reference Room. The poster and selection of books was prepared by Mrs. Joseph Gwinn, President of the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

The book display covers subjects including natural history, energy and conservation and winter recreations. More books on all these subjects may be found in the New Book Room and the library stacks.

Video room nixed

Selectmen have agreed unanimously not to approve a game room at Jonathan Livingston Square.

They noted the experiences of other towns with game rooms and also that the proposed location was close to a drinking establishment. "It won't do our town any good to have that," concluded chairman Clark.

Morman clothing sale

Polly Doggett announces another clothing sale at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 24 at the Mormon Church, 379 Gardner St. in South Hingham. The sale will be held in the gymnasium at rear. All merchandise is new and comes from a nationally-known sportswear house. Some items are imperfect but repairable.

It's Official!!

We had such a great response to our "No Name Sale" we are going to have it every year. But in the meantime, we found some more deals, we had some shoes and other things left after the last sale that we now are going to have another one, so here it is...

"No Name Sale" Part Two

50% OFF Boots, Slippers & Warm Lined Shoes

40% OFF All Women's Dressy Shoes, Casual Suedes and Clothing

30% OFF Everything Else

This will be our final sale of winter goods. If it's anything like the last sale, it's too exhausting.

So come on, let's get it over with so I can start thinking spring.

See You,
Connie

Mail in your valentine

Contrary to the belief of some unromantic husbands, the exchange of greetings and gifts on Valentine's Day was not the invention of 20th century candy and card manufacturers and retailers.

The practice began a long time ago with the pagan lovers' festival of the Romans. In 1496 the Christians elevated the day for romantics to February 14 in honor of Saint Valentine, a Christian martyr. Americans started sending valentines without the benefit of advertisers in the 1800's.

Even if Fanny Farmer and Hallmark had invented it, Valentine's Day would still be a good idea. It's an insurance day for those who need prodding to express affection.

This year you can outdo yourself with a love letter to the Mariner, which if judged a winner (first prize is $25; second prize is $15; third prize is $10; and possible runners-up), will be published in the February 12 issue.

Our anonymous sample letter which appeared two weeks ago brought the creator a box of chocolates and longlasting devotion from the "grocer!" Think of the points you could earn with your favorite "anybody!" Think how pleased your mom, grandpop, favorite teacher, aunt, policeman, neighbor, papergirl or waitress would be with an expression of love for Valentine's Day in the Mariner!

(Lou Simone is going to be very pleased!)

Rules: Letters shouldn't go on for 16 plus pages, should reflect a keen wit, and should not get too gushy or mushy. Anyone who can compose a letter can enter; only one per person. Due at the Mariner on or before Thursday, Feb. 5 at noon.

Mail your letter to the Cohasset Mariner, Box 71, Cohasset 02025. Or drop it off at the Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy drop box on South Main Street.

THANK GOODNESS
THERE ARE SOME OPTIONS LEFT!
We have a full supply of them, - Options on homeowners - with competitive pricing. Options on auto insurance - yes, Virginia, there are a few left, and one or two can save you money. A full array of options that only local, personal service can provide.
We'll sit down with you and put insurance jargon in language that you will appreciate and understand.
Come by and just talk, NO CHARGE - we're neighbors.

Mail in your valentine

Contrary to the belief of some unromantic husbands, the exchange of greetings and gifts on Valentine's Day was not the invention of 20th century candy and card manufacturers and retailers.

The practice began a long time ago with the pagan lovers' festival of the Romans. In 1496 the Christians elevated the day for romantics to February 14 in honor of Saint Valentine, a Christian martyr. Americans started sending valentines without the benefit of advertisers in the 1800's.

Even if Fanny Farmer and Hallmark had invented it, Valentine's Day would still be a good idea. It's an insurance day for those who need prodding to express affection.

This year you can outdo yourself with a love letter to the Mariner, which if judged a winner (first prize is $25; second prize is $15; third prize is $10; and possible runners-up), will be published in the February 12 issue.

Our anonymous sample letter which appeared two weeks ago brought the creator a box of chocolates and longlasting devotion from the "grocer!" Think of the points you could earn with your favorite "anybody!" Think how pleased your mom, grandpop, favorite teacher, aunt, policeman, neighbor, papergirl or waitress would be with an expression of love for Valentine's Day in the Mariner!

(Lou Simone is going to be very pleased!)

Rules: Letters shouldn't go on for 16 plus pages, should reflect a keen wit, and should not get too gushy or mushy. Anyone who can compose a letter can enter; only one per person. Due at the Mariner on or before Thursday, Feb. 5 at noon.

Mail your letter to the Cohasset Mariner, Box 71, Cohasset 02025. Or drop it off at the Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy drop box on South Main Street.

McKinnon wants more $ for S. Shore transport

State Sen. Allan McKinnon, (D- Weymouth) urged that a $15 million share of the state's 1981 Transportation Bond Issue be allocated to the South Shore to expand and upgrade commuter boat services, purchase buses and acquire satellite parking areas.

"Routes 3 and 3A are already overcrowded," said Sen. McKinnon, "and the Southeastern Massachusetts region is one of the fastest-growing areas of the state."

Testifying recently before a panel of state transportation officials, McKinnon went on to say that continued population expansion into this region can only serve to emphasize the inadequacy of the South Shore's two major arteries; but he does not advocate the building of more highways.

"More roadways are not the answer," he said. "Wider use of public transportation should be encouraged, but unfortunately, the South Shore area suffers from a severe lack of public transit services."

McKinnon wants the state to spend $10 million to construct shore facilities and purchase boats for lease to private operators for commuter runs from the South Shore to Boston. He said the key to a successful commuter ferry system is having enough vessels that may be rotated allowing for regular maintenance and upkeep.

"A back-up boat will prevent service interruptions and regular maintenance will make the state's investment more worthwhile," McKinnon said.

Sen. McKinnon also pointed to the need for increased bus service to the South Shore, and asked that $5 million be used to purchase buses to be leased to private operators and to acquire satellite parking areas to encourage use of the buses.

"If we can subsidize a relatively small number of railroad commuters at a cost of approximately $50 million per year," said McKinnon, "I think that the South Shore's dire need for public transit can and should be accommodated."

Dean's list students

Sue Boardman and Kathaleen Palimeri have been named to the Fall Semester Dean's List of the Day Division at Massasoit Community College.

Weeden honored

Bill Weeden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schultz of North Scituate, formerly of Hingham and Cohasset, has been honored by the National Academy of Concert and Cabaret Artists at its first annual awards in Town Hall Theater in New York City.

Weeden, Finkle and Fay were adjudged the best comedy group of 1980. Also given top awards were Bobby Short, Rodney Dangerfield and Chita Rivera.

Weeden attended Hingham schools and after graduation from Yale College began his writing and entertainment career. He lives in New York with his wife and daughter.

Cohasset GOP at Inaugural

Some of the town's more Republican residents spent the early part of the week mixing with celebrities in Washington, D.C. at the inauguration of President Ronald Reagan.

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray and her family were among the guests at the inaugural ball at the Kennedy Center. So were Mr. and Mrs. David Place and Raymond and Patricia Buckley.

Only 500 resident of Massachusetts had invitations to the ball — one of eight held simultaneously, according to Polly Logan, Republican national committeewoman and a former Cohasset resident.

Ice men unbeaten, dump Hull

By Rob Tis

The undefeated Skipper hockey team was handed a tie this week, but won the game it really wanted. On Tuesday night the Skippers faced the Duxbury Green Dragons. After Cohasset gained the lead, two Duxbury goals were scored in the second period to lock the game at four-all. Skipper goals were scored by Mike Bossy, the ever-hustling Danny Bowen and Andy Pottenger. Jack McNeill also scored, but the number one star of this game was Skipper netminder Mike Jones.

Saturday night at Winter Gardens the Skippers were pitted against their arch rival the Hull Pirates. The first period and a good deal of the second, was the Andy Pottenger show as he scored two goals and Don O'Neill scored one. But the Pirates had also tallied three.

Then with time waning in the second stanza, Pottenger netted his third goal attaining a hat trick and putting the Skippers up by one. The Pirates came right back however, to tie it up before the period expired.

The Cohasset crowd was getting restless as its size grew. Even David Gunville, infamous medical student at Stonehill College, made an appearance. The crowd wanted two things: a goal and some good stiff body checking. Danny Bowen neatly tucked a back-hander into the opposite top corner to give them the goal and defensemen Joe Becker, Gary Ormiston and Barron Salvador kept Hull on its toes with some crisp body checks.

The goal by Bowen did not seem enough so Sean Curran rifled one right by the Hull goalkeep to put the icing on the cake and give the Skippers the victory at 6-4.

C.C.C. classes postponed

Classes at the Cohasset Community Center will not begin this week.

The first classes have been postponed to Jan. 26 due to inclement weather and illnesses. Registration for the courses has been extended to the end of this week.

Math team wins

On Jan. 14, Cohasset High School's Math Team won the South division of the Greater Boston Math League hosted by Scituate.

There are nine schools in the South division: Abington, Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Marshfield, Rockland, Scituate, Weymouth North and Weymouth South.

School Board goes behind closed doors

School committee watchers and reporters will have to wait until Monday, Feb. 2 (Ground Hog's Day) before the committee meets again in open session. Following the last public meeting on Jan. 6, they have met twice in executive session.

On Wednesday, Jan. 14, the committee met with their lawyer Alan Miller, regarding teacher contract negotiations which are about to get underway as current contracts expire this year.

Monday's meeting, posted as a "Negotiation Strategy Session," was held for further discussions of teacher contract negotiations as they will have an impact on the budget for 1981-1982.

The school committee plans to meet for open discussions of the proposed budget, which was presented to school committee members this week.

Economic crunch hits local youth hockey

By Bucky Yardume

Few are those who have excaped the economic squeeze. OPEC! The utilities! Ronald Reagan with a record $10 million inaugural spending spree. Not, for sure, youth hockey.

In fact, in the view of Jim Griffin who is among the guiding lights of the Norwell/Scituate/Cohasset Seahawks, "the program calibre is falling off."

On the surface, it appears healthy enough. There are 110 youngsters in the program skating eight teams — one Mite (7-8-9 year-olds), two Squirts (10-11); three Peewee (12-13) and two Bantams (14-15).

They skate in the South Shore Conference and fare fairly well vs. the likes of Hingham, Weymouth, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Brookline, Hyde Park, Canton and Walpole. The Peewee A team, in fact, does better than all right having posted over 20 wins.

But the economy is taking its toll.

"It's just too expensive the way costs are today," explains Griffin, an ex-Boston College contemporary of Eddie Miller, now aide to the President at the Heights wrestling with problems like basketball point-shaving.

The program charges a $10 registration fee, plus $35 per youngster per month over the seven month season which comes to $255 on the family's budget. That's if there's only one youngster involved. If there's two, double it. The third youngster is a freebie.

Then there are hidden costs in travel, and when teams qualify for tournaments, those expenses are compounded. When the program sent a team to the Lake Placid, N.Y. competition the cost was around $500.

"That's a lot of money for most families today," Griffin says. "And consequently, the program is hurting because of it."

Griffin has no fault with paying for ice time.

"Pete Breen of Cohasset Winter Gardens has done everything possible to keep costs down in the regard," Griffin relates.

Other towns like South Boston and Charlestown benefit from MDC rinks where charges are much lower.

The Seahawks reap no such benefits.

Teams in urban areas also have a broader range of sponsoring businesses.

"Ours are limited," Griffin says. "After all, the same businesses in our area are hit all the time. They don't have just us. There's Little League, Youth Football and every other organization seeking funding. The merchants are great, but they're having it rough, too. There's a limit."

A couple of other factors also hamper the program. Norwell has no high school hockey program (if it had it would have been cut by 2½ anyway) so with no place to go after youth play at the high school level, Norwell's hockey interest is minimal. In Cohasset, many kids go to private schools and are unavailable to the program.

Put it all together, and you have the reason Griffin feels the calibre is hurting.

Basketball girls win their 1st

By Rob Tis

The Cohasset High School girls' varsity basketball team mounted its first victory of the season and a convincing one at that. The Skippers faced Holbrook on Friday afternoon and crunched right over them 47-34. Gia Baressi, a sophomore who seems to spark the team, led the scoring with a total of 12. Madeline Roy and Kate Salerno both added 10 points each.

This win, however, is their first versus six losses, but the improvement is evident. They lost their first game of the year by about 40 points. Then as the season went on they kept getting better until just recently when they dropped a game to Hanover by one point and in the same week a loss to Middleboro by two.

Now, this Friday, a convincing victory over the Bulldogs. Who knows what's next for this young team! And a young team it is. The loss of starting players Jodi Sandblom, Ellen McCarthy and Jill Rosano to graduation was obviously detrimental to the team. Rumor has it that the reason Carolyn Wampole was not out for the team this year is because she was drafted by the Celtics.

This year's starting lineup only has one senior, Lindsey Gilmore, the girls' answer to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Juniors Madeline Roy and Katie Salerno play forward, Gia Garessi plays guard, as well as ball-handling wizard Karen Froio, who plays the point. Other guards include Hannah Clinton, Ellen DiGirolamo and Stacy Thompson.

Angela O'Brien, Suzanne O'Rourke, Laura Hines, Donna Chisholm and the team spirit leader, Laurie Sandblom, all play forward.

The team is coached by Mr. Fallon, a substitute teacher at CHS from Hull. He emphasizes the basics of shooting and rebounding. He has his team mainly in the tight 2-1-2 zone defense, but man-to-man or woman-to-woman defense is used in some situations. He varies the offenses attempting to find what fits them best.

The Skippers face Norwell and Duxbury this week. Duxbury's game is on Friday at home; the J.V. starts at 3:15 and the varsity usually takes the floor around 4:30. The girls have the speed, ball-handling, height and attitude to be a winning team. Come up to CHS on Friday afternoon and watch this team put it all together!

Register for boating class

Six months from now local harbours and waterways will be free from ice and jammed with small pleasure craft. In anticipation, the Coast Guard Auxiliary is offering Boating Safety Classes.

Auxiliary Flotilla 1203, Pt. Allerton, will begin its spring class in Basic Boating Skills and Seamanship Monday, Jan. 19, at Hingham High School, at 7:30 p.m.

There is no charge to register for the class, but the cost of text and additional materials is approximately $7.

Classes provide information on legal requirements, rules of the road, aids to navigation and boat handling in adverse conditions. In addition there are basic piloting, marlinspike (knots), and radio communications classes. Flotilla 1203 also offers a Boston Harbour orientation class and brief instruction in first aid for the boatman and hypothermia causes, prevention and treatment.

For further information call Karol Kynaston, public education officer at 925-3518.

Basketball clinics begin

Boys' and girls' basketball clinics for students in grades 4, 5 and 6 begin on Jan. 20 and 21. Register at the Recreation office or by calling 383-6791.

Boys' basketball will meet from 3:30 to 5 Tuesday afternoons in the Deer Hill School gym and girls' basketball meets at the same time on Wednesday afternoons. Both eight week sessions will be coached by sixth grade teacher, Frank Deakin. The fee is $5.

Afternoon sports, a program of structured team sports of games and activities for boys and girls in grades 4 to 6, will also begin this week.

What started as joke... ...ends in Cairo

It started as a joke, I thought, New Year's Eve, when we sat in California with kinfolk and their friends, bemusing the upcoming adventure of Maxie Anderson.

They said I should go to Cairo, Egypt (not Maine or Georgia) to cover the flight of the Jules Verne. I laughed and said my afghan wasn't done. But somewhere in the middle of that night while the Pacific purred outside the window, I wondered if such a trip were a fantasy or an opportunity. And I prayed I'd know the difference.

PATCHES

By Lois Martin

Now, two weeks later, I've learned the difference is possibility. And I'm going to Cairo because it has become possible. And for the last week in the middle of the night, I've been faced with inadequacies which tumble over one another in the mind.

Oh I know I can write about the Jules Verne, Maxie, his wife Patty, Cairo, the people there. In fact I won't be able to resist that. But much of the chasing in these balloon adventures is dependent on good luck. And it wouldn't hurt to have a bit of savvy, news sense, strong instincts.

But I can't pack those so I concentrated instead on my clothing. When I went to London, friends packed and I was barely able to lift the suitcase. This time I'm on my own. And I've been remanded to be mindful that women there are to be demure, feminine, tastefully dressed, aware of their place. At least seven inadequacies in that bunch.

They said I didn't need shots, but I should take my malaria pills. Side effects, the pharmacist said, included stomach cramps, irregular heartbeat, general malaise. So I haven't had one yet.

My children have been guardedly supportive. You can't be too careful about spurring on a mother who might have lost her mind. So, honoring the guilt that is prerequisite probably even to Egyptian women, save Cleopatra, I've been making double batches of muffins. At the mere mention of a brownie, I've put on my apron. Goodness knows they need to eat well now. No telling what they'll have while I'm gone.

And I've been told to watch out for the camelburgers over there. Never mind The Water. The best news I've had, on this the day before the flight, is that there's a Kentucky Fried Chicken place in Cairo. Now I know it's ordained that I should go.

As for the flight, it's a long one. Here I am with my ears barely unstopped from California and I'm headed out again. I've already read TWA's Ambassador magazine for January.

My husband's mind has been restive. He has his worries. I'm not to ride the bus. And he earnestly requests that I learn the proper words for "yes" and "no," in case the Egyptians use those backwards. Maxie said one out of four people there speak English. I'm going to line them up, ask them to count off and just deal with the 'ones.' And he said women there are not subjected to the prejudices and limitations they receive in other Arabian countries. Someone said seriously to me that I shouldn't wear anything low cut.

I'd probably be asked to not to in my own country, for heaven's sake.

Well, it's mind boggling at 2 a.m.; thrilling at 6. And by the time you read this I hope to have developed the elan to call Mrs. Sadat for a hometown chat.

I make no promises about eating the raw lamb wrapped in grape leaves. And I don't care to hear any jokes about hostages and guerilla warfare.

I tell you, it would probably be easier to stay home and check out the white sales. But the alternative to not going would be that I'd be disappointed in myself. I have this opportunity made possible, a thrilling one in which to cheer for Maxie on the Jules Verne, support Patty and to fulfill my own desire to record all that I can for the Mariner and for posterity. I'm grateful for the rare knock on the door. And they say it's but once. I intend to justify that rap.

Besides, I've no reason not to go. My afghan is

Remember those steamy August days when everyone was wondering if we'd ever be cool again? With day after day of zero degree temperatures, records being broken, constant reminders by weathermen of chill degree factors, I'd trade it all for just one sunny afternoon by the pool. Certainly beats huddling by a wood stove, or listening to the constant drone of the oil burner. Even a January thaw would be welcome in this frigid weather, but here in New England we learn to gear outselves to the seasons, content to nibble on salads as the thermometer rises and relishing hot, hearty foods as the temperature plummets. No better time than now for Marcia Bonta's

MAINE POTATO SOUP

Wash and scrape 4 medium-size potatoes. Cook until soft, then drain, saving the cooking water. When potatoes are cool, dice them and set aside.

Fry 4 slices of bacon until crisp. Put 4 T of the bacon grease into a heavy pot and saute one diced onion until soft. Add 2 T of flour. Cook until bubbly. Measure 1⅓ c. of milk. Add the potato water and enough additional water to make a quart.

Stir milk mixture quickly into the flour mixture, cooking until thickened. Flavor with 3/4 tsp. of salt, 1/4 tsp. paprika, 1 tsp. dried chives and a dash of garlic salt. Add the potatoes and cook slowly for 10 min. Crumble bacon on top. Serves 4 to 6.

Unheated and frosty during the winter, pantries were no place to linger, but must have been wonderful for storing crocks of mincemeat, keeping food chilled and milk fresh. Old New England farmhouses and antique Capes were never complete without pantries where housewives took pride in jars of canned vegetables and fruit and preserves that they "put by" during the fall. Saturday baking sessions produced a few pies, enough bread for the week, doughnuts and cookies to fill the cookie jar and were kept safely from all but those little two-legged mice who often stole into the "larder." This recipe of Lucia O'Brien's can be stored in our modern refrigerators and will keep about six weeks. In your spare time, why not make up a batch of

LUCIA'S BRAN MUFFINS

2 c. All Bran cereal
2 c. shredded wheat, crushed
1/2 c. boiling water
1 c. shortening
3 c. sugar
4 eggs, beaten
5 c. flour
4¾ tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. baking powder
2 tsp. salt
4 c. buttermilk

Combine cereals in a very large bowl. Add boiling water. Cream shortening, sugar and eggs. Add to cereals in large bowl. Mix and sift flour, soda, baking powder and salt. Add buttermilk to dry ingredients. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 min. Makes about 5 dozen. Mix will keep in 1/2 gal. plastic containers in refrigerator for about six weeks.

Want to know how long this snow will last? In grandma's day you were told to cut a snowball in half. "If it is wet inside, the snow will pass off with rain; if it is dry inside, the snow will be melted by the sun." Other old "saws" regarding winter weather promised that the more snow, the more healthy the season. "A white Christmas, a lean graveyard." With so much flu and so many sniffles around, something must have gone wrong with the latter theory, but for those who have escaped all the germs, why not a slice of Millie Carr's

CHOCOLATE ANGEL PIE

Beat 2 egg whites until foamy. Add 1/8 tsp. salt and 1/8 tsp. cream of tartar, beat until mixture stands in soft peaks. Add 1/2 c. sugar gradually and continue beating until very stiff. Fold in 1/2 c. nuts and 2 tsp. vanilla. Turn into lightly greased 8" pie plate. Bake at 300 for 55 min. Cool completely. Melt 1 cake German chocolate in double boiler. Add 3 T hot water. Blend and cool. Add 1 tsp. vanilla. Fold in 1 c. cream, whipped. Pour into meringue shell and chill before serving.

by Joe Carty

Every year, more than 6000 people are killed, 33,000 people injured and over $300 million in property is lost in over one-half million fires each year. It pays to be very careful with fire safety conditions in your own home. Make sure the heating system is in good shape and have it checked regularly. Do not leave combustible odds and ends stored in cellars, attics and corners. Are all electrical wires and connectors properly insulated? Are your cigarettes carefully extinguished? Finally, if something happens, are you properly insured?

Joe says, "Fires are one of our nation's worst cripplers in the way of life and property destruction." At MURPHY/CARTY INSURANCE, 56 Driftway in Greenbush, we are a full line insurance company, handling all forms of insurance including homeowners, personal property and accident. If you are not properly covered to suit your needs, why not call us at 545-0793. We are in the Driftway Bldg. and ready to serve you Mon-Fri 9-5; Sat and evenings by appt.

INSURANCE TIP:

Make sure that all electrical appliances are Underwriters' Laboratory approved to insure safety.

Commuter

Don DiMichele

Introducing... Don DiMichele, he jogs to work

By Karin Bartow

Five days a week, Don DeMichele jogs from his home on Jerusalem Road to his job at Proctor & Gamble in Quincy, or back.

The steady run adds only 40 minutes to what would otherwise be a 25 minute commute.

Sometimes the run is a waker-upper. Sometimes it is a relaxer. But the 10½ mile trip gives DeMichele a larger work capacity and a general feeling of betterment.

Adding Saturday and Sunday runs in Cohasset and parts of Scituate and Hingham (he has 10, 15 and 20 mile routes), his weekly odometer averages 75 miles. When he's training for a marathon, it goes up to 100. "Last year I figure I ran a total of 3,600 miles at an average of 10 miles a day," DeMichele says. He confesses that he skips about one day in thirty.

DeMichele is plant chemical engineer and personal development operations manager (responsible for training all management and non-management personnel) at Proctor & Gamble. An early morning meeting doesn't interfere with his running. "I may get up at 4:30 a.m. to run in Cohasset and then drive to work."

His routine for getting to and from the job varies. Sometimes he'll drive in on Monday with clothes for a few days, running home and back in the next morning. Sometimes a friend will drive his car home. Occasionally he hoofs it both ways. Since P&G is a chemical plant, there are shower

Attend Beacon Hill hearing

Gambling foes press their case

The Group Against Gambling, GAG, converged on the State House yesterday with an Army of arguments opposed to casino gambling.

Residents of Hull, Cohasset and Hingham told the legislators casino gambling would adversely impact their communities.

"There is no question that the town of Hull needs a larger tax base and is off the track for industry," Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, R-Cohasset, told the committee on government regulations.

"Many people seem to think casino gambling will remove the existing financial problems of Hull; however, it has been proven that this is not the case.

"Certainly Atlantic City has proven to us that the promises are not kept by the people involved in setting up gambling casinos. Even the very specially and carefully worded New Jersey legislation has not provided the monies specified for the elderly, nor the protection which their statute desired.

"I am unalterably opposed to casino gambling anywhere in this commonwealth. I would like to be recorded with the majority of the selectmen in the towns of Cohasset, Hingham and Hull as strongly opposed to any form of casino gambling in the town of Hull."

One speaker after another from GAG came forward before the committee to take on different points of the issue.

Of course traffic congestion and the possibility of increased criminal activity were prominent among the rationale GAG tried to emphasize.

The 21 GAG speakers had the weekend to prepare for the hearing that included all gaming bills filed for this year.

Marie Plante of Cohasset, a GAG activist who did not address the committee, pointed out that one bill under consideration would allow the holders of Beano licenses to operate slot machines. Another bill would set up a state Gamblers' Anonymous funded by the Lottery.

Mrs. Plante said she thought the funding method would be rather ironic.

Permit to thaw pipes

There were at least two minor fires believed caused by attempts to thaw water pipes.

Officials are reluctant to give out specific information on the problem said to be caused by a private contractor brought in by a homeowner.

"Our crews were not involved," Water Commissioner William Montuori explained. Yet fire department personnel had referred questions to the water department.

From now on selectmen want anyone working on frozen water pipes to take out a building permit and have a licensed electrician standing by.

The permit is an emergency regulation established by the selectmen. Selectman Henry Ainslie said an ordinance should be written to cover the problem in the future.

There will be no fee asked for the permit because as Selectman Rocco Laugelle said the problem is an extremely expensive one for homeowners.

With the milder weather, water department crews have managed to catch up on backlogged work.

Mark Dana returns to the spotlight

By Patricia Desmond

There's a basement apartment near the Cove that's filled with soft rock music and flowers and infant's playthings.

Mark and Melinda Dana flow quietly with the melody of creation.

He happens to be a musician, composer, lyricist and singer.

She is a floral designer.

They are the parents of a beautiful eight-week-old boy, Nicholas. A child with wide eyes and steady stares. Right now both Mark and Melinda are rapt up with Nicholas — his needs and existence.

Mark's one venture back into the world of performances is coming up Friday and Saturday at the Greenhouse in Cohasset Village. He'll be playing his songs and more well-known rock selections from 9 p.m. to closing time.

Just two years ago the Mark Dana band was beginning to make it in New York. They had a record — music and words by Mark Dana — that was getting air time in the Big Apple. The group did a tour opening for ShaNaNa.

"We were playing to 7,000 to 12,000 then but I

Cohasset's week

Ice warning

Two young girls were out walking on the ice of Straits Pond in Cohasset this week. Luckily they moved across the frozen pond without falling through the ever thinning ice.

The message is simple. The weather is warmer now. Ice over rivers and harbors is melting fast.

Stay off the ice, whatever there is of it, that crusts and cracks over running water.

Library films

The Paul Pratt Memorial Library will show a group of movies based on fairy tales for younger elementary school aged children Tuesday, Feb. 3 at 3:15 p.m.

The films will include such children's classics as Aesop's Fables, Rapunzel from the Brother's Grimm, Merbabies, and The Bremen Town Musicians.

The program will end at about 4:15.

More fees increased

There are some new fees for town records this week as town departments try to become more self-sufficient.

Business certificates now cost $5, they cost nothing before. It will cost $10 to have the town clerk research records and provide genealogical information. Voter lists, mainly used by candidates, will cost $4 each — unless a check of state law shows some problem.

Fire protection

Even though the fire department will be cut by six men next year — another tale of Proposition 2½ — selectmen aren't sure whether anyone will be laid off.

There are three vacancies already on the department and there are reports five men may retire in the next year.

Two of the more junior firefighters went to talk with the selectmen about the question of layoffs because "all we know is what we read in the papers," Bob Silvia said.

He and Jay Fiori asked the board to consider cutting other departments more than 15 percent to maintain the current level of fire protection in town.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle pointed out that the chief was recommending the closing of two fire stations.

Arthur Clark, chairman of the board, told the firefighters the hope is that the reductions will be made through attrition.

But the selectmen and fire chief cannot force firefighters eligible for retirement to leave the department.

Clark offered no guarantees, saying there may be further cuts next year. The fire department is the largest payroll in general government, coming second to the school budget in the overall town budget.

"None of us voted for 2½," Clark said.

Advisors studying

The advisory board is in the process of studying budget proposals. They meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at town hall and again each Thursday and Tuesday until the warrant for town meeting is ready.

Need a chair?

The selectmen are looking for takers for the old chairs that filled the auditorium on the first floor of town hall. New chairs have already arrived.

New Weisenfluh resignation

F. Allen Weisenfluh, the assessor, has moved his resignation date from April 1 to March 1 to allow candidates to run for the two year unexpired term. Due to a technicality Weisenfluh must be out of office before his seat can be included in the annual town election.

Don DiMichele jogs to work

facilities available for regular workers and running-workers alike.

The running started five years ago when DeMichele, then based in Kansas City, Kansas with P&G, was encouraged to come run the Boston Marathon by a Massachusetts friend. "At that time I was only running a mile, but I went into training and ran unqualified with my friend." He finished in 3 hours 37 minutes.

Since then, he has run three more BA's, improving his time to 2:48 two years ago. Last year he ran as a Massachusetts resident, having moved to Cohasset a year and a half ago. Unfortunately, his time dropped back to 3:28 due to an injury. He fell and twisted his ankle at the 22 mile mark and walked the remaining four miles to the finish line. So far he has not qualified to run this year's race (he needs 2:50 in a marathon to do it.

DeMichele ran the Foxboro marathon in November, finishing in 3:04 and is still undecided as to whether he will run the Silver Lake Dodge and another Foxboro marathon in February.

Short races, 10 and 12 kilometer and half-marathons, are more to his liking since the training takes less time away from home. During last year's training for the BA, he didn't have dinner with his family for four months in a row.

Compact at 5'8" and 146 lbs., DeMichele feels his wife Sue's all-natural cooking has helped his running. "I get the vitamins and protein I need without the sugar." Sue used to run, but after developing a hip problem, switched to biking.

If you've ever wondered why runners face the traffic, it's because they want to keep an eye on the drivers.

DeMichele says he's only had one close encounter in five years of running and that occurred last week on Route 3A.

"Some guy must have had a really bad day," he recalled. "He was driving in the middle lane and definitely came over and tried to run me off the road!" He easily removed himself from the disgruntled driver's path and, undaunted, finished the run home.

Cohasset 60 Plus Club's board meeting is scheduled for Feb. 3 at 11 a.m. in the Unitarian Parish House.

The Club's monthly meeting will be Feb. 19 in the Unitarian Parish House with coffee hour at noon.

At 1 p.m. Mr. J. J. Swanson of Professional Associates, will do hand writing analysis.

Deer Hill council

A meeting of Deer Hill Communications Council to be held February 3 at 9 a.m. These meetings of the Council are important to anyone interested in the school system.

Democrats host transportation panel

The Cohasset Democratic Town Committee will host a panel discussion called "South Shore Transportation for the '80's," Thursday, Feb. 5 at 8 p.m. at the First Parish Meetinghouse on Cohasset Common.

The specific problems of commuter transportation for area towns will be explored in light of the continuing MBTA fiscal crisis and the budgetary effects of Proposition 2½.

Speaking at the event will be four individuals closely concerned with the issues of regional transportation:

State Sen. Allan McKinnon (D- Weymouth) will discuss his concerns for local transportation needs. McKinnon, who recently secured state funding for Hull's Pemberton commuter boat pier and the synchronization of traffic signals on Rte. 3A, is an advocate of strong measures to reform the MBTA.

State Rep. Louis Nickinello (D- Natick) is House Chairman of the Joint Committee on Transportation. Chairman Nickinello has sponsored legislation in the current session of the House to return the assessments of cities and towns to the 1964 level of the 14 directly serviced by the MBTA.

Martha Reardon, of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, has extensively studied the transit problems of the South Shore as they impact on the economic growth and development of the region. Ms. Reardon will present a slide show on water transportation as part of her talk.

David Barry, a representative of the South Shore Bus Company, will discuss his firm's plan to service the Town of Hull with private, non-subsidized bus transportation. Hull Selectmen recently granted South Shore Bus permission to operate in Hull following the cut-back of MBTA supported service to the Town.

The public is invited to attend this event and question the panel.

Editorial

Who's out front?

Where are the politicians when you really need them?

Some of our most well known and well respected community leaders just happen to be on the front lines in the fight against plans to put casino gambling in Hull.

The Group Against Gambling, GAG as they like to be called, counts Hingham Selectman Gene Bickford and Cohasset Selectman Arthur Clark among their supporters.

We applaud political leaders who know where they stand. We also applaud the grassroots lobbyists from GAG who have put together an incredible network in an extremely brief time.

They are organized, logical people working in our democratic process the way a political text would advise. They have their petitions out. We hear there are 2,000 petitions moving in Cohasset alone. We guess that's to give each family a chance at being recorded separately.

There are movies and debates planned in the near future to keep focusing attention on the issue. And the local politicians have been hearing loud and long about the hazards of bringing gambling to the area.

Hundreds of people in Hull, Cohasset and Hingham have already aligned themselves with GAG.

Do you see hundreds of local residents running about town with petitions in favor of casino gambling?

Still we hear there is much pressure on legislators to go along with the legislation allowing casino gambling.

Marie Plante of Cohasset, a GAG member, says the only people who will make money off the Hull casino are the people in MGM. Well maybe in the light of the recent report on state contracting practices and the recent scandal on the Boston School Committee over an extortion attempt, we should wonder whether the only people making money will indeed be from MGM, the developer.

We can be sure the politicians who work hard against the legislation aren't going to be getting one illegal cent.

She's been late all week

By Patricia Desmond

I've been late for every meeting I had on my schedule all week.

Unless you count the fact I showed up 10 minutes early at the meeting of the Cohasset Selectmen. But I can't take credit for that coup! I had written down the wrong time and I thought I was 20 minutes late.

Learning a new job can take more time than some of us have.

Town officials have been wonderful so far. I guess they don't know me well enough to disagree with what I seem to be doing.

But my boss, Mariner publisher David Cutler, warned me against continuing my practice of threading together wishy washy editorials.

He also wanted to know why I took Friday night off and why the Scituate paper was two hours late going to press. I told him I needed to sleep for 24 hours after speeding through my first week in the weeklies and that he hadn't told me when Scituate was supposed to roll. All he'd said was "Get it out Wednesday."

He's a man of few words.

"The editorials are the best read part of the paper," he said more than once.

I offered to editorialize on the use of the word chairperson.

He reminded me I am not allowed to use that word in the Mariner.

Tanna Kasperowicz, former editor of the Cohasset Mariner, called me while I was still daydreaming about a hard hitting cause I could adopt as my own. She said last week's paper wasn't bad but why hadn't I mentioned Noel Ripley, the Cohasset man who rang the bells of the First Parish Church on Cohasset Common throughout the 14 months our hostages were held in Iran.

There wasn't any room or any time either, I replied. I failed, I said to myself.

Well Florida was lovely, Tanna went on.

"I think I may live in Disneyworld."

Good idea, I thought, I could certainly use a trip to fantasyland for its feature possibilities.

Harbor ducks need feed

Letters

To the Editor:

A crisis situation is developing for the wild ducks wintering-over in Little Harbor.

Since the end of December most of their sources of food have been covered with ice and snow. Their survival now depends on the support of concerned citizens willing to provide consistent feeding with proper food such as corn. Another extended period of cold weather similar to that which occured at the first of the year will be too much for many of them to endure.

Feeding must be done carefully.

The corn must be spread thinly over as large an area as possible to allow the less aggressive birds a chance to compete for the food. It should not be thorwn on light snow as it will sink in and the birds will not find it. It should not be thrown into the water as it would probably be lost under the ice.

A real tragedy is that this problem could probably have been avoided if well-meaning citizens had not started feeding the ducks in September. These hand-outs given by people in areas which are now frozen solid, have discouraged the birds from making their normal migration to the south where natural food is available all winter.

It is too late for any of them to make this flight now as they are weak from their meager diet. Birds need to be in their prime to make the flight successfully. What can be done now?

Provide food in the manner suggested above. But please, no Wonder Bread or Ritz crackers. This is as bad for ducks as it is for people. Whole corn is the best. Cracked corn is the next best but it will swell when wet and loose its food value.

If you are concerned and want to help and don't have a suitable feeding area, send money to me and I will purchase corn with it. A 100 lb. bag lasts two-three days and costs about $11 a bag. We will use up quite a few bags of corn before the end of February.

The generation gap widens

By Claire McDonough

Lord, grant me the patience not to launch a search and destroy mission for the person who told me, "Having children will keep you young."

Having children ages one faster than anything I know. Maybe it was different in the days before television, but nothing makes the wrinkles pop out quicker than a lilting childish voice asking, "Ma, in the olden days when you were a girl were most of the Indians friendly or hostile?" Or how about, "Ma, was it hard to ride a horse if you were wearing a hoop skirt?"

A friend of mine turned gray overnight at the age of 30 when her youngsters asked her to settle an argument about Richard the Lionhearted, and another gal I know fielded one too many questions about buffalo-chips-as-fuel and started nipping Geritol at 8 in the morning. My husband developed a permanent tremor after his fourth son asked him if he ever served with Wyatt Earp, and one of his best friends has been known to stand in front of a mirror yelling, "I don't know if George Washington's teeth gave him splinters. I never even met George Washington."

It's rough when your kids assume you're old enough to give them an eye witness account of history. One of my more painful memories involves the day my daughter showed my high school year book to her friends.

"It's really very quaint," she told them. "My mother and all her friends are in period costume."

For the next hour giggles and shrieks emanated from her room, punctuated by remarks like,

"Look, real bobby socks! And she's wearing them over her nylons!" and

"Did people ever really wear their hair like that?"

It's even worse when you give your kids an eye witness account of something and to them it is history. My most aging experience of all occured the day I asked my oldest what she was studying in history. For openers she pointed out that no one studies history any more —

"It's social studies, Mother," then she disposed of the single greatest terror of my childhood with an airy, "Oh, we're learning all about some jerk named Hitler."

A love letter

This is an early entry in the Valentine's Day love letter contest. Since it was written by the new editor, the writer is disqualified from serious consideration.

To the people of Cohasset:

I never expected I could document my love for this picturesque community so soon. I never expected to find people so open, so willing to let me scribble away about their business and expose their stories to the rest of the town.

But your smiles, your polite handshakes, your intrinsic courtesies won my heart.

Thanks for the opportunity.

Commentary

It was a day unlike any I had ever witnessed. The threads of history seemed to have all come together in a flash, and the weave was startling. But there was something else, something more elusive, hidden in the weave, obscured by the curves and the glitter of the day's events.

It was the warp of the tapestry, the subtle foundation of thread upon which the pattern was woven. It was only in the quiet that followed the passing of that day that I was able to see the warp for what it was.

The day was Tuesday, January 20, 1981. And what a day it was.

It was the day that America's 40th president, Ronald Wilson Reagan, was sworn into office. Despite the fact that some political war dogs would attempt to co-opt the event, party affiliations, ideologies, fears and hostilities had no part to play in the simple ceremony that took place on the west side of the capitol. A new president — our new president — had come to lead us.

It was the day that 52 Americans at last won their freedom from a nation of bitter and confused children. Fourteen months of frustration, self-doubt and anger had created a national attitude that always held the potential for violence and rage. But on this day America was too wrapped up in joy and thanksgiving to think about hate. We all had somehow grown in living through this crisis, and with that growth came the strength not to fall to the level of those petulent revolutionaries who had fashioned from their pain a god of anger and vengeance.

It was the day that Jimmy Carter returned to Georgia, a poignant symbol of an era he had helped bring to a close. We had finally come to see that even with the best of intentions we could not legislate poverty or social injustice out of existence; that the mammoth government we had created to solve our problems was only making them worse.

These were the threads that came together on that one amazing day. They were woven so tightly they would form a knot for historians to study. But there was another thread running through the center of the weave — the warp of the tapestry, the one single event that gave cohesion to the pattern.

This was the day that America began to come together again.

Viet Nam, more than any other factor, had robbed us of our unity. Somewhere in the distant fields and jungles of Southeast Asia, we had lost our innocence, abandoned our sense of purpose. Watergate only served to validate our growing cynicism. We quickly found ourselves becoming a nation of fractious, demanding individuals. We expected little from our leaders and generally got less than we expected as a consequence. As the years passed, there was a pressing need that continued to grow more urgent, but we were so defensive and frightened we could only experience it as an economic condition. It wasn't inflation and recession that was pulling the country apart. We had lost ourselves, we were drifting. Ours was a country founded on ideals, and once those ideals were misplaced the country would naturally drift.

We needed to cleanse ourselves, to work off the psychic trauma of Vietnam and Watergate. Having failed to find strength in armies or leaders, we needed to search within ourselves for a strength of purpose that wouldn't waiver, for a truth that wouldn't bend. We needed a cause to believe in, an issue that would pull us up from the swirl of our petty fears and desires and make us again care — really care — about the welfare of others. We needed our sense of justice and fair play offended, if only to be renewed. We needed someone with bigger warts than ours to show us that America wasn't really so bad after all.

The thread that ran through the events of that special day was a simple one: America was renewed. The sense of national purpose that we had lost in Vietnam had been rediscovered in Iran.

We had come out of ourselves to share in the tragedy of the hostages and their families. We felt their pain, their anger, their hopes and frustrations, and, ultimately, their joy and gratitude. There was a sense that this was not something happening to a few hundred people, it was happening to all of us — to a nation. It took great strength to be patient, to resist swatting the Iranian gnat that was seeking to humble and humiliate us. We never lost sight of our goals, and in the end we achieved those goals without sacrificing our honor.

And it all came to pass on a single day in January. A day of intense emotion and high optimism; a day of new beginnings. We had a new president, 52 of our brothers and sisters were freed from captivity, and America, God bless her, was beginning to find herself again.

Is it any wonder that bells were ringing?

A homeowners package policy generally covers the home itself and other structures on the property such as garages, tool and storage sheds. It also usually covers living expenses in the event of severe damage to or destruction of the home by an insured peril. It additionally covers personal property and all other contents of the home as well as the personal liability and medical expense payments that the homeowner may either cause or for which he is responsible. Of course, there are different insurance package forms which cover different perils. It requires an expert to help select the proper package.

Joe says, "The New England winters have always been known for their harshness and unpredictability." Here at MURPHY/CARTY INSURANCE we have insurance coverage for boats and recreational vehicles along with a full line of other insurance coverages. Protect your property, yourself and your forms of enjoyment with the proper coverage. Give us a call at 545-0793, Mon-Fri 9-5 (Sat and evenings by appt) and let us analyze your situation. We are located for your convenience at 56 Driftway in Greenbush.

INSURANCE TIP: A tenant's policy is similar in many respects to homeowner's insurance and is designed for those who rent their living quarters.

□52 — a lucky number at last! A community of thanks to Noel Ripley who, with occasional help from others, rang the bell in the Unitarian Church just about every day for the 444 that the former U.S. hostages were held in Iran.

On Sunday, he climaxed his bell-ringing effort with 52 plus 444 tugs on the bell rope in celebration of their homecoming! That's about 22,532 chimes overall!!

Lou Bravo passes the 52 mark this week — Happy Birthday Louie on January 29!

Jim McCarthy (co-host of "Calling All Sports") attained the same magic number on New Year's Day and celebrated by eating a sneaker (cake)!

□The Cohasset High School ice hockey team is having a great season — undefeated in League games with a 5-0-1 record. The next four League games they play will be challenging. Come on out and support these young players: January 28, home (Winter Gardens) at 4 p.m. against Abington; January 31 at Duxbury; February 3, home against Hull; February 7, home against Hanover; away on February 9 in Sandwich; home on February 10 against Whitman-Hanson; and away on February 17 against Taunton.

□Christopher and Jeanne Reid are the parents of a daughter, Nicole Elizabeth, born on January 14 at South Shore Hospital. Nicole, who weighed 8 lb. 9 oz. on her arrival, is the Reid's second child; she joins a brother, Adam, 4½.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Reid of Hingham and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith of Dedham. Mr. Edward Smith, Sr. of Roxbury and Mrs. Eleanor McGarty of Medford, are great grandparents.

□Midshipman first class John Buckley, a senior marine engineering major at the Maine Maritime Academy in Castine, Maine, has been selected for the U.S. Navy's Nuclear Power Training Program.

Midshipman Buckley, a scholarship student in the Maine Maritime's NROTC Unit who was recently selected to the 1980-1981 Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, was chosen for the program by Admiral Hyman Rickover, the U.S. Navy's Director of Nuclear Reactors. Admiral Rickover personally selects all officers candidates for nuclear power training after a series of exhausting interviews.

Buckley will graduate from Maine Maritime this April and is slated to receive a B.S. degree in marine engineering, an Ensign's Commission in the U.S. Navy and a Third Assistant Engineer Merchant Marine Officer's License. He's achieved the Dean's List and Superintendent's List (highest honor attainable at the Academy) in every semester there and is the Midshipman Regimental Operations Officer. He also recently was made an honorary member of the Academy's Alpha Phi Omega National Service Fraternity.

Buckley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Buckley of Forest Ave. (Bob Giamotti, public relations officer for the Academy, wrote on the preceeding news release: "Buckley is a great guy and deserves recognition.")

□Nicholas Salerno has been elected to a three-year term on the executive committee of Scientific Apparatus Makers Association effective in May. Salerno is vice president of marketing for International Equipment Company, Needham, division of Damon Corporation and member of the Washington-based trade association which represents the high technology instrument and apparatus industry.

□"Gunther," a German short-haired pointer and Canadian champion, is on his way to becoming an American champion after receiving his first "Major" recently on the Florida show circuit. Bred and trained by Pam Tillotson and a member of Bill and Kathy Morgan's family, Gunther did a good job in the Florida shows and is going to Madison Square Garden, New York City, for more competition in February.

Another Cohasset canine celebrity who showed well, was a Corgi owned by Pam with a woman from Vermont and a little girl from Norwell. He received 11 points and two majors. Pam's sister, Kim, who helps with the training, explained that in order for a dog to get a major, he has to beat a certain number of dogs in several key areas, like confirmation (bone structure, bite, eye color), gait and overall appearance.

Training, breeding and showing dogs is a family affair for the Tillotsons. Mrs. Cindy Tillotson is involved in training (golden retrievers) and is president of the South Shore Dog Training School in Quincy. Her golden retriever is "Thistle."

□Karen Tewksbury, daughter of Shirley and Hamilton Tewksbury, was married to Gary Dauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dauer of Framingham, on Dec. 27. Their evening wedding and reception took place at Hugo's with the Reverend Ed Atkinson and Rabbi Radowski of Hingham conducting the ceremony jointly.

Karen's sister Ellen, who lives in Washington, D.C., was maid-of-honor and Gary's brother David, was best man.

Both bride and groom plan to work towards masters degrees this year. Gary is a social worker for the Catholic Charities of Greater Boston and will be studying at Boston College. Karen, who taught in Marshfield schools for three years, plans to study at Northeastern University. They are living in Brookline after a honeymoon trip to the Bahamas and to the mountains for skiing.

Brian Leary, Noel Ripley, John Jackson, Jeffrey Martin, Charlie Henry, Paul Bishop, John Froio and John Pereira as typical, if small-ish, seventh and eighth graders, are wrestling high school opponents sometimes 20 pounds their seniors. One parent of a senior wrestler said, "They go out there and try their darndest. They've got a lot of spirit."

And when they're juniors and seniors? Wow! Stick with it guys!

Maria Curelli Miss Teenage finalist

Maria Curelli is a beauty queen who finds the whole situation embarrassing.

She'll be one of the statewide contestants in the Miss Teenage America contest in Worcester next June.

"It's not really a beauty thing," said the quiet high school junior. "One of the main parts of the contest is an essay on what's right about America."

Appearance is one third of the final score and there is no bathing suit competition.

"The prizes are cash scholarships, that's what I'm really interested in."

Maria is the youngest of five children. She hopes to be an architect someday and dreams of having an art studio of her own.

Maria didn't get into the contest on her own. Her cheerleading coach talked her into entering. In fact Maria didn't even let the Mariner know she has been chosen on the basis of her photo and her application answers to be among the state finalists.

The state winner goes to Atlanta, Georgia, for the nationwide competition.

"That's on television," Maria pointed out. "I don't want to get to that one."

Right now she needs a few more businesses to sponsor her entry in Worcester. She is supposed to find five sponsors at $40 each to finance her costs. To date she has one sponsor for sure.

Besides cheering, Maria is into photography and art. She is usually an honor student.

She isn't sure where she wants to go to college yet; she's just starting to look into it.

THERE SHE IS — Maria Curelli, a junior at Cohasset High School, will compete in the Miss Teenage America contest in Worcester in June.

Donovan opens Quincy real estate office

Dick Donovan of Cohasset, a former major league pitching star, has opened a real estate office at 20 Whitney Road, Quincy Center, dealing primarily in residential properties on the South Shore.

Donovan, who is a member of the South Shore Board of Realtors, formerly was with the Jack Conway Co. where he was credited with more than $1 million in transactions in his first full year.

A native of Quincy, he pitched in the major leagues for 15 years for the Boston Braves, the Chicago White Sox, the Cleveland Indians and the Washington Senators until he retired in 1965.

He won 20 games and was American League pitcher of the year with Cleveland in 1962 and pitched for Chicago in the 1959 World Series, which the Sox lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

He led the American League pitchers in earned run average with the Senators in 1961 and he was voted to the American League all star team on five different occasions.

When he retired from baseball, Donovan became an account executive with Bache & Co., a member firm of the New York Stock Exchange. He became first vice president and manager of the Boston office.

During the past year, he obtainned his insurance broker's license and completed studies in appraisal of single family homes. He is taking advanced courses in real estate at the Graduate Realtors Institute.

Donovan and his wife, Patricia, live at 61 Deep Run with their children, Peter, 16, and Amy, 13.

CCC trip to Hub

On February 18 from 12 to 5 p.m. the Cohasset Community Center will offer a trip to Boston to the Children's Theatre to see the play The Lion, The Witch, and The Wardrobe. The theatre is in its 30th season. This is a delightful play and a nice way to spend a day of winter vacation. Call the Center daily 9 a.m. to noon for information and reservations. Space is limited so register early.

Counseling Center expands respite program

The Coastal Community Counseling Center announces the opening of an expanded respite program for mentally retarded residents of Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Scituate, Weymouth and Braintree.

Supervised care, including lunch, is available during the day on weekends and school vacations at the Memorial School in South Weymouth along with an in-home overnight program.

Because the program is expanding, there is a need for volunteers who want to become involved and receive on-the-job training in this field.

For further information about the program call Elaine Karnow at 331-2533.

Obituaries

John O'Neill

John J. O'Neill, 75, founder of a Boston law firm and president of the New England Anti-Vivisection Society, died Sunday in a Hingham nursing home after a long illness.

Born in Boston, he had also lived in Milton before moving to Cohasset 22 years ago. He was a summer resident of North Scituate.

He was a 1929 graduate of Boston University Law School, where he was the youngest class president in the school's history.

He was a practicing attorney in Boston for more than 40 years.

A member of the Massachusetts Bar Association, he was also a former president of the Boston University Law School Alumni.

A member of the New England Anti-Vivisection Society for 50 years, he had served as president for the last 10 years.

He was a member of the Wychmere Harbor Club, Harwichport, and a property owner in Milton.

He is survived by his wife, Anne R. (Steinkrauff); a daughter, Mrs. Judith Hart of Walpole; a son, Stephen S. O'Neill of California; a brother, Frank G. O'Neill of Milton; and three grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Wednesday in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Milton Cemetery, Milton.

Mary Cody

Mary Agnes Cody, 92, a retired bookkeeper for Smith-Patterson Jewelry Company, Boston, and the city of Boston Welfare Department, died Saturday in Brigham and Women's Hospital, Boston, after a lengthy illness.

Born in Boston, she had lived in Dorchester for many years. She then lived with a nephew, James J. Cody Jr. in Cohasset.

She was a graduate of Boston schools and New England Conservatory of Music. She was well-known for her piano playing.

In addition to her nephew, she is also survived by a niece, Virginia M. Civita of Leominster.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Wednesday in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Mount Benedict Cemetery, West Roxbury.

didn't feel I had a solid base. That's what I'm doing now here in Cohasset," Mark said, his music playing with an emphasis in the background.

"I'm centralizing my efforts, getting to know my wife and my son, living in Cohasset, developing some publishing tapes, instead of starting from the top in New York."

Mark is from upstate New York. Melinda is from Cohasset. She teaches a course at the community center in floral arranging. He expects to complete work for his master's degree in nutrition working with the Goddard School in Cambridge.

"About 12 years ago when I was just beginning with my songs I heard an interview with Tennessee Williams. He was talking about what advice he'd give to anyone beginning a career in the arts," Mark said.

"His advice was to maintain two different fields — just in case. Did you know Tennessee Williams is a registered pharmacist somewhere down South? I don't think my two fields are disharmonious.

"What I expect will happen next is that I'll play small places and work in nutrition."

He pointed out that big time touring in the music industry doesn't fit with having a family.

That doesn't mean he won't be writing his music.

"My songs are like my children. They grow and develop."

So far he's written one song, a simple ballad, to Nicholas. Most of his songs seem to be about love and women. Maybe fatherhood will change that.

When the Weather Outside Is Frightful . . .
. . . A STOVE IS MORE DELIGHTFUL.
Much more than that fireplace you are now using — 5 to 7 times more efficient.

[Now That's Delightful!]
That means your cord of wood or ton of coal could last 5 times longer and won't be wasted as it is in a fireplace.
That also means more even heat throughout larger areas of your home and a chance of really making a dent in your heating bill.

Some people collect stamps. Or coins, or buttons. Others have a passion for cookbooks, particularly those containing tried and true recipes of local groups such as churches and clubs. Offered for sale for the benefit of their favorite cause, charitable cookbooks have been compiled since the 1860's, when the first such collection was gathered to aid the dependents of Civil War casualties. In a little book I have called "Famous Cape Cod Recipes," the introduction tells us that the recipes were "selected by the Ladies' Aid Society of East Wareham, a small organization in a typical Cape Cod village. These ladies gathered old family favorites from villages all over the Cape." Here is how they prepare

SCALLOPED SCALLOPS

1 pint scallops
1/4 c. butter
1/2 c. bread crumbs
3/4 c. cracker crumbs
1/2 c. milk
Salt and pepper

Butter dish well. Put in layer of crumbs. Cover with scallops that have been rolled in cracker crumbs. Add another layer of crumbs and remaining scallops. Cover with buttered crumbs. Add milk. Bake 20 min. at 350 degrees.

People who delight in collecting trivia or find satisfaction in seeing records broken, have been revelling in checking out the thermometer these mornings. As the temperature sinks to new lows, it takes courage to venture forth each morning and the tendency has been to linger over that second cup of coffee. When our South Shore was populated by farmers and fishermen, they knew the value of starting each with a nourishing breakfast. Breaking one's fast of the previous night was a feast the men looked forward to. Fruit to start (seldom orange juice), chosen from the bowl — apples, oranges, bananas and in season, strawberries, raspberries, blueberries — sugar and cream galore. Next, smooth, rich oatmeal, piping hot from simmering on the stove all night. Then hot muffins — corn bread, or toast made on the old-fashioned flat toaster. And mother's home-made jam, accompanied by a pitcher of milk. On a cold winter's morning, Sarah Hunt's recipe might just "stick to your ribs."

OATMEAL-MOLASSES BREAD

1 c. rolled oats
1/2 T lard [or bacon fat or margarine]
3/4 tsp. salt
1½ c. boiling water
1/2 c. raisins [optional]
1 pkg. yeast dissolved in 2 T warm water
1/2 c. molasses
4 c. sifted all purpose flour

Cook oats in upper part of a double boiler for one hour with lard, salt, water and raisins. Stir occasionally Set aside and cool to lukewarm. Combine dissolved yeast and molasses. Add this to cooked oatmeal mixture and stir in flour. LTurn out on floured board and knead. Allow to rise until double in bulk and once more work down and knead. For rolls, bake at 425 degrees for approx. 20 min. For loaf bread, bake in greased loaf pan at 350 for 45-50 min.

Collecting recipes can become a mania leading to kitchen drawers stuffed with clippings and notebooks that drip unpasted recipes, slightly rumpled in the long wait to be tried. Weekends is the time to try this recipe from a collection of apple recipes printed by the women of the North Community League and called

SPICED APPLE PANCAKES

2 c. Bisquick
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1 egg
1⅓ c. milk
3/4 c. grated apple

Beat mix, cinnamon, egg and milk with rotary beater until smooth. Fold in apple. Bake on hot griddle until bubbles appear. Turn and bake until golden brown.

McKinnon raps FAA noise stance

State Sen. Allan McKinnon (D- Norfolk and Plymouth) has expressed dissatisfaction with FAA rejection of the South Shore Proposals for Noise Abatement and further, FAA failure to provide any substantive plans or suggestions for procedural improvements that would relieve the South Shore Coastal communities of airplane noise.

The proposal, drafted and supported by pilots and community representatives from Hull, Scituate, Hingham and Cohasset suggested several procedural changes that would make it possible for aircraft departing Runway 22R, to stay north of Hull and to reach higher altitudes before flying over Cohasset, Scituate and Hingham.

McKinnon said, in his most recent letter to Robert Whittington, New England Regional Director of the Federal Aviation Administration, "I am quite disappointed in the failure to adopt the most recent efforts to improve implementation of the new procedures, Alternative 6, for departures from Runway 22R, Logan Airport, and to reduce the noise impact on the South Shore Coastal communities of Hull, Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate.

"Your assessment report of the South Shore Proposals for Noise Abatement prepared for Congressman Studds, recently announced only your refusal to implement any of the methods suggested by South Shore community representatives."

Senator McKinnon continued, "You did not provide any new ideas or plans for proposals of your own for reducing the airplane noise levels in these communities. You have in the past assured me that you would not be satisfied until jets departing Logan using Alternative 6 stayed 1½ miles north of Hull. It is still imperative that you continue and in fact increase your efforts to relieve these communities of the devastating airplane noise that was thrust upon them by the May 1980 new procedures for departures from Runways 4, 9, 15 and 22, and from the historic noise impact from landings on Runway 33. These communities need solutions to their airplane noise problem. If you have not accepted citizens' proposals as being helpful in identifying ways to lessen noise impact, then it is especially incumbent upon you to provide FAA solutions that will be effective in improving flight paths of aircraft departing Runway 22R and in reducing airplane noise over Hull, Cohasset, Scituate and Hingham."

Senator McKinnon will continue to work to relieve Hull, Scituate and Hingham of their enormous airplane noise burden.

Faculty recitals at S.S. Conservatory

The South Shore Conservatory of Music will present two faculty recitals this weekend in the new Cox Recital Hall at the school, off 19 Fort Hill Street, Hingham.

Admission is free to these concerts, but a donation to the Scholarship Fund would be appreciated.

On Friday, Jan. 30 at 8 p.m., David Witten will give a piano concert featuring the works of American composers such as Aaron Copeland and George Gershwin. He will also play a special arrangement of "West Side Story" by Leonard Bernstein. Witten, a winner of numerous musical scholarships and honors, holds a Doctoral degree in Music from Boston University.

Helene Rosenblatt, flutist, will give a recital Sunday, Feb. 1 at 3 p.m. accompanied by Paul Shumsky (guitar), Marc Thomas (percussion), and Pamela Marshall (French horn). An honors graduate in education and music from Hofstra University with a Masters from Boston University, Helene Rosenblatt is an experienced teacher.

Art Center accepting new work

Artists, photographers, and people who create fine crafts are invited to submit their work to the Gallery Selection Committee of the South Shore Art Center Gallery for consideration for membership in the Gallery. Original work must be delivered to the Center at 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset between 12 and 4 p.m. on Feb. 6.

Five pieces must be brought in for those working in painting, drawing or pastels; ten pieces must be submitted for those working in photography, sculpture, crafts. Slides may not be submitted.

Artists who are chosen for Gallery membership are eligible to exhibit one work each month in the Center Gallery and to have five small works in the bins. They are also eligible to apply once a year for consideration for a one or two person exhibit in the Invitational Gallery. The Selection Committee meets three times a year to review work; the next meeting will be in May. For more information, telephone 383-9548 Monday to Friday between 12 and 4 p.m.

The Cohasset Volunteers are now in business

By Patricia Desmond

They smile with that job-well-done sense of satisfaction when they describe themselves as THE Cohasset volunteers.

Beverly Quilty and her friend, Mary Cowan, Cohasset Coordinates, spent all their energy on home and family and community work for more than 10 years now.

They're still involved with all that but they've taken on one more role. They've become business women.

They sit at the trestle table in the kitchen of the Quilty home chatting calmly about their new schedule. Sun pours in through the large windows at 64 Linden Drive, feeding the curtain of plants and warming the atmosphere.

Mrs. Cowan came to the interview after driving the Meals on Wheels all over town.

Right now the two are preparing for the summer showing of Doncaster and Young Tradition clothes. The showing begins Feb. 2 at the Quilty home.

"The time had come for us to put our talents to better use," Mrs. Quilty explained. "I was looking around for something to do. I had looked into several opportunities when I found this.

"I had gone back to Connecticutt to visit my people and a friend of mine was selling Doncaster clothes there. The advantage is that I can work a flexible schedule from my home."

The clothes are part of a nation-wide franchise business that caters to women who want fairly exclusive and classic clothing, women who would rather shop in the privacy of someone's home.

One line of the business is ready made but Mrs. Cowan points out it can't be purchased in any store anywhere and through thorough record keeping, they make sure people who travel in the same circles don't buythe same outfits. Shorts in that line begin at $7.

The better line is custom made dresses and suits that can be tailored in hundreds of fabrics. There are some $300 items in this category.

And then there is a variety of personalized lingerie.

"Neither of us has the background for this," Mrs. Quilty said. She was worried about the wording of the article. Her clothing business is run quietly. The information gets about by word of her customers or by invitation to friends and interested acquaintenances.

"We started last year. There are four shows a year and this will be our fourth show," she said. "People are welcome to come and see the line of clothing whether they buy or not."

Mrs. Cowan said they keep a pot of coffee brewing throughout the five day show.

"People will come in and sit and have a cup of coffee and talk before they look over the clothes," she said softly.

Mrs. Cowan was trained to be a teacher. She said she gave up those thoughts when she married. Her three children are 24, 21 and 16.

"They don't need me as much now," she said as she discussed her decision to find a career.

Mrs. Quilty is a nurse whose family responsibilities put her work aside also. She is the mother of five, only three of her children are still at home. Her youngest is 13.

"This whole house is full of clothes when we have a show," Mrs. Cowan said. "We use everything we can to display them, curtain rods, picture hooks, everything. I love the way it looks. The house looks empty when they're gone."

The house, on a side street off Jerusalem Road, doesn't look empty with all the decorator touches Mrs. Quilty has added in her 14 years in town.

"The nice thing about the clothes is that if you buy a skirt one year, they'll have a jacket to go with it the next year. It's the kind of clothing that lasts," Mrs. Quilty said.

She said we New Englanders aren't as willing to spend alot on fashions as women in the rest of the country.

"Southern women buy the most clothes. I don't know why that is," she said. "Maybe it has something to do with the weather."

Art Center offers 4 seminars

For everyone interested in the creative effort, the South Shore Art Center of Cohasset will present The Creative Process which consists of a four part seminar series on four Sundays.

In each seminar, there will be a lively and informative exchange between speakers and audience on the basic problems and victories involved in creative work. Registration for the entire series may be obtained at a reduced rate if made before Feb. 6.

Norma Fox, Boston painter and printmaker, will speak on Sunday, Feb. 8 from 3 to 5 on the Etching Experience — From Viscosity to Handstamping. She will describe the technical aspects of printmaking using the etching process and will expand on the aesthetic potential of the art and how she arrives at her personal images. Norma Fox has exhibited throughout the United States and she is on the Executive Board of Boston Printmakers and the Boston Visual Artists Union.

On Sunday, March 1 from 2 to 5 p.m. there will be a panel discusstion The Creative Process — Conflict, Compromise or Compatible With The Commercial World? consisting of Stratis Haviaris, poet and curator of Harvard's Woodberry Poetry Room; Betty Kohlberg, painter and Assoc. Professor at Mass. College of Art; Dennis Kowal, sculptor, represented in fifty collections; and Robert Rimmer, author of nine published novels and four non-fiction works.

On Sunday, March 15, from 3 to 5 p.m. Zygmand Jankowski, nationally known water colorist and teacher or Gracia Dayton, alternate watercolorist, will give a demonstration on Creating With Watercolor. Mr. Jankowski will demonstrate his approach to creating a watercolor while offering technical advice on his methods.

Monet-Myth & Reality, a slide lecture, will be presented on Sunday, March 29 from 3 to 5 p.m. by Paul Tucker, art historian and Assistant Professor at University of Massachusetts. Dr. Tucker will present a personal view both of Monet the Man and Monet the Artist. He will discuss Monet's art in relation to his private life and his public image and will explore the reasons why Monet created certain works at certain times in his life.

Audience participation will be encouraged in all programs. An optional reading list will be sent to registrants on request and will include libraries where books will be available. This program has been funded in part by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency whose funds are recommended by the Governor and appropriated by the Legislature.

There will be a $4 charge for each lecture and the entire series may be obtained at a reduced rate if registration is made before Feb. 6.

For further information, call the Center at 383-9548.

Among the other speakers were: Cohasset Selectman Arthur Clark, Hingham Selectman Gene Bickford, a representative of Sen. Allan R. McKinnon, himself out of town, Caroline Stouffer of Hingham and Ted Ford of Cohasset.

Ford said he spoke with over 1,000 Hull residents during his unsuccessful campaign for Murray's seat in the legislature. He believes the gambling would be bad for the area.

Back in 1977 Hull voted two to one in favor of a referendum asking that casino gambling be looked into.

Murray said that since it is impossible to reach Hull without travelling through Hingham, Cohasset or over the water, the effects on those communities must be considered.

"The additional traffic and resulting pollution and litter would provide a great financial hardship as well as a huge environmental problem," she said.

Torin Sweeney pins and wins

By Rob Tis

Torin Sweeney

In the high school wrestling world Cohasset is known better as the home of Torin Sweeny.

Varsity wrestling has been alive in Cohasset for four years. Torin Sweeny missed one match in those four years. Overall Torin has tallied 45 wins, 20 losses and 2 draws.

In Torin's first year, wrestling in the 107 pound weight class he had a 5-8 record. Was Torin discouraged? No way! Driven by Coach Klute, Matty King, the older wrestlers but mainly by himself Torin bounced back in his freshman year to a 13-7 year.

"I remembered getting beaten on that first year," said Torin, "and I was determined to master the sport."

The determination paid off. In his junior year Torin grappled to a 21-5-2 record. He went right through the southern state sectionals into the state tourney. He was ranked in the top 10 in the 114 weight class.

Over the year Torin gained some weight, mostly muscle, and went two weight classes up at 128. A lot of skeptics thought he couldn't handle it. Torin has now compiled an incredibly impressive 11 wins and no loss record. In all probability he will be seeded first or second in the upcoming state sectionals.

All of this has not come easy to Torin. Coach Klute and now Coach Leone still push him hard in practice. Practicing and repracticing moves that range from the half Nelson to the triple leg over twisting ball and chain.

Weight is the one big thing in wrestling. On a normal week with two matches Torin will have juice for breakfast, a salad for lunch and 2 ounces of hamburger for dinner. I put away that many calories between dinner and dessert. Imagine watching your weight for four years, turning down ice cream sundaes on hot summer afternoons, sipping Pepsi-Light when your friends get together to have a few beers, sitting at the dinner table as Mom puts a big turkey down and you have a bean salad in front of you; frightening. This is just a start to Torin's dedication. It includes daily workouts, wrestling camps and other sacrifices.

This, however, as spartan as it sounds is worth it. Torin has the necessary talent as well as the determination. Colleges have already shown interest in Torin and he looks to be in line for a healthy scholarship.

Torin humbly stresses "we are a team; there is a comraderie; we are like a big family; but when the whistle blows you are all alone."

Someday Torin Sweeny will be alone, at the top.

Basketball girls win, boys drop a pair

By Rob Tis

Last week I reported a girls basketball team that was improving quickly, getting their offense together and had just attained their first victory.

There is no question about it now the Skippers are here. Their record, 2-6. They faced Hanover on Tuesday and ripped right through them. After a big Skipper scoring spree the Indians could not catch up until the fourth quarter when they tied the score at 26. Kate Salerno hit from outside and then put in a pair of free throws putting the Skippers ahead for good. Salerno finished with 17 points and Madeline Roy provided the defense wrestling down 10 rebounds.

The Skipper momentum was snowballing now as they were riding a 2 game winning streak but the buck stopped Friday when they faced second place Duxbury. The Dragons came out fast and hard and never let up, netting 48 points to the Skippers 25. Madeline Roy led Cohasset with 9 points.

BOYS BASKETBALL

The boys basketball team coming off two tough losses last week put their machine in gear and cruised right past Norwell and Duxbury, bringing their record up to the .500 mark at 6-6.

Cohasset came out on the floor very cold on Tuesday against Norwell. The Clippers had a 9 point lead by halftime. As the Skippers got used to the new rim they began to hit at will from the floor bringing the deficit to one by the end of the third quarter. In the fourth period the Skipper defense was the story as they gave up only one basket in the whole fourth quarter. Bill Kurtz and Pat Duffy took advantage of this and powered the Skippers to sink 12 points that quarter and grab the victory. Pat Duffy paced the Skippers with 16 points and 10 rebounds.

The Skippers journeyed to Duxbury on Friday night to face a team they had endless trouble with last season. The Skippers let the sails out and rode senior guard Bill Kurtz all the way to victory. Kurtz blew by Green Dragon defense to net 24 points. Greg Raffa and Pat Duffy each had 14 points. This allowed the Skipper ship to sail to an easy victory 71 to 53.

Bill Kurtz is now second in the South Shore League in scoring averaging over 20 points per game and is very close to overtaking Doug Fallon of Hull, the highest scorer in the league.

Get your love letter in early

Love beats out there, we know it! Minot's Light bleeps "I-Love-You" and if it could, it would send us an entry for our Valentine Love Letter Contest! Love on the rocks or we fell in love in February of '78, most likely.

There is only one week left — deadline is noon on Thursday, February 5! We've heard rumors that Lot Bates is writing a sonnet. Ron Goodwin hasn't entered his letter yet because he hasn't decided which girlfriend to address it to. We're still waiting for a response from the Troika.

We've not heard from the Trasks or the Cryptogram Kids and those third graders of Marie Price's, but we expect they'll all get writing this week.

It is certainly expected that the dog officer will get lots of letters, as well as Mr. Creamer and Noel Ripley, for sure! If one person gets five or more love letters, he or she will become the Mariner's citizen of the year and their picture will appear on the front page!

One entry per person, rated "G" and don't go overboard on the mush. Mail to the Cohasset Mariner, Box 71, Cohasset 02025 or drop off at the Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy drop spot on South Main Street. Winning entries will be printed in our Valentine week issue and $25 goes to the first place winner, $15 to second and $10 to third.

Sixty Plus trip

Cohasset 60 Plus Club is planning a bus trip to Boston Gardens to view the Ice Follies Feb. 18.

The bus will leave from 60 Elm St., at 11:15 a.m. and from Town Hall at 11:30 a.m.

Make reservations at once. Telephone 383-6519.

The recreation report

The Cohasset Recreation Department thanks Paul Laugelle for plowing snow off the Elms Meadow Skating area on several occasions this winter.

It is because of his efforts that the area has been open to skating.

Late registrations will be accepted by calling the Recreation Department office at 383-6791, for boys' and girls' basketball clinics, and the afternoon sports program.

Boys' basketball clinic meets Tuesday, at Deer Hill School, from 3:30 to 5 p.m. and girls' basketball clinic meets the same times and place on Wednesday afternoons.

Both clinics are instructed by Frank Deakin; both sessions will be eight weeks; fee is $5, with a 50 percent discount for two or more children participating from the same family. Programs are for Grades 4, 5, and 6 only.

Afternoon sports programs, conducted by Jeff Ladd, meets Thursday, from 3:30 to 5 and is open to boys and girls in Grades 4, 5, or 6. The program consists of team sports and group games. This is a six-week program and the fee is $5 with a discount for those who are eligible.

Late registration will be accepted for Creative Dramatics which meets Wednesday afternoon, at the Town Hall at 3 for Grades K-3 and 4 p.m. for Grades 4-8. The program is taught by Evelyn Schultz and the fee is $5 for eight weeks.

During the fall-winter session, there have been over 1,296 individuals participating in recreation department programs and activities. Total participation for the year is 7,304.

It's happening !!!!!!!

Church, political leaders rap casino plan

By Patricia Desmond

Cardinal Humberto Medeiros is against casino gambling, according to Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray.

Murray, a staunch moralist and active Catholic, is working with the Group Against Gambling, GAG, in their effort to keep casino gambling out of nearby Hull.

"You could tell how I'd feel about casino gambling if you'd just look at my background," Murray told the several hundred people at the anti-gambling rally in Hingham last Thursday.

"Seventeen years in CYO (Catholic Youth Organization) doesn't make a proponent of gambling."

At the Cardinal's residence this week, officials were still discussing the matter. A spokesman for the Cardinal said there will be a presentation given to the Cardinal over the weekend that will include information from two other bishops who are responsible for parts of the state.

"We aren't sure how best to stop this thing," the spokesman said.

Still people in Hingham and Cohasset are worried about the casino issue. The people from GAG repeatedly talk about the fact that they are up against big money and the legislative leaders of the Committee on Govern nent Regulations.

Cohasset Selectman Arthur Clark spoke at the legislative hearing expressing the concerns of Cohasset residents.

"Carol Oteri (the leader of GAG) is right when she said we got a fast shuffle," Clark said later.

The outcry of the residents of Hingham and Cohasset is being heard widely. Two television crews filmed speakers at Hingham's rally. A representative of Lt. Gov. Thomas O'Neill told the gathering he would back their efforts.

Michael Harrington of Milton sat in the back of the hall taking notes for Gov. Edward King. Someone tried to pin him down on the issue.

"What can I say. I'm just here to listen and report back," Harrington said.

The rally watched a film on the story of gambling in Atlantic City. The documentary portrayed city officials who spoke on the increased jobs and development as being callous to the related problems.

There were clips of property owners who charged they were cheated by the city. One casino worker was interviewed in the sanitarium where he is trying to get over his alcoholism. The film said an increase in alcoholism and unemployment came with the casinos.

Most of the jobs in this labor intensive industry are low-paying.

The same film will be travelling around the area.

Gene Bickford, chairman of the Hingham selectmen, lauded the women from GAG for doing a tremendous job getting out the opposition to the gambling bills.

Petitions are still circulating throughout Hingham, Hull andCohasset. They will be collected and tallied soon. In the meantime there is no estimate of the number of names.

The bill will not come out of committee soon, according to Murray.

"The votes aren't there for it and they won't bring it out unless they're sure of the votes."

After the meeting she said she did not believe there would be an attempt to sneak it through.

Mrs. Oteri, who lives in Hull, pointed out that crime is up 87 percent in Atlantic City since the casinos came. Taxes tripled as the property values went up.

"People lost their homes because they couldn't afford the taxes," Mrs. Oteri said.

"They promise you jobs, revenue. It's a lie.

"Casinos mean organized crime. Casinos are a cancer that eat up our communities and eradicate our economy with the malignant growth of corruption.

"You're gambling with lives not with money.

"Casinos operate on people's losses."

One Hingham resident suggested that Hull would be better off to market itself as a "wonderful New England fishing village."

Another resident pointed out that Hull has the only harbor in the area that is never iced in.

Mrs. Oteri said she is working with other Hull residents to find alternative ways of expanding the tax base.

Litchfield warns on wood-coal stoves

CAUTION: New wood or coal burning stoves may be hazardous to your life.

Building Inspector James Litchfield said he is worried about the installation of stoves throughout the town. Improper installation may lead to fire.

Last Thursday a fire broke out in a home on Pleasant Street. It was a chimney fire and Litchfield said the stove installed in the house hadn't been inspected.

He thinks contractors who install the stoves should be licensed.

"They are fast-bucking the deal," Litchfield said. "Anyone can put a sign on his truck and go into the business. How is the average homeowner to know?

"And the installation isn't cheap either."

Litchfield went on to say that the people selling the stoves — now seen in many of the larger homes in town — aren't giving enough instructions on the right way to run the alternate heating devices.

In his office there is just one cartoon hanging on the walls. A wood stove made of real wood. Guaranteed to burn at least four hours.

But the matter isn't a joke to him.

"We're here to protect the public," Litchfield said.

He pointed out that stove installers are the only people working with potential fire hazards that go without being licensed.

Anyone working on a oil burner or with gas is already licensed.

Many of the stoves installed last year were done with permits. Looking through the list of new construction and alterations, stoves and solar panels seem to be the most popular housing addition.

"Stoves can be extremely dangerous," Litchfield said.

Deer Hill trip wins school okay

By Karin Bartow

One-hundred-and-twenty Grade 5 students and six teachers from the Deer Hill School will spend the week of March 16 on Thompson's Island in Boston Habor participating in "Nature's Classroom's" outdoor school program.

The school committee approved the switch to the island location for the outdoor program at their Monday night meeting.

Deer Hill Principal Ken Ekberg, told the committee that he and the teachers were in agreement that it would be better to change from Camp Wing in Duxbury because the Nature's Classroom staff is better trained andoffers a more diversified program. The fifth graders will be taught by a staff of 13 and Ekberg said that 95 percent of the planned program could be accommodated indoors in case of inclement weather.

The March date was selected because the cost of $66 per student for four nights will increase to $94 in the spring. Camp Wing costs $45 per student for a three night program. High school counselors will not go along as they have in the past. Sleeping accommodations are limited and the program doesn't provide for their participation in instructing the fifth graders. It was agreed that funding counselors' tuition shouldn't come before requests from fifth grade parents for scholarshlips are met.

Weather conditions and fire safety fears were allayed by Ekberg. He reported that he'd checked and found that the three dormitory-type buildings are all in compliance with Boston safety codes and are adequately supplied with smoke detectors and fire doors and escapes. He noted that the average temperature at that time of year is 49 degrees and rainfall is often less than in the spring. A night patrol can be provided for $160 and Ekberg said he was willing to help organize funds raising for that service to assure parents' peach of mind if they so desired.

Parents at the meeting supported the teachers and Ekberg in their search for a better outdoor school program. Kathy St. Onge said she endorsed the program as it stands and noted that most parents she's talked to feel the same. Tanna Carlson felt the Thompson's Island trip sounded "Equally, if not more enriching (than Camp Wing)."

School committee member Patricia Walsh voted against the program noting her opposition to the time of year, temperature and weather conditions and the lack of foliage.

Reprieve for Beechwood school bus

Parents of junior/senior high students from the Beechwood area of Flinklock Ridge and Aaron River Roads may get the bus stop change they have been seeking until the end of the school year. Bus service will be cut way back next year in order to comply with Proposition 2½ budget reductions.

Two weeks ago the bus stop was changed to the reservoir side of Beechwood and Doane Streets in an effort to alleviate the hazard of students walking down heavily trafficked section of Doane Street between Beechwood and Church. Bus riders can walk down Church Street which has a sidewalk (with the exception of a portion from Flinklock Ridge Road to the church) and cross to Doane at the reservoir dead end portion of Beechwood.

Parents feel that isn't good enough. They want the bus to come into Flinklock Ridge Road where it can pick kids up and turn around in the Aaron River Road cul-de-sac. "It's the safety, not the walk," said Ellen Gentile. The hazard of the Doane Street spur is only in the morning rush hour and not in the afternoon.

Business manager John Raftery, will investigate moving the starting time of the bus run back to see if it can make the trip into the Flinklock area and improve its already late schedule. If this can't be done, the bus stop will remain where it has been for the past two weeks.

In any case, students will not enjoy short walks to the bus stop beyond the end of the school year.

Cohasset's week

Gambling film

State Rep. Mary Jeannette Murray, the Cohasset Selectmen, the Republican Town Committee and the Democratic Town Committee will sponsor a 28 minute film, "Atlantic City — Winners and Losers," Tuesday, Feb. 10 at 8 p.m. in the Cohasset high school auditorium.

The program will also include a talk by Carol Oteri of Hull, speaking for the Group Against Gambling.

Residents of Cohasset and Hingham are joining the Hull-based Group Against Gambling in a petition drive to oppose legalized casino gambling in Massachusetts.

For further information, call Cohasset coordinators Maria Plante, 383-9263 or Julie Guild, 383-6443.

Trade Association

A non-profit Business and Trades Association is being formed in Cohasset.

It's intent is to keep local businesses better informed about Town and Federal government laws, benefits in banking, group insurances, retirement plans and group purchasing that can affect business and local citizens.

As a non-profit local association the group will have advantages other plans can't offer: the floor is open for all suggestions and the doors open to all professions.

For more information call Chet Magee, 383-9274, Ken Burnside at 383-0239, Steve Ward at 383-9380 or Dick Farwell at 383-0378.

Bloodmobile coming

The projected schedule of the Bloodmobile during the first two weeks in February indicates that a critical shortage of all types of blood will occur.

To help offset this shortage, a special visit of the Bloodmobile is being set up in Cohasset Friday, Feb. 6 from 1:30 to 7:15 at the Unitarian Parish House, 23 North Main St.

New donors are urged to all Mrs. John Cahill at 383-9265 for an appointment. Previous donors will be notified by the following chairmen and their telephone committees:

Mrs. Robert Booth for the First Parish Church, Mary McArthur for St. Anthony's Church, Mrs. Roger Nast for St. Stephen's Church, Mrs. Carl Tuthill for the Second Congregational Church, Mrs. Robert Cicciotte and Mrs. Thomas Gormley for the Cohasset Schools, Wayne Robbins for the Rotary, Robert Richardson for the Masons, and Mrs. John Burke and Fredrick Huntwork for the American Legion.

Appointers meet

Cohasset's appointing committee, consisting of Town Moderator David Place, Selectmen Chairman Arthur Clark, and Chairman of the Advisory Board Jean Cotton, met last Wednesday morning at their first posted meeting.

Two vacancies on the advisory board need to be filled and the committee met to discuss possible candidates for those two seats. Resignations from the board have been tendered by Terrance White and Donald Steele.

While the appointing committee listed considerations they look for when making appointments to standing committees, they deferred discussions of specific individuals to "executive session." David Place said, "A person should be interested, want to serve and should have some experience and capacity to be able to do a good job." Good team players and a mix of people from different sections of town are also desireable considerations. Arthur Clark added, "We're always looking for potential chairmen for openings that come up."

Place said that he had asked Town Counsel Blake Thaxter for a formal opinion as to whether or not the committee comes under the Open Meeting Law, but added that they plan to continue to post meetings. Arthur Clark said he feels the meetings should be posted.

Many residents feel the committee should not only post their meetings, but that they should make public, beforehand, the openings they have to fill. Cotton said, "I think it's great if people show an interest and present their names, as long as they realize there are other names in the pool. They shouldn't feel if they're not appointed, that we didn't like them, because that wouldn't be the case."

Clark said that they each have a list of names and try to arrive at some name they all agree on. "We've been unanimous on every appointment we've made in the last nine years," Place added.

Anyone interested in serving on the advisory board should contact any of the three members of the appointing committee.

Selectman candidates

There are only two candidates who have papers out for the open seat on the board of selectmen.

That's Mary Jane MacArthur of 37 Elm St., advisory committee member, and Patrick Morrissey of 137 Beach St., a dentist.

Selectman Arthur Clark won't be running for reelection.

John Muncey of 377 South Main St. has papers out for a term on the housing authority. Dana Green of 39 Ash St. has papers for the job as representative on the South Shore Regional School Committee.

Charles Bliss of 76 Summer St. is a candidate for the board of health. Gerard Buckley of 6 Hugh Strain Rd. has papers out for recreation commission.

Among those already passing around papers for reelection are: School Committee member Frank England, Water Commissioner Bill Montuori, Sewer Commissioner Janet Daggett, Assessor Warren Pratt, Treasurer-collector Gordon Flint and Highway Surveyor Harold Litchfield.

It's easier to pay your bills by phone.

And we'll give you 10 bills to prove it.

That's right, $10.

Just for paying one of your bills by phone.

That's how convenient we want to make Pay By Phone. It can save you time and save you money, other ways.

In addition, you save the cost of postage. Every time you pay by phone instead of the way you normally pay, by mail, it's another time you don't have to buy envelopes and stamps and write checks.

What's more, you can pay one bill or many, with the same phone call. And true call is toll free.

It's easy to keep track of bills, too. Each month you get a list of the bills you've paid by phone on your regular checking account statement. Your record for each call includes the amounts, and names of the merchants paid.

It's such a simple, foolproof system, it's no wonder thousands of people in Massachusetts use Pay By Phone to pay their monthly bills.

Now, we'd like to pay you something to join them.

How to get your 10 bills.

It couldn't be easier.

Just list at least six merchants (department stores, utilities, credit cards, doctors, etc.) whom you pay regularly, on the coupon at right.

Then bring it to any of our offices and open a checking account. If you already have a checking account, just tell us to add Pay by Phone service to it.

As soon as you pay your first bill by phone, we'll automatically deposit $10 to your account.*

Sound like a good deal? Then start listing those merchants now. After all, you've got to pay your bills anyway. So why not start paying them by phone and start out $10 ahead?

THE BMW 320i. AN EFFICIENT CAR NEEDN'T BE A BORE TO DRIVE.

If the words "fuel efficient" conjure up images of small, practical cars hopelessly encumbered by their own virtues, we suggest you consider the BMW 320i.

For while the 320i (with standard transmission) delivers an impressive 25 EPA estimated mpg, so estimated highway mileage and, based on these figures, an estimated max range of 383 miles and a highway range of 561 miles, it also delivers the sort of performance one associates only with a sports car.

(Naturally, our fuel efficiency figures are for comparison purposes only. Your actual mileage and range may vary, depending on speed, weather and trip length. Your actual highway mileage and highway range will most likely be lower.)

If you'd care to judge the 320i for yourself, phone us and we'll arrange a test drive.

Good Troika

We at the Mariner would like to thank the oft criticized Troika.

They held a meeting at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday and they posted it.

Oh, we've been told there were a few curious stares at the Mariner reporter who did without breakfast to watch the famous Troika in action.

Their only order of business was to say they are looking for two people to fill vacancies on the hard-working advisory board.

Those appointments will be handled at a later date. We trust the next meeting will be posted in timely fashion — even if the town's appointing authority has to quickly close the session to discuss personalities.

Our reading of the open meeting law would have most of the appointing procedure done publicly. But we don't want to be picky.

All the Mariner asks is that each meeting begin in open session and all votes become public as soon as there is no public purpose in secrecy.

So thank you David Place, Arthur Clark and Jean Cotton. We appreciate the chance to watch town government in action.

School bus service criticized

Letters

To the Editor:

We, parents from Flintlock Estates, would like to register a complaint against those in authority for continuing to endanger the lives of our children.

We have petitioned the School Committee, the Superintendent of Schools and the School Business Manager to provide adequate bus service for our Jr. and Sr. High School children. Their response to our signed petition of over 35 voters was to move the bus stop several yards from the fire house to the corner of Doane and Beechwood Streets. As a result of this change, the bus is now loading in the middle of a dangerous intersection which points out once more the insensitivity of the officials to the safety of these children.

Our children are now walking over ½ mile from our development to the bus stop on a route that has been designated hazardous by the Cohasset Police Department. It has been suggested to us parents by Superintendent Crowell and School Committee Chairman Mr. England that the children in the area walk an alternate route, which takes them out of the way of the new bus stop. However, a portion of their walk continues to be on the hazardous street.

We all realize that this solution is not safe. Children, being children, will continue to walk the most direct route especially if they are late or if there is inclement weather. We fear for their safety! To cite one example, a dog was recently run over and killed by a speeding motorist in front of our children as they walked to the bus stop. We worry who the first child will be to suffer the same fate.

All of the involved officials agree that the hazard exists and that the current situation is dangerous. We have been told by the Chairman of the School Committee that we have a legitimate complaint, however, there is no flexibility in the school bus schedule to accommodate our children and to eliminate this unnecessary danger to their lives. We cannot understand why the bus schedule cannot be altered by two or three minutes to insure the safety of our children. Do you, Mr. Crowell, Mr. England, Mr. Raftery and the remaining public officials, want to be responsible for a tragedy?

As residents in a newly developed area (which incidentally is contributing to an expanded tax base) we demand that services enjoyed by the rest of the town be extended to us! Is there any where else in Cohasset where the youths are forced to walk out of their developments onto a heavily trafficked known commuter route to go to and from school? What about similar development areas in Cohasset where contemporaries of our children are picked up and dropped off by the bus almost door to door? Have these dead end streets been designated hazardous by the Police Department?

The callous disregard of the aforementioned public officials to the safety of the children in this area is appalling!

On licensing builders

To the Editor:

Perhaps proposed state regulations requiring the licensing of builders is necessary to protect some homeowners from being "ripped off" so to speak. However, it would be an expensive requirement for those homeowners who can, and in some cases must, build or work on their own house or buildings.

In fact, homeowners should be allowed to perform all aspects of house construction and repair including structural, electrical, plumbing, heating, etc. on their own property without licensing but, of course, subject to strict inspection for compliance with applicable state and local rules and regulations.

Whether a person is licensed or unlicensed, proposed building construction plans or repair statements providing sufficient details should be initially required and subsequently approved by the local building department before any such work commences.

An effective inspection program would naturally cost money and a reasonable permit or inspection fee should be assessed to offset administrative costs.

It should be noted that regardless of the outcome of this issue, the fact remains that numerous building code violations exist because qualified inspections are not performed or violations are unfortunately overlooked.

The great peanut butter famine

By Claire McDonough

O.K., OPEC. Hit us with a fuel shortage. We're hardy New England stock. We won't like it but we can take it.

Go ahead, Commonwealth. Don't aid the cities and towns. We'll learn to live without essential services.

You say beef's the highest it's been since the cow jumped over the moon? We'll cope. But please, please, oh please give us back our peanut butter.

Have you visited your friendly neighborhood supermarket lately? Have you seen the barren, desolate shelves that once held jars and jars of Skippy, Peter Pan, Jiff, and all the other creamy or chunky gastronomic delights? One store tries to conceal the shortage of peanut butter by piling cans of coffee where the "nutter" part of "fluffer nutter" used to be. Doesn't fool us for a minute, does it? If anything, the display of Juan Valdez' and Mrs. Olsen's favorite brew makes the dearth of peanut butter all the more poignant.

I'll never forget the first day I couldn't find peanut butter at my local supermarket. I saw the cans of coffee and figured that the shelves were being rearranged again. I tracked down the manager and backed him up against the anchovies.

"I give up," I told him. "Where did you hide the peanut butter?"

"There isn't any," he moaned. "You just can't get it anywhere. Try the other stores if you don't believe me."

Numbly I released him. "There isn't any," I repeated weakly.

I saw my friend Nancy squeezing an artichoke. "Nancy," I gasped, "how can I break it to my kids? There is no peanut butter."

She patted my hand. "Be brave. You'll just have to sit them down and tell them the truth. They're old enough to face facts."

"Do you think Kevin is?" I asked. "Remember, he only makes it from one meal to the next with the help of a jar and a half of peanut butter."

"Kevin," she reminded me, "is twenty years old."

I tried to sneak my groceries into the house, but Breida and Skipper spotted me and ran for the bags shouting "Did you get any p..."

"How about fresh fruit cup with sherbet?" I asked brightly. "Then vichyssoise, beef Wellington, pommes au gratin, pois fromage and croissants? And for dessert you can have your choice of baked Alaska or peaches flambe."

"Where's the peanut butter?" they chorused.

"There isn't any," I admitted. "You can't get it anywhere."

It's amazing how well dressed, well nourished kids can manage to look like they stepped from a "Send This Child to Camp" poster.

Firefighters join new union

The Cohasset firefighters are affiliating with the International Association of Firefighters and the Professional Firefighters of Massachusetts.

William Protulis, association president, explained that the change will not affect the current contract or the way the firefighters bargain with the town.

"The local will be our representing authority in all business matters," he said notifying the selectmen.

The selectmen are asking town counsel's opinion on the status of the new union.

The union still plans to handle its own bargaining.

Protulis said his union plans to be more visible as the budget process goes along. The fire department has been asked to reduce its budget 15 percent.

"We don't want to see any jobs lost," Protulis said.

Meanwhile Firefighter Jay Fiori said he did not suggest to the selectmen that they cut other departments more than 15 percent.

He said he just read newspaper clips from other towns where they were considering differentiating between fire and police budgets and the rest of the town government.

"I only asked what they were going to do," Fiori said.

He said he and others want to study the budget to see whether there are alternatives to the layoffs.

Current plans call for six jobs being eliminated. Three of those are already vacant.

School Board approves drug-alcohol program

The school committee gave its unanimous approval of the development of a drug and alcohol abuse program for Cohasset schools. School Supt. Eugene Crowell suggested that a policy setting committee be formed to first look at present policies and then develop a custom-made one for Cohasset that would clearly outline substances, procedures, legal responsibilities, etc.

A second phase would develop a health curriculum Kindergarten through 12 with objectives, philosophy and a program designed to foster health attitudes. The third phase would be the development of a community action group consisting of parents, students and law enforcement agencies.

Crowell estimated that a comprehensive alcohol and drug abuse policy and program for Cohasset could be ready by spring or early next fall.

Video yes, pinball no

Last week the selectmen decided to ban pinball machines in town on the advice of Police Chief John DeBassio.

They are allowing electronic video games.

There are video games licensed at the Ground Round and Winter Gardens. Another business has been told to apply for a license.

Smith won't run

Sumner Smith Jr. won't be running for reelection to the South Shore Regional District School Committee.

In a letter to Town Clerk Charles Marks Smith listed no reason for getting off the board.

"I am grateful to the voters of Cohasset for electing me to four terms on the Cohasset School Committee and three terms on the South Shore School Committee.

"It has been an honor and a pleasure to work with all the committee members with whom I have served. In addition I wish to thank the administrators and personnel of all the schools for their cooperation and dedication during my tenure.

"If any candidates for this position seek information on the work involved at South Shore I will be happy to answer questions and introduce them to the school."

Seniors invited

The Cohasset Dramatic Club invites 60 Plus Club members to view their production of "Uncle Vanya," Thursday, Feb. 26, at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall.

Peanut butter

They faced me with accusing hollow eyes.

"That's all right," Skipper sniffed bravely. "I'll just fast for — however long it takes."

"Don't worry about me, Mother," Breida added wanly. "But who is going to break it to Kevin?"

"I don't know who's going to tell him!" My voice was approaching the registers that only dogs can hear. I knew I was losing my grip and I knew the fix I needed to regain my composure.

A heaping teaspoon of peanut butter.

Cohasset police join county diversification program

Police Chief John DiBassio told communications council members and parents at last week's steering committee meeting that Cohasset is making use of Norfolk County's new diversion program.

The program provides that a youngster who has been charged with an arrestable offense may be diverted from a court appearance and from receiving a criminal record.

Psychological back-up, counseling and other forms of assistance involving the youngster and his family are provided. Recommendation for admission into the program is made by the district attorney and his staff. Participation by both the offender and his family is essential and non-compliance is grounds for dismissal.

"It's effective, available and we're implementing it," DiBassio said.

Corbett honored

Peter Corbett, a junior high student who on December 22, 1980 saved the life of Stephen Fries by applying the Heimlich Maneuver, was honored by the school committee with a plaque and letter of commendation.

Chairman Frank England told Peter that the placque and letter "Are in recognition of your courageous and skillful action. We commend your quick thinking. The school system owes you a deep gratitude. The value of any human life is immeasurable."

around town

Navy Aviation Mechanic William Ross, son of Walter and Annita Ross of South Main St., is home on leave after completing eight weeks of recruit training at Great Lakes, IL, and eleven weeks of aviation structural mechanics training at Memphis, TN.

Bill left for active duty in July 1980. After his leave, he'll report to Oceana, VA, for further training on F-4 phantom and F-14 tomcat ejection seats. He will then report to fighter squadron 74 onboard the USSS Nimitz CVN-68.

Bill finished number two in his class at Memphis, and missed being number one by only two hundredths of a point. Competition during training is hot and heavy because the person finishing number one can be advanced to third class petty officer.

Norman Brown of Cohasset, was recently promoted to second vice president at the Bay State Gas Co.

Janine Broadhurst and Ellie Waal were treated recently to lunch by their friends in honor of their birthdays — Jan. 12 and 10, respectively. They shared a "Talbot's sweater cake" in pink and green with each of their monograms in the center. (Janine says she's 30 and Ellie probably is too!)

Nancy Bruno received twelve helium-filled balloons (in pink and green) from a clown-suited delivery person who sang her a personalized version of "You Are My Sunshine"... signed "The Regulars." The gesture was aimed at erasing Nancy's January doldrums...wonderful idea! (Balloons by Balloonities South.)

The "Regulars" also could write her a love letter and enter it in the Mariner's contest...two weeks left to compose your tribute to your favorite somebody....

Frank and Kay England and their daughters Terry and Janet returned recently from a holiday trip to the West Coast that brought them to daughter Debbie's and son-in-law Glen Zepnick's home in Sacramento, California and other interesting spots in the Golden State. Kathy joined them too from Las Vegas.

They visited the spot where gold was first discovered (none was left), saw Taho, Napa Valley, Monterey and Carmel. There were no earthquakes and they managed to navigate the hairy mountain-side roads and freeway fog.

Mrs. Susan Shumaker has joined the teaching staff of the Berryblue Nursery School in Scituate. She has worked for several years as a volunteer in the Cohasset School system and in the Paul Pratt Memorial Library where she presented "Children's Story Hour."

Mrs. Robin Lualdi of Cohasset has been elected to the Board of Trustees of Derby Academy.

Mrs. Lualdi is a graduate of the American Community School of Paris, France, and holds a B.S. in Community Organization from Simmons College, and an M.S. from the Simmons College School of Social Work. A certified elementary school teacher and psychiatric social worker, she has continued studies during the past ten years in the fields of education and psychology at Simmons, Curry and Lesley Colleges. Now school adjustment counselor and psychologist for Duxbury elementary schools, Mrs. Lualdi also maintains a private practice in family therapy.

She is a member of the Area Board of the Coastline Community Counseling Service and a former member of the National Association of Social Workers, South Shore Interagency Council and the Massachusetts Association for the Advancement of Human Services.

John Reilly and John Parziale also grapple on the mats with the Cohasset junior varsity wrestlers. We accidentally left out their names in last week's reference to the heroic "munchkins."

Introductions are in order for five new residents of town:

Edward and Karen Hettstrom became the parents of their second daughter on January 22 at South Shore Hospital. Tara Rose, weighing 7 lbs. even, joins Erica, who will be 2 in March.

John and Claire Bernard and Mrs. Rose Hettstrom, all of Braintree, are grandparents.

Richard and Rosalind DeRosa have a new daughter, their first child, Alexandra, born on January 6 at St. Margaret's Hospital. She weighed 8 lbs. 14 ozs. at birth. Lila and William Swanton of Toronto, Ontario and Midge and Tony DeRosa of Cohasset are grandparents. Mrs. Helen Craig of Toronto, Ontario is great grandmother.

Another first born arrived at South Shore Hospital on January 20 to Robert and Donna Morgan, Jr. They have a son, Robert Charles Morgan, III who weighed 7 lbs. 10 ozs.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morgan and Mrs. Beatrice Meers, all of Hudson. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Upton of Wrentham are great grandparents.

John and Elizabeth Healy of Beechwood Street got a double start with first born twins on January 20. Their daughters are Allyssa Ashley (5 lbs. 10 ozs.) and Kristin Megan (5 lbs. 2 ozs.).

Grandparents are Robert Healy of Cohasset, Janet Healy and Thomas and Jean Digan, all of Scituate. Mrs. Healy of Framingham, Mrs. Rush and Mr. and Mrs. Roufosse, all of Florida, are great grandparents.

Ruth Mendez of Holly Road, Scituate won the Cohasset Firemen's Benefit Association drawing on Saturday morning for $500 worth of Stop & Shop gift certificates. Cohasset High School Homecoming Queen, Heather Correa, drew the winning ticket for the Association. A fair amount of money was netted by the firemen which will go towards their annual scholarship awarded to a graduating high school student.

Cohasset firefighter Mark Trask and his wife Janet of Scituate, became the parents of a daughter on January 7. Their special little girl weighed 7 lbs. 2 ozs. on her arrival at South Shore Hospital.

"Andrea Doria" Trask is named in honor of her grandfather Harry Trask's Pulitzer Prize winning photograph of the last few minutes of the sinking Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria in July 1956. Trask was then a staff photographer for the Herald Traveler and the only one to capture a shot of the ship as she plunged into the Atlantic 45 miles off Nantucket after colliding with the Swedish liner Stockholm.

Mark and Janet also have a son, Jason, age 2. Grandparents are Harry and Joan Trask of Cohasset and Donald and Marilyn Clark of Ashburnham.

Maternal great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Clark of Tennants Harbor, Maine and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Russell of Lowell. Paternal great grandparents are Mrs. Bertha Trask of Dorchester and Mrs. Henry Mueller of Quincy.

Andrea and Jason also have a great, great grandmother, Mrs. Anna Nicodemus of Plymouth.

Quilting expert to teach at CCC

By Regina Schultz

Marty Struzziero needlework and quilting expert teaching at the Cohasset Community Center said the course offerings there cover the entire span of needlework arts.

They run from the earliest American Log Cabin design to the Textured Star which is slightly contemporary in application since it combines origami and quilting techniques.

"I enjoy teaching," she said, "because it gives me a chance for involvement in the creation of many projects and quilts at one time. Some turn out to be masterpieces — real heirlooms — and I can share in the owner's pride."

Mary has worked with the Country Crafters and currently is exhibiting her projects for the Community Center at the Quincy Cooperative Bank in Tedeschi Center.

She began her quilting hobby with a crib quilt for her first baby. She became a real enthusiast and, encouraged by her husband, Dr. Philip Struzziero, she participated in many instructional workshops given by Toni McCrail in East Bridgewater. Five years later, her family growning along with her, Mary is a master in her own right.

"Quilting has many applications," she maintains. "Once the techniques are mastered, the projects can be made into decorative accessories for the home — a magazine rack, a pillow, a sewing basket, placemats, a kitchen ensemble, etc."

Mary points to the Log Cabin as the oldest American technique. Red or yellow was used as the traditional center color as it represented the fireplace or the light of the cabin window. The strips around the center are the logs of the cabin.

The Crazy quilt technique was popular in Victorian times, and scraps of silks, velvets and brocades were used. "These quilts," Mary said, "have not stood the test of time so wel , but the technique is lots of fun in calico and has many fun applications."

The Cherry Basket technique is Mary's favorite as it "combines all the needlework processes in such a charming way — patchwork, quilting and applique."

Registration for the workshops is now in progress at the Center weekdays from 9 a.m. to noon or by mail at the Cohasset Community Center, 3 North Main St., Cohasset. Call the Center for details of time and fee, 383-0088.

WINTER

around town

☐Navy Aviation Mechanic William Ross, son of Walter and Annita Ross of South Main St., is home on leave after completing eight weeks of recruit training at Great Lakes, IL, and eleven weeks of aviation structural mechanics training at Memphis, TN.

Bill left for active duty in July 1980. After his leave, he'll report to Oceana, VA, for further training on F-4 phantom and F-14 tomcat ejection seats. He will then report to fighter squadron 74 onboard the USSS Nimitz CVN-68.

Bill finished number two in his class at Memphis, and missed being number one by only two hundredths of a point. Competition during training is hot and heavy because the person finishing number one can be advanced to third class petty officer.

Janine Broadhurst and Ellie Waal were treated recently to lunch by their friends in honor of their birthdays — Jan. 12 and 10, respectively. They shared a "Talbot's sweater cake" in pink and green with each of their monograms in the center. (Janine says she's 30 and Ellie probably is too!)

Nancy Bruno received twelve helium-filled balloons (in pink and green) from a clown-suited delivery person who sang her a personalized version of "You Are My Sunshine"... signed "The Regulars." The gesture was aimed at erasing Nancy's January doldrums...wonderful idea! (Balloons by Balloonities South.)

The "Regulars" also could write her a love letter and enter it in the Mariner's contest...two weeks left to compose your tribute to your favorite somebody....

Frank and Kay England and their daughters Terry and Janet returned recently from a holiday trip to the West Coast that brought them to daughter Debbie's and son-in-law Glen Zepnick's home in Sacramento, California and other interesting spots in the Golden State. Kathy joined them too from Las Vegas.

They visited the spot where gold was first discovered (none was left), saw Taho, Napa Valley, Monterey and Carmel. There were no earthquakes and they managed to navigate the hairy mountain-side roads and freeway fog.

☐Mrs. Susan Shumaker has joined the teaching staff of the Berryblue Nursery School in Scituate. She has worked for several years as a volunteer in the Cohasset School system and in the Paul Pratt Memorial Library where she presented "Children's Story Hour."

☐Mrs. Robin Lualdi of Cohasset has been elected to the Board of Trustees of Derby Academy.

Mrs. Lualdi is a graduate of the American Community School of Paris, France, and holds a B.S. in Community Organization from Simmons College, and an M.S. from the Simmons College School of Social Work. A certified elementary school teacher and psychiatric social worker, she has continued studies during the past ten years in the fields of education and psychology at Simmons, Curry and Lesley Colleges. Now school adjustment counselor and psychologist for Duxbury elementary schools, Mrs. Lualdi also maintains a private practice in family therapy.

She is a member of the Area Board of the Coastline Community Counseling Service and a former member of the National Association of Social Workers, South Shore Interagency Council and the Massachusetts Association for the Advancement of Human Services.

☐Introductions are in order for five new residents of town:

☐Edward and Karen Hettstrom became the parents of their second daughter on January 22 at South Shore Hospital. Tara Rose, weighing 7 lbs. even, joins Erica, who will be 2 in March.

John and Claire Bernard and Mrs. Rose Hettstrom, all of Braintree, are grandparents.

☐Richard and Rosalind DeRosa have a new daughter, their first child, Alexandra, born on January 6 at St. Margaret's Hospital. She weighed 8 lbs. 14 ozs. at birth. Lila and William Swanton of Toronto, Ontario and Midge and Tony DeRosa of Cohasset are grandparents. Mrs. Helen Craig of Toronto, Ontario is great grandmother.

☐Another first born arrived at South Shore Hospital on January 20 to Robert and Donna Morgan, Jr. They have a son, Robert Charles Morgan, III who weighed 7 lbs. 10 ozs.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morgan and Mrs. Beatrice Meers, all of Hudson. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Upton of Wrentham are great grandparents.

☐John and Elizabeth Healy of Beechwood Street got a double start with first born twins on January 20. Their daughters are Allyssa Ashley (5 lbs. 10 ozs.) and Kristin Megan (5 lbs. 2 ozs.).

Grandparents are Robert Healy of Cohasset, Janet Healy and Thomas and Jean Digan, all of Scituate. Mrs. Healy of Framingham, Mrs. Rush and Mr. and Mrs. Roufosse, all of Florida, are great grandparents.

☐Ruth Mendez of Holly Road, Scituate won the Cohasset Firemen's Benefit Association drawing on Saturday morning for $500 worth of Stop & Shop gift certificates. Cohasset High School Homecoming Queen, Heather Correa, drew the winning ticket for the Association. A fair amount of money was netted by the firemen which will go towards their annual scholarship awarded to a graduating high school student.

☐Cohasset firefighter Mark Trask and his wife Janet of Scituate, became the parents of a daughter on January 7. Their special little girl weighed 7 lbs. 2 ozs. on her arrival at South Shore Hospital.

"Andrea Doria" Trask is named in honor of her grandfather Harry Trask's Pulitzer Prize winning photograph of the last few minutes of the sinking Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria in July 1956. Trask was then a staff photographer for the Herald Traveler and the only one to capture a shot of the ship as she plunged into the Atlantic 45 miles off Nantucket after colliding with the Swedish liner Stockholm.

Mark and Janet also have a son, Jason, age 2. Grandparents are Harry and Joan Trask of Cohasset and Donald and Marilyn Clark of Ashburnham.

Maternal great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Clark of Tennants Harbor, Maine and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Russell of Lowell. Paternal great grandparents are Mrs. Bertha Trask of Dorchester and Mrs. Henry Mueller of Quincy.

Andrea and Jason also have a great, great grandmother, Mrs. Anna Nicodemus of Plymouth.

When the Weather Outside Is Frightful . . .

. . . A STOVE IS MORE DELIGHTFUL.

Much more than that fireplace you are now using — 5 to 7 times more efficient.

[Now That's Delightful!]

That means your cord of wood or ton of coal could last, 5 times longer and won't be wasted as it is in a fireplace.

That also means more even heat throughout larger areas of your home and a chance of really making a dent in your heating bill.

Obituaries

Michael McNeil

Michael I. McNeil of Cohasset died January 27 in South Shore Hospital, Weymouth, after a long illness.

He was born and lived in Waterford, Nova Scotia until he was 10 years old and then moved to Cohasset. He was educated in Cohasset public schools, Weymouth Trade School and Weymouth Vocational School.

He was employed for many years at Pyrotector Company and retired in 1973.

He was a member of St. Gabriel's Laymen's League, Brighton, St. Anthony's Church, and the State Guard from 1942 to 1944.

He is survived by his wife, Jeanette (Dolan) McNeil; two sons, John Dolan McNeil of Hull and Paul Michael McNeil of Cohasset; three brothers, Peter J. McNeil of California, Bernard A. McNeil of Worcester and Vincent A. McNeil of Framingham; a sister, Mrs. Stella M. Seavey of Natick and two grandchildren. He was also the brother of the late Charles A. McNeil of Framingham, who died last week.

A funeral Mass was celebrated in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Donations in his memory may be made to the American Cancer Society, 47 West Elm St., Brockton 02401.

Sarah Gammons

A memorial service for Mrs. Sarah C. Gammons, 88, of Wilmington, Del. and formerly of Cohasset was held Jan. 26 in First Parish Church, 23 North Main St. She died recently in the Delaware division of Wilmington Medical Center.

Burial was private.

Mrs. Gammons was born in Cohasset where she attended school. She was a 1916 graduate of Sargent College and taught physical education in the Brookline area. She married and moved back to the Cohasset area and then moved from Massachusetts in the early 1930s. She had lived in Wilmington for 45 years.

Wife of the late Charles C. Gammons, she is survived by three daughters, Clare McMullan of Lancaster, and Sallie Ferguson and Pat Dodgen, both of Atlanta, Ga.

The Cohasset Riding Club will sponsor a film on the Ledyard Horse Trials featuring rides by Princess Anne and Mark Philips at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in the Cohasset Community Center.

The public is invited and there will be no charge for the film.

The club recently awarded the Henry Ahearn Perpetual Trophy for Excellence in Fitting and Showmanship to Jennifer Hanlon, daughter of George and Kathleen Hanlon of South Main Street. Jennifer has now received the trophy for three consecutive years.

Good electric savings

School Superintendent Crowell congratulated students and staff for saving a substantial amount of electricity during the 1978-1981 period. A reduction of 45,815 killowatt hours, or 10.32 percent was realized during that time. However costs during the same three years increased by 23.15 percent. "$5,156 for less electricity," Crowell noted wryly.

Exhibit at Art Center

On Sunday, Feb. 8 from 5 to 7 p.m., the South Shore Art Center invites the public to an opening reception for an exhibition of paintings by Mary Lizotte and sculpture by Michael McNabb in its Invitational Gallery at 103 Ripley Rd.

Thompson named United Way G.M.

John Larkin Thompson of Cohasset, president of Blue Shield of Massachusetts, has accepted the voluntary position of General Chairman for the 1981 fund-raising drive of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay.

Thompson's selection to the post was announced by Roderick M. MacDougall, chairman of New England Merchants National Bank and president of the United Way.,

As the top campaign volunteer, Thompson will manage the entire fund-raising effort, from volunteer recruitment through the actual solicitation. The campaign will begin Sept. 10 and continue through Nov. 25.

A vice president of the United Way, Thompson served as associate campaign chairman in last year's United Way drive. He succeeds Edwin Matz, chairman of John Hancock, as General Campaign Chairman.

Contributions to the campaign will help to support 171 United Way affiliated agencies which provide a variety of human services, including help for battered women and abused children, rehabilitation for the handicapped, day care, home health care, and disaster and emergency services.

On the South Shore, approximately 40 human service agencies benefit annually from the United Way campaign. Some of those agencies are Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE), South Shore Council on Alcoholism, South Shore Council of the Camp Fire Girls, Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, South Shore Day Care Services, seven local chapters of the American National Red Cross, South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens, and the Visiting Nurse Association of the South Shore.

Dividends high at Cohasset Savings

Depositors in Cohasset Savings Bank received on average the highest dividends on their deposits of any 24 savings banks in the area and the fourth highest among the entire 163 savings banks in the state, Donald E. Bates, Executive Vice President told the recent annual meeting of the bank's corporators.

Dividends credited to depositors at Cohasset Savings over the past 12 months amounted to almost 8.6 percent of average deposits over that period, he said, topping the record of all 24 savings banks in this area and ranking only slightly behind the 9.1 percent for the highest among all savings banks in the state.

Cohasset Savings paid a total of $2,154,000 in dividends during the fiscal year ending October 31, the bank officer reported, an increase of nearly a half million dollars over the prior year.

"The record dividend payment results from the alertness of people in our marketing area to the high interest rates available on various forms of accounts now being offered by our bank," Bates said. "This shows in the significant growth in the high interest 6-month and 30-month certificates we offer, and a decrease in the amount of deposits in regular savings accounts.

At the annual meeting, all officers of the bank were re-elected: President, Osborne F. Ingram; Executive Vice President and Treasurer, Donald E. Bates; Vice Presidents, John H. Dean, Robert P. Magner, William E. Poland; Assistant Vice President, Margaret R. Santacroce; Assistant Treasurer, William K. Brothers; and Clerk, Brian R. Wilkin.

Six of the 15 trustees whose terms expired, were also re-elected. They are: Donald E. Bates, George E. Buckley, Robert P. Magner, Sheldon N. Ripley, F. Allen Weisenfluh, and Brian R. Wilkin.

John F. Elliott, a Cohasset attorney, was elected as a new corporator of the bank.

Coastline Council to spotlight daycare

Tania Vitvitsky, director of Day Care Licensing for the Massachusetts Office for Children will address the Coastline Council for Children at its next meeting on Thursday, Feb. 12. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. and is held at the Lutheran Church in Hingham.

Ms. Vitvitsky will discuss various issues and developments in the provision of grou , day care and family day care. She will also descri' e a new pilot project that the Office for Children has established in one region of the state that provides support and assistance to individuals who take care of children in their homes. The general public is invited to attend, and the meeting should be of special interest to those consumers and providers of day care.

The Coastline Council for Children is a group of citizens concerned about improving services to children and their families. It is one of 42 citizen councils that are part of the state's Office for Children, with the Coastline Council covering the towns of Weymouth, Braintree, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Scituate and Norwell.

Anyone interested in learning more about the Council should call 749-2719.

Nursing home residents aiding Heart Fund

Twelve residents of the Ripley Road Nursing Home are fund raising for the American Heart Association Feb. 15 under sponsorship of the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes and the American Health Care Association.

The residents will be joined by volunteers from the community in this important community service endeavor called, Rock 'N Roll Jamboree.

Volunteers will represent youth and school groups, religious and fraternal organizations, the Cohasset High School Glee Club and Cooking Class.

Residents are encouraging all members of the community to become involved and solicit pledges for adopted grandparents to generously support this worthwhile program...by making a donation or sponsoring one of our rock n' rollers.

Now Exercise night

A women's exercise night sponsored by the Plymouth County chapter of the National Organization for Women will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 10 at 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Parish House, 23 North Main Street, Cohasset, opposite the Common.

There will be an exhibition of aerobic dancing by instructors from Aerobic Dancing, Inc. of Braintree. The audience will have a chance to participate.

Second youth symphony

The second Youth Concert in the series at Symphony Hall will be held Saturday, Feb. 7.

The bus will leave the Joseph Osgood school at 9:30 a.m., returning at 1 p.m. Children should bring a bag lunch.

If anyone is unable to attend please call Mrs. James Mullen at 383-1993 or Mrs. David Sweeney at 383-1184.

Founding

The Social Service League of Cohasset was founded in 1912 by women who wanted to provide hot lunches for pupils at the Osgood School.

Hoopsters hot & cold in .500 week

By Rob Tis

The boys' basketball team went from hot to cold this week as they romped over Middleboro on Tuesday night but just could not cut the mustard Friday against Abington.

The Skippers came out slow against the Sachems but quickly tied it at 15 each at the end of the first quarter. In the second stanza the Skippers began to open up a lead. Gregg Raffa stole the ball twice with only seconds remaining in the half and took them both all the way to the hoop, netting 4 quick points and increasing the Skipper lead to 7. The Sachems were on the comeback trail in the third quarter but could only close the lead to two, 43-41. The fourth quarter, however, was a different story as the Skipper machine rolled over Middleboro opening up leads of 10 and 12 within the first five minutes and from here on they coasted to victory, 60-49

All in all Friday was a frustrating night for the Skippers. It was basket for basket all through the first half until Abington took over a 35-31 lead at the half. The Skippers never had the lead again.

With only 30 seconds to play, however, the Skippers closed the gap to four and got control of the ball. Working the ball down court quickly Bill Kurtz fed Pat Duffy who hit one of his deadly jumpers to bring the Skippers within 2, 66-64. Cohasset put on its full court press but the Green Wave managed to get the ball in and waste 14 seconds before the Skippers managed to foul the ball handler. With 16 seconds left the Abington player made the first half of a 1 and 1 to put the Green Wave up by three, 67-64 which would be good enough for the victory. Pat Duffy led the Skippers with 21 points, Greg Raffa had 15 and Bill Kurtz had 11.

HOCKEY

The hockey team had a tough time this week. They were flying high with no league losses and riding a 5 game winning streak. Tuesday, however, proved to be a slow day for the Skippers as they dropped their first league loss to Abington 2-0. The Green Wave fired 26 shots at Mike Jones who played brilliantly behind a lack luster defense. The Skippers only managed 16 shots, all of which the Abinton aerobatic goalie managed to kick out.

AGAINST HANOVER

Saturday night marked the return of star defenseman junior Domenic Campadelli from a back injury. Campadelli, known better as "The Franchise" last year had yet to see any ice time this year. Even with Dominic's return the Skippers could not pull Saturday's game against Hanover out. The Indians came out hustling and skated to a 6-3 win. Skipper goals were tallied by Jack McNiel, Andy Pottenger and Danny Bowen.

MARINER MOVING

By Lois Martin

We're moving. The Mariner's picking up its typewriters and shifting from the original Plain Street home to 58 Main St., Marshfield.

Well, I've known we'd do that. I encouraged the purchase of the property, the renovation of it to accommodate our kind of work, even toured the premises to help suggest who should sit where.

But you know it'll be like leaving home. We spend a lot of daylight hours in our places of employment. And I've never been one to be impassive in anything, let alone my physical surroundings.

When the paper began in Marshfield, it was put together in two little rooms. There were two desks, one for each of the partners, the two machines that recorded and produced the news copy, the advertising make-up desk/corner and the make up boards.

PATCHES

We boasted two telephones, same line. And for several years I worked amidst the others without one particular location. It was when we moved to the larger building that I got a desk, my own. And two years ago I got my own nook. Some might say that to call it an office would be an exaggeration of the space in which I work.

But I like it. It's got a skinny bookcase, my own stacks of papers saved for special purposes, my too small desk, chair, typewriter table and old faithful Smith Corona. My favorite accoutrement is the rocking chair I brought from home. It's here for two reasons. For one thing I like it and need it. Secondly it's my sassy backtalk to those who say one can only be professional, businesslike, productive in a straight back chair. A rocker is me, comfortable, flexible (rocky?).

But our publisher/owner decided last fall he'd best find larger permanent quarters. The place has a mammoth barn along with the house. It was to be redone, said David Cutler, suiting all our needs and lending character to the foundation of the hometown newspaper.

Swell. We held our Christmas party there and knew the office spaces would be fine. Foreseeing that the barn could be converted to a charming bustling work area required a bit more vision. We joked about asking business people to climb the ladder to the second floor for an appointment. And we spoke constructively about warm skylights enhancing the grand old structure.

Inside the house/office part, we volleyed for the choice rooms, mentally measuring Mariner needs against space and location. There are the front reception rooms, the bookkeeping advertising areas. And there's a good-sized former kitchen that'll be my headquarters, far larger space than my cranny on Plain Street.

Heaven knows that's home to me but I'll probably feel I should be cooking. I plan to convert it to a hard-nosed office as best I can as soon as I get through poking in the cupboards.

The earlier tenant stopped by last week to tell me he's impressed with how the barn's been done. He used to have what'll be my office and he recommends it highly.

In retrospect I wish a former worker there hadn't teased me about a weak spot in the floor or the whimsical heating system. And I hope they were joking about how much money I can make parking cars during Fair time.

But a lot of work's been done there now. The barn's had a facelift. It's got its plumbing, wiring, insulation, floor, heating parts all set to go. More work will have to hold, like the exterior of the house for warmer weather.

There'll be a sign up over there. My room will get a plant and frilly box of Kleenex. For a few days I may hear the phone ring here on Plain Street and answer it on Main. The telephone company is, for our point of view, the most important ingredient in moving.

Next week at this time, I'll be settled over there in the kitchen, my typewriter humming and people rocking in my chair. And I've got a special apron Brian gave me for Christmas. It says, "Over 40 and still cookin'." You bet your sweet bippy. And what's more it's got change pockets in it I could use for Fair time parking lot business.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

Now that the hostages have been feted and all the welcoming yellow ribbons are limp and bedraggled, let's think red and white. Whether we're young or old, there's a little of the romantic in all of us and Valentine's Day is most welcome, if only to brighten up this dreary month. Dinner can become rather festive with just a little extra effort and expense — red candles, appropriate napkins, strawberries over the ice cream, or cupcakes with those little candied hearts with messages the kids lap up so eagerly. Your hungry Valentines would surely welcome Margaret Ward's

STRAWBERRY JELLO CAKE

Using a white cake mix as directed, bake in a 13x9" pan and then let cool. Make a lot of holes (about 40) with straws. Use a small box of strawberry jello and mix with one cup of boiling water. Let cool and then pour into the holes. Refrigerate this for several hours and then spread a large-size Cool Whip on top of the cake. Refrigerate again and cut into squares. Mrs. Ward makes the cake and fills the holes with gelatin the day before. She says, "If you spill jello on top of the cake when filling, don't worry."

'Sweets to the sweet.' No, I didn't make that up; it just seemed appropos. We all have our little quirks. Some save string, some hoard paper bags, others have a thing for collecting plastic containers. My passion is boxes and among my cache are some empty Valentine candy boxes, perfect for gifts filled with some homemade

TOASTED ALMOND BARK

1 c. almonds
8 ounces semi-sweet chocolate
2 T shortening

Toast almonds for 10 min. in a 300 degree oven. Melt chocolate and shortening in top of a double boiler over hot water. Stir nuts into chocolate. Pour into a lightly buttered, 9" square pan. Chill. Break into irregular pieces and store in an airtight container. Makes one pound.

Short of decorating the meat loaf with tomato sauce, or festooning the chicken with cranberry jelly, some of us just aren't too creative in working the color red into our Valentine's menu. A dozen roses on the table would be timely, but we all know how extravagent a gesture that would be. One way to warm your Valentine's heart is suggested by Ann Batchelder and called

VALENTINE HONEY

Place 1 tsp. honey or jelly, 1 slice lemon, whole cloves and cinnamon stick muddler in tea cup. Add strong tea prepared according to package directions. Serve at once.

McKinnon hours

State Sen. Allan R. McKinnon (D-Norfolk and Plymouth) will be holding his monthly office in Cohasset Town Hall on Tuesday, Feb. 10, 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

If the above hours are inconvenient, contact the office to arrange a more convenient time. The office is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and the telephone number if 727-8820.

Speeders always

Speeding cars have been a problem in Cohasset for more than 70 years.

Back in 1906 the selectmen explained the dilemma in their annual report.

"Several of our citizens urged the selectmen to enforce the law against the fast driving of automobiles through our streets. The work was committed to Officer Wentworth with the expectation that the fines would reduce the cost but we understand it was all swallowed up in court expenses."

Valentine winners have a heart

By Karin Bartow

Love letters, it seems, are difficult to write. Some of Cohasset's greatest lovers told us they didn't know how to begin one. Sales of candy, flowers, cards and other tokens of love are up all over town. People turn commercial when it comes time to express how they feel about their loved ones.

Nonetheless, we are happy to announce three winners in our Valentine Love Letter Contest, and we couldn't have asked for three better expressed tributes to a model policeman, husband, and alas, a newspaper, yours truely!

First Prize winner Caroline Zwicker tells us she echoes the sentiments of her peers as well in her admiration of Sergeant Rhodes. Rhodes was very pleased when he learned that her letter extolling his good qualities won first prize.

June Simeone, an instructional aide in the Osgood School, is well known for her poetry, prose and drawings. She's brightened up many a special occasion before for friends. We thought her tribute to her husband Lou, was tops! She won second prize.

We were especially pleased with the third prize winning entry — newspapers don't get too many love letters! We found out that the author, Pam Hennessey, is the daughter of Connie and Lawrence Parker. She is married to Tom Hennessey and, says grandma, they have "three darling children." She also told us they are all wonderfully talented musically. Kent is at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville and to be married in August, and Kimberly and Sally are a year apart in junior/senior high school. Thank you Pam (nee Petie Parker) for your Valentine. We hope we'll keep "bringing you home" in the year ahead.

Katie Anderson wrote us a note on her entry, which was all about Mom: "I really want my mother to see this because what's inside is ALL true. And I

School Department takes aim at drug abuse problems

Cohasset kids have problems with marijuana and alcohol abuse but that isn't any different from any other community in the country.

Michael Gill, the school department's new health coordinator, is careful to talk about the issue in national terms.

His health program gets into full swing next year with courses beginning at the Kindergarten level.

But the kick-off will be in June when Dave Toma, a former undercover cop who has gone national with his drug education program, comes to town.

"Drug and alcohol abuse is a serious problem endangering our children's lives," Gill said.

"No matter where you live, if your youngster is of high school age, you can assume that he or she has already seen drug usage amongst their peers or at least are aware of the abuse going on."

That's how Gill talks about the problem. He talks about it as serious and universal.

He says the national studies show use of harder drugs and hallucinigens have been decreasing lately. But marijuana and alcohol usage are on the upswing.

"We can all recognize that all communities are faced with a drug problem.

"We all can recognize the fact that abuse of alcohol and other drugs may also contribute to a large extent to other problems in the community that can't help but affect us all, including vandalism, auto accidents and acts of violence."

Toma's program is an emotional two-day lecture. His life provided the material for the television series "Baretta."

His lectures on the horrors of drugs leave some in his audience in shock or tears. On June 9 and 10 he will spend seven hour days at the high school working with the students. A night lecture for parents is part of the regular program.

A special fund has been set up to pay the cost of the program. Donations may be sent to the Alcohol and Drug Education Fund, Dick Conley, trustee, Cohasset Savings Bank, Elm Street.

About $3,000 is needed to pay for the program.

"If as a result of this program, one student kicks the habit or is convinced never to start using drugs the program will have been a success," Gill said.

"Drug and alcohol abuse has become commonplace."

Home rule and the gambling issue

Maria Plante, one of the pushers of the Group Against Gambling, doesn't know what the politicians are talking about when they say home rule should decide the fate of Hull's gambling casino.

Mrs. Plante points out with quiet anger creeping into her tone that her home is only three-fifths of a mile from the property proposed as a casino site.

"Most of the people in Hull live farther away than I do," she said.

She already had 500 signatures on petitions against the plan two days before the big collection drive.

She became involved in the political fight after going to the Cohasset selectmen to find out what the issue involved.

"They gave me a report to read on New Jersey. As I read it, it dawned on me what was happening here."

She said there are still local residents who don't realize the proposal can hurt them too. But only five people in town have actually refused to sign her petitions.

Most just need to have the matter explained.

"There are people on Forest Ave. who hadn't thought much about it. But when you point out that now Atlantic City has the highest car insurance rate in the country and that Forest Ave., is one of the main ways to Hull, they realize."

Mrs. Plante is the mother of six children. This is only the second time in her life she's ever gotten involved in a political issue.

The first time was when the state decided to close the clinical nursery schools for retarded children, throwing the burden on the public school system.

"There were 220 clinical nurseries in this state and they were doing an excellent job," she said.

"The legislators didn't pay any attention to us. At the time the Department of Mental Health had $50 million for the operation of the nursery schools. We tried to find out what happened to the money, we never did.

"We thought the money should have gone to the public schools if they had to take on the responsibility."

Mrs. Plante's husband teaches in the Cohasset schools. They've lived in town 20 years.

She said she's found out MGM plans to finalize the purchase of the Hall Estate in March. The corporation paid $50,000 for a three month option.

"I thought maybe they'd back off when they saw there was real opposition and with the deaths in their hotel and all.

"I thought a corporation like that would pick a different place. You know how traditional the people are here. It isn't like Las Vegas or Atlantic City.

"It's a residential area."

Change of the guard at the Market

By Patricia Desmond

The man wore a clean, white grocer's apron — the uniform of his profession.

The glass door swung open, letting in a breath of frigid air and a woman who was dressed appropriately for a tea party.

"Hello, Mrs. Palmer," Jay George said with a smile. "What can I do for you?"

Mrs. Palmer smiled back, pulling off her deer skin gloves and chatting about her day.

It's a scene that happens all the time at Cohasset Central Market, 60 South Main St.

The market changed hands last week. But the operation continues to mix small town friendliness with convenience.

The blackboards in the windows still advertise the sales. But Joan Bravo isn't chalking up the groceries anymore. She and her husband, Lou, sold the business to Phil Nectow, a Marshfield businessman.

The Bravos retired, so to speak. They still own the store block in the Village. They live in Hingham and don't plan to move away. Nevertheless, they plan to relax more. For the past 11 years the Bravos worked six days a week operating the old market.

Jay, who worked for his aunt and uncle throughout the 11 years, is staying on as manager under the new ownership.

The new owner won't be on the premises too often. Phil is a man of many business interests. He got his start running Toabe's Hardware Store in Marshfield, which he turned into a small chain.

The Survival phone brings help

The man said he was at the end of the line.

The counsellor on the Survival Crisis phone asked what was wrong.

He told her he lived in Cohasset; everyone seemed to know his failure; it seemed there was no escape.

The man was educated to be a professional. But in the past year the only jobs he's held have been menial. In the meantime his wife has been supporting the family.

"I just want to be the breadwinner," he said, "Is that so much to ask?"

He said even with her job times are hard on the family. They have one young child.

"Who takes care of the baby," the counsellor asked.

"Well I do," he replied. "I even feel guilty about that. I feel tied down. I don't like taking care of our baby."

The counsellor talked about the young man finding some long term job counselling. She suggested he hire a babysitter and get away once in a while.

"I had that same feeling when my baby was small," she said. "I loved her but sometimes it was too much for me."

Many of the calls handled by Survival's Crisis phone, 471-7100, are no more dramatic than this incident.

"Most of the calls we get are from people who are

Inside

Selectman Arthur Clark and others continued the Cohasset assault against Hull's gambling casino plan.

Cohasset's week

Buckley resigns

Lynne Buckley resigned from the board of health because of conflicts with her new job.

Buckley has been on the board about two years. She will be nursing supervisor of the Hanson Visiting Nurses, a job that would conflict with the meeting schedule.

Two years remain in her term since she was appointed to fill a vacancy. The post will be open at the April 6 election. Nomination papers may be taken out until March 6.

Video for Red Lion

The Red Lion Inn won a license for a video game permit from the selectmen last week. But the board wants to be sure the game conforms to their regulations. They don't want a pinball machine installed.

Register to vote

The League of Women Voters of Cohasset reminds residents to be certain they are registered to vote in local town elections to be held April 11. Special sessions to be held at Town Hall are as follows: March 3 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.; March 14 from noon to 8 p.m. and March 16 from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The last day to register for Town Elections is March 16.

More fees rise

Fees for just about everything town government does will be higher from now on.

Increased fees are one of the results of Proposition 2½.

With the beginning of the new year building permits increased. There is some thought the Cohasset building department may become self-sufficient with the new schedule.

Permit fees are $10 for the first $1,000 and $3 for each additional $1,000. Last year there was a minimum fee of $5 for $2,500 in construction with $2 a $1,000 after that.

Plumbing and gas fees are $10 for the first fixture and $2 for each additional fixture. Commercial and industrial fees for plumbing and gas are $12 for the first fixture and $6 for each additional one.

The license fee for storage of flammable substances increased from $10 to $25. Street lists now cost $5, they were $2. Voter identification cards are $2, they were $1.

The fees for applications before the board of appeals increased: for a variance request from $35 to $50; for a special permit from $35 to $50 and for an appeal from $10 to $25.

Tinory's suit

Rik Tinory's suit against former burlesque star Ann Corio went to trial late last week in federal district court.

Remember Tinory sued the former stripper for $500,000 over the use of one of his songs in her revue. Results are sure to follow.

Transportation help

Sen. Allan R. McKinnon told Cohasset residents last week he hopes to gain more state money to subsidize commuter boats and local bus service.

McKinnon handles the transportation matters before the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

The senator was on a panel Thursday at First Parish Meetinghouse sponsored by the Democratic Town Committee.

While Cohasset pays into the MBTA, the town receives no direct service.

McKinnon said he expects there will be money for satellite parking lots for bus commuters in the area.

After the meeting he said he believes the MBTA has been treating the public shabbily.

"While the town budget is required to go down 15 percent this year, the MBTA costs are increasing," he said. In the past two years the MBTA budget has grown by 12 percent a year.

McKinnon had some good news for commuters who use Route 3A.

The state DPW expects the synchronized traffic lights from Quincy to Hingham to be in operation by next December.

Bids on the work will be opened in three weeks.

"Hopefully this will be a welcome relief to those citizens whose patience has worn thin and who have so despearately wanted positive action to correct the inexcusable rush hour traffic congestion."

During the program Martha Reardon of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce presented a slide show on water transportation.

Conley has papers

Richard Conley, a Cohasset firefighter, has taken out nomination papers for school committee.

Frank England, an incumbent, has been circulating his papers in town hall lately. The other incumbent whose term expires this year, Patricia Walsh, has yet to pick up nomination papers in the town clerk's office.

Although two incumbents have terms ending in April, only one seat will be filled by the election. The school committee is moving from six to five seats.

Cheap land sale

Selectmen sold a parcel of land for $1 last week 40 years after the town sold the same land to a former town official.

The sale was technical rather than real. A lawyer wanted the board to reaffirm the old sale since the three acre parcel went to Everett Wheelwright, who was a selectman at the time.

Town Counsel Blake Thaxter saw no problem with the procedure.

School budget hearings

School committee members will be given budget documents on February 13 and public discussions of the proposed 1981-82 budget will probably begin on February 26 or the first Monday in March.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell reiterated his earlier budget assumption that he will not cut programs that affect academic standards of the community.

Presenting a budget has met with a "nice delay," Crowell explained. The acceptance of a higher valuation figure ($225 million) than the $208 million that they were working on will mean a reduction of only $200,000 versus $400,000. Also, the school committee is in negotiation with three major units and will meet with the Cohasset Teachers Association on February 10. Additionally, there is legislation pending in the state to delay town meetings to a time after cherry sheets are received.

Since then he's opened a liquor store in Marshfield. He also runs Sweetser's General Store in Duxbury. Sweetser's is somewhat similar to the Central Market. It's the kind of place where Julia Child might shop for truffles and caviar.

Phil said he wouldn't be able to juggle so many plates without the help of his family. His three sons, one son-in-law and his daughter all work for him.

His daughter, Janet Miller, will be working at the market.

"We're trying to make as few changes as possible," Phil explained. "It's a great store. People might notice liquor prices drop abit because I'm in the liquor business but we're hardly going to be running a discount liquor store.

"And we do plan to expand the selection of wines."

John Cogill of Cohasset, the meat man, will stay with the new management. The other regular worker is Chip Goodrealt of Cohasset.

Jay asked another customer if he could help her while the cash register chimed an old-fashioned ring. A beeping and computerized cash register would be out of place in the market.

He mentioned that the store will still take telephone orders for its customers and make deliveries.

With that he picked up two brown bags from the front counter and went out into the arctic winds wearing his apron over a light shirt and work pants.

Where else does the manager carry groceries to a customer's car?

The answer may lead to another feature.

depressed. There are some drug-related problems, some suicide calls and calls about various kinds of abuse," the counsellor explained.

In winter the number of calls increase. The hotline began in 1970 as a drug information and problem hotline.

Survival is located in Quincy. Twenty percent of the calls are from the Cohasset area.

Now few of the calls involve drug problems, most are from people who are depressed. There may be anywhere from 20 to 60 calls a day. Last Wednesday there were 63 calls logged in.

"They're from people in life crises. Often we refer them somewhere else for help or maybe just give them a different perspective on their problems," she said.

The young out of work Cohasset man called back a couple months after his initial call to the crisis line. He said he felt hopeless.

The counsellor talked to him about how the baby was growing. She suggested he try to find a play group to give him some free time on a regular basis.

The young man said he felt better before he hung up.

Name Names

It's time to bring Proposition 2½ to personal terms. Time to let the town employes, who may soon be out of work, know their reality.

We are constantly being questioned by town employes at the lower levels for details about the lay-offs to come.

We don't think the way to tell people this news is through the newspaper. We think it's time for the people in charge to sit down with their troops and give them the facts.

If they don't, the Mariner will ferret out the details because the people have a right to know. But in kindness, we hope our stories don't become the first source for town workers.

Some numbers have been bandied about in public. Most of those numbers haven't been attached to names.

It's true nothing is final today. The legislature may appropriate vast sums for local aid. We doubt it.

We think there is about as much chance of that as there is that the state budget will be cut by 15 percent this year. Or that 10 feet of snow will fall in May.

Town meeting may decide to readjust priorities as they implement the budget cuts.

Still, all the budgets exist on paper right now.

In the past town employes weren't given information about the budget proposals, except for what they'd read in the newspaper. But Proposition 2½ never happened before. Many of the newer employes — and that means people with less than 10 years seniority — feel their future is insecure.

Their future is insecure.

Town officials fought Proposition 2½ and continue to point out, when asked by anyone who backs the status quo, that while they didn't vote for 2½ the townspeople did overwhelmingly.

We can understand their reluctance to be the ones to deliver the painful news. Unfortunately for them, they are the people running the show. They are making the decisions. The people affected should be the first to know.

Joan Wool recovering

A place for condominiums

Letters

To the Editor:

In the Patriot Ledger of Jan. 14 there was an article about the condominiums which Wayne Sawchuck and Glenn Pratt have been planning to locate between Pleasant St. and Smith Place, just south from the Target Industries building, formerly the Cohasset Lumber Company.

That article said, to quote, "The town's first proposed condominium project has hit a major snag; the zoning board of appeals, the last of four town boards to consider the proposal, has unofficially turned down requests for special permits to build the project. The board's official decision expected to state reasons for refusal, won't be issued until the members meet Jan. 27."

As the writer sees it the matter of periodic flooding of that area by James Brook is the most important consideration. For years I have done a lot of thinking about that flooding situation.

I think that records of the Weather Bureau will show that heavy rains lasting several days occur more often than every one hundred years. I would say that they occur at intervals of thirty or forty years. When those torrential rains occur the Pratt Meadow, back of my house, becomes a lake which extends up to my garden wall so that I remember it vividly.

Newcomers to Cohasset are probably not aware that for a day, or two, the flood water comes up to about eight inches below the floor of the Post Office Building. In Ripley Rd. the water rises to a depth of about 3 ft. for a distance of about 200 ft. Pleasant St., Smith Place and the area between become flooded. Oil burners and garbage pails become involved, probably septic tanks also. After two or three days the flooding subsides and strange to say, nobody feels much concerned. Obviously it would be a mistake to build an expensive condominium in this area subject to such serious flooding.

Many years ago a six foot by six foot box culvert was built under South Main Street and Brook Street. Between South Main St. and the parking lot the brook was left open. Then a stupid mistake was made of laying a four foot in diameter corrugated iron pipe between Pleasant St. and Smith Place. That was sufficient in the summer when the brook flow was small, or nothing. But the pipe was much too small for a heavy rain fall. Now the four foot diameter pipe should be removed beyond Smith Place and replaced by a deep, open channel through Elm's Meadow, under the railroad bed and into Jacob's Meadow.

Under Border St. there is a box culvert terminating in a transition chamber on the cove side, accessible through a man hole. Beyond that point the arrangement is wrong. The brook under Border St. should be lowered about six feet to give the water a push at low tide, and drain Jacob's Meadow more quickly. When the tide is high Jacob's Meadow can not drain and nothing can be done about it. But a new outlet at a lower elevation under Border St., and the Veteran's Park, would drain Jacob's Meadow much more quickly.

That outline of the situation is not very satisfactory, but it is brief. The writer has prepared a plan to show the proposed new culvert under Border St. But no one will look at it.

Probably the state would pay for it if the town requested it, because the Waterways Dept. did not plan properly when the "Creek Falls" were filled in to make a park for the veterans. An engineer who understands hydraulics is needed.

In a small way the situation is the same as at Niagra Falls where a tunnel was cut down through the rock and out beyond the falls. The situation may be compared to a kitchen sink where a drain pipe underneath the sink sucks the water out instead of letting it spill over the edge of the sink. It is very simple and obvious when one sees it. But the average person is not aware that a few vertical feet of "head" pushes the water out instead of letting it spill over the edge.

To prevent occassional flooding in the town center will be an expensive job of lowering and widening the brook's channel. There is no possibility of doing that now. Therefore the proposed condominium to be surrounded by that flood would be a mistake. A number of years ago there was strong pressure to cut an outlet through to Little Harbor from Smith Place. But that would not be practical. The young engineers who proposed it to satisfy popular demand either made a mistake in their elevations, or perhaps deliberately showed them wrong. A long explanation is involved but what it would amount to is that the proposed outlet to Little Harbor would not work as expected.

It would be good for the town to have a condominium, but some location on higher ground should be found for it. Perhaps the new town planning committee can find a suitable site.

Time for regional refuse

By Paul J. Hiltz

One tone of household rubbish equals 60 gallons of fuel. Everytime you see a rubbish truck, it will be carrying approximately 300 gallons of good fuel.

Five truckloads per day are being buried at the Hull Land Fill; 1500 gallons of fuel per day. At 250 work days per year, it equals 375,000 gallons of fuel a year.

In dollars and cents, the cost of fuel today is $1.20 per gallon. By 1983, I am predicting $2 per gallon. That will be $750,000 buried at the dump each year; if not more. Combine this with fifteen other towns on the South Shore that are burying much, much more. Can we afford to be so WASTE FUEL?

Some of Hull's Town officials are considering buying a land fill area in Cohasset for $5 million. They are also considering buying a compactor that will bale the refuse and extend the life of the Hull land fill area another twenty years. What are they thinking of? They are going to spend our tax dollars and we will end up with nothing. We have to unite the whole South Shore in order to get some return for our money.

I would like to see a group of people and the officials of these towns unite to work on the trash and transportation problems. Maybe we could accomplish something worthwhile, that would benefit the taxpayers and ease some of their burden in the years to come.

A refuse to energy plant on the South Shore would supply electricity for 1/2 million homes and, or electricity for electric transportation for the South Shore. If you would like to see a feasibility study of these problems, call your selectman. All the towns on the South Shore have a copy of my proposal.

If you don't care about your tax dollars don't call.

[ED. NOTE: Mr. Hiltz is a resident of Hull.)

When dieting, it's rude to refuse doughnuts

By Claire McDonough

Commentary

I'm on another diet, and I hate it. Over the years I must have gone on three hundred different diets.

And every diet book I've ever read is filled with testimonials from people who felt so great while they were under that particular regimen that they papered the basement, studied Sanskrit, sewed themselves new wardrobes, and married Arabian sheiks.

Now I don't for one minute mean to imply that I doubt these statements. After all, some of the books are advertised in the National Enquirer so they must be true. But it just doesn't work that way for me.

When I'm dieting the fairest day seems foul. I snarl at my husband and kids, mope wanly around the house, don't want to think about clothes, and begrudge the dog his Alpo.

My latest diet began with a period of total fasting. That's right. Total fasting. No food at all. I was allowed plenty of water, and only the fact that my office is across the hall from the ladies' room made that part feasible.

Strangely enough, I wasn't actually hungry after the first day or so. However, my fantasies began involving Big Macs and Twinkies. I caught myself making anonymous phone calls to Colonel Sanders. My idea of the House Beautiful began looking more and more like a Pizza Hut.

I started staring at the leftovers on people's plates and saying, "My, that looks good." They would return my gaze with polite incredulity and I would realize that the leftovers consisted of dried egg yolk, shells, and cigarette butts.

Fortunately the total fast part of this diet is over, and I've graduated to the "if it tastes good spit it out" stage.

Now I know why I've had to go on so many diets. I've approached life with an "If-God-wanted-me-to-be-thin-He-wouldn't-have-made-strawberry-shortcake" attitude. Anything that tastes good to me is automatically verboten. Healthful but verboten.

Diets aren't unbearable, though. They're made bearable by the fact that there are so many excuses to go off them.

You can go off your diet if someone gives you some peanut butter. Or if it's your anniversary. Or your birthday. Or your husband's birthday. Or your kid's birthday. Or the dog's birthday. Or if it's Tuesday.

If someone brings doughnuts to the office, obviously you can't hurt his feelings, right? If fresh corn comes into season you don't want the Creator to think you're ungrateful, do you?

You can never remember whether you feed a cold or a fever, so to be on the safe side you feed them both. If you recover, that's cause for celebrating, and we all know the best way to celebrate, don't we?

If you don't recover right away, clearly some more of that feeding treatment is needed.

This time, though, I am not going to fall for any of these specious excuses. I will be firm. I will be resolute. I will, above all, be thin. I will eat only those things that I absolutely loathe. At least until June. After all, God did make strawberry shortcake, didn't He?

The League election guide

By Sharon Becker
LWV

The Cohasset League of Women Voters has compiled the following information to encourage participation in local government.

Town Election Day is April 11. Last day to register to vote in the elections is March 16. What positions are up for election?

Moderator (3 years); Selectman (3 years); Assessor (3 years), Asessor to fill vacancy (2 years); Treasurer-Collector (3 years); Highway Surveyor (3 years); School Committee member (3 years); three members Cohasset Paul Pratt Memorial Library Trustees (3 years); Board of Health (3 years).

Also Planning Board (5 years); Water Commissioner (3 years); Recreation Commission (5 years); South Shore Regional School Committee (3 years); Cohasset Housing Authority (5 years); and Sewer Commissioner (3 years).

Information about the duties of these offices can be found in the Annual Report of the town, and in the League of Women Voters publication, "Cohasset Through The SpyGlass" (copy in the library). How to run:

Between now and March 6 obtain nomination papers from the Town Clerk's office, Monday through Friday between 8:30 and noon and between 1 and 4:30 p.m., and get at least 50 signatures to place your name on the ballot. Submit the papers to the Registrars of Voters for certification before 5 p.m., March 9. Your campaign:

Coffee and sherry hours are effective ways to meet the voters. The Town Affairs Night, sponsored by the League of Women Voters, gives each candidate the opportunity to speak and answer questions. Between 100-200 residents attend, and this year the event will be held Tuesday evening, March 31, at Town Hall. The League also publishes a Voters Guide for distribution throughout the town, giving candidates' background and views to specific questions, and is usually published in local newspapers.

Spaghetti supper succeeds

By Regina Schultz

Sunday, Feb. 8, marked the date of the third annual Spaghetti Supper at the Cohasset Community Center's Nursery School.

"Each year the mothers have added something new," commented Kathy Stevens, Nursery School representative on the board of directors.

"Last year we included a very popular salad bar, and this year we showed movies for the children after supper in the function room. We always sell our capacity number of one hundred tickets. Everyone seems to enjoy the whole idea."

Moms and Dads alike are included in the kitchen cooking force. Jane and Ed Goff prepared beforehand the twenty-five gallons of tomato sauce necessary to feed so large a group. Judy and Dan Volungis baked the twenty-five loaves of garlic bread, and the foursome supervised the Ziti crew in the serving of twenty pounds of spaghetti.

Paula Almeida and Rosemarie Mercurio were in charge of dessert. Lee Jenkins commandeered supplies and paper products, and the Salad Bar Moms included Karin Spencer, Karen Corcoran, Janis Brown, Regina Schultz, Nancy Kinchla, Annn O'Connor, Mary Larson, and Marsha Silvia; Sandra Putnam, Nursery School Director, commented that this program will be the "kickoff" for a whole roster of spring activities for the Nursery School children and their families."

"In April we are holding a children's fashion show in the Town Hall, sponsored by Wrye's Country Store. Then comes Parents Night and Dad's Day and our Spring Flea Market for children's toys and clothes.

"It's a busy season, and we are already beginning to register for the Preschool Summer Camp Quonahassit and for next Fall's Nursery School. It's nice to have this kind of support from the parents."

Chinese cooking at CCC

Learn the basic techniques of Chinese cooking using Madarin and Szechuan as well as Cantonese receipes. Appetizers, soups and main courses will be taught. Students are encouraged to participate in the preparation as well as the feasting.

Eleanor LeBlanc will be teaching the course which has been a great success in neighboring towns. The class, held on Wednesdays from noon to 2:30 p.m. for eight weeks, will start on Feb. 25. Call the Center for details and registration, daily 9 a.m. to noon, 383-0088.

FISH still serves Cohasset residents

Cohasset FISH met at the Second Congregational Church on Thursday, Feb. 5, with about 35 members in attendance.

Refreshments were served by Joan Shockman and her committee.

During the past year, the organization has given over 1300 hours of service to the community. This is mostly driving people to doctors' appointments, but there are also trips three times a week to Boston with a patient on dialysis treatment. In the summer a patient from Cohasset Knoll was taken twice a week to the town pool for therapeutic swimming.

FISH is available to make daily calls to check on people living alone. They read to the blind, take shut-ins on foliage drives in the fall, and in short do anything to help a neighbor.

The service is available to any resident of Cohasset by calling the Answering Service at 383-6600. Several days' notice is advisable. This service supplements that provided by the Shuttle Bus for senior citizens.

Unfortunately, Cohasset FISH can serve only Cohasset residents, as there is not time to extend the operation to neighboring towns. Hingham has its own FISH group, but Scituate, which used to have one, has given it up.

An average of two calls a month come from Scituate residents which have to be turned down. A FISH unit is desperately needed in that town. Anyone interested in forming one is invited to call the Cohasset Chairman, Miss Gertrude Hooper, at 383-1111.

Newcomers meet

A meeting of the Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club will be held on Monday, Feb. 23, at the Unitarian Parish House, Cohasset.

This month's topic of interest will be "Shaping Up," as a representative from the World of Health will give a demonstration on exercise and body toning.

Wear comfortable clothing if you plan to attend, so that you can participate in the fun. Coffee will be served at 9:30 a.m. and babysitting is available at $1 per child. The public, expecially newcomers to the area, are welcome to attend.

Congregational Church elects new officers

Members of Cohasset's Second Congregational Church elected officers and committee members for the current year, heard reports of the various church committees, voted to grant the minister a two-month "sabbatical" leave this Spring and approved a budget of $68,000 at the church's recent Annual Meeting.

"In a time when volunteerism is supposed to be dying, our church's life has been sustained and enlivened by many who contribute time, skill, thought, effort and prayer, as well as money," the Rev. John Benbow said.

A plaque was presented listing all ministers of the church since its founding in 1822. The plaque, which will be mounted at the entrance to the sanctuary, was funded through gifts in memory of the late Rev. Frank B. Chatterton, who served as minister from 1950 to 1972.

Officers re-elected at the meeting are as follows: Moderator, Hubert Vanderlugt; Clerk, Herbert Marsha; Treasurer, Dorothy Bates; Assistant Treasurer, Arthur Lehr, Jr.; Financial Secretary, Deborah Haase; Assistant Financial Secretary, Rebecca Bates; and Auditor, Gordon Flint.

New committee members were elected as follows: Finance Committee, F. Allen Weisenfluh; Trustees, Richard Silvia and Beverly Barrett; Christian Education Committee, Joseph Nedrow and Marsha Silvia; Music Committee, Robert Hubbell; Deacons, Gary Anderson and Frank Wheelwright; Deaconnesses, Nancy Ripley and Rachel White; Flower Committee, Mrs. James Grinnell; Nominating Committee, Letitia Jordan, Viola Tuthill, Mrs. Jeff Steele, William Adams, Norman Megathlin.

Rev. Benbow told church members that he will use his sabbatical during May and June to do some writing and editing of stories he has used effectively as sermon messages, to further his knowledge of current methods of family counselling, and to attend a retreat focusing on church life.

The 1981 budget represents an increase of approximately 10 percent over the prior year's figure and includes more than $4,000 in benevolences to world missions and various charitable needs.

Get your gas rebate

As the result of a natural gas rate decision by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, Bay State Gas Co. is returning about $1.5 million to its customers this month.

Bay State Gas Co. and other natural gas distributors challenged the rate increases charged in recent years by Tennessee Gas Pipeline and Algonquin Gas Transmission Co., suppliers of natural gas to Bay State Gas Co. and the region.

The Commission did not approve rate hikes that were conditionally put into effect.

The refund is being distributed as a credit reduction on monthly gas bills to all Bay State Gas customers in the Massachusetts communities served by the company. It comes to $1 to $2.80 a customer.

Meet Sheldon Ripley, set designer

By Helen Ketcham

"Sure, over the years I've had to modify some of my set painting methods to adapt them to a dramatic club," confesses Sheldon Ripley, the Cohasset Dramatic Club's foremost set designer.

"The old, traditional techniques of using ground pigment, boiling glue and water, sizing the flats first, then sizing the set, and later washing the flats before they're used again are enormously effective: the ground pigment diffuses, reflects and gives great depth to the set; the sizing tightens the flats — prepares them like a painter's canvas. But, the process is complicated and time-consuming.

"The new Luminal is a lot easier to work with and, happily, offers many of the same qualities. More spattering is required, of course, to achieve the effects desired, but Luminal covers with one coat — ideal for a dramatic club with its all-volunteer manpower."

Asked about the set for "Uncle Vanya," the Cohasset Dramatic Club's February production, Ripley says, "It's five-in-one. The play calls for five sets," he explains. "But, our director, Judy Holmes, preferred one set — one that was simple and workable.

"And so," he goes on, "I veered from the convenient box set — used frequently because it makes the fullest use of a small stage — and, for visibility, added a platform, lifting the upstage area and designed the entire back wall to stand at angles to the proscenium, making the set both more interesting as well as more realistic. Everyone seems happy with it, I'm delighted to say," he adds.

A native of Cohasset, Sheldon Ripley still resides in the house on Ripley Road in which he was born and which was built by his grandfather nearly a hundred years ago. After Cohasset High School and a stint in the Navy during World War II, Ripley entered Williams College as an English major. It was at Williams that his serious interest in the theatre was sparked. "And where, would you believe," he chuckles, "I collaborated with Stephen Sondheim in a musical!"

Ripley went on to take honors work at the Adams Memorial Theatre (on the Williams campus). "The Adams' facilities," he laughs, "are better than most you'll find on Broadway!"

During his senior year, Ripley was "discovered." A scout from the Bennington Drama Festival, impressed by Ripley's design for the chiller, "Night Must Fall," offered him the concurrent positions of Assistant Designer of the Bennington Drama Festival and Designer for its affiliate, the Dorset, Vermont, Theatre.

Ripley began work the very day of graduation from college and spent the summer traveling back and forth between theatres.

From there, he moved on to New York to join the Children's World Theatre (with studios on Fulton Street and a theatre in the Barbizon Plaza) as Associate Designer and Technical Director. He toured with the company from fall to spring, leaving to become the Designer and Assistant Stage Manager for the YM&WHA, an important theatre for dance and folk music, featuring at the time, such notables as the Budapest String Quartet, Dillon Thomas, Josh White and Burl Ives — to name a few.

Ripley returned to Cohasset to take on the position of Technical Director for the South Shore Players, a professional stock company under the direction of New York's George Soames and performing in the Cohasset Town Hall.

During Ripley's time, such stars as Marie Powers, Sylvia Sydney and Walter Abel played on Cohasset's stage. "Strangely enough," Ripley reflects, "the small size of the stage seemed to pose no problem to these stars imported from Broadway and Hollywood. I'm told that the show, "Lend An Ear," a full musical with singing and dancing and multiple sets, starring William Eythe and the original cast, previewed on these same boards! I often wish I could have seen how it was done..."

That summer, an actress named Denise Brian was the South Shore Player's resident ingenue. Her gifted parents, Virginia O'Brien, prominent in musicals in New York and Boston, and Donald Brian, matinee idol — the original Prince Danilo in the wonderfully successful "The Merry Widow," in fact — passed on their combined abilities, giving the young Denise her own great wealth of talent.

"I guess Denny and I just bowled each other over," Sheldon Ripley declares. "We were engaged in the fall and married the next May!"

Anxious to remain in this area, Ripley made efforts to pursue his theatrical career in Boston, but, finding opportunities only minimal, he retired from the theatre and entered the advertising field.

That same year (1950), the South Shore Players withdrew and the Brattle Players took over the summer theatre, only to retreat, themselves, with the advent of the Music Circus in the tent. Thus, Cohasset's Town Hall no longer hosted a professional summer stock company; it remained, however, the home of the Cohasset Dramatic Club, as it had every winter for (the then) thirty years.

It was not until they attended its production of Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," that the young Ripleys became participants in the Cohasset Dramatic Club.

"Thelma Humphrey played Amanda," Ripley recalls. "She was marvelous! In fact, the entire production was very impressive!" From that time on, both Sheldon and Denny Ripley have been invaluable members of the Cohasset Dramatic Club — acting, directing, serving as Club President, members of the Board of Directors — and designing sets.

"If I had to choose my favorites among the sets I have designed for the Club over the years," Ripley ponders, "I think the first that would come to mind is "Dracula." People came out of the woodwork to be in that show! Also, I liked "The Hasty Heart" — with the bamboo lean-to and the tents. That show just leant itself to a set!

"Incidentally," he points out, "Denny's mother directed that show. She did a superb job! Next," he considers, "I guess I'd say 'Picnic' — with the two house walls and the tree stump in the middle..."

Sheldon Ripley's creative genius is not restricted to design, alone: he is also the author of three published books: "Ethan Allen: Green Mountain Hero," published by Houghton Mifflin, "Matthew Henson: Arctic Hero," also by Houghton Mifflin and collaborating author and editor of the "1776 Guide for Massachusetts," published by Harper and Rowe. His fourth book — all about dragons — is currently making the rounds.

Still in the advertising field, Ripley is now the Vice President and Assistant Creative Director of D R Group, a direct marketing advertising agency, where he services such accounts as: Pan Am Cargo; Economic Development Administration of Puerto Rico; A.D.P. and Houghton Mifflin.

The Ripleys' two children, Leslie and Nick, are married and living in Waltham and Kingston, respectively.

(The Cohasset Dramatic Club will present Chekhov's "Uncle Vanya," directed by Judy Holmes — set design by Sheldon Ripley, on Feburary 26, 27, 28 at the Cohasset Town Hall at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3 and are available at the door. For further ticket information call: 383-1236.)

Valentine winners have a heart

LOVE her!" Katie's letter reveals that her mother, Mimi, is human just like the rest of us, "She's sometimes down in the dump, or up in the air....But the best day of all (Feb. 14) is the day when we all are happy and gay in a loveable way."

The Kornet girls sent in two worthy letters — Diana's was addressed to her "Wonderful Parents" who are "A great part of her life" and Alison's was to a favorite boyfriend (?) who gives her a tootsie!

And, yes, Marie Price's third grade class came through again! Twenty-two funny, clever letters to the "things" they love the most. They wrote to the moon, "I see you following me every night...in that big yellow suit of yours"..."I like (the Mariner) because you put us in the Mariner"...Happy Valentine's Day tree...I hope you are having a nice time up there"...Love and Kisses to President and Mrs. Reagan..."I like the way you (basketball) shoot through the hoop"...and "Dear TV...you are always around when I am down...you keep me happy when I watch you."

Thank you Marie Price and Joel, Ned, Jay, Cecily, Gregg, Nicole, Tammy, Maura, Jimmy, Mike, Tamara, Patricia, Matt, Pam, Eric, Michelle, Shane, Michael, Brian, Patrick, Kristin and Robbie. You didn't win a prize this time, but you won our hearts!!

Dear Sgt. Rhodes

By Caroline Zwicker, Age 15

Dear Sergeant Rhodes,

Working on the street from nine to five, helping people and saving their lives. Working in the office from six to eleven, trying to keep us kids from going to heaven. When you walk down the street you look really slick and neat. And when the girls see you, they almost fall to their feet. You're always up at the basketball games making sure that Kurtz doesn't get hurt, but I know, you're just up there to flirt. You have such deep devotion, I have the notion to tell your boss to give you a promotion.

Sergeant Rhodes, you're a dream come true, and you know that we all love you. You make life so much fun, not just for me, but for everyone.

So don't stop, because you're my favorite "cop."

...Second

Dear Lou

By June Simeone

Dear Lou,

1945 — It was a very good year — we ate doughnuts at the U.S.O. I danced with other guys, but took you home with me.

1946 — That was a better year — we got married. It was a rainy day. We didn't mind.

1948 — Our corporation declared a dividend — Craig was born.

1951 — We made a few modifications and produced another model — Dana.

All the numberless years in between then and now are filled with diapers and cutting teeth; old house and new house; high temps and earaches; Little League and Camp Daniel Webster; Ripley Road, Deer Hill and Conasset High Schools; Committees and T.V.; ham radio and sewing; card games and bowling; girl friends and junk cars; Bermuda, Detroit, St. Thomas, California, etc.; leaky roofs and flooded basements; house chores and yard chores; dinners in and dinners out; scores of friends and a disappointment or two; laughter and tears; jokes, pouts and impatience; reverses and advances; flowers and candy; tennis and boating; hospitals and new cars; dogs, rabbits, ducks and gerbils; Christmases, Easters and Memorial Day Parades — years of 'em; college grades and graduation; your family and my family; births and deaths; rides in airplanes, ships, motor bikes and rubber rafts; some give and a lot of take; a special funeral and a special wedding, and now, best of all — a special baby.

1981 — Going on 35 years...(Of course, at 25 years we renewed our option.)

I never did see anyone else I'd ever want to grow old with, Lou.

Love,
June

Late entry

Most wonderful

The following letter came too late for a prize in the Valentine's contest. But it was too well done to be left unpublished.

To Whom It May Concern:

I realize I'm probably too late at getting this in before the deadline, but I'm hoping you will read and print it anyway.

I want everyone to know how lucky I am to have the most wonderful person in my life. This person is the most loving and giving person I've ever known. This person is always there to help everyone out and never expect anything in return. This person is my beautiful and wonderful mother, BETTY MAREE.

My mother is also my very best frined. She's the most wonderful person in the world. She's also the strongest person I've ever known, having lost her husband at a young age to diabetes and raising three children on her own. Twelve years ago, my brother was killed, and two years ago, my uncle, my mother's only brother was killed. She has had to deal with grief of losing those closest to her, and yet she still keeps going on, helping others.

Mom — if you're reading this, I just want you to know that I love you with all my heart. Thank you for being the best mother and grandmother in the world. I wish you all the happiness in the world.

I love you, Mom,
Ann

Dear Valentine

By Pam Hennessey

Dear Valentine,

You don't usually arrive when I expect you, but it's a long way to my place. No matter, for when you do get here you bring me home. Always be yourself: a little unexpected — it keeps me on my toes; outspoken, but caring; colorful; a great personality — so full of news. Please keep dropping in. Your visits keep me so well informed. The neighbors are beginning to talk, but I don't care.

I love you Cohasset Mariner.

Local skaters in ISIA competition

The Cohasset ISIA (Ice Skating Institute of America) Skating Team returned Sunday night from Lake Placid, New York where they competed in an ISIA national competition over the weekend. Hosted by the Riverdale Skating Club of Lake Placid at the Olympic ice rink, the competition drew 36 teams from all over the East Coast.

The Cohasset team, which skates at Winter Garden, went basically as two precision teams, although most of the skaters also competed individually and as pairs.

The Eagelettes, coached by Marsha Breen and Kathie Sullivan and the Cadettes, coached by Marsha Breen and Ginger Gray, and individual skaters, brought home seven gold medals, six silvers and five bronzes. Club manager is Sandy Parks.

The Eagelettes won a gold medal in team competition. Members of the team are Eileen Hayden, Hingham; Liz Parks, Hull; Bonnie Meyers, Rockland; Karen Davis, Hingham; Louise Ellis, Whitman; Trisha Geary, Cohasset and Kelly McGee, Pembroke. Also, Elizabeth McGuire, Cohasset; Laurie McVay, Scituate; Laurie Newell, Weymouth; Kathy O'Sullivan, Rockland; Kirstin Rauhauser, Cohasset; Brenda Sullivan, Hull; Jenny Teagan, Hingham; Laurel Strozewski, Hull and Karen Brown, Marshfield.

The Cadettes placed fourth out of nineteen in their team competition. Members of that team are Amy Doherty, Hingham; Ena Eddy, Marshfield; Jennifer Grigas, Rockland; Kathy Hayden, Hingham; Stephanie Jarvis, Hingham; Tara O'Brien, Hingham; and Amy Parks, Hull. Also, Debbie Patterson, Marshfield; Carol Seneski, N. Scituate; Leslie O'Grady, Scituate; Carol Webb, Scituate; Holly and Robin Arnold, Rockland; Joanne Meyers, Rockland; Cindy Cummings, Brockton, and Carolyn Minelli, Hull.

In single, free-style competition, gold medals were won by Ted Bennett, Hingham; Ena Eddy, Marshfield and Tara O'Brien, Hingham; silver medals were awarded to Amy Parks, Hull; Elizabeth McGuire, Cohasset; Kathy O'Sullivan, Rockland; Scott McCoy, Rockland and John Landry; and bronze medals were won by Robin Arnold, Rockland; Melinda Sweezey, Abington; Joanne Meyers, Rockland and Karen Davis, Hingham.

Figure competition awards were a gold medal to Brenda Sullivan, Hull; silver to Scott McCoy, Rockland, and a bronze to Tara O'Brien, Hingham.

The Rec. Report

The Cohasset Recreation Dept. will accept registrations by phone for an indoor Soccer Clinic for youngsters 6 thru 18 years.

The instructor will be Alvaro Camano of Argentina, and former player for the New England Tea Men and Washington Diplomats.

Clinics will be held at the following places and times:

Ages 6-8 — Deer Hill gym, Fridays, 3:30-5 p.m., beginning Feb. 27.

Ages 9-13 — Deer Hill gym, Mondays, 3:30-5 p.m., beginning Feb. 23.

Ages 14-18 — Cohasset High School, Thursdays, 7-8:30 p.m., beginning Feb. 26.

The program will last six weeks. The fee will be $6 per participant with a 50 percent discount offered to other children registering from the same family. The program is open to both boys and girls.

Camano will recreate conditions, using identical techniques currently employed at Argentina soccer clinics that have sent first level players world wide. The program will be followed by a six-week outdoor, spring clinic, and consideration is being given to a summer soccer camp.

Unsung gymnists are winners

By Rob Tis

A question in last week's Tis Quiz read, "Does Cohasset have a gymnastics team?". The answer was obvious, yes, and possibly one of the best in the entire state although you would never know it from the coverage or lack of coverage they receive.

The Skipper gymnastic team went into this past week with a 5-1 record and clearly in second place in the South Shore League. On Monday the Skippers breezed past the Norwell Clippers 90-68. Karen Eckberg took a first on the uneven bars and Nancy Walls captured a first in the floor exercise and Susan McMahon, alias Nadia Comanichi, worked her way to victory on the balance beam as well as the vault.

Wednesday night the Skippers faced Hanover which had accounted for their only loss. Hanover was a team that had not lost a league match in four years. But with amazing skill and a lot of guts the Skippers squeaked by the Hanover powerhouse 101-100.

This ties them for first place in the league and assures them of a state tournament berth. The pressure was extremely intense at Wednesday's meet and the Skippers, a very young team, performed admirably. Everyone who got on the floor was a standout in this meet.

Judy Henry is the new coach of the team. It is a very young crew which is characterized by the team's new-found superstar Susie McMahon who performs incredibly daring feats with the style of a seasoned pro. Julia Suchen, Susie's elder of one year has a unique creativity. Seasoned veteran Karen Eckberg is in her usual championship form but she is taking, for the first time, a back seat to the younger generation. Nancy Walls, Susie Tehranian, Sarah Tague, Jeannie Baccari, Janny Carlson, Amy Barrow and the very enthusiastic Marilyn White make up the core of this team. Melodious-voiced Mark Wilkin, now apparently on the injured reserve list, is the announcer at the meets.

The gymnastic team is obviously the most successful of all winter teams. Stay tuned in the following weeks for more news on their path to success.

Hanover damages tourney chances

By Rob Tis

Saturday was the big night for the Skipper ice hockey team, but it unfortunately, turned into a catastrophe.

All the Skippers needed to do to make the state tournament and stay tied for first place in their league was to beat the mediocre 5 and 4 Hanover Indians. Well, that was easier said than done.

The Skippers outshot and outplayed the Indians all through the first and second periods but they both only managed to net 3 goals. Two of the Skippers' goals were by Don O'Niel, the other was by Dom Campadelli.

Going into the third period with a 3-all tie nobody seemed too worried but all of a sudden before you had time to get a hotdog and a coke the Indians slipped in 3 junk goals. The Skippers were now on the comeback trail. With 3 minutes left Mike Nedrow slipped one past the Hanover netman closing the gap to 2.

Then with a minute and a half Danny Bowen found the range. Within 1 goal of a tie the Skippers pulled their goalie and tried every play in the book but they could not convert and suffered a heartbreaking 6-5 loss.

The Skippers still have 3 non-league games on their schedule and 3 wins could apparently get them in the states. However, the one they really needed went down the drain last Saturday night.

Watson to direct hoopster shoot-out

Marilyn Watson, coach at Cohasset High School, will coordinate the Boston Celtics — Easter Seal Basketball Shoot-Out in Cohasset, according to Rick Robey, Celtics forward and Massachusetts chairman for the event.

The Shoot-Out is sponsored by Zayre and involves youngsters 18 and under who secure pledges from friends and neighbors for each basket scored during a three-minute period. Watson will monitor and verify each participant's scorecard.

Along with regional prizes and trophies, the five youngsters raising the most money will be guests of Robey at the Boston Celtics-New Jersey Nets game on Sunday, March 15, along with their coach.

Last year more than 5,000 youngsters across the state raised $65,000 which was used by the Massachusetts Easter Seal Society to help underwrite recreational programs for physically handicapped children.

Youngsters wishing to participate in the event should contact their coach or physical education teacher or call the Easter Seal Society, toll-free at 1-800-922-8290.

Anti gambling petition picks up steam

Arthur Clark, chairman of the board of selectmen, just like everybody else in town, opposes casino gambling.

Clark was to handle the introductions during the anti-gambling meeting Tuesday at the Unitarian Meetinghouse.

The meeting was modelled after one held a week and a half ago in Hingham. Carol Oteri of the Group Against Gambling, GAG, says she believes there are other ways for her town, Hull, to increase its tax base without resorting to gambling.

The petition campaign in Cohasset has gotten hundreds of endorsements thus far. The number of signatures turned in this week is still unknown.

Maria Plante and Julie Guild are running the petition drive for GAG in Cohasset.

Lt. Gov. Thomas O'Neill, who sent a representative to the meeting and filming, says he doesn't think the state needs to encourage new crimes.

He discounts the proponents' claims that there will be an increase in tourism, jobs and the economy due to casino gambling.

"If we legalize casinos we will open a vein of crime, corruption and adverse social consequences that will cost us far more than whatever taxes we could collect from them," he explained.

The movie on Atlantic City backs up O'Neill's contentions.

Sen. Allan R. McKinnon takes the same tack.

"The politicians in this state don't need any new temptations," McKinnon says.

"The quality of life would change with gambling. I'm disturbed this bill was even filed. It came from a legislator out of the district.

"We don't have a very good record here on political corruption, we don't need one more temptation."

Slow collections plague Water Dept.

The water department has a money shortage.

The problem is the fault of those who put off paying their bills.

At the last meeting of the water commissioners they decided to attack the problem by tightening up interest charges and mailing letters to the people who haven't been paying to let them know the water department has the right to shut off their water.

Commissioner William Montuori said there have always been some people who are slow about payments but the amount of arrears is increasing every quarter.

The water department no longer has an operating reserve to back up the regular budget and it cannot borrow funds to cover a deficit operation.

More than $50,000 is owed the department by people whose back bills are over $200. There are people who owe smaller amounts as well.

At the meeting the board discussed the possibility of publishing the list of customers who owe money. The list is public record.

From now on interest will be charged on bills not paid within 30 days. In the past interest was charged after 90 days on the quarterly billings.

"The only money we have comes from billings," Montuori said.

Raffle will benefit Lothrop House

"Josiah's Jitney," a one-half scale Model T Ford with a gas engine has been donated by Quincy Cooperative Bank as the prize for a raffle to benefit historic houses in Braintree, Cohasset, Hanover and Scituate.

The Raffle Committee and bank officials are: Mrs. Nancy Nicosia, Braintree; Mrs. Constance Parker, Cohasset; Mr. Ronald McKee, Quincy Cooperative's Senior Vice President & Treasurer; Mr. Francis Mitchell, the bank's Administrative Vice President and Hanover Manager; Mr. John Libertine of Hanover, General Chairman; Mrs. Barbara Barker, Hanover; and Mrs. Kathleen Laidlaw, Scituate.

Among the historic houses which will benefit from the proceeds of the raffle are the Thayer House in Braintree, the Lothrop House in Cohasset, the Stetson House in Hanover, and the Old Oaken Bucket Homsestead in Scituate.

The drawing of a winner will take place on June 13 at the Hanover office of Quincy Cooperative during the 25th anniversary celebration of the branch's opening. Arrangements are being made to have the car on display and tickets on sale at the South Shore Plaza, the Hanover Mall and various locations in the four towns. Exact dates and times will be announced when plans are finalized.

Piepenbrink opposes

Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink doesn't want the chief's job removed from civil service. The change is proposed for town meeting vote in April. It would not apply to the present chief anyway.

The change would make the fire chief subject to regulation by the board of selectmen. Chief Piepenbrink said he doesn't want the job to become political.

Hellenic Assn. lecture

The South Shore Hellenic Cultural Association will present a lecture and slide program on "The Byzantine Icon and Mosaics Today" at 8 p.m. Feb. 27 at the Hellenic Church and Center (Pope Memorial Church), Jerusalem Road, Cohasset. The program will be presented by Robert J. Andrews of Hingham who is an artist-iconographer of national reputation.

Grant appointed

Grant Galt of 258 South Main St. was appointed to the advisory committee by the appointing authority this week, according to Moderator David Place.

He replaces Donald Steele who resigned only a few months before his term would have expired.

Obituaries

An Aquarian song. . .

By Lois Martin

"The tide is high but I'm holding on...I'm not the kind of girl who gives up just like that..."

That's what Debra Harry of Blondie sings in what I've selected as my official birthday song this year. You have to do things like that when your age approaches your street address. And this last year there've been the kinds of changes and events which have me wonder, on a muse-filled birthday, if people who reach my age are about to step over an exciting new threshold or fall back awkwardly on their arrears.

But we Aquarians are supposed to think that hogwash. We're said to be independent, drawn to people, strong-willed and weak-ankled. Last week during a middle of the night thinking spree I was listening to WHDH, my favorite, and an astrologer was creating horoscope charts. I dialed frantically, hoping to have a head start on my '81. The line was busy but he did refer to an Aquarius as being a woman with whom a weak man shouldn't tangle. He's seen my weight chart.

PATCHES

In spite of common sense protestations, a birthday is something to be reckoned with. There've been times this year when I felt either 12 or 57, moments when I felt so refreshed I figured I'd be going for braces. And other times when I thought I'd better write about age before I lost my faculties.

I know some of my peers, Barbara Eden and Sophia Loren, both older than I, be clear on that; but nifty looking 40s women. Then I wondered what Golda Meier was doing when she was my age. Or what Brooke Shields will do when she gets here. The determination to get older and better, to be better older, is not so much an American fanaticism as it is a personal demand. We yearn to pick laurels, if there are ever to be any, not to rest on them.

The office crew "Ballooned" me for my birthday. It was a festive treat. A darlin' pregnant clown bedecked with more than a dozen fat balloons came to me at my typewriter and read a warm message. No one likes to get near a helium filled balloon more than I.

After work, and they had no business putting Tuesday deadline on my birthday, I felt impelled to go shopping, check out the better irregulars...try on those jeans.

And there behind the miserly fitting room curtain, I faced the truth. I don't need designer jeans until a design engineer or a carpenter makes them. Calvin Klein's going to have to face life knowing I won't be retreating with his name on my posterior. I'm simply not half what I should be. That's the bottom line.

And I couldn't handle the "Cheenos" brands or the "Sport." I settled on a sensible white blouse with which to meet this year with one leg over the threshold. And a bit of self acceptance should be something we give ourselves as we allot it to others. I'm not signing me up for a stint at the gym this year. I've been rolled over by that Nautilus for the last time.

Instead I'll use gift certificates I got from a couple household men. One is for use at my favorite restaurant. The other one invites me to a guilt-free day at a pampering beauty salon of my choice "Not to exceed $100." He's a realist. And he's looking for a free estimate. That should be the theme for people in my year, going with the best of what we are, by our own determination. I'm not the kind of girl who gives up just like that.

At the breakfast table Feb. 3 I said to the man who holds down the other end, "How do you think I've held up for a woman my age?" seeking an endorsement of course. "Damn good," he said, "considerin' the wear." That's what an Aquarius gets when she marries a Moon Child from Maine.

By Joan Pinkham

No matter how melodic the Muzak, how pleasant the girls at the check-out counter and how inviting the displays, food shopping is anything but fun these days. "It's changed a lot in just a year. I never buy a roast now," says Janet Hunt. "I hate food shopping now." Gone are the days when we raced from store to store in search of a bargain. For with gas prices so high, most of us think twice before heading out. "I only use my car to commute to my part-time job," says Janet. But the search continues for foods that are economical and yet nourishing. So, here is Ellie Arnall's way with that old, familiar

MACARONI AND CHEESE

8 oz. pkg. macaroni
1 lb. cheddar cheese [grated]
1 c. mayonnaise
1/4 c. chopped green peppers
1/4 c. chopped onions
1 can mushroom soup
1/4 c. pimiento

Cook macaroni. Grate cheese. Cook onions and pepper in water until softened. Add mayonnaise, cheese, soup and pimiento. Cook in 350 degree oven for 45 min.

And how about those electric bills? That fuel adjustment charge has sent our costs sky-rocketing and stories abound of one and two hundred dollar fees per month. This, of course, makes us think twice about using our kitchen appliances which consume about fifty percent of the average home's total electric energy demand. In many cases, the same cooking needs can be performed in a countertop skillet rather than on an electric range and doing so can save three and one-half times the electricity needed. A meal that can be prepared and served in one appliance will not only limit electric use, but save time in preparation and cleaning. The electric slow cooker turned to the low setting, uses only 2/5 of one cent per hour, less energy than a 100-watt light bulb! When using your oven, cook together dishes that cook at the same temperature for the same amount of time. Arrange pans so that they do not touch each other, or the oven walls; do not place pans directly over each other, as heat needs to circulate. Preheating isn't necessary except for pastries, cakes and souffles. Turn the oven off 5 to 10 mins. before the end of baking time, for if you don't open the door, residual heat will complete the cooking. Here is a dish that can be prepared in your electric fry pan, called

SPAGHETTI A LA CARBONARA

8 oz. thin spaghetti
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 lb. diced bacon
1 onion, sliced
1/4 lb. boiled ham, cut into strips
1/2 c. butter or margarine
1/2 c. chicken broth or white wine
4 egg yolks
1/4 c. parsley, chopped fine
1 c. grated parmesan cheese

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water. Brown bacon in fry pan. Add onions and cook until soft. Stir in ham. Add drained spaghetti to pan. Add butter to coat the spaghetti. Pour in chicken broth or wine. Remove from heat. Add the egg yolks to spaghetti. Stir quickly to blend. (The heat from the pasta will cook the yolks.) Mix in chopped parsley and cheese. Serve immediately.

Elaine of Norwell (she says she's shy about seeing her name in the paper) thinks that having to be careful with our precious energy resources may be a good lesson for us. "I think that with this conservation, there may be something left for our children." Promises of hamburg costing $2.59 a pound this summer has Susan Humberd searching out ways to eliminate meat from many a meal. Her husband and three sons enjoy spaghetti sauce with lentils in place of meat and when she makes their favorite chili, she doubles the recipe, but uses only one pound of hamburg. Here's an old-fashioned dish that should brighten your Saturday night:

PROVINCETOWN CREAMED CODFISH

1/2 lb. salt codfish
2 T butter or margarine
2 T flour
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 c. milk
Dash of Tabasco sauce
1 egg, beaten

Cut codfish into 1/4" slices across grain. Soak in lukewarm water overnight to draw out salt and soften fish. Drain. Simmer in fresh water 10 min. Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Add flour and pepper. Blend well. Add milk gradually. Cook until thickened. Add Tobasco, if desired. Pour small amount of cream sauce into beaten egg, stirring constantly. Add drained codfish and mix lightly. Serve on toast or with mashed, baked or fried potatoes. Serves 4.

TRASH MASHER — Wonder how many retainers or other valuable items may be in the heaps of trash at the town landfill? Well there's one less today.

A new kind of dump picker

By Karin Bartow

What would drive more than one grown woman to hunt through the trash at the dump, competing with aggressive seagulls and contending with strangers' stares?

A small plastic piece of dental hardware called a retainer, that's what.

Fifth graders wear them, wrap them in napkins when eating lunch and throw them away with unintended regularity.

Marie McCarthy was driven to search for her daughter Rebecca's thrown-away retainer recently. "It was the challenge of the hunt," she says. "I kept thinking, if Sue Jackson can do it, so can I. Competition came into play."

Rebecca, 10, wrapped her retainer up in a napkin during lunch at the Deer Hill School because the sight of it made her girlfriend sick. Unfortunately, she threw the napkin out with her brown lunch bag. When Marie arrived at school that afternoon, principal Ken Ekberg told her that the lunchroom trash had already gone to the dump with the leftovers from the other schools. He said that Sue Jackson found her son's retainer last year under similar circumstances and maybe she ought to go to the dump and look for it.

After an hour's search at the dump that first afternoon, Marie hadn't found the missing mouth piece, but she made some interesting discoveries about our children's eating habits.

Only high school students drink chocolate milk; kids don't eat bananas, raisins or spinach; and one-in-ten throws away a piece of silverware. The Osgood School uses plastic and aluminum trays, Deer Hill uses paper ones, and the high school uses none.

In a non-binding referendum

Cohasset to vote on gambling

Cohasset residents will have a chance to vote for or against casino gambling in the annual town election April 11.

Arthur Clark, chairman of the board of selectmen, confirmed this week that the nonbinding referendum question will be on the ballot by citizen petition.

Maria Plante, one of the leaders of the Group Against Gambling (GAG) still hasn't tallied all the petitions circulating about the community. She was called Monday by someone who refused to sign the petition against casino gambling.

"Now they want to sign it and they want all their friends to have a chance to sign it too," Mrs. Plante said.

She said the volume of publicity about the issue is helping people understand the problem. Only a few people refused to sign the petition the first time around.

"What worries me is that I see Massachusetts following the same pattern as Atlantic City. The people who are for it are saying all the same things."

So far Gov. Edward King hasn't been answering letters sent to him by GAG members, Mrs. Plante said. She pointed out that he met last summer with officials of MGM, the company that plans to purchase the Hall Estate in Hull as a casino site.

Lt. Gov. Thomas O'Neill will be leading the anti-gambling forces on a television debate on Miller's Court Monday, Feb. 23.

John McNabb of Cohasset will be on the show as an audience participant on the anti-gambling side. Ray Kasperowicz of Cohasset is taking the pro-casino viewpoint for the show.

Mrs. Plante said letters from State Sen. Dennis McKenna, who is on the Government Regulations Committee, only talk about the revenue the casino will bring in.

"This is exactly how they got it through in Atlantic City," she said.

She said people are already involved in land speculation in Hull because of the possibility of a casino.

According to a fact sheet put out by O'Neill's office "While Atlantic City now has a lower unemployment rate than it did in 1977 and while a net of 7,000 additional jobs were created (by six casinos), the number of unemployed was only reduced by 700, leaving 3,500 people still without

Pratt Library closed Tuesdays

The Paul Pratt Memorial Library will be closed on Tuesdays next year unless something happens to alter the rules of Proposition 2½.

Sheila Evans, chairman of the board of trustees, said the hope is that extra money may come into the town and the library could benefit.

"All the indications are that that is unlikely," she said.

The trustees plan to cut the working hours of the staff. One part time librarian will be laid off. Six workers will have a work week reduction.

"The staff told us they would rather see everyone's hours reduced rather than have another librarian laid off," Mrs. Evans said.

The library fine remains at two cents a day. The same rate as the day the library opened back in 1879, according to Richard Hayes, library director.

He said the trustee's don't plan to fundraise to try to fill in the money lost due to 2½.

Along with the Tuesday closing, the library will close one hour earlier on Saturday. And funds to purchase new materials will be decreased.

Of course the Friends of the Library will still be doing their work of fundraising and helping the staff with volunteer workers.

The trustees want to meet with the full advisory board to discuss the budget.

The reduction in library time on Tuesday, which is now a 12 hour day, and Saturday cuts the library hours by 22 percent.

"It's unfortunate," Mrs. Evans said.

Just last week the trustees voted to get rid of a Mariner picture board in the lobby. Hayes said the sale of glossy photos, already used in the Mariner, had brought in $15 during the month it was there.

He said he received a complaint call from an Mirror editor about the board. He offered to sell old Mirror photos on the same board but the Mirror sells those itself.

The Mariner photos were being sold for 25 cents a piece with the money going to the library.

Mrs. Evans explained that the board violated a rule set up by the trustees when the renovations were completed in 1979. That rule was that lobby space would only be allocated for library exhibits.

$3,195 raised for fire victim

Marion Douglas has good friends

By Patricia Desmond

Donna Hebert, captain of Cohasset Auto Body softball team, broke down in tears.

Charlene Jones, captain of the Cohasset Tigerettes, yelled with joy.

They aren't on the baseball field this time of year and they both are winners.

Still the people in the darkened room at the Scituate VFW kept dancing to the one-man rock band.

The event, a benefit dinner dance for Marion Douglas, was a success. With all the donations of time and materials, the two softball teams netted $3,195 for Marion, who is still hospitalized.

She was burned about two months ago as she tended to a fire in her wood stove.

Insurance will pay much of the cost of her medical bills. But the money is for the needed extras, the things insurance doesn't pay.

And the mother of four will be out of work for quite some time, Donna pointed out.

Marion played softball for the Tigerettes. The other team didn't even play in the same league. But Donna had gone to school with Marion's sisters and she and her teammates wanted to do something to help after the accident.

From 4 p.m. Sunday until late in the night, dancers moved to Jimo's music. Raffles on donated goods and the buffet lasted through the evening.

There were two tables full of goods to be raffled. Donna won six prizes, having spent $15 on chances.

She gave away a teddy bear and a handmade baby quilt to a girl who is pregnant.

Among the other prizes were a turkey from the A & P, two watches from King Jewelers, embroidered pillows, vests, a wall clock from Cohasset Hardware, a tile table from Remick's Hardware, brunch for two at PJ's, assorted liquor, gift certificates from Diane's Hair Design.

Jimo, who's from Scituate, played eight hours, donating his time and talent. Singing with a smooth rock sound.

The event was a collage of donations. The bartenders were volunteers. Food for the buffet was

Cohasset's week

Keep well clinics

The first Keep Well Clinic will be held Thursday, Feb. 19 from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the 60 plus luncheon at the Unitarian Parish House.

The second Keep Well Clinic will be held Wednesday, Feb. 25, 10 a.m. to noon at Harbor View on Elm Street.

At both clinics there will be nurses and a volunteer to weigh, give urine tests, blood pressure and health consultations.

The Social Service League of Cohasset at 83 South Main Street has office hours Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays 8-9 a.m. and 12-1 p.m. One may stop by at these hours for health consultation and blood pressure. Please call the office for appointment for lead testing and counseling for the elderly and their families, 383-0771 or 383-0821.

Early release day

Thursday, Feb. 26, will be an early release day in the Cohasset Junior/Senior High School. Students will be dismissed at 12:10 p.m. and buses will leave the High School at 12:20 p.m.

Lunches will be served at the High School.

This early release day has been authorized by the Cohasset School Committee to allow the staff at the Junior/Senior High School to continue work on their self-evaluation program.

Salt content high

The state says the town water is borderline in the degree of its sodium content.

All water department customers would be notified if the sodium content went above .20. In the past year the state tests have indicated sodium levels of 18, .20, .16 and .17, according to a letter sent to the selectmen.

Mooring costs

Charles Fink, chairman of the harbor study committee, is still negotiating with Scituate officials over excise tax money which the towns will split due to state law.

Cohasset selectmen aren't sure whether they will need a special fund for the account since state law requires it be spent on the waterways.

About 600 boats in Cohasset Harbor pay their excise tax to Scituate. Scituate officials will go along with the split but they want $5 per boat for administrative costs.

The Cohasset selectmen think Scituate should pay some of their administrative costs too.

Wigmore resigns

Stephen Wigmore, wiring inspector, resigned from the dump study committee because his busy schedule no longer permits time for duties on the committee.

Border street parking

Long ago Border Street was widened on paper.

Selectmen want to use some of that publicly owned land for parking. Both Police Chief John DeBassio and Building Inspector James Litchfield will assist the board in getting the space ready.

Right now cars are parked on the town-owned land and lobster pots are stored there.

Taxi fees up

Like other fees in town, taxi fees are going up. It used to cost $1 for a taxi license. From now on the fee will be $15 a year. There are only two taxis in town so the net revenue will be small.

THE BMW 528i.
IN AN AGE OF LOWERED AUTOMOTIVE EXPECTATIONS BMW OFFERS HEIGHTENED PERFORMANCE.

Alas, all too often safety regulations and environmental controls have resulted in cars that are socially enlightened, but emotionally dead.

Yet, while the 528i (with standard transmission) delivers [18] EPA estimated miles per gallon, 30 estimated highway mileage and, based on these figures, an estimated miles per gallon range of [295] miles and a highway range of 492 miles, it also delivers the sort of extraordinary performance that one associates only with a sports car.

(Naturally our fuel efficiency figures are for comparison purposes only. Your actual mileage and range may vary, depending on speed, weather and trip length. Your actual highway mileage and highway range will most likely be lower.)

If the thought of owning a BMW 528i intrigues you, contact us to arrange a test drive at your convenience.

New dump picker

Everyone in the McCarthy house was upset that night. Rebecca felt terrible and volunteered to earn the $50 that it would cost to replace her retainer. Marie was trying to figure out $50 worth of jobs to give her. Rebecca's dad Terry McCarthy, was keeping his thoughts to himself.

Marie went back to the dump the next morning armed with new evidence. Rebecca remembered that she threw away her apple core separately and so Marie began searching all over again for a brown paper bag without an apple core inside!

She finally located the retainer and was so elated that she shared her moment of triumph with a man at the dump. "He said to me, what if it's not yours?" Well, it was, spoilsport.

Sue Jackson searched for her son Robbie's missing retainer last year after dump hours and was constantly looking over her shoulder for the police. It unnerved her to be digging through the trash when the gate was locked.

"I went through fifteen bags of trash before I found his retainer. I also found 48 uneaten oranges, $.35 and twelve forks!" Retainers are doubly hard to find because their color is neutral-like and they're small, and also because their owners hide them in napkins when they eat lunch. This year Robbie is in braces and, says Sue, "If they go, he goes with them."

Peter Kasperowicz, another fifth grade retainer wearer, wrapped his up in a napkin at the Crystal Palace restaurant at Disneyworld, during a recent vacation with his family. His mother says he was very happy it was gone, but she was happier the next morning when the restaurant called to say they'd found it.

Instead of forming a support group for other would-be parents of children with lost retainers ladies, why not try to raise children's consciousness of retainers so they won't be repelled by them at the lunch table? Equal rights for plastic retainers will get them out of the napkins!

"This means most of the jobs went to people who moved in from outside Atlantic City. Hull currently has 300 out of work.

"Atlantic City's tax rate has been cut in half but valuation of property has quintupled. Property taxes have increased by 50 percent since 1977."

Crime increased by 80 percent since the casinos opened there. It has the fastest growing crime rate in the country. A number of public officials who worked to get the New Jersey legislation through have gone to work for the casino industry.

The fact sheet lists 16 arguments against casinos including:

— Street crime goes up with loan sharks, hookers and thieves being attracted to the area.

— Organized crime comes in. O'Neill says the first three casinos to open in Atlantic City were alleged to have ties to organized crime. His source is "The Company that Bought the Boardwalk" by Gigi Mahon.

— Permanent jobs are mostly the low paying, unskilled type like waiters or bellhops.

— Land speculation begins.

— Pressure is placed on government to relax its regulations to promote gambling to increase its share of revenues.

— Fortune seekers are attracted to the community.

— Parking and traffic problems are created.

— Those who can least afford it gamble.

— Lifestyle is altered.

— Constant scandals happen involving bribes, skimming etc.

made by members of the two softball teams.

"We reached our goal by 5 p.m.," Charlene said. "We never expected this."

The original goal was $2,500.

"People came from out of nowhere to help. Most of them didn't even know Marion."

The benefit was put together in five weeks as a way of showing Marion they cared. Because of her condition Marion has not been able to receive visitors outside of her close relatives.

Donna said Marion's parents went to the hospital during the benefit and found her condition much the same. She said they don't expect she'll be released from the hospital for at least another month.

"Her spirits are up," Donna said. "She knows alot of people are really pulling for her and that's half the battle."

For the time, Marion's parents are caring for the four children.

"People have been incredible," Charlene said. "This all began because we wanted to do something. And we couldn't visit her. We couldn't even send flowers.

"We never expected people would be this great."

At the Arts Center

At the South Shore Art Center space is still available in all classes but enrollments must be made in advance in order to participate in the term starting the week of Feb. 23.

Photography, calligraphy, painting and drawing plus children's art and photo workshops are offered in a eight-week term for beginners, intermediate and advanced levels.

Cohasset through the years

(Editor's Note: The following piece was sent to us by Frank O'Leary, the proud grandfather of the author. The author happens to be a 15 year-old sophomore at CHS.)

By Brian O'Leary

Cohasset was discovered by John Smith in 1614.

He learned from the Indians that it was called Quonahassit meaning a long rocky place. Smith disliked the Indian name and proposed the name New London.

Before 1700 Cohasset had few settlers, at most six homesteaders.

By 1717 Hingham made it a precinct. The school, the church and the meetinghouse were located in Hingham. Families had difficulty reaching these places.

In 1715 the Massachuseets General Court gave Cohasset permission to build a meeting house, which was also used as a church. A minister was paid 30 shillings to come from Cambridge. On December 3, 1721 the first pastor was elected... Nehemiah Pratt.

The school, at the meeting house, was only open three months a year. In the late 1700's the schools were located in the center of town, the north end, the west end and Beechwood.

In 1770 Cohasset became a town.

The Revolutionary War created a great fear in Cohasset. Cohasset people participated in the Boston Tea Party. When news of Lexington and Concord reached Cohasset nearly all the men joined the Cohasset Militia. One of General George Washington's aides was J. Hall of Cohasset.

Ninety-four men from Cohasset served in the War of 1812. In July of 1814 a British man-of-war was ordered to destroy the town and burn all the shipping.

Col. Lothrop rode through the town warning the citizens. By 11 a.m. that day two companies from Hingham, two from Weymouth, one artillery unit from Hanover, one from Randolph and the Hingham Riflemen, 600 strong, surrounded the harbor.

The man-of-war was recalled.

The shipbuilding industry began in town in 1708 with George Wilson and Joseph Souther. But the industry didn't go fullscale until 1811. Between 1811 and 1813, 27 ships were built ranging in weight from 21 to 98 tons.

In 1833 Jonathan Bates began building schooners and two masted ships called brigs.

The fame of the town shipyards grew and contracts came from as far away as Philadelphia. The largest ship built was the Greenwich. It had two decks, was 160 feet long and weighed 788 tons. The last ship built by a major shipyard in Cohasset was built in 1883.

Cohasset has had its share of ship wrecks. Many happened before construction of Minot's Light. The lighthouse, built of steel, was begun in 1847 and finished in 1849. It was destroyed in 1951. A replacement was erected of Quincy granite, 3,514 tons of it in 1,079 separate blocks. The project cost $300,000.

The worst wreck was the St. John from Galway, Ireland. In 1849 the ship went down — 99 people were lost and 22 saved.

In the twenties Jerusalem Road became the main street for the wealthy for summer vacations.

During the twenties Cohasset was a perfect place for smuggling rum. This caused a great uproar among the residents and led to the establishment of the first police force.

Editorials

Being heard

The anti-gambling forces don't believe there is a silent majority hiding away waiting for the day they can gamble near home.

Neither do we.

We think the referendum question on casino gambling is a great idea. It gives the majority of Cohasset residents a chance to make their view well known.

And the timing of the question, on the April 11 ballot, will give the legislature a good strong prodding right at a time when some members of the General Court may be about ready to sneak the bill through.

We apologize if they weren't thinking of the quiet play.

It should also serve to quiet those politicians who continually refer to the 1977 referendum in Hull as a plebescite on the issue.

We believe in democracy. We also believe a casino anywhere in the state is a state-wide issue rather than something that should be decreed by home rule.

We expect the people of Cohasset will vote overwhelmingly against casino gambling. And if the people should surprise us, we promise to be quiet. When the problem creeps in, we'll only whisper. we told you so.

Bouquet for gymnasts

Congratulations to the Cohasset girls gymnastic team. They tied for first place in the South Shore League.

Judy Henry, the coach, deserves strong applause for her first season's effort.

Parents of the team members have been saying the girls haven't been getting their fair share of praise. The team requires long hours of practice.

Gymnastics is an athletic endeavor requiring more than the other winter sports. Did you ever see poise on the hockey rink?

The league meet last Wednesday was the last of the season for the Skippers. Karen Eckberg, a sophomore, won the all around title.

Sue McMahon won both the beam and floor exercises.

Coach Henry said after the meet her girls are still young, still learning. She hopes they get support from the community for their gym show, now scheduled tentatively for March 12.

One of the parents said we should have more good news about the kids. We agree. That's the main reason we are backing a new column put together by Nancy Sandell of the Cohasset Communications Council. It starts today.

Doherty is new CCC program director

Laura Doherty of Cedar Acres Lane is the new program director for Cohasset Community Center.

Laura's educational background is in the teaching field but she has been working in journalism for the past few years.

"Most of my jobs have been lonely jobs," she said as she explained what she likes about her new position.

"When you're a teacher or a writer, you're basically alone while you work. This is my first job really working with people."

She and her husband, Jack, have been actively involved in the center on a volunteer level for the past four years.

"This is a very positive job," she said.

Her duties include tasks like renting the third floor apartment — now available; handling publicity; scheduling courses, and coming up with new activities.

She said the course in Chinese cooking offered by the center is waiting to begin when enough people apply.

"We hold courses open if enrollment is too low," she explained.

She's also busy working on plans for a bus trip to the flower show next month.

New League guide outlines government

The League of Women Voters of Cohasset announces the publication of You're in the Driver's Seat — A Guide to Massachusetts Government, a comprehensive workbook/text on state government for high school students.

The book is the result of a joint effort by the LWV Lotte E. Scharfman Memorial Fund and the Massachusetts Teachers Association and fills a critical need for curriculum material on this subject.

Barbara Bliss, President of the LWV of Cohasset, explains that the book is different from the standard civics text in several important ways. First, the book combines the usual presentation of the three branches of government with information about the realities of the political process. Second, the book requires students to learn how to find out about government on their own. And it emphasizes the possibilities for citizen involvement in government.

"The League of Women Voters of Cohasset will be working with other Leagues across the state to encourage the teaching of state government through the use of this innovative text," said Mrs. Bliss.

Selectmen briefs...

Smith decision upheld

The state civil service commission backed the selectmen for a second time in the case of former Patrolman Doug Smith. The Commission agreed with the decision to terminate the officer after Smith was accused of off-duty assault.

The matter may now go back to Boston Municipal Court. Last year a judge in that court sent the issue back to Civil Service when Smith's attorney claimed new evidence.

Laugelle complaint

Selectman Rocco Laugelle wants the Cohasset Mirror to stop throwing newspapers on lawns throughout the town.

Laugelle brought the matter up last week at the regular board meeting. Mirror Reporter Fred Hanson referred the selectman to Roger Miles, the paper's publisher. Hanson pointed out that it is illegal to put the paper in mailboxes since it is not mailed.

Nix Hull bills

The selectmen rejected bills from Hull for past work done on property the two towns own together.

The bill was $4,190. Arthur Clark, chairman of the Cohasset selectmen, said they have no plans to pay it. The board is considering a request for funds to combat the problem of midges at Straits Pond.

Log video request

The selectmen are thinking over a request from the Log and Line for a license to install a video game machine. They want more information before making the decision.

Spiritual singer delights at Deer Hill

Black spiritual singer Jeanette Miller, packed a thirty minute performance for the students of Deer Hill School last Thursday with history, song and her own spirituality.

"Sit back, open your eyes, ears and hearts and minds and you will get something from this," she told the students who filled the gym floor.

She explained that she discovered the spirit of the slaves as portrayed in their songs in her own search for dealing with an illness that she was told she would never recover from. She shifted from a soft, low speaking voice to a free, moving soprano in presenting three types of spirituals — slow songs, that tell a story; those that evoke a choral response; and songs to clap and swing with.

"Oh Freedom," she told the audience, "is how the slaves felt about being free." The lyrics, "Before I'd be a slave, I'd be buried in my grave" could echo the sentiments of anyone, including the students, she said, who has felt the need to be free.

Because slaves weren't allowed to gather and speak to one another, they communicated by song and the singing of "Gospel Train" might have meant that someone was going to escape on the underground railway or "Go Down Moses" could let slaves know that Harriet Tubman was in town. The noise of songs like "Joshua Fit the Battle of Jericho" helped them get through their long hours of work.

A total of 450 spirituals were handed down from generation to generation by the time slavery ended, Mrs. Miller explained.

"There will be no more," she added. They tell a special story of faith and intensity of purpose and their spirituality transcends all generations.

Mrs. Miller's program was also presented to the Osgood School students.

SINGING THE BLUES — Cliff Scott, 9, a Grade 4 student at Deer Hill listens to the sad sounding songs of Jeanette Miller, a black spiritual singer who performed from the collection handed down in the days of slavery during a program for black history month. (Derr Photos)

Beale Fund grows

Bob Beale would be working on a shrimp boat off the coast of Florida today but for a tragic auto pedestrian accident in Cape Canaveral.

The 19-year-old Cohasset High School graduate now lies in a coma far from his friends and family.

A group of local residents formed a committee this week which wants to bring him back to the area. They are working to raise $6,277 to bring him back by air ambulance.

Bob is the son of Jean Beale of South Main St. Once back in the area he would be a patient at an acute care hospital like New England Medical Center.

A 1980 graduate of Cohasset High School, Bob is well known all over the South Shore for his agility and talent, on the ice as a hockey player, as well as on the football field. Unfortunately his promising sports career was shortened by another brush with death in an automobile accident two years ago.

"Our only purpose is to bring him home. There is no insurance to cover the price of this trip," said Sally Woods, one of the committee members.

There will be a door-to-door campaign on Saturday, Feb. 28 and Sunday, March 1.

School kids will act as collectors. Lions Club is supporting the campaign and they will ask support from other businesses, churches, etc. The wind-up will take place March 1 from noon on at the Lothrop House where they'll tally up what is collected.

"There's a good chance that he can recover...with this type of injury, he will need the stimulation of his family and friends who love him. We really care," Sally said.

Donations may be left at the Rockland Trust Company, Cushing Plaza, Route 3A, c/of the Bobby Beale Fund. Or people may call Sally Woods, 383-1632, Fred Woods at Peterson Real Estate, 383-1900, or Agnes Froio, 383-9086.

New CCC offerings

The Cohasset Community Center is offering a variety of courses in the upcoming program schedule.

Workshops, with space still available, include: needlepoint plaid, the technique for making beautiful plaids in needlepoint, Tuesday, Feb. 24, from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m.; textured star, another patchwork classic for making wall hangings or pillows, Wednesday, Feb. 25, from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m.; a fitness clinic on Wednesday, March 4, from 10 until 11 a.m.; and crazy quilt for making a placemat, potholder or pillow Friday, March 6, from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m.

The cost for all courses except the clinic is $6. The clinic is $3. More information is available at the center, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. at 383-0088.

around town

☐Pamela J. Gunville of Cohasset has been named to the Dean's List for the first semester at the University of Southern Maine.

☐John Campbell was recently promoted to assistant director of individual pension plan underwriting and services at the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company in Boston.

☐Al Weisenfluh, who steps down as assessor on March 1, has, as he calls it, a "pipe dream" regarding the race for his unexpired two year term. He would like to organize a real old-fashioned, tough question debate between candidates for assessor. The first thing that would have to happen is that three people would have to run and second, they would have to be convinced to be involved in a debate (Al would do the convincing).

He'd get the biggest house in town, offer sherry, and be moderator. The audience could ask questions and the candidates would debate. It would be fun and we hope it isn't just a pipe dream. We also hope that some new faces will take out nomination papers! (Papers cannot be obtained for an unexpired term until after the office holder steps down. Accordingly, candidates interested in Weisenfluh's seat could take out nomination papers from March 1 through the sixth.)

☐Birthday party groupies Mary O'Brien, Marie Price, Joyce Hoffman, Doris Lahage, Pat Bowen, Carol Young, Rita Durkin and birthday girls, Irene Brown and Josephine DiGirolamo went home with aching ribs after Friday's party. They laughed the night away over Nancy Anderson stories, which they would not share with the press. Their cake had something to do with "Routes." Doris Lahage gets toasted next in honor of her 50th on March 7.

☐Belated birthday wishes to Mary Brennock!

☐Arne Gjesteby of Old Pasture Road, a native of Norway, has a younger sister who is gaining prominence in the Norwegian government. Thirty-three year old Kari Gjesteby was appointed to the position of Minister of the Environment. She was formerly the under secretary of finance and also held the same position in the department of education. She was chairman of the Nordic Ministers of Culture which endeavored toward a joint communications satellite for Nordic countries and is a graduate of the top Norwegian business school.

☐Joyce MacDonald, another old Pasture Road resident, was tattled on by three friends who attended her and husband Jack's recent party celebrating the return of the hostages. She surprised everyone with a yellow jogging suit appropriate for summer running!

A FRIEND CAN KEEP YOU WARM — Katie Brown, 4, and Mindy Cheel, 4, hug against the cold as they play outside the Community Center Nursery School. (Derr Photo)

☐Nancy DiGirolamo, a senior student majoring in interior design at Lasell Junior College in Newton, has earned a place on the Dean's List for academic achievement for the first semester.

☐Providence College students named to the Dean's List for the fall semester are Lisa Deignan of Old Coach Road, a health service administration major in the class of '82; Mary Farrell of Deep Run, a psychology major in the class of '82; and Lisa McCarthy of Bancroft Road, a social work major graduating in 1980.

☐Another academic achiever is Karen Casey, freshman at Regis College, Weston, who was named to the Dean's List there.

Raffle tickets for the "Josiah Jitney" may be purchased in Cohasset Village at Cookworks and In Stitches; at the Quincy Cooperative Bank (Route 3A) on Fridays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10 a. m. to 2 p.m.; and from members and friends of the Cohasset Historial Society.

The one-half scale gas powered Model T Ford has been donated to the raffle by the Quincy Cooperative Bank for the benefit of historic houses in Cohasset, Hanover, Braintree and Scituate.

For more information or tickets, you may also call Cohasset Historical Society President, Connie Parker, at 383-0773.

☐A former Cohasset resident, Bill Weeden, was honored recently by the National Academy of Concert and Cabaret Artists at its first annual awards ceremony in Town Hall Theatre, New York City. Weeden and partners, Finkle and Fay, were judged the best comedy group of 1980.

Cookworks

Larry Fone is the purveyor of epicurean implements and knowledge in Cohasset Village.

In other words, Larry runs Cookworks at 25 South Main St., a shop for the serious cook.

Larry provides an extraordinary amount of personal service for his customers. Local delivery. Special orders. Bulk coffee ground to order.

He goes so far as to research recipes without charge.

"Someone will come in and say, 'My grandmother used to make...' and they'll tell me what they though it was called and a few ingredients like raisins and cream cheese," he says.

Larry says he usually has good luck finding the right recipe. He has more than 400 cookbooks and when his books don't have the right dish, he'll call on other people in town who have their own cooking libraries.

He recommends caterers. He does interior design for kitchens from the color scheme to architectural drawings and sketches.

His shop has been open for six years now.

Larry says this is the season when he sells home entertainment items.

"People stay home more. They might have steak and a super salad, a molded salad." Larry provides the molds.

As far as seasonal selling goes, spring and summer is the time people seem to buy copperware. Larry says that's because it's time for showers and weddings.

Woks are in season all year long. In the winter people buy them for the chance to experiment with foods. In the summer, they sell in a big way because they provide instant cooking.

"They don't heat up a kitchen," Larry explains.

Sounds like something a less serious cook could be interested in.

Senior citizens who live in Cohasset are eligible for a 10 percent discount.

Cohasset in 1941

Cohasset was changed on the map back in 1941 as the federal government began to gear up for World War II.

The Navy took one-sixth of the area of the town to expand the Hingham Ammunition Depot. Beechwood Street was dead-ended, a half mile being taken by the government. Two miles of Doane Street was taken, dead-ending it too.

Several families were relocated and the back ways to Hingham and Norwell were cut-off.

It's easier to pay your bills by phone.

And we'll give you 10 bills to prove it.

That's right, $10.

Just for paying one of your bills by phone.

That's how convinced we are that you'll find Pay by Phone easier, faster and safer than paying your bills any other way.

In addition, you'll save the cost of a postage stamp on each bill you'd normally pay by mail. Plus all that time you don't have to spend writing and mailing checks.

What's more you can pay one bill or many with the same phone call. And that call is toll-free.

It's easy to keep track of bills, too. Each month we'll list all the bills you've paid by phone on your regular checking account statement. Your receipt for each call includes the amounts and names of the merchants paid.

It's such a simple, foolproof system, it's no wonder thousands of people in Massachusetts use Pay by Phone to pay their monthly bills. Now we'd like to pay you something to join them.

How to get your 10 bills.

It couldn't be easier.

Just list at least six merchants (department stores, utilities, credit cards, doctors, etc.) whom you pay regularly on the coupon at right.

Then bring it to any of our offices and open a checking account. If you already have a checking account, just tell us to add Pay by Phone service to it.

As soon as you pay your first bill by phone we'll automatically deposit $10 to your account.*

Sound like a good deal? Then start listing those merchants now. After all you've got to pay your bills anyway. So why not start paying them by phone and start out $10 ahead?

Yes, I'd like to see how easy it is to pay my bills by phone. I have listed at least six merchants I'd like to be able to pay. I understand that I need pay only one merchant to qualify for a $10.00 deposit to my account.

A birth on King Street

By Patricia Desmond

WAITING FOR THE DAY — Kate Caldwell and her three-year-old son, Nathan, wait happily at their King Street home for the arrival of the next Caldwell child.

A baby will be born at 433 King St. in May.

The child will be the second for Kate and Bill Caldwell.

Kate, like most pregnant women, is spending time these days getting ready for the birthing. One of the more important items on her schedule is relaxation.

Now it's hardly a simple matter for the mother of a three-and-a-half year-old to take a nap or otherwise relax. And, Nate, her first-born child is a very normal young boy, full of energy and enthusiasm.

"It's very important to relax for awhile every day," Kate said. Nearby Nate knocked a ball about the kitchen floor with a plastic croquet mallet.

Outside the kitchen window, a lovely Lily Pond with its frozen reaches was still. A neat contrast to the activity of the Caldwell kitchen.

Kate works as a childbirth educator and labor coach. She runs courses for prospective parents with the help of another Cohasset woman, Elizabeth Durant.

The courses she offers on home birth are sometimes selected by parents planning a hospital birth. Indeed one of the lessons in the course is to plan a hospital birth. The plan includes details on what the parents would expect from their doctor and the hospital staff in the event some complication makes a hospital birth necessary.

"Home birth is only for the low risk population," Kate said. "I was seven months pregnant with Nate before I found a doctor who would give me backup."

That doctor didn't come to Nate's birth at the couple's home in Cambridge. He was available in case he was needed. Two midwives assisted at the birth.

Kate said she is planning to use the same doctor and midwives for this birth.

"It is hard to find a doctor but it's possible," Kate said. "We leave it up to the parents to make their own arrangments. But I know people on the South Shore who have had a doctor at their home for a birth."

Her current childbirth class has six couples. One couple is planning a hospital birth.

"And you know at least one other couple will end up with a hospital birth because of complications," she said.

The complications can be something as common as a long labor. Kate said she watched a birth at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth recently that she had planned to watch in the couple's home.

"They were really good at South Shore," Kate said. "You know someplaces they would have had the attitude that 'well, you've failed' but they were very supportive.

"They asked what we wanted and they let her try to labor in the birthing room."

That labor — which lasted through the night at the hospital — had been going badly as Kate puts it. It was taking far longer than it should have and the woman was overdue to begin with. The next morning the baby was born by Caesarean section.

Kate became interested in the idea of a home birth because she wanted to keep control of what was happening to her.

"At first my husband didn't like the idea. So we took a course to learn more. I found out it wasn't as safe as I had thought and he found out it wasn't as dangerous as he had thought."

She said the statistics for home birth safety are very good but part of that is due to the women involved. Women who are appropriate candidates for home birth are the least likely to develop trouble. Most physicians want a woman planning a home birth to be under 30 and the mother of one child already. With the decrease in the birth rate and the delays in beginning families, women like that are scarce. But other women still manage to find help.

Kate says she thinks a candidate for a home birth should be healthy, with all signs of a good pregnancy (meaning no complications at that stage) and she should be resting and eating well throughout gestation.

"She should be well rested when she goes into labor."

She said the hospitals don't have such a select group of mothers so the statistics are weighted toward home birth.

Do some parents seek out a home birth because of the expenses of hospital deliveries?

Kate says some people consider it but when it's the prime factor she and others in Homebirth Inc. of Boston try to dissuade them.

"There's a lot of responsibility involved in a home birth," she said. "Doctors and hospitals are willing to take time payments from people who can't afford the charges.

"I've heard of doctors who've offered to cut their fee for a parent thinking of a home birth because of the money."

By now Nate was sitting in Kate's already full lap, talking about his goldfish that swims on the kitchen shelf.

"I think hospitals are changing," Kate said. "They're learning from parents what they want."

SALAD BAR DAILY

Rev. Douglas at Nazarene Church

The Dana Douglas family of Saugus will present services at Cohasset Community Church of the Nazarene, at Spring House Parsonage, 258 Rockland St., Hingham, Thursday through Sunday, Feb. 19-22.

The series will begin with a concert Thursday at 7:30 p.m., including gospel and country western music with Rev. Douglas, on the guitar, his son, Robert on flute, oboe, recorder and fife and son Dion on guitar and bass guitar.

Youth activities will begin Friday at 4 p.m. with games, a brown bag lunch, songs and talk by Rev. Douglas. Adults will join the group at 7:30 for a talk, "Parents, Meet Your Children."

The service Saturday will be at 7:30 p.m. On Sunday services are at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m., with messages "Why We Should be Christians." Music at all services will be by the Douglas family.

Rev. Douglas is the son of a pastor, the Rev. George Douglas, secretary of the New England Nazarene District and former pastor of the former Granite Nazarene Church, South Quincy. But he served as a layman car mechanic and machinist for 12 years before beginning theological studies at Nazarene Bible College, Colorado Springs.

The Cohasset Community Church of the Nazarene was started in 1979 holding services in Pope Memorial Church and the Nantasket Library. Last fall the church moved to the Spring House on Rockland Street. The Rev. Robert Weiss is minister in residence. Pastor is the Rev. J. Scott Newell Jr. of North Weymouth. Rev. Mr. Weiss and Rev. Hoy Richards of North Weymouth are assistants.

Engagement

Epstein — Weinberg

Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Epstein of Natick announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith, to Neal G. Weinberg of Northampton. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Weinberg of Springfield.

Miss Epstein, a former community editor of the Cohasset Mariner, is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst and holds a masters degree in library science from Simmons College. She is library director for the Springfield Newspapers.

CHS NEWS

drama competition...calendar

The Mariner is introducing a new column focusing on weekly events at the Cohasset High School.

Its purpose is to keep parents, students and the community aware of what is happening, where it is happening, and when it is happening at the junior-senior high. Hopefully, this will encourage more participation and interest in the school, and the events taking place.

We hope to provide advance publicity on such things as: sports tryout times and dates, sports events, dances, concerts, plays, speakers, Communication Council meetings, exam schedules, report card days, Student Council elections, foreign student opportunities, committee meetings, club meetings, banquets, alternative school functions, and everything else that has a time and date.

In addition, we will report interesting news pertaining to the junior-senior high school. There are many exciting events happening at the high school, and we will welcome everyone's help in publicizing them.

SCHOOL CALENDAR

Thursday, Feb. 19, vacation.
Friday, Feb. 20, vaction.
Monday, Feb. 23, school begins.
Thursday, Feb. 26, early release day.
Saturday, Feb. 28, regional drama competition at Cohasset High, 10 a.m. Cohasset's performance, 3 p.m. Hold Me! by Jules Feiffer.

FRENCH HORN WINNER

Congratulations to the multi-talented Ted Durant for being selected to the Massachusetts All State Orchestra. Ted's audition score proved him to be one of the top five French horn players of all high school players in the state of Massachusetts!

REGIONAL DRAMA COMPETITION

Cohasset High will host this year's regional drama competition. the students will be performing Hold Me! by Jules Feiffer, directed by Ron Emmons.

The cast includes: Gerry White, Caroline Wampole, Caroline Bonnar, Lindsay Gilmore, Cathleen Collins, Tim Libby, Pat Duffy, and Missy Barcomb. The stage manager is Leslie Collins. The festival will begin on Saturday, Feb. 28 at 10 a.m., with Cohasset's performance at 3 p.m. Everyone is invited to watch these students in their performance — so — parents, families, students, faculty, brothers and sisters, come ahead!

JAZZ ROCK ENSEMBLE HEADS FOR THE TOP!

Under the direction of Jeff Dodge, the Cohasset High School Jazz-Rock Ensemble has begun another ambitious season of music-making. The Jazz Ensemble kicked off the year on Feb. 6, at the Norwood Jazz Festival. The judges at the competition selected Jon Durant as the most outstanding of all the rhythm players.

The students in the ensemble went on to win the third place award in the Southeast District Jazz competition. At this event, Cathy O'Brien on alto saxophone, Mike Birmann on trumpet, and Jon Durant on guitar, were designated as Cohasset's most valuable players.

Mr. Dodge would like to thank the band members for an exciting and outstanding performance.

Using their experience, talents and enthusiasm, these musicians are making the Jazz-Rock Ensemble a sure success. Plans are being made for several public appearances, including a joint performance with Mr. Emmon's drama workshop.

Please watch for more news about this group!

Skippers nip Hull, fall to Clippers

By Rob Tis

The boys basketball team squeaked by Hull on Monday night in a fantastic game ruining the Pirates' chance for a state tournament berth.

Bill Kurtz put on a basketball clinic for the crowd as he scored 29 points and played air-tight defense.

The Skippers were behind from the opening jump ball until 1:08 remained in the game and Pat (The Cat) Duffy hit a jumper from in close putting the Skippers on the healthy side of the score — 69-68. Then, ala John Havlichek, Bill Kurtz stole the ball.

This forced Hull to foul and the Skippers were nothing less than perfect from the foul line. Thus the Skippers managed to hold onto a small lead and grab a big win — 74-72.

Friday night the Skippers faced Norwell and had another chance to spoil a state tournament berth, but this time things just did not work out.

The big story was Norwell's Peter Deluhunt who scored his 1000th point early in the 2nd quarter. The game was stopped and there was a small ceremony in which he was awarded the game ball by his parents.

The Skippers led all through the first two quarters amassing a 26-23 lead at the half after having leads of 10 and 12.

Norwell started to come back, however, and on the sharp shooting of Delahunt managed to take the lead.

They held this lead and gradually increased it to 6 and 7 points. The Skippers almost made a last minute turnaround as Bill Kurtz netted six points in the last minute but it was to no avail.

Sign up for the new soccer program

A spring soccer program is beginning in town for boys from 13 to 18.

Registration is due by Feb. 25. The organizers plan to enter two teams in the Boston Area Youth Soccer League. The league involves teams south and west of Boston.

One team will be for boys who won't turn 16 until after Jan. 1. The other team will be for boys who are still in high school or who won't turn 18 until Jan. 1.

The season is from April 11 to June 14. All games are on Sunday with the younger boys playing at 2:30 p.m. and the older boys playing at 4 p.m.

The organizers are Jim Leonard, 383-6563, Charlie DeSantis 383-6464 and Martin Acevedo, 545-0917. Call one of them for more information.

Cost of registration is $10. They are still looking for coaches and hope to find either one or two men with professional or semi-pro experience.

The registration money covers everything but uniforms.

Leonard said he thinks this is the first time in town soccer has been offered in the spring. There is a fall program.

Registration forms should inlcude name, address, telephone number and birth date. Checks should be payable to J.P. Leonard, 245 South Main St., Cohasset.

The registration may be mailed to Leonard or turned in to the CHS Athletic Department.

Gymnasts finish in first

The Cohasset High School girls' gymnastic team maintained their first place tie with Hanover and finished the season last Monday night with a win over Duxbury, 95.2 to 82.

Team members won five awards at Wednesday night's South Shore League girls' individual championships with sophomore Karen Ekberg capturing first place for the all-around title.

Sue McMahon, a seventh grader, won first place for beam and floor exercises. Nancy Walls won second in floor exercises, Janet Carlson won third on vault and Julie Ann Sechen won third on the beam.

$1875 for local Red Cross

The Cohasset Chapter, Red Cross will receive $1,875, and the Scituate-Norwell Chapter will receive $2,697 as their annual allocations from the United Way of Massachusetts Bay for 1981.

The two agencies are among 171 affiliated United Way agencies slated to receive allocations totaling $18,802,900.

PATCHES

They sat up near the front of the bus, beneath a sign which politely asked that older people be allowed those seats.

They were far from old, not near dottering. But in our society they qualified as seniors. Yet if we look for elders to have found a niche to which they're resigned or in which they're altogether comfortable, we might be misled.

They had social discomforts of their own. And there on the bus headed toward the Japanese Center in San Francisco, they settled some of their uncertainties.

The primary conversationalist, and in two speakers there's one that is, was dressed in a full length fur. Perhaps she was 64 but she'd gained the time lag she was looking for by favoring her dress and her cosmetics.

Her face was pretty. The off red shade of hair she'd chosen was perhaps overbright for her coloring. But it was what she wanted, what she needed to create the outer attitude. In her hair was a bow. One believed she'd had a good deal in earlier life and felt more comfortable continuing that mode. But things were different now. Now that she was a widow.

With her was a friend. She was in the same boat. And their common ground seemingly was found because of their new unwanted singleness. The second woman wore slacks and her naturally gray hair. She didn't have a fur or the trappings which bespeak purchases based on good labels, even on sale.

But there was a certainty about her which the woman in mink didn't have, a calmness. She served as counselor to the other. And their conversation drifted to men acquaintances. The more affluent woman spoke of a fellow with whom she fequently had dinner. He had, she confided, asked if she would ever consider marrying again. And she said she wouldn't. She definitely wouldn't. Because there was no one like Ed. Ed had, well he'd been so many things, so thoughtful, caring, always there.

The gray-haired woman said there was no good in going back, no sense in recounting, pointless to keep thinking what Ed was. She, too, knew what it meant to have the apparent best part of life past, as well as the one who'd been the best, especially in memory.

Each of them put their present men friends in proper perspective. They'd come over all right, anytime you'd call, responding on the same kind of loneliness and hunger for companionship that put the call in effect in the first place.

But there were no illusions. They were company now and then and that was that, in spite of nasty comments another woman had been known to make.

As for her they both agreed, she really wasn't their first choice either as a friend or traveling buddy. Always "me" with her, they said, the big "I." The third unpresent woman was cast aside in their minds and mention. It was the two of them, they agreed, who made good travelers, each respecting the others privacy or need to chat a bit as the case might be.

As they neared their stop the gray-haired woman returned a pair of gloves to the other. But the minked one demured, saying she didn't really need those. She had so many gloves and it would make no matter if she ever saw them again.

But the other persisted, not ungraciously, but firmly. She made clear their relationship wouldn't include her becoming a taker. She had asserted herself in that. And the other woman accepted the decision, seeing a bit beyond it to who was really the stronger of the two, the more able to make a good life from one which felt disorganized because of a loss.

It was then settled. They reached the stop affirmed in friendship, confident of support for one another, a fact that renewed their confidence in themselves.

They left the bus, chatting comfortably, making plans for the next shopping trip, and proving in the small vignette that life is made tolerable, even valuable if one leans a little and is leaned upon.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

Even though most German men work in offices or factories, half the women have jobs and all children attend school, the old custom of five meals a day is still part of the German way of life. A fascinating cookbook I received for Christmas called "The Cooking of Germany" explains just how they do it. They start with breakfast as we do, to be followed by a second breakfast that would make a lunch for many of us. At midday comes dinner, then Kaffee, a sociable afternoon snack and finally, the day ends with a comparatively light supper called Abendbrot. Sturdy people! Here, where so many of us are counting calories, we'll skip the dumplings and tortes, but never a soup such as their Feine Kartoffelsuppe mit Gurken, or

POTATO AND CUCUMBER SOUP

1 medium-sized cucumber
6 medium-sized potatoes, peeled and diced
1 1/4 pts. cold water
1 1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. black pepper
3/8 pt. heavy cream
3/8 pt. milk
2 1/2 tsp. grated onion
2 1/2 tsp. finely chopped fresh dill, or 1 scant tsp. dried dill

Peel cucumber and slice lengthways into halves. Scoop out seeds and dice. Set aside. Boil potatoes in large, heavy saucepan, add salt and pepper, cooking until soft. Pour them and cooking liquid into a sieve set over a mixing bowl. Rub potatoes through sieve and return them and their liquid to saucepan. Stir in cream, milk, onion and cucumbers. Simmer over low heat for about 5 min. Add dill and taste for seasoning. Serves 6.

Serving five meals a day may be considered a little much by those moms faced with a bevy of hungry children during this school vacation week. Perhaps the question most surely designed to drive any mother up the wall is that which invariably follows close on the heels of the last meal. "Isn't there anything to eat?" can't be shrugged off lightly when a jar of peanut butter is going for over two dollars. More nourishing than candy and simple enough for the children to make is Mildred Hutter's

PIONEER FRUIT CANDY

1 pound of raisins
1/2 lb. figs
1/2 lb. dates
1 cup prunes stoned
Juice and whole rind of orange
1 cup walnuts, chopped

Grind together fruits and orange rind. Blend with orange juice and nuts. Shape into bite-sized balls and roll in coconut. Allow to stand 24 hours before serving.

Putting aside my German cookbook, I couldn't help but wonder if the women ever set foot outside of their kitchen, but I've seen their delis and bake shops and know how well they are patronized; far too tempting for people such as Nancy Young who writes that she is into raw foods. "For three months, I ate a totally raw food diet. I lost 15 pounds, my mind became much clearer, I had an enormous amount of energy and a very positive outlook on life. It is so important that people learn of the vital, youth-giving qualities of raw food." Fresh vegetables, dried fruits, dark flours, raw nuts, fruit and honey figure in this type of diet. Cucumber salad boats are made by scooping out the seeds and slicing the cuke lengthwise. Mix pulp with celery, nuts, green onions, chopped tomatoes and mayonnaise. Garnish with grated cheese, basil and orgegano. Then place on a bed of lettuce. Tomatoes stuffed with diced cucumbers, celery, tomato pulp and yogurt can be topped with fresh dill. Another snack is made by blending apples, an orange, 1/2 c. fresh fruit juice and 1 tsp. honey. And for dessert, Dorothy Fowler's recipe goes like this:

Prop. 2½ not fatal, but 33 teachers may go

By Karin Bartow

The school system will lose 33 teachers next year, according to the budget prepared by School Supt. Eugene Crowell.

Pupil teacher ratio remains below 30 to one in all grades.

There will be no sports programs dropped but junior high and freshmen sports will be consolidated.

The effect of Proposition 2½ on the school department budget for next year, in Crowell's opinion, "will be painful, but will not be fatal."

In submitting the fiscal 1982 budget at Monday night's school committee meeting, he assured the audience of 40 that Cohasset's quality, academic school system will remain intact.

The budget is in its fourth draft since the November referendum dictated local spending cuts; it shows a decrease in school funds of $160,000. This represents 55.3 percent of the town's revenue loss which, due to the acceptance of a higher revaluation figure of $225 million for Cohasset on January 20, is the excise tax loss and not personal property tax loss.

Crowell recommended that the school budget be further reduced by $20,000 in order to give the town an emergency contingency for special warrant articles at town meeting. The budget for fiscal year 1982 is $3,614,574, $180,000 less than last year's $3,784,475.

The bulk of the cuts are designated in the areas of teacher eliminations (33), transportation, food services and athletics. The impact of the reductions is greatest in the intermediate and secondary schools where enrollment shows the largest decline. Total school population for next year is estimated to decline by 70 students to 1,480.

The budget draft shows the Osgood School remaining open because it is "Educationally and socially sound" and enrollment figures show the decline in the primary grades slowing with increases anticipated over the next four years. Osgood's budget for next year is $505,848, an increase of $2,425.

The Deer Hill School will lose the most students — 39. Its budget will be reduced by $92,517 to $645,043, with the elimination of three teachers (two fourth grade and one special needs). The largest school budget decrease will occur in the junior/senior high school to the tune of $150,683 to $1,951,006. Enrollment there will drop by 28.

Unemployment compensation of $65,000 and salary reserve contingencies of $50,000 (for uncontrollable overrides, contract/salary bargaining and possible school closings for special needs students) will contribute to a net increase in the all-district budget of $60,775.

Pupil-teacher ratios are very good in spite of inflation, 2½ and declining enrollment, Crowell pointed out. There will be 20 students to each teacher in Kindergarten through third grade; 27-to-one in fourth; 23.6-to-one in fifth; 25-to-one in sixth; and, on average, 22.7-to-one at the high school. As stated in budget assumptions, remaining school personnel will assume additional duties. Deer Hill Principal Ken Ekberg, will teach in the fourth grade area where the ratio is higher and Osgood Principal, Jack Creamer will assist in the open space classroom. All across the board, teachers, coaches and aides will cover in more areas to ensure the delivery of good education.

Citing these ratios and the inclusion in the budget of all honors, advanced placement, base language, high math, alternative education and the gifted and talented program and courses, Crowell said, "No

Wrestler Sweeney is Sectional champ

By Rob Tis

Torin Sweeney wrote another chapter in his own book this week as he won the Division II wrestling South Sectionals.

Torin was seeded number 2 in this tournament. On Friday in the preliminaries he breezed through two tough opponents. On Saturday morning he faced Brad Tozier of Newton in the quarter finals. Blessed with the desire he needed, Torin came up victorious in a heartstopping match 5-4.

If this wasn't enough to age Coach Leone 20 years, he now would face his arch-rival Tom Harrington from Duxbury, the number one seed in the tournament.

Harrington went out to a 2-0 lead on a takedown and the score remained there for the first two thrilling periods. The tension could be cut with a knife going into the third period but Torin being a veteran wrestler knew as well as anyone else that when the going gets tough the tough get going, and that's exactly what Torin did.

Down 2-0, Torin turned Harrington over onto his back and almost pinned him. He however, could not pin him but was able to tally three points on a near pin, just enough to clinch a victory in the waning moments.

Torin Sweeney's next step will be the state 128-pound title. He will be seeded between first and fourth in this tourney.

The Cohasset wrestling team had a remarkable day at this event. Jack Hernan was seeded fourth in the 134 pound class and grabbed third place in the tourney. He will be seeded from nine to 12 in the state tournament. Chris Mahoney making a terrific recovery from a broken arm was the fourth seed in the tournament and grabbed fourth place. Chris will

GAG raps Murray gambling stance

By Patricia Desmond

The Group Against Gambling, GAG, slapped the fingers of state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, R-Cohasset, as the politics of lobbying emerged.

Murray has been going to all the anti-casino gambling rallies. She has been telling her constituents not to worry about the proposed casino legislation for Hull and Adams because she is watching out for their interests.

But late last week during a radio debate, with Murray taking the side of the anti-gambling forces, she came out in favor of a bill to study the issue.

GAG members took a few days to react but when they did they criticized Murray sharply.

Spokesmen for the South Shore-based GAG issued a statement asking Rep. Murray to fully educate herself on the important issues of casino gambling.

Murray told a telephone caller to the radio show that she wouldn't mind seeing a bill for a statewide investigation of casinos come to the floor.

"I think we're overduke as far as a complete investigation for the Commonwealth is concerned," she said.

The legislation was filed by a representative from Saugus at the request of Sam Vitali, a Lynn attorney who was campaign manager for the pro-casino forces during a vote two years ago in Florida.

Peter Pratt of Cohasset, GAG's legislative director, says there is no question the study bill is pro-casino.

Pratt doesn't hide the fact he worked for Murray's opponent in the last campaign. He also says he is a one issue person who would work for a Republican if the politician were against casino gambling.

"This is the same way casino forces got a toehold in New Jersey, the same way they are about to legalize casinos in New York state," Pratt said.

"It all starts with an innocuous sounding study commission."

The presently proposed legislation establishing the study commission would be required to report back by the middle of June with final recommendations due in December "for legislative and administrative actions to effectively implement casino gambling in Massachusetts," the bill says.

The commission would include two Senators, five Representatives, three Governor's appointees and the state treasurer or his designee.

Among the issues to be studied would be:

—The economic, social and employment impact of casino operations in the state and region.

—The most beneficial way of utilizing casino gambling for economic development.

—Revenues that could be derived.

Cohasset's week

Big dumpers should pay

Private companies dumping trash at the town landfill bother Selectman Rocco Laugelle.

Laugelle said he wants something done about the contractors who dump their trash at the rapidly filling dump site.

He said there is one dump contractor that brings in a full load once a week, having serviced only a few customers in town.

"I watched for a few hours and counted 25 people bringing trash," Laugelle said. "They didn't bring one hundredth of the stuff that truck did."

The truck in question dumped 30 yards of compacted trash.

"They are paid by the customer. They have four landfills of their own. They shouldn't be filling our dump."

Sen. McKinnon hours

State Sen. McKinnon or a member of his staff will be available to meet with constituents at Town Hall Wednesday, March 11 at 8 p.m.

Town counsel budget

Blake Thaxter, town counsel, will be paid a retainer of $25,000 for the coming year, plus $50 an hour for court work and preparation, according to the vote of the selectmen.

Thaxter gave the board a choice between paying a flat $50 an hour for all his work for the town or the retainer method.

"The third alternative is getting another town counsel," Selectman Henry Ainslie said before the vote.

The Hingham legal budget is $85,000 to $95,000.

Police get a win

The police force won a small bonus for work never done recently when a superior court judge backed up an arbitrator.

The money is due members of the force in 1978 and 1979 because overtime work went to two permanent intermittant officers rather than to union members.

Fifteen men will get $531.68 each. Former Patrolman Gerard Buckley gets $362.01. He left the department during the dispute.

Mileage increase

The selectmen are still thinking about increasing mileage for town employes.

Currently town employes are entitled to 15 cents a mile. The figure the selectmen have in mind is 18 cents but they are waiting for information on what the change would cost the town.

Arts Center show

South Shore Arts Center has permission to use the Common June 29 through July 5 for its show.

And the selectmen approved a request from Beechwood Congregational Church to use town hall June 5 and 6 for an antique show.

New chairs comfortable

The old chairs at town hall went to the South Shore Conservatory of Music.

The selectmen received a thank-you note from the conservatory last week.

New chairs were purchased by the town for the first floor auditorium.

The new chairs are comfortable, unlike the chairs they replace.

Executive secretary budget

The still unselected executive secretary for the town will have a salary in the $20,000 range.

The board of selectmen think the salary should be $20,000 plus expenses. Those expenses could run $5,000.

The advisory board is yet to be heard from on the matter. The board of health thinks the new worker should have a paralegal background.

STALWART OARSMAN — This determined kayak driver rowed right past our photographer without stopping for identification. Greg Derr, that stalwart photographer, wants it noted that the Mill River was more than a bit chilly this week and the oarsman has no wet suit.

For cemetery use

Selectmen eye Sportsmen Club land

Robert Rosano may be forced to move the Cohasset Sportsmen Club building off town land on Route 3A.

The selectmen are thinking about using the land for expansion of the cemetery.

Rosano appeared before selectmen last week at the board's request because of concerns about the status of the club.

"People feel it is town property and should not have a building on it," Selectman Rocco Laugelle said.

"People feel it is not being used for the purpose it was given. I hate like heck to see a sportsmen's club not active." Laugelle is a charter member of the club.

The house is the property of the club although the land still belongs to the town. Rosano lives in the house for insurance purposes.

"I enjoy staying there in the woods by myself. There are three small rooms, a woodstove, no one else would want to stay there all the time. I don't stay there all the time either."

Rosano maintained the club is inactive but not defunct. There are 10 or 12 members. Rosano's father is club president. He is the vice president.

Selectman Henry Ainslie pointed out that when town meeting voted to allow the club to use town land, the plans presented were extensive. There was to be a police gun range, a fish tank and clubhouse.

The town meeting vote was more than 10 years ago. Since then the club membership has fallen off and few activities have been run.

Rosano told the board he would move everything off the land if the town insists on taking back the land.

The Bob Beale Fund grows

Bob Beale, 19-year-old Cohasset High School graduate, now lies in a coma far from his friends and family.

A group of local residents formed a committee last week which wants to bring him back to the area from Cape Canaveral, Florida. They are working to raise $6,277 to bring him back by air ambulance. As of Monday, $2,000 had been raised.

Bob is the son of Jean Beale of South Main St. Once back in the area he would be a patient at an acute care hospital.

A 1980 graduate of Cohasset High School, Bob is well known all over the South Shore for his agility and talent, on the ice as a hockey player, as well as on the football field. Unfortunately his promising sports career was shortened by another brush with death in an automobile accident two years ago.

"Our only purpose is to bring him home. There is no insurance to cover the price of this trip," said Sally Woods, one of the committee members.

A door-to-door campaign conducted by high school students will take place in Cohasset on Saturday, Feb. 28 and Sunday, March 1. Lions Clubs, Rotaries and individuals from Scituate, Hingham and many other communities are supporting this humanitarian effort.

Friends of Bobby Beale feel there is a good chance for his recovery with the stimulation of his family and friends who love him.

Donations may be left at, or sent to the Bobby Beale Fund, c/o Vice President William Nason, Rockland Trust Company, Cushing Plaza, Route 3A, Cohasset 02025.

Calligraphy classes

The Calligraphy class at the South Shore Art Center has changed its starting date to Monday, March 2.

The course is for 12 week instruction in chancery cursive and italic script. Instructor Bill Bell emphasizes learning how to make structurally sound characters and also how to arrange these characters in pleasing combinations.

The town's first fire hydrants were installed in 1885, when the public water supply was constructed.

The first test of the fire hydrants was in 1886 when Bela Bates home on Elm Street, opposite Stevens Lane, caught fire.

Damage was limited to the roof and most of the plaster. It was in 1887 that the town first employed permanent firemen — who would sleep at the station.

Time to balance the budget

By Claire McDonough

I approached the dragon last night armed with a pencil and a ledger.

"Guess what?" I exulted. "We're going to balance our budget."

"It-doesn't-matter," he mumbled without moving his eyes from the television. "We're-leaving-for-the-poor-house-the-first-of-next-week."

"I'm serious," I insisted. "I didn't think it could be done, but our president has shown me how. All we have to do is cut back on services and expenditures.

"For example, I'm going to reduce our spending for environmental safe guards."

I took the dragon's grunt as an indication of interest and continued.

"How, you may ask, will I cut spending for environmental safeguards? Simple, I reply. If you people will all stop smoking, not only do we save the money you burn each week, but I can stop buying room fresheners."

He raised one eyebrow. "We can cut back on health, education, and welfare, too. You can stop buying books and magazines."

"Bite your tongue," I snapped. "You are getting the idea, though. If you will all learn something the first time, our educational expenses will drop sharply. For example, if I tell Kevin that Angelo's is out of peanut butter he is no longer to make five trips a day to see if a shipment has come in. And our health costs can be reduced if Pat accepts the fact that he can't wrestle with his brothers while he has a trick knee. Also, I intend to cut back on food stamps."

"Good trick," the dragon admitted, particularly since we don't get them."

"I use that as a figure of speech," I replied airily. "I've told the kids to go out and graze like the good Lord intended, but they won't.

"So I'm going to have to get tough. No more Mrs. Nice Guy. Meals that I have sealed and frozen are not to be shared with friends or taken on camping trips without prior negotiation. Anyone convicted of eating all the cookies in a package and concealing the crime by placing the empty box back on the shelf will be subject to instant reprisal. Then there's the matter of windfall profit tax."

Reluctantly, he tore his gaze from Charlie's latest angel. "A matter of what?"

"I'm serious," I told him. I'm going to apply for a depreciation allowance on my bingo winnings. Whenever I get a winning card I get so excited that my shoulder straps break, my nylons run, and my voice gets hoarse. I figure I have only so many bingo games left in me."

"You may have something there," he admitted. "What are you going to do about services to the elderly?"

I sighed and handed him a tube of Grecian Formula. "All things considered," I told him, "I think you and I had better hang on to that one."

Helping hands

People in town are being generous and unselfish reaching deep into their pockets for Marion Douglas and Bobby Beale.

The slow economy makes the fundraising all the more noble and all the more necessary. We like to hope this is the start of a new era of people taking care of their neighbors, people taking care of their own.

One of the great lessons we all are learning from Proposition 2½ is that government can't take care of everything that should be done. We're starting to see people fill in the need.

Marion Douglas was burned extensively as she tended her wood stove. She is still hospitalized with the injuries. Friends raised money for her to help her family cope with the overwhelming medical costs and the needs of her four children.

Bobby Beale was injured in an auto pedestrian accident in Florida. Although he is in a coma, his friends and family are trying to raise the money needed to fly him home in an air ambulance.

The townspeople of Cohasset are doing the work, giving of themselves in time, materials and money for both these causes.

We think the fund-raisers should pat themselves on the back.

Please pay up

Please pay your water bill.

For one thing the water department needs the money to keep the water coming.

For another thing there is a new policy on interest and it will cost you more to let the payments drag.

The old policy essentially gave people 90 days to pay their water bill before any penalty accrued. And maybe because the interest didn't start for three months, the accounts receivable for the water department has always been high.

The amount due has been rising and the water commissioners are beginning to worry about paying their own bills.

Until recently there was a reserve account to cover the lagging payments. Like most extras in town government the reserve account is a thing of the past.

The water commissioners are talking about taking more drastic action if the money doesn't start coming in.

They have the right to turn off water for nonpayment. We'd hate to see them do that. But we'd also hate to see the people in town who pay their water bills on time end up paying more to cover the cost of the malingerers.

Golden takes out papers

Doris Golden, former school committee member, has taken out papers to run for selectman.

The seat, being vacated by Arthur Clark, is also sought after by Mary Jane McArthur and Patrick Morrissey.

Golden ran unsuccessfully against Rocco Laugelle.

First police chief

The first police chief was appointed in Cohasset in 1911.

He was Thomas Bates, a special officer since 1905. He resigned in 1925 continuing his career in law enforcement as Norfolk County Deputy Sheriff.

'Uncle Vanya' comes to the Cohasset stage this weekend

By Patricia Desmond

The young Sonia tucked a strand of hair into place as she passed a mirror on the way to call her beloved.

Her quiet beauty glowed under the soft lights on stage at Cohasset town hall.

Sonia, played by Kathleen Bowen of Scituate, does one of the leads in the production of Chekhov's "Uncle Vanya" by the Cohasset Dramatic Club Thursday, Feb. 26, 27 and 28 at 8 p.m.

She and her cast members put together a thoughtful and thoroughly well-done version of the play.

The cast let me watch the dress rehearsal last weekend.

I have only applause for the acting skill of the players, the set by Cohasset's Sheldon Ripley, costumes, lighting, make-up and the direction of Judy Holmes of Hingham.

Sitting in the back of the theater in the brand new and infinitely more comfortable chairs, Judy silently took notes while the performance moved on with grace and professionalism.

Usually a reviewer of community theater has to take the inexperience of the actors into account. Usually community theater sticks to comedy to avoid the strain of being taken too seriously.

Well, Chekhov is not an easy playwright, hardly a comedian. His piece is serious, somber, rich in ideas. The cast meets the challenge.

I hope you take the time to meet the cast.

Maybe the success comes from the high level of experience of the director. Judy's professional career began with repertory theater in London where she played over 100 roles in both popular and classic productions.

Her husband, Derek, who plays the Doctor Astrov, is marvelous. But then he, too, comes from a background filled with credits.

Judy understands the simple understatement of Chekhov.

"In Chekhov one can see the marvelous example of art that conceals art," she said.

"The playwright appears to do nothing, but using feeling and atmosphere, he reveals the quintessence of human nature in a short time and yet so gradually that one doesn't even notice."

Harry Heineman of Scituate is Uncle Vanya, the boring and sad character, that wins the audience sympathy.

Bromwen Crothers of Boston plays the part of the beauty Yelena. I hope I don't run out of superlatives before finishing this review. Bromwen is captivating.

Ben Duffy of Hingham plays the part of the gruff old Serebriakov. Even his voice fits the bill.

The actors with fewere lines still perform with authenticity. Sydney Browne of Wollaston is Marina. Lee Dunne of Scituate is Maria, Wayne Miessner of Scituate is the workman and David Barret of Cohasset is Telygin.

The dramatic club is in its 60th year of continuous production.

John Mallon of the club gives the chairs rave reviews.

"Some of our patrons may recall how the old ones had a tendency to collapse during quiet passages on the sensitive dramas.

"This was a source of great consternation and secret pride to the club because the chairs only collapsed when you sat on the edge of them."

If you enjoy good theater, ideas and the study of human nature, go see "Uncle Vanya."

Tickets are $3. Students may attend the Thursday performance for $1. For more information call 545-0971.

John Kirby, formerly of Hingham, recently joined the law offices of Thaxter, Beckwith and Henderson of Cohasset.

Mr. Kirby received a J.D. degree in 1980 from the University of San Francisco where he was a member of the Law Review and the Moot Court Board, a teaching assistant and the recipient of two American Jurisprudence Awards for academic achievement. He also worked as a law clerk for the Honorable Victor Campilongo of the San Francisco County Superior Court. He was admitted to practice in Massachusetts in December, 1980.

A 1964 graduate of Hingham High School, Mr. Kirby received an A.B. degree with honors from Middlebury College (Vt.) in 1968. Following graduate work in communications at Boston University, he served as a First Lieutenant in the U.S. Army. From 1970 to 1972, Mr. Kirby was information officer and chief narrator for the U.S. Army Parachute Team, the Golden Knights, the Army's official demonstration unit, based at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Kirby presently lives with his wife, Dana, in Boston.

Lawrence Drago of Cohasset, a senior at Colby College is studying religion in politics for his January Program of Independent Study. He is investigating the influence of various religions on recent elections.

Drago, a graduate of Cohasset High School, is a government major. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Drago.

Gail Smart, daughter of William and Margaret Smart of Cohasset, was selected to represent Cohasset High School, as an outstanding business student in the Business Career Development program, sponsored by Executive Women International, in cooperation with Sears, Roebuck and Co. The program, which is in its fifth year of operation, is designed to identify and encourage young, business-minded students.

Gail and her sponsoring teacher, Mrs. Doris Lahage, were honored Feb. 12, at a dinner at the Parker House by the Boston Chapter of Executive Women International.

The 4-H Club sponsored car wash on Sunday was a success in spite of the drizzle and colder temperatures. Club members cleaned cars, gave pony rides and sold baked goods for the benefit of one of their members whose horse expired unexpectedly.

Michael and Cherly Taylor are the parents of a second son, Gregory William, born on Feb. 6 weighing 6 lbs. 14 ozs. at South Shore Hospital. Their first son, Edward, will be four in March.

Grandparents are Mrs. Harry Sylvester and Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor of Hingham. Great grandparents are Mr. Harry Terry and Mrs. Bridget Dunn, also of Hingham.

Cohasset talent is rehearsing diligently for the Hingham Civic Music Theatre's spring production of "My Fair Lady" on March 20, 21, 26, 27 and 28 at the Hingham High School. Joan Kenney, a musically oriented person and dancer, is choreographing the production. Veronica Nielson is director and Salvitor Bartoli is music director.

Joining actors, singers and dancers from many local communities will be Bennett Driscoll as Colonel Pickering, Tom Meyers as Harry, Peter O'Loughlin, member of the cockney chorus, Bruce Cameron as Freddie and Martha Gaffey as Elisa. Jason Guild, Paul Johnson and Bev Mullaney will be jugglers, as well as part of the song and dance troupe, which also includes Diane Kenney, Brian Mullaney and Scott Ketchum.

Save one of the dates in March for an 8 p.m. performance of "My Fair Lady" — a classic musical loaded with local talent.

Thirty-three teachers may go

one here tonight can look at this budget and then go out and transfer their children to private schools."

TRANSPORTATION

"We intend to operate on a $80,000 budget and the big thing," Crowell said, "is that we will go to municipally owned or leased buses." A savings of $31,485 will be achieved in the transportation budget by having intermediate and secondary students walking further, either to school or to bus depots, and extending the 1½ mile limit to two. Primary youngsters will continue to receive the existing service, but with fewer stops. Crowell informed the meeting that the Papes will go out of the school bus business this year and school business manager John Raftery, will be transportation coordinator next year. Raftery indicated that it would be close to the end of the school year before walking and bus assignments are known.

CAFETERIA

Placing the cafeteria on a self-supporting basis would wipe out its cost of $32,190. Crowell recommended that the school committee give its approval to go to $.65 from the present $.50 for lunches in April so that the school's revolving fund will be healthy by September. Home economics teacher Pat Wunschel surveyed surrounding cities and towns and found that most are going to self-supporting food service systems. Cohasset's proposed lunch price is competitive with other systems.

TEACHERS

Of the thirty-three proposed teacher cuts, 12 2/5 are classroom teachers. Crowell said that five of the classroom cuts would have been recommended anyway due to enrollment declines. The Osgood School will lose 0.1 percent art teacher, with a resulting 40 percent time coverage from the Deer Hill art teacher and 1/2 time special needs teacher. Deer Hill would lose two fourth grade positions, one special needs and 0.2 percent time art.

The teacher loss distribution in the junior/senior high school would be two English (reading lab and base English), one each in math, social studies, science, business education, music and physical education and 0.6 percent time in art.

With the remaining staff assuming more duties and fewer students, Crowell assured the school committee members and parents at the meeting that these cuts will not hurt the academics of the school system.

Other possible eliminations are 5½ aides, two student advisors, one library technician, one media technician, one guidance secretary, two supervisors and eight coaches.

ATHLETICS

Crowell explained that a 15 percent reduction in the athletic budget will be accomplished by the "Elimination or consolidation of all separate junior high and freshman programs." By dividing athletic competition into two divisions — varsity (grades 11 and 12) and sub-varsity (grades 10 and below, as talent and safety directs), "No major sport programs will be lost unless we have no teams with which to compete."

Two eighth and two ninth grade basketball coaches (boys and girls), one ninth grade football coach, two eighth grade track coaches and one head track coach (with another assuming combined duties) will be dropped. Other savings will be achieved by the elimination of all non-league games, most scrimmages and possibly tournament play; by eliminating sport films; no travel to away games for marching band, baton and flag squad; elimination of personal equipment budget and curtailment of award programs and increased admission to sports events.

Staff conferences and travel, supplementary field trips, purchase of new equipment and repairs to the Deer Hill roof will also be curtailed.

At the outset of presenting the budget, Crowell urged everyone to "Enter into this (discussion) in the spirit of cooperation." He said the $160,000 cut is finite. Any changes in the projected reductions would have to be traded off in other areas.

Crowell's hour long presentation drew applause from those present at the meeting.

The school committee will meet again to discuss in detail the Osgood and Deer Hill budgets on Monday, March 2 at 8 p.m. in the high school choral room.

GAG raps Murray

—Methods of licensing including measures "to be taken to prevent fraud, abuse and infiltration by undesireable elements."

"Gov. Edward King has said he would sign a casino bill if it came before him," Pratt said.

Carol Oteri of Hull, president of GAG, testified against the study bill in January when it came up for a hearing before Government Regulations.

"We would like Rep. Murray to clarify her position on H. 1806. This is a bill which seeks to establish a gambling study commission and we're very much against it," Oteri said.

Oteri spent the weekend in western Massachusetts working with people opposed to the planned casino in Adams.

Her group and a similar one in western Massachusetts will soon be incorporated to more actively raise funds and lobby.

Meanwhile thousands of signatures are being turned in to the coordinators in Hingham and Cohasset showing support for GAG's position.

This week the Hingham clergy issued a statement against the casino legalization.

Fr. Francis McGann, pastor of St. Paul's Church and president of the association, said "We consider our association to exist primarily for fellowship among the town clergy and for the exchange of ideas and concerns.

"However there are issues arising from time to time on which we feel the association must speak out. The casino issue is such as issue.

The resolution, which was voted unanimously, says: "The Hingham Clergy Association categorically opposes the legalization of casino gambling within the Commonwealth."

Those present and voting were: Francis McGann, Earl Alger, William Turpie, James Leipold, Jackson Smith, Charles Giarrantana, Ben Rudavsky and Steve Oliver.

Icons decorate Orthodox Church

By Patricia Desmond

The icons, sacred images of holy people, now line sections of Pope Memorial Church in Cohasset.

The icons, exquisite mosaics styled after the ways of a past millenium, came with the Greek Orthodox worshippers who bought the church.

But the icons are not owned by the Hellenic Church and Center, as the structure on Jerusalem Road is now called.

They are on loan from the artist, Robert Andrews of Hingham.

Andrews is one of a handful of men recognized by the Greek Orthodox Church as capable of creating icons.

He will be doing a slide show and lecture on icons and mosaics Friday, Feb. 27, at 8 p.m. at the church.

Will he use his talent to decorate the once stark Protestant church?

"Perhaps I will someday. That's up to the board of the church. I'd like to."

Andrews icons are done in mosaic tile, all the better to last centuries. To someone unfamiliar with Greek Orthodox art, his icons seem to fit the culture.

But Andrews explains he has updated his work building on the style rather than imitating it.

"There is no sense copying Byzantine icons. We are living in the 20th Century not the 11th. They are building beautiful churches now just as they were then."

Andrews comes from a background in classic art. He has taught in Scituate, Plymouth, Silver Lake Regional, Sudbury Regional and Mass College of Art. He is head of the art department at Newton South High School.

His icons decorate churches throughout the United States.

Art Center shows

The South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Road, invites the public to attend the opening reception of a versatile three-person show consisting of a watercolorist, a photographer and a ceramist, Sunday, March 1 from 6 to 8 p.m.

Short takes...

Community Center trip

The Cohasset Community Center will sponsor a trip to the New England Spring Garden and Flower Show on Wednesday, March 18, from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

The Flower Show, presented annually since 1872, is one of New England's most respected cultural and educational institutions with the most extensive horticultural exhibitions in New England. The cost of the trip, which also includes a stop at historic Quincy Market to shop or eat, is $8.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the center, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. at 383-0088. Reservations may be made directly by mailing a check to the center at 3 North Main Street.

Battered women film

A film on battered women produced by Transition House, a shelter in Boston, will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 12, at the Unitarian Parish House, Cohasset.

The film, "We will not be Beaten," is sponsored by the Plymouth County chapter of the National Organization for Women.

The group recently donated furnishings for a room in the Quincy shelter for abused women.

Gail Bryan, Cohasset photographer, was one of the advisors to the crew making the documentary.

Puppets perform at Derby

The Bennington Puppets will perform "The Snow Queen," March 7, at Derby Academy, Burditt Avenue, Hingham.

"The Snow Queen" is from a story by Hans Christian Anderson with music from the Nutcracker ballet by Peter Ilich Tchaikovsky.

The performances will be at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and will last approximately 45 minutes.

The Bennington Puppets are a professional touring marionette theatre that has performed for schools, colleges, museums and on public television. The performances are classically theatrical in their presentation, with scenery, sound and lighting systems, and elaborately costumed 30" high marionettes. They are a delight for both the young and the young in spirit.

Directing for this event are Mrs. Steven Garland of Hingham, Mrs. Matthew Janesics of Cohasset, and Mrs. John McSheffrey of Duxbury.

Reservations are available through Mrs. Kelly of 837-6196 or at the door. Children under six must be accompanied by an adult.

Honors at Notre Dame

The following Cohasset students have been named to the Honor Roll for the second quarter at Notre Dame Academy:

First Honors — Debora Babin.

Second Honors — Maura Charlton, Kerry Gruber and Hilary Haynes.

League has new home

The Social Service League of Cohasset announces that it will move March 31 into two ground floor rooms in St. Stephen's Parish Hall, 16 Highland Ave.

The League is grateful to St. Stephen's for providing us with this comfortable space close to the center of the village.

Sixty Plus Club meets

Cohasset 60 plus Club board will meet Tuesday, March 3 at 11 a.m. in the Unitarian Parish House.

The regular meeting, Thursday, March 19 in the Unitarian Parish House begins with a coffee hour at noon. A business meeting will follow.

Roger and Claire Voka, a well-known dance and singing team, will entertain at 1 p.m.

Members may join in the modern dance demostrations.

☐Daniel Sheehy of Cohasset, a senior at Colby College, is studying the methodology of cost/benefit analysis for his January Program of Independent Study.

Sheehy, an administrative science and economics major, is a graduate of Tabor Academy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sheehy.

A well placed source within the federal jobs committee says two Cohasset people are under consideration for important appointments with the Reagan administration in Washington.

One of them is Town Moderator David Place. The other is Joseph Barriesi who now works for the public accounting firm of Ernst and Ernst.

☐The Mullaney family of South Main Street waved good-bye to daughter Eileen on Monday for six months. Eileen, a nurse, will be part of a team of two doctors, six nurses, one nutritionist, sanitationist and construction worker in Somalia. This is the first time, ever, U.S. assistance has been accepted by that country. Sponsored by Catholic Relief Services, the Lutheran Church and Church World Services, the team will endeavor to assess the health needs and problems in the area of their base camp, located a day's journey (by land rover or animals) from Mogadishu, the capital of Somalia.

Living in tents near a river at the camp, the group will serve approximately 40,000 refugees from Kenya and Ethiopia. For her part, Eileen says she will essentially set up her own program to fit the needs of the people. She will perhaps teach some of the Somalians basic health procedures and will work towards assessing the economic status of the area.

Eileen was chosen from among 150 highly trained nurses in the country to participate in this project. She has had international experience with the Peace Corps in Ecuador.

Somalia accepts aid from Italy and the U.S.S.R., so this initial aid venture by U.S. professionals has attracted the interest of the "Media." Boston's Evening Magazine is reportedly on location for filming and Time magazine and ABC are also interested in doing stories on the project.

Eileen says the only aspect of living conditions that worry her are the heat — 108 degrees, on average, and the sand. Two days before departure, she was feeling "Excited and a litle nervous." She's promised a letter to the Mariner from time to time. "After all," she predicted, "I'm going to spend my evenings in a tent!" Good luck and success to Eileen and her teammates.

CCC was formed

The Cohasset Community Center was established in 1944.

In the early days the center, at the corner of Sohier and North Main Streets, served as a gathering place for teenagers. It was staffed with volunteers.

By 1947 the nursery school program and various study groups were part of an active program.

The center moved in 1949 to North Main Street and Depot Court when larger facilities were necessary.

Rockland High now a Cohasset rival

By Rob Tis

In a major athletic move this week Rockland High School was admitted into the South Shore League. Rockland was accepted by a 6-3 vote.

The three smallest schools, Cohasset, Hull, and East Bridgewater voted against this move. Rockland will be the most densly populated school in the whole league.

What will this mean for the Skippers? It will mean one more game on the schedule but it could possibly mean one more loss.

Not that the Skippers can't handle the competition, but they would have trouble with Quincy and Boston also. Rockland is strongest in soccer (both boys and girls soccer) as well as basketball and baseball.

The town also has a very strong football team but there is a question whether they can be admitted in this one sport. This will be decided next month.

One bright spot, however, is that the unstoppable boys' tennis team has scrimmaged Rockland for the entirety of my high school career and has handled them with no problem.

Hoopsters win finale

By Rob Tis

Seniors Bill (The Franchise) Kurtz, Greg Raffa, Pat Duffy, Keith Ross, Dean Brown, Tim O'Brien, Doug McMahon and Chuck Stockbridge played their last game in a Cohasset uniform on Tuesday as they trompled over Sacred Heart of Weymouth.

Coach Hogan substituted all of his seniors. The victory seemed to be decided in the first quarter. Greg Raffa scored a season high 21 points and the iceman, Keith Ross popped in 13.

This victory leaves the Skipper record at a permanent 11-9 and 7-9 in the South Shore League. Bill Kurtz had the third best scoring average in the league 20.2 and has a definite chance to take his skills to the big time. Pat Duffy ended up sixth in the league at 14.6 and could also be headed to greener pastures.

Sweeney

be seeded from 13 to 16 in the state-wide event. Todd Langford came in fifth in the 168 pound class and will be an alternate for the tourney.

The state wrestling tournament begins on Friday and is being held in Wayland, Mass. These four have put in an incredible amount of effort to get this far.

Make the journey to Wayland, who knows Cohasset may become the home of one or more of the state wrestling champions.

Communications Council...Calendar

The Jr.-Sr. High School Communications Council held its February meeting in Mr. Streeter's office.

Plans are being formulated for a Seventh and Eighth Grade field day to be held in the Spring under the direction of Sue McNamara. Any Jr. High parent is welcome to help and services would be appreciated.

The guest speaker this month was Al MacDonald, the director of Cohasset High School's Alternative School. This is an individualized alternative program of education.

Students represent all levels, abilities, and backgrounds from the top-rated academic student in the high school graduating early to severe learning disability cases.

Each student takes some courses at CHS, but also off campus courses at college level or in-depth studies in a particular field of interest.

Enrollment in the program is limited to around 40, and although there is a great deal of academic freedom, responsibility and performance is demanded.

The alumni of the Alternative School speak loudly and enthusiastically of its success.

Many of them feel they would not have gotten through school without it, while others feel they were given an opportunity to make the most of their potential. CHS is lucky to have such a program.

Members of the Jr./Sr. High School Communication Council for 1980-81 are as follows:

Co-Chairmen: Carol Sandblom, 18 Rustic Drive and Alice Riley, 7 Woodland Drive.

Grade 12: Grace Donahue, 221 Forest; Dick Conley, 10 Holly Lane; Agnes Froio, 321 Forest Ave. and Carol Henry, 94 N. Main St.

Grade 11: Peg Murphy, 60 Surrey Drive; Margaret Young, 24 Short; Karen Crehan, 41 Sohier St.; Barbara Froio, 30 Surrey Drive; Norma Spung, 215 Forest and Liz O'Connell, 25 Sohier St.

Grade 10: Ginny Riley, 17 Haystack Lane; Linda Cuff, 271 So. Main; Barbara Weisenfluh, 69 Summer; Suzanne Smith, 370 No. Main and Pat Rabstejnek, 181 Border.

Grade 9: Joyce Hoffman, 94 Pond; Deidre Barrett, 26 Jerusalem Road; Pat O'Connor, 15 Woodland Drive and Kay D'Onofrio, 96 Fair Oaks Lane.

Grade 8: Jim Leonard, 245 So. Main; Adrio DeSantis, 260 Forest; Nancy Sandell, 24 Stevens Lane; Charlotte Reilly, 64 Windy Hill Road and Robert Bird, 4 Surrey Drive.

Grade 7: Anne Crawford, 241 Jerusalem Road; Jayne Nussdorfer, 756 Jerusalem Road; Joe Mancini, 170 Fair Oaks Lane; Ruth Treanor, 56 Summer; Sue McNamara, 45 Fair Oaks Lane and Carolyn Songer, Fair Oaks Lane.

School Calendar:

Saturday, February 28 — Regional drama competition at CHS, 10 a.m. Cohasset's performance 3 p.m. "Hold Me!" by Jules Feiffer.

Friday, March 6 — third quarter warnings due.

Thursday, March 5 — 7 p.m., "Interstudy," the organization which brought 27 enthusiastic Japanese students to Cohasset-town last summer, is hosting a dessert and coffee at the Second Congregational Church. For further information contact Margot Cheel at 383-6845.

Thursday, March 5 — Jr. Sr. High School monthly Communications Council meeting at 9:30 a.m. in Mr. Streeter's office. Philip Burrows, Metco Coordinator, will answer questions about the program. All parents invited.

Mary Jeanette drops in on Arthur & Co.

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray brought a hydroculator with her to selectmen's meeting last week.

That's a devise for alleviating back pain, the rep. told her former colleagues, one interested resident and three newspaper reporters.

She sat opposite the three selectmen at the long work table that separates the board from whoever turns up for their Wednesday night meetings.

Murray used to be on the board before her election to the General Court, in case you forgot or just moved into town.

The representative had a tough fight with Cohasset's Ted Ford last fall and has been seen about the district constantly in the past few weeks. She gets around to town government meetings and anti-casino gambling rallies as much as any candidate in the midst of a campaign.

She talked about pending legislation with the board. Of course they back her bill to pull Cohasset out of the MBTA. This year she said there is a good chance the legislature will adopt a bill making the MBTA the responsibility of the original 14 cities and towns.

Murray asked for her old chair. Actually her seat is now the space for Rocco Laugelle. He kidded abit about the chair but no motion was made to give it to the former selectman.

Arthur Clark, board chairman, told Murray her cigarettes weren't as bad as Laugelle's stogies.

And then with a parting smile, Murray left with her hydroculator.

The coiled instrument isn't for her, the representative said on leaving. She bought it for a constituent in Hingham who has been working with her on the anti-gambling issue.

"I'm off to a meeting in Hingham," she said. "I hate to leave here. I've missed it so."

St. Anthony's built in 1875

St. Anthony's Church was built in 1875, but it wasn't until 1886 that Cohasset was separated from the Hingham parish. The Cohasset parish included Marshfield and Scituate in those days. Bertram Pratt's "Narrative History of Cohasset" says the Catholics in town included two groups who worked on church building — those of Irish descent and those of Portugese descent.

Cohasset Harbor (Across from Kimballs) 383-9683

By Lois Martin

People are picking on the T. And you don't have to live in Boston or use the service to be a critic of it. That's part of what we in 55 towns who chip in on it get for our money...the right to complain.

We on the sunny south shore are in the unique position of investing in the T, about $225,000 a year each, without having to bother to ride it. We have a just-in-case understanding. We let them have our money and then someday, maybe when we've got this urge to see if mugging, molesting and fire reports on the different lines are true, we can drive to Boston, park the car and ride the T. All at our own convenience. It's there if we want it.

PATCHES

And Barry Locke, well he's a household word, like Carlton Fiske or Kevin White, the city people whose names we get to drop.

People are wrong when they say we don't get anything for our money. You've no idea how much mail local newspapers get from the T. They don't put out a "Men Working" sign without notifying us. Let there be a change in the Lechmere schedule, or Arlington's conductor, we hear it first.

I'd always wondered if suburban people didn't have their own lines because they didn't have the knack of standing up on the trains. That's an art. Got to get your heels just so before the lurches so as not to embarrass yourself hurtling on the laps of seated youths. One woman told me she never rode the T without having some man "rubbing up against" her. I'd feel more responsible reporting that if I could check it out. But I don't get Intown much.

Last Thursday came the exciting news that a study committee, our favorite government activists, presented a report for a rail line to the Cape. They said it would cost us $37 million to hook the Cape to Amtrak. It would be $61 million to attach the South Shore to South Station.

That's the one I want. We towns who haven't used the service and have paid for it could just say that's where we want our money applied. Surely they've been banking it for us till we benefited from the service. And we can organize to buy our own rail cars at $1 million each.

We'd get to name our own color lines. I like fuschia, mocha, cornflower blue for a start. On the radio every morning we'd listen and hear what lines have floods or just can't run that day because a brake hose broke.

There was an implication that the service could be completely under the MBTA's management. Unnverving to some people. But now's the time to show them we will only pay for the new line when we get the service.

Use the old dodges creditors have perfected. This year when they want our money, the town should say the check's in the mail...or the boss is on vacation and has the folder of bills with him.

Better still we'll tell them we never got the bill at all and we'll pay it only when we've had a detailed list of the services we've used and the specific charges. We could keep promising to pay within 10 days...or blame it on the bookkeeper. Say she loused up the payables system just before she quit and the new guy hasn't figured her books out yet. If that doesn't work, tell the T we've just moved and everything's still in boxes or that we already paid and they've lost the check if the Post Office didn't send it to Hawaii.

If those don't work, go for Mr. Locke's sympathy. Cry on his shoulder, tell him what tough times we're having down here buying gas, let alone honoring his union contracts. Nobody's paid us and we're carpooling to 2½ budget cut meetings...or the town treasurer has mauno. Anything.

But they tell me that isn't how they work it. We don't get a bill and send them the money. They just take it out in some Boston office and put in the T expense vat. So now the 55 towns are getting mad. They've put it in the hands of a lawyer. They want to pay less money for the services they don't get. And that makes sense.

Hey, listen, we're not unreasonable down here. Anytime they want to talk with us about transportation, we're willing. We'll hold an annual meeting on the South Shore along about August. We'll have the assessment check waiting for them. And we'll send one of the gray horses from the Marshfield Fair to fetch them, right after the horse pulling event. What the T management needs anyway is a lot more horse sense.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

This dreariest of months seems a little more tolerable when spent in the company of friends. Somehow the day is brighter when viewed over a cup of coffee in somebody else's living room. That was how it seemed one February morning when Helen and Helen Ann Burgess hostessed a Valentine's gathering at their home overlooking the North River. Pots of bright red tulips, a huge poinsettia flourishing as though it were December instead and colorful plants made splashes of color that contrasted pleasantly with the gloom outside. As always, the talk turned to recipes and I was lucky enough to come away with these most unusual

GOODIES

1 tsp. vanilla
1 c. dates, chopped fine
1 c. coconut, flaked
1 c. nuts, chopped fine
1 c. confectioner's sugar
1 egg, beaten
1/2 pkg. chocolate bits, melted
1/4 c. melted parafin

Roll first six ingredients into balls, dusting hands with confectioner's sugar, to prevent sticking. After chocolate bits and parafin have been melted together in double boiler, dip the balls into the warm mixture, placing balls which now look like bon bons on waxed paper to cool.

We are fast becoming a nation of cookie monsters. For example, Boston's Chipyard sells over thirty thousand cookies a day. Well aware of how fattening they may be, how chock full of sugar and that they are "no-no's," many of us think back to our childhood when the cookie jar was seldom empty. Perhaps it won't be too bad if our children have the same fond memories, so, forgetting our guilt pangs, why not try these forbidden fruits served by Ginny Gill, Phyllis Dane and Sandy Hawes at a Community League luncheon and called

CHERRY CHOCOLATE SQUARES

Grease and flour a 10x15 jelly roll pan or 13x9 pan.
Mix by hand until blended:
1 pkg. chocolate cake mix
1 tsp. almond extract
1 can cherry pie filling
2 eggs beaten
Pour into pan, bake at 350 for 25-35 min., depending on pan size.
Frost with:
1 c. granulated sugar
5T butter

1/2 c. milk, boiled and stirred constantly for 1 min. Remove from heat and add 1 6 oz. pkg. chocolate chips, stirring until melted. Pour over cooled squares.

For those of us left behind to suffer through the last dregs of winter here in the frozen north, we don't waste time lolling in the Florida sun, or dipping in Bahamian waters. No sir, we're always on the move, knowing it's one way of keeping warm. Preparing a dinner party for one's friends entails a little extra work, but it's rewarding if your guests appreciate a dessert such as this

GRANDMA MARY'S PECAN PIE

3 T. butter [chopped up]
2 c. brown sugar
2 T. flour
2 eggs, beaten
3/4 c. milk
1 tsp. vanilla
1 c. pecans, chopped fine

Mix all together and pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake until knife inserted comes out clean in a 375 degree oven for 40 to 45 min.

Cohasset kids escape harm following high speed chase

By Patricia Desmond

The story has all the elements that lead to tragedy.

Three young hostages, a man with a gun, a small town robbery, a shooting, a high-speed police chase through winding roads and residential neighborhoods.

Luckily, Chris and Heidi Pratt of Cohasset and their friend, Mike Roman of Scituate, escaped the ordeal without serious physical harm.

And just as luckily, Quincy Patrolman Dick Churchill, a former Cohasset officer, ducked down in his cruiser at the instant a shot pierced the windshield, lodging in the driver's seat. His head had been there only a few seconds before.

The three hostages went to Quincy City Hospital after being freed. They were released and spent most of the night at the Hingham police station going over the story.

Two Hingham officers, Patrolmen Mills and Cadigan, are out on injured list due to a scuffle over a gun after the chase.

Police asked that the suspect arrested after a chase 10 minutes and 12 miles long be held in lieu of $100,000 bail. The man faces four life terms in prison.

Instead he was arraigned at the hospital and bail was set at $50,000 without surety or $3,500 cash.

A Cohasset officer said there is a move underway to keep the man jailed for parole violations.

The night of bloodshed began shortly before 9 p.m. Friday as the Stop and Shop in Cohasset was robbed of $3,251 by a lone gunman, wearing an overcoat and brandishing a silver semi-automatic.

He took money from the manager, and according to eyewitness reports, pushed customers out of the way to get to the cashiers. He forced each cashier to empty their money drawer into his bag.

The man fled into the woods behind South Shore Bank. Within minutes a car was stopped by a Hull cruiser at Route 3A and King St. An injured man was inside.

The injured man is identified as James Sico of Somerville. Today he's at Mass. General Hospital awaiting arraignment in connection with the armed robbery.

Bobby's back!

Bobby Beale lies in fair condition at Massachusetts General Hospital. Still his mother is happy.

Now that the 19-year-old Bobby is home, Jean Beale is sure he will improve.

"When he got off the plane (Saturday), he looked like he had had the long flight," she said, her voice filled with joy at his homecoming.

Marshfield Atty. F. Lee Bailey had ferried the comatose young man back to Boston from Cape Canaveral, Florida. Bailey donated the flight that hundreds of well-wishers were working to pay for.

Now all that money will go to a trust fund for Bobby's care, according to Sally Wood, one of the organizers of the drive to bring Bobby home.

She said almost $9,000 has been raised and another fundraiser is planned.

"Our goal was to get him home. We were trying to raise $6,277 (for an air ambulance) when Mr. Bailey changed all that.

"We had no intention of raising such large sums. In fact we thought it impossible to get the

Murray defended by GAG leader

Casino proponents take offensive

The question of casino gambling is murkier than the water off Black Rock Beach.

The proponents got their campaign off the ground royally last week. First officials of MGM talked about their plans for development with members of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Alvin Benedict, president of MGM, said his company would abandon its plans to build a hotel on the 64-acre Hall Estate in Hull if gambling isn't legalized.

The chamber is studying the issue.

Then a crowd of several hundred turned out for a pro casino blitz in Hull.

Their facts and assessments differ radically from the anti-casino gambling forces.

For instance, Leon Dragone of Greylock Associates, which is working with MGM on the project, said a casino bill would be out of legislative committee in two weeks.

Not so, said Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, R-Cohasset, she says the bill is on a back burner now.

Even within the anit-casino forces you see differences. Last week there was a statement issued under the heading of the Group Against Gambling, GAG, blasting Murray for taking a stand on a talk show as being willing to go along with a casino study commission.

The press release written by a man who worked for Murray's opposition in the last election pointed out the only study bill pending this year involves a commission which would really iron out the details for casino legislation, rather than study the issue on its merits.

Carol Oteri, GAG chairman, whose name was also on the release said this week she hadn't seen it until it was published.

Carol commended the representative for the work she is doing for GAG and said she wants her group to remain united in the fight against gambling.

Rep. Murray, reached at the State House for comment, said she never considered the study bill could pass.

"It was filed at request," she said. "Which means the representative didn't support it. Like me, he is anti-casino. Those bills never have a chance.

"Of course I couldn't support that bill."

She went on to take issue with the porponents of casino gambling in Hull.

"They think they're all going to get jobs," she said. "But there are 15,000 people employed by casinos in Atlantic City and only 300 of them are Atlantic City people or even people from the county. I called the mayor down there myself and confirmed this."

She said that should her group fail to kill the casino gaming issue, she's going to do what she can to insure that statistic doesn't repeat itself.

Golden seeks Selectman's seat

Doris Golden announced her candidacy this week for a three-year term on the Cohasset Board of Selectmen.

She and Mary Jane MacArthur are seeking the seat held by Arthur Clark who has announced he won't seek re-election this year.

Stating that she will offer full-time availability and accountability to the position, Mrs. Golden feels her former record and service as a member of the Cohasset School Committee (she was chairman of that Committee for five of the six years she served) will provide her with the following tools needed to serve as Selectman:

Leadership; fiscal accountability; a sound knowledge of how town government operates, budget planning and presentation; labor negotiations; personnel evaluations; contract purchasing; a knowledge of how to obtain and implement state and federal grants, and parliamentary skills.

"Under Proposition 2½, my primary concerns will be accountability to the taxpayer for governmental appropriations and direction. Afterall, we have a large number of semi-retired and retired persons living on fixed incomes," she said in a statement.

She would also seek greater, invited cooperation from town department heads, town employees and officials from abutting towns with regard to common municipal problems such as regional landfill planning, sewerage and transportation problems.

But more importantly, the statement continued, Mrs. Golden feels she has "The ability to work with people, both young and old, and from all walks of life. Isn't that what government is really all about in the final analysis?" she asked.

"In my attempt to control expenditures within a system (school system) that is the largest employer in the Town — its fiscal budget being in excess of 50 per cent of the Town's total budget, I instituted the

Cohasset's week

Bartow appointed an advisor

Stephen Bartow of 48 Sohier St., has been appointed to the Advisory Committee to fill the unexpired term of Terrance White who recently resigned. The term ends in April, 1983. The appointment was made at a meeting of the appointing authority which consists of the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen Arthur Clark, Chairman of the Advisory Committee Jean Cotton, and Town Moderator David Place.

Bartow is vice president and group leader of taxable income bond funds at Fidelity Management and Research Company, Boston.

Mileage increase, again

Selectmen want to increase the mileage fee paid to town employes using their cars on town business from 15 to 18 cents a mile.

The issue came up last week for the third week in a row. The board wanted to make sure the full cost of the change was known before backing it.

Lump sums to three town officials will stay the same. Steve Wigmore, wiring inspector, gets $1,000 a year. James Litchfield, building inspector, gets $1,900. Health Agent Kevin O'Brien gets $2,000.

School department employes who travel the most for the town make $3,000 a year at the old rate for going roughly 20,000 miles a year.

If the figure had increased to 20 cents instead of 18, it would have added $1,000 to the school budget.

Merit scholar finalists

Principal Richard Streeter of Cohasset High School announced two members of the Class of 1981 have been named as Finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program.

Charles M. Bliss, Jr., and Philip R. Dormitzer join nearly 14,000 other secondary school seniors nationwide in competition for Merit Scholarships. These awards include at least 1,000 National Merit $1,000 scholarships and over 3,500 four-year Merit scholarships. Winners will be known in April.

Streeter said four other seniors earned letters of commendation. He also pointed out that the honors conferred on the two boys continued the "streak" at C.H.S. for the past five years of having at least one Merit scholar in each graduating class. C.H.S. has had thirteen select students in the past ten years.

While acknowledging individual native intelligence, Streeter said the curriculum and faculty in the Cohasset system, as well as community support of the schools may well be responsible to some degree for these acheivements.

Weisenfluh resigns

Assessor F. Allen Weisenfluh resigned last week, a few days ahead of schedule, to make sure someone could run for his unexpired term.

The deadline for taking out nomination papers is Friday, March 6.

Brian Wilkin of Pratt Court took out nomination papers for the vacancy almost immediately.

Grave costs may rise

The cemetery committee hasn't been heard from lately so the selectmen are planning to take the matter into their hands.

The town is running out of land for cemetery use. That's not a new story.

The selectmen are considering increasing the price of lots in town cemeteries. They want to know what neighboring towns charge before they more further.

The board will also decide soon whether to reactivate the cemetery committee or just handle the problem itself.

Ambulance fees up

The cost of trips to the hospital in the town fire ambulance was increased by the selectmen last week.

It used to cost $25 for emergency transportation in town. Now it will cost $75 to either South Shore Hospital in Weymouth or Quincy City Hospital.

Hospital runs to Boston, Brockton and Plymouth will cost $85.

The board decided on the fees partially because most of the patients have either private health insurance or Medicaid to cover the higher fee.

Anyone unable to pay the bill may seek an abatement.

Manhunt launched by Cohasset police

A would-be rapist is loose and while police have no suspects, residents are calling the station with all sorts of possibly related information.

A 14-year-old girl told police a man attempted to rape her Friday night about 10 p.m. as she walked alone on Summer Street.

The girl ran to the door of a house on Summer Street at 10:05 p.m. and asked the woman who answered the door to call the police for her.

She told the police the would-be rapist was hiding in the hedge by St. Anthony's Church. He grabbed her from behind as she passed.

After the incident, the man, described as 5 feet 9 inches tall with dark hair and a moustache, got into a silver compact car parked nearby and left.

The girl and her parents were taken to South Shore Hospital where a representative of the Norfolk County Rape unit talked with the victim.

Above is the Police Department's composite of the man sought on attempted rape. He's a white male, 5'9", medium build with sandy hair, about 26 to 29 years old and has a New England accent. He was wearing a tan crew neck sweater and tan corduroy pants. Subject may be a heavy beer drinker and may seek medical aid for a bite on his right hand.

Casino proponents on offensive

She has legislation already drawn to force the casinos to hire Hull people first and then people from the surrounding towns.

Officials of MGM and Greylock say local people will be hired.

Bob Burns of the Hull planning board said Hull people would have first refusal on any jobs.

The hotel complex described thus far is a $76 million property. Construction costs would come to $65 million of that.

The casino itself would be 40,000 square feet. The hotel would be 400 rooms with tennis courts, indoor, outdoor pool and par 3 golf course.

Customers would travel to the resort by hydrofoil from Boston.

Nancy Burns, chairman of VOICE, a pro-casino group in Hull, said legislation will be filed to change the tax revenue formula for casino gaming.

The present bill calls for the casino earnings to pay a seven percent tax to the state, with 80 percent going to the elderly and 20 percent to the state's general fund.

Nancy wants 50 percent of the state tax coming back to Hull.

Tom Chirillo, Hull assessor, told the Sunday rally that the town's property values would increase by 50 percent if the development were built.

He said that would erase the whole effect of the cuts in services required by Proposition 2½.

Selectman Claudette Fitzsimmons criticized Rep. Murray and Sen. Allan McKinnon for their stand against casino gambling.

"Neither one knows much about the town of Hull and I don't feel either one cares about Hull.

"We're a small, little pennisula sticking in the middle of the harbor. No one comes here unless they want to. No town can survive without transient trade."

She said the opponents are using scare tactics and that it is unfair to compare the situation to Atlantic City.

She said the Atlantic City tax rate went down from $79 to $40 since 1977 and values have gone up.

The higher the value the lesser the tax rate, she pointed out. The people on either side of the issue point out that while that is true the tax bills themselves have gone up.

If the project is to go through, Hull town meeting will have to rezone the Hall Estate for the hotel complex by a two-thirds vote. The land is now one acre single family housing under the zoning bylaw.

A planning board hearing on the zoning article is scheduled for March 11 at the Damon School in Hull.

Meanwhile Cohasset GAG members want to withdraw a petition they filed to put the casino question on the town ballot.

Town officials don't know whether the withdrawal can be done.

ICE BOATING — The Mill River may not be ice-crusted but it's just as cold as a well-clothed man paddles his kayak through the rough waters. The boater kept his craft upright despite the turbulent currents. (Derr photo)

Barbara Kern a Health Board candidate

Barbara Kern announced her candidacy this week for a seat on the Board of Health.

She is running for the two year term created by the resignation of Lynn Buckley.

A resident of Cohasset for over 20 years, she has followed the growth of the town with interest. During this time she has attended Board of Health meetings as an observer and interested citizen.

She has been active in the campaign for a Bottle Bill, and is a member of the recycling program in town. During her activity with recycling she found that one of the most important problems facing the Board of Health is the town landfill area.

Ms Kern served as chairman of the League of Women Voters past study of the landfill, and is on the present study committee.

She was awarded a fellowship at Tufts where she studied environmental law, and land use and planning.

She feels that her knowledge of town boards and how they function, especially the Board of Health, make her qualified to be an active participant on the Board of Health, and would bring a balance to the board.

Correction

The Mariner apologizes for last week's front page headline which said that although Proposition 2½ will not be fatal, "33 teachers may go." Superintendent Crowell's preliminary budget proposes the elimination of 33 positions in the school system, including 12 2/5 classroom teachers, 5 1/2 aides, two student advisors, one librarian (Deer Hill), one media technician (high school), one guidance secretary, two supervisors and eight coaches. Not 33 teachers.

On recording town meeting

Letters

To the Editor:

At the Special Town Meeting held last Fall in Cohasset, at which the undersigned presided as Town Moderator, the question was raised by a duly accredited news reporter whether she might electronically record the proceeding.

I advised the Meeting that Cohasset's bylaws specified that the meetings follow the rules of Johnson, Trustman, and Wadsworth's "Town Meeting Time," and that Section 22 thereof questioned the advisability of such recording (on the theory that it might inhibit the free public speaking of the citizens), and left the decision in "the moderator's power...in his sound discretion," provided that if he allowed it, he should advise the Meeting that a record was being made.

"Town Meeting Time" pre-dates both G.L.c. 39 Sec. 23B and G.L. c. 272 Sec. 99 of the Massachusetts laws, and I requested opinion of Town Counsel on this issue. Under date of January 5, 1981, Mr. J. Blake Thaxter, Counsel to the Town, rendered his opinion that, although the statutes are not clear as to whether c. 39 Sec. 23B applies to a Town Meeting and there are no judicial cases in point, a recording may be made by news persons of such a meeting without permission of the Meeting and that the Moderator, for reasons of courtesy and avoidance of possible violation of c. 272 Sec. 99 ("Secret use of such devices by private individuals must be prohibited"), should advise the Meeting if recording is taking place. Under c. 39 Sec. 23B the issue is whether a Town Meeting (open meeting type) is of a "governmental body" because such a meeting is not included in the statutory definition of "governmental body." The opinion relies finally on certain general considerations, namely, Freedom of the Press and desirability of having an informed public.

I am pleased to follow the opinion of our Town Counsel.

David E. Place
Town Moderator

Disturbed about gambling

To the Editor:

We have read a great deal recently on the issue of casino gambling. As a property owner in Hingham, I am deeply concerned about the possibility of a casino opening within walking distance of my home.

It will disturb the natural beauty of the Hingham, Cohasset and Hull area and offer nothing in return to the residents of the surrounding towns. As a concerned parent I am much more concerned with the effects a casino will have upon the environment I have attempted to create for my family.

We are recent residents of Massachusetts, having come from New Jersey less than two years ago. We watched casino gambling come to New Jersey with all of the high hopes and promises familiar to all of us and now, just a few years later, the hopes are gone and the promise of tax relief a memory but nothing more.

We urge all of your readers to write to their legislators and demand that they vote against any measure on casino gambling. Its negative effects far outweigh its positive attributes. Massachusetts already has its lottery system for the gambler in us. Let the lobbyists, the MGM Grands and all other interested parties take their product to a state where maintaining a decent and healthy environment is not as high a priority as it is in Massachusetts.

Money well spent

The advisory board is going to up the police budget despite Proposition 2½ and despite stringent cost-cutting in other departments.

We think the board is being wise.

If the members had any doubts, the events of Friday night should still them. The attempted rape of a child. An armed robbery. A shooting. Kidnapping.

After an Abington man was arrested and hospitalized, Cohasset's small police force, which did an excellent job in working towards apprehension, didn't have the manpower to guard the prisoner.

Chief John DeBassio said his men provided some of the police coverage at Quincy City Hospital over the weekend. Officers from Hingham and Quincy provided coverage on other shifts.

"We run a fairly tight schedule," the chief said. "Sharing the coverage helped with the budget."

By Monday the man was turned over to the Norfolk County Sheriff, having been arraigned in the hospital. The sheriff had him transferred to Lemmuel Shattuck Hospital where there is a secure facility.

The other man charged in connection with the armed robbery remains at Massachusetts General Hospital where hospital security police are handling the situation.

So far no firm figure is available on the coming police budget. Chief DeBassio explained that the advisory board is still discussing some of the accounts.

But the board is willing to go along with the hiring of two new police employes for the 16 man department. And both cruisers will be replaced this year.

From reading the police log week after week, we remember cruisers that won't start or keep stalling. We are sure replacing the cars is good economy.

We also think real economy means providing basic services to the town. It should be taken for granted that people have the right to live in peace.

Obviously as the events of Friday night indicate, peacefulness, even in a town as out of the way as Cohasset, is not a given. Society must protect itself.

At the same time, a man tried to rape a 14-year-old child in one of the more widely-frequented areas of the community as police were searching for the robber only a couple miles away.

"Those nights don't happen too often," Chief DeBassio said as he discussed the situation later.

"But they're happening more frequently."

Pro gambling VOICE(s) list the good points

The following information was passed out this week by the Hull-based VOICE, a pro-casino group:

—Minimum of $1.75 million in Real Estate taxes. That means $10 per $1,000 valuation reduction in taxes. Current rate is $70 per $1,000; it would go to $60. For a house assesed at $25,000 that's $250 less. Additional taxes from the gaming will be divided between town and state — that could mean another $5 million.

—80% of adult Americans gamble and believe it to be moral. (Federal Commission on Gambling in America)

—Unemployment in Atlantic City has dropped from 26% in March 1976 to 7.9% December 1980. (January 1981 Urban Affairs)

—Hotel occupancy is higher with a casino as an amenity. Average hotel occupancy runs around 70%. In top Las Vegas hotels it exceeds 90%. (April 14, 1980 Forbes)

—Business in town would be a year-round (12 months) instead of only 10 weeks during the summer.

—Low income groups show lower participation rates for gambling than higher income groups. 74% of those betting have incomes of over $15,000. (Federal Commission on Gambling in America)

—The increase in violent crime in Atlantic County has gone down since the introduction of casino gambling — 23.9% in 1977-78 to 16% in 1978-79. (Uniform Crime Reporting Unit, New Jersey State Police)

—The spin-off effect would be tremendous. Other quality businesses such as hotels, restaurants, and a variety of specialty shops would come if there were people with money to frequent them. Moreover, those businesses currently here would be able to upgrade.

—Possible spin-offs include: year-round boat service (frequent trips), marina development, deep sea fishing, aquarium re-opened, Nantascot Mall re-opened, more frequent bus service, hotels, restaurants, shops, etc. For every 10 jobs created 4 would be indirectly created.

—"Legalized gambling is a major industry in Massachusetts and, as such, makes a considerable contribution to the local economy," said Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, in a statement made before the Federal Commission on Gambling in America.

—What other option is left for Hull? We are a resort area — our only assets are our beaches, views and harbor. We are deadended — it isn't feasible for any other industry to develop here.

For 16 years we've been waiting for redevelopment, including a motel-restaurant-shopping center and marina. No one's interested, except for a project to be funded with the help of the Hull Housing Authority. Recently Scituate asked for developers to make proposals on a planned unit concept including a 250 hotel-restaurant-marina, extension of a golf course to 18 holes and 250 townhouse units. Only 1 developer made any proposal and it was for townshouses.

Why? Because with our climate there must be an inducement for people to come during the non-season months. A small-limited operation casino is a drawing card.

Studds skeptical of C.G. user fees

By U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds

One the the most controversial recommendations in President Ronald Reagan's budget package will almost certainly be his proposal to levy a fee on those who benefit directly from services provided by the Coast Guard.

While details on this proposal have not yet been released, the Administration has indicated it would like to phase in "user fees" over the next four years, and believes they could eventually pay for half the costs of the Coast Guard. Under such a plan, a charge would be levied for all direct adminstrative services, like the issuance of licenses and safety inspections, and indirect services like the maintenance of buoys, navigational lights, and rescue helicopters.

The Administration estimates these costs would run from $10 to $20 annually for a recreational boat used on inland waterways to between several hundred and a thousand dollars for a commercial vessel operating in coastal waters.

My subcommittee on Coast Guard will, of course, carefully study the Administration's proposal. I must say in all candor, however, that I approach it with enormous skepticism. Such a system of fees would require an awesome amount of new paperwork to administer; it could reduce marine safety by encouraging mariners to circumvent now normal safety procedures in order to save money; and it would force the Coast Guard to become bill collectors, thereby making it even more difficult for them to carry out the vitally important duties assigned them by the Congress.

Lisa-Anne and Jerry Cogill are the parents of a daughter, Kyra Lee, born Feb. 14 at South Shore Hospital weighing 8 lbs. 8 ozs. They also have a son Jerry Jr., who is two-and-a-half. Grandparents are Peg and Rocky Laugelle and Flossie Cogill, all of Cohasset.

Meka-Mari Laugelle, a first grader in Mrs. Fink's class, is an aunt, second time around, too. She's extremely proud of her niece and nephew!

Sherry and David Ross Jr. of South Main Street became the parents of a second daughter, Stephanie Ross, on Feb. 18 at South Shore Hospital. Her sister Candice, is 14 months old.

Grandparents are Stan and Ronnie Trevains of Scituate and Lorraine and David Ross of Georgia. Great grandparents are Arlene Frates of Cohasset, Ruth and William Raymond of Maine and Evelyn and Earl Christian of Weymouth. Mrs. Annie Carlson of Marshfield is great, great grandmother.

Peter Reardon of 8 Westgate Lane has been named to the Dean's List for the first semester at Syracuse University. He will graduate in May.

DEER HILL OUTDOOR SCHOOL

Colby Mantz's design for the fifth grade class outdoor school emblem won first place in the Deer Hill School's contest and will accompany the students on their T-shirts and school flag when they spend the week of March 16 on Thompson's Island.

Each year the fifth grade students each create a design which includes "Deer Hill Outdoor School" and the year. Each class votes for two of the best in their own rooms and the whole class votes for one of the ten semi-finalists.

Runners-up were Heather St. Onge, Cindy Spooner, Jason Marsac, Diane Convery, MaryBeth McNamara, Rebecca McCathy, David Shultz, Sarah Hamilton and Elizabeth LaBash.

Deer Hill students were treated to two baseball films the day before winter vacation compliments of Cohasset resident Bill Enos, Red Sox super scout. The kids were appropriately primed for the warm vacation weather with the viewing of a World Series and Red Sox game film.

Richard Jagoutz, Deer Hill physical education teacher for the past seven years, has left his job and joined a large manufacturer of computerized business forms. He will be staying in this area with a sales territory in the greater Boston and south area. We wish him good luck!

Joe Potolicchio, Old Pasture Road dweller, has started a new hobby (a neighbor of his told us) of collecting chairs from Boston hotels....

A new company that supplies Shaklee Company natural food supplements and non-polluting cleaning products called "J & J Enterprises," held an awards dinner last weekend. Terry Mulcahy and Alice McCarthy were honored for achieving the highest number of points in a recent business training course given by the company. Bernie Mulcahy and Pat McCarthy provided the evening's entertainment.

"J & J" stands for Joyce and Jack MacDonald who began their fast growing business last May. Joyce says she was using the California company's products herself and was so impressed with their value ("One gallon of the laundry stuff lasts me four months!") that she started her wholesale and sales training business.

Many other families who became interested in the products and are using them are also selling Shaklee: they are John and Joanne Lennon, Alice McCarthy, Terry Mulcahy, Maureen O'Leary, Liz Kuhn, Ellie Waal, Nancy Bruno, Jeanne Broadhurst, Joan McCarthy, Barbara Potolicchio, Corinne Cahill, Lucy Marsac, Joanne Sheppard, Mimi Anderson and Andrea Arbury.

We'd like to welcome the following new residents to Cohasset: James and Raye Runner, Atlantic Avenue; Richard and Ginny Abadassa, Old Coach Road; Eugene and Marie Crowell, Ledgewood Drive; William Brown, Aarron River Road; Alice McDonald, Aarron River Road and Robert and Jo Peterson, also of Aarron River Road.

Philip and Lucy Johnson and their son Christian, who lived a short while on Ripley Road, have moved to Denver, Colorado where Philip has a new job with Boettcher & Company, investment bankers.

If a Cohasset brownie or girl scout hasn't rung your doorbell yet for cookie sales and you want to order some, call Deborah Haase (383-1904) or Rebecca Bates (383-6692). Troop cookie managers of Cohasset's seven troops are Kathy Brennock, Debbie Idoine, Jean Bailey, Linda Ash, Diane Jackson, Irene Lord and Jan Pyle. The cookie sale is the largest single source of income for the troops and their council so please support your sweet tooth with generous orders!

Wages going up for library pages ?

The library pages at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are paid less than the minimum wage.

This, although a little known fact, is hardly an expose.

There is no law mandating the town to comply with state and federal minimum wage legislation.

Richard Hayes, library director, said this year's wage rate of $2.72 an hour is a step towards the more accepted minimum.

Last year the pages made $2.43 per hour.

The minimum wage for all employes except municipalities is $3.35 an hour.

"Our kids enjoy the jobs very much," Hayes said. "That's why they work here. Some have left and have taken other jobs but no one has ever told me the reason they were leaving was the money."

The library trustees are trying to increase the salary, Hayes said.

"That's why we're up from $2.43."

The pages are all high school students who work afternoons, evenings and weekends. There are usually three or four pages employed. Their hours add up to 45 per week.

Hayes described his young workers as enthusiastic.

He said there are two schools of thought behind the opposition to raising the wage.

Some say if there are enough kids willing to work for the money, it should be left as it is.

The other line is that the job of a page is basically deadend and turnover is good.

"The idea is if you raise the pay too much, you'll have adults apply for what really is a good student job.

He said there are people who begin their professional careers in library science because of their start as a page. But the actual courses required for library work are given at the masters' level.

Hayes said he has seen a decrease in the numbers of high school students looking for the job. He used to have 40 applicants for an advertised job opening. Now he has 10.

The actual job is given out on the basis of a test.

"I try to be as objective as possible," he said. "We want to show the kids the job requires content."

"All these things are being donated. Whatever will happen will happen."

The next event is Friday, March 6, from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at Dreamwold in Scituate. The fundraiser is a Las Vegas night with equipment donated by a man from Bourne and music donated by two bands. The hall has also been donated.

"People have just been so wonderful," Mrs. Beale said. She said that by Sunday she thought she could see Bobby looking better.

Sunday she and her two daughters visited Bobby at Mass. General Hospital.

The visit was after a concert, also a benefit for Bobby, at Cohasset High School.

Bobby was injured Jan. 30 as he walked along a road in Cape Canaveral on his way back to where his shrimp boat was docked. The young man had been working as crew on the shrimp boats since last fall.

He's been in a coma ever since.

Murray endorses women's bills

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, R-Cohasset, joined with her fellow Women's Legislative Caucus members last week to announce this year's number one Caucus Priority: protection against domestic violence.

"Despite passage of the Abuse Prevention Act which provides for emergency legal remedies to victims of domestic violence, a number of areas are in need of clarification before victims can receive appropriate assistance," said Caucus member and bill co-sponsor Senator Sharon Pollard (D-Methuen).

"Domestic violence continues to be a serious problem in the country. F.B.I. statistics indicate that a wife-beating occurs every 18 seconds in the United States, and that the crime of battering women is the largest single crime committed, and the least reported," said Rep. Murray.

She continued by pointing out that "28 million American wives — more than one half of the country's married women — are victims of physical abuse at the hands of their husbands. And, child abuse kills more children each year than any other cause. As if this wasn't enough, elder abuse continues to be a shocking and pervasive problem in this country. Legal Research and Services for the Elderly conducted a survey showing that elder abuse victims are likely to be women living with a relative or family member."

Murray, who represents Cohasset, Hingham and Hull concluded that "domestic violence is killing and maiming our children, their parents and grandparents...we must put a stop to this senseless violence and brutality."

The Domestic Violence Protection amendments supported by the Women's Legislative Caucus will provide immediate relief for all victims of domestic violence, whether they are children, parents or grandparents by clarifying procedures to make existing law more workable.

Along with the amendments to the 1978 Domestic Violence Law, Caucus members cited a number of other areas which will receive their support and efforts. They include displaced homemakers, the elderly, foster care, health care and job training programs for welfare recipients.

Terri Cone

Terri Cone competes for Miss Massachusetts

Terri Cone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Cone of Cohasset has been selected as an entrant in the 1981 Massachusetts-USA Pageant being held at the Sheraton-Lincoln Inn in Worcester this Friday and Saturday.

The State Pageant will select the Massachusetts Representative to the Miss U.S.A. Pageant to be nationally televised on CBS-TV from the Mississippi Gulf Coast in May.

Miss Cone, who was selected as an entrant at large, is competing with girls from all over the state for the title of Miss Massachusetts-USA.

She is a graduate of Cohasset High School and is now doing various jobs at the Red Lion Inn; she is also a beauty consultant for Colose Cosmetics.

While in high school, Terri participated in 9th grade basketball, a few art displays, and won a Jimmy Carter Physical Fitness Award. Her other activities include dancing, sailing, painting, horseback riding and swimming.

One of the requirements of the Massachusetts-USA Pageant is that each entrant wear a costume descriptive of the area she represents. Terri plans to wear a Red Lion outfit representative of the 1704 Red Lion Inn.

Terri Cone sponsors to the Massachusetts-USA Pageant are: Cards & Shards, Cookworks, Cohasset News, Carousel, Fleming Hardware, American Image Salon, Party Pantry, Scotts Liquors, Red Lion Inn, Hair Imports, Tom Cone, Helene Chadwick, Bob Noonan, Dependable Cleaners and Joseph Laugelle.

CCC nursery school fashion show coming

The Cohasset Community Center Nursery School will sponsor a spring parade of children's fashions Sunday, March 29, from 3 to 5 p.m.

Wrye's Country Store of Weymouth on Route 3A will provide the clothing and the commentary and the center nursery school will provide the models. Play clothes and dress attire will be shown. A local florist will provide flowering plants and shrubs to decorate the stage and tables. Nursery school parents, under the direction of Kathy Stevens, will serve dessert and coffee at intermission.

Tickets are on sale daily at the center from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The donations is $5.

For further information, call Jane Goff at 383-0223 or Lee Jenkins at 383-0024.

Proceeds will benefit the center nursery school.

How to rah, rah, rah at 40

By Patricia Desmond

Picture if you will, eight Cohasset matrons giving up their sensible and smart blazers, stick pins, and wool skirts.

Picture these women with ribbons in their gray or otherwise hair and cheering uniforms — exposing their sense of humor along with their thighs, all for something called school spirit.

You wouldn't have to picture it if you'd gone to the Varsity vs. the Faculty basketball game Friday at Cohasset High School.

The younger, regular, basketball cheerleaders went through their stuff with poise, agility, loveliness and unmeasured enthusiasm. They still couldn't compare with their older counterparts who had courage.

When the young things went out and did a cheer, the crowd, which I was told was very good for a basketball game, echoed some of the chant.

When the older things went out there onto the court at time out or a break, the words of the cheers couldn't be heard on the front row bleachers. But anyone could see they were trying.

Maybe because they realized they didn't have enough practice to carry their voices over a screaming gymnasium filled with kids, there were two coaches for the older things who were really part of the show.

JoAnn Fichtner and Beth Goff followed their beauties onto the floor holding up cue cards for the audience.

No one in the bleachers seemed able to read the message.

Would it have been so hard for people to have gone along with the instruction: Don't applaud, throw money?

After all many of the members of the older things cheering team are mothers of the young things basketball team. College educations aren't cheap these days.

One of the more controversial cards stated: Happiness is being a cheerleader.

As one mother said as she watched her son dunk it, "How can I root for the faculty when all year I've been rooting for the other team."

She beamed with pride at her dilemna.

So the game went on with the Varsity winning 88 to 84.

Until the final buzzer the old things took every chance they could get to move out onto the court and wriggle their shoulders, put their hands on their hips, sometimes they went so far as to shake their heads in unison.

The big finale was a pyramid built by using a step ladder.

The young things who wore carnations for their last game were jumpers, kickers and precision movers.

They include: June Robbins, Susie McCool, Donna Igo, Ellen Ciciotte, Maryellen Mauer, Lauren Smith, Maria Corelli, Lily Carbone, Sandra Goodman and Brenda Kehoe.

The old things who wore the navy and white uniforms of the hockey cheerleaders — most let out with pins — are: Carolyn Songer, Martha Gjesteby, Rose Duffey, Janet Ditmar, Roberta Raffa and Diane McMahon.

The varsity team who received trophies at half time are: Bill Kurtz, Bill Duffey, Greg Raffa, Keith Ross, Keith Goff, Steve Collins, T.J. O'Brien, Chuck Stockbridge, Dough McMahon and Dana Infusino.

The faculty team included someone from Hull no one seemed able to identify except as Minelli. Others are: Larry Shultz, Gregory Jones, Mike Gill, Jeffrey Wilbanks, Charles Mundhenk, Donald Kelly and Doug Fallon.

Annual CHS gymnastics show next week

The Cohasset High School gymnastic team will hold its annual gym show Thursday, March 12 at 7:30 p.m.

Led by co-captains Marcy Brown, a junior, and sophomore Karen Ekberg, this young and talented team will present competition exercises, tumbling routines and dances choreographed by the girls, themselves.

For more information call Rosee Duffy at 383-0292.

LEAVE & RESIGNATION

The school committee approved the request for a one year maternity leave of absence for Ann Marie League who is a mathematics teacher at the high school.

It accepted with regret a letter of resignation effective March 2 from elementary physical education teacher Richard Jagoutz, who taught at the Deer Hill School. His job has been filled with a long-term substitute who is "certified, qualified and known in this system," said Superintendent Crowell.

SPRING COACHING APPOINTMENTS

The committee approved the appointment of the following coaches, recommended by athletic director Clark Chatterton, high school principal Richard Streeter, and superintendent Crowell:

David Infusino, junior varsity baseball at $800; Edward Minelli, assistant track coach at $800; Charles Davis, head varsity track at $1,500; Ron Emmons, assistant track at $900; James Franey, golf at $800; Nancy Kealey, junior varsity softball at $990.47; Dennis Kuntz, varsity baseball at $1,500; William Fallon, head softball at $900; Greg Jones, boys' tennis at $700; and Peggy Lynch, girls' tennis at $900; all approved by a vote of 6-0.

The appointment of Clare Brady, assistant track coach at $900, was approved by a vote of 5-1, with Walsh voting no.

STUDENTS ON SCHOOL COMMITTEE

The Student Advisory Council reported its findings of a poll conducted among seventh through twelth graders concerning students as school committee members. Ninety-five percent said they wanted student participation on the committee. Council members Holly Grant, Katie Smalzel and Scott O'Toole agreed with the committee that the time commitment for two students would be great and discussed the possibility of rotating student representatives.

SCHOOL CALENDAR

A tentative school calendar for 1981-1982 was introduced. It shows school beginning for teachers August 31 and for students on September 3 and 4. Labor Day falls late this year — September 7 — and an earlier start would allow for Christmas vacation to begin on December 18 enabling the schools to be closed for two full weks and three weekends.

Fourth grade teacher-pupil ratio may decrease

by Karin Bartow

The pupil teacher ratio at the fourth grade level will most likely be decreased next year by the addition of an instructional aide and at least one member of the school committee wants to see the ratio in the Osgood School increased.

The committee seemed in agreement Monday night that they will beef up the fourth grade with an aide, or possibly two part-time aides. The proposed budget shows three fourth grade teachers covering 83 students, making the ratio of pupils to teachers 27-to-one.

Superintendent Crowell termed this grade "critical," but explained his rationale for help was teaching assistance in the areas of math, science and reading.

"If the committee feels nervous about that, there is another alternative," Crowell said. Funds for an aide could be juggled from those for a clerical aide at the school and $2,000 slated for a library card catalogue.

Principal Kenneth Ekberg indicated that he would be less nervous with this arrangement adding, "An aide will help do a more effective job of teaching children."

Superintendent Crowell said that he and school committee member Pat Walsh "have agreed to disagree" over the number of teachers in the Osgood School. Crowell defended the proposed number of classes with one teacher for every 20 students in Kindergarten through third grade saying every student should have "a good beginning in the primary grades with ratios as low as possible all the way through."

He also told the committee that during the early budget drafts the first and third grades had been cut deeply, but were reinstated in the final version with the only corresponding loss in the junior/senior high school, ninth grade typing.

Osgood Principal Jack Creamer added that "children should be looked at individually" and he strongly pointed out that the things children "bring to bear on school today are far different" than in the past.

Creamer also mentioned that he is concerned about a segment of prospective first graders that he feels may need a more individualized kind of "connecting experience."

The committee's preliminary look at the Osgood and Deer Hill budgets generated little discussion elsewhere. Some parents and Deer Hill Librarian Virginia Petitti, wondered about the savings from eliminating her position and replacing it with a full-time aide.

Crowell responded, "very little, if any, will be saved." However, he explained that his long-term point of view is to have overall direction and coordination of all school libraries and aides coming from the high school. He hopes to hire a high school librarian there with media skills.

Crowell will meet with Petitti to discuss her offer of cutting her time to equal the aide's salary next year in order to keep a certified librarian in the library.

The priority of a dydee doll, doll house, washer and dryer, log cabin, doll stroller and other play supplies totaling $349.30 for Kindergarten over class field trips was questioned by committee member Walsh.

"Most research today shows development of language is done through playing," Kindergarten teacher Christine Collins responded. She added that the Osgood Kindergarten has never been equipped properly and feels the items are "sophisticated material for five year olds."

A parent at the meeting, Maria Plante, offered that parents will be expecting to fund field trips in the future.

The committee will meet again on Monday, March 9 at 8 p.m. in the high school choral room. Budget review will resume with the high school administration, English, foreign language, mathematics, social studies, science, business education and industrial arts programs.

Newcomers meet

The March meeting of the Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club has just the incentive needed to forget the winter doldrums and begin thinking about our sprucing up of the yard.

A representative from Reed's Country Way Nursery, in Hingham, will be the speaker at the next meeting to give tips and suggestions on landscaping and preparing lawns for the upcoming season.

Why not join the club for this informative talk Monday, March 16 at 9:30 a.m. at the Unitarian Parish House, Cohasset.

Crane has 'lost' Cohasset money

State Treasurer Robert Crane this week released the names of 53,000 persons who are due to receive a record breaking $33 million dollars under the State's Unclaimed Money law. Crane noted that the 53,668 persons whose names appear on a computer printout distributed by the Treasury for publication in newspapers across the state have individual entitlements ranging from $25 to $252,000.

Under the State's Unclaimed Money Law (M.G.L. c.200A), accounts that have been lost, forgotten or otherwise inactive for seven years are declared abandoned and turned over to the state. Treasurer Crane tries to locate the owners to return their monies to them.

This year's amount of $33 million is the largest ever reported to the Treasury under this law. Treasurer Crane attributes this record breaking figure to two factors: New legislation and more aggressive enforcement. Said Crane; "For too long, banks, insurance companies, utilities and other financial institutions have held on to monies that do not belong to them. My office is trying to stop this practice. Through legislation we've reduced the number of years (from ten to seven) that companies are allowed to hold these monies without reporting to the state. Also, my auditing staff has been increasingly aggressive with reluctant reporters of unclaimed monies; in fact, we've sued John Hancock insurance for not reporting more than $3 million in unclaimed funds."

According to Treasurer Crane, a random sampling of those whose accounts have been reported as abandoned includes: Harvard College, the Sisters of Mercy, MIT, The Cafe Budapest, Sears Roebuck Company, National Geographic, the Boston School Committee and even the New Orleans Police Department. The majority of claims (over 35,000 of them) are worth between $25 and $100, however, there are 348 individuals who own accounts worth more than $10,000 each — with the biggest amount belonging to one claimant worth $252,000.

"The Unclaimed Money law is important in two respects," stated Treasurer Crane. In one respect it is a consumer protection law, protecting those who have property in Massachusetts. The other advantage of the law is for the taxpayer; because, until claimed all monies are placed in the General Fund where they are used for the benefit of all the people of Massachusetts."

COHASSET MONEY

According to the Treasurer's computer printout, the following Cohasset residents have unclaimed money: Mary H. Ahearn, Mary F. Antoine, Frances Antoine, Edward J. Antone, Rutherford Bailey Jr., Porter Baptista, Silvia Baptista, Richard Barke, Jeanne Barke, Arthur Bilodeau, Benjamin Blake, Helen Burroughs, Helen M. Burroughs, Ruth M. Campbell, Gertrude Chapin, Richard Margeson, James J. Cody Jr., Laura Bullard, Troop 28 Boy Scouts, c/o Nelson Pratt, Jr., John J. Devin Jr. and Sally Devin.

Also, Jane P. Dexter, John Dickson, Abbie J. Fahey, Mrs. Berden Fernald, Mary M. Foley, Helen Fox, Betsy Coffin, Richard A. Gale, Ida F. Gates, George Gonsalves, Mrs. J. Guido, Barbara Haberstroh, Edward Hastings, Pauline L. Hinchey, George T. Jones, Nancy Jones, Mary C. Kimpton, Theordore Kraynik, Lauri Kraynik, Edward Lamphier, Elizabeth Lamphier, Helen M. Lecture, David Noonan, Edward F. Logan and Malcolm Logan.

Also, John L. MacLean, Sarah MacLean, Andrew Mantineo, Helene Mantineo, Audrey A. Mantineo, Helen Mantineo, Fredia McTiti, Frank H. Montgomery, Carl Ortendahl, Charles Overbeck, Mary B. Overbeck, Hannah B. Paine, Arnold Paine, Thelma V. Patterson, Marsom B. Pratt and Bettin Pratt.

Also, Marilyn L. Quinn, Kelly J. Quinn, Joanne Reed, Michael Reed, Claude Rice, Margur Rice, Wellington Rodgers, Robert H. Ryan, Whitney L. Scott, Susan Scott, John F. Smith, Katherine Smith, Sumner Smith, Jr., Joyce M. Steele, James P. Stevens, Jean P. Stevens, Goetz Volmer, Carole E. Warren, James Warren Jr., Ann K. Whelan and James Whelan.

MOVING IN — Pat Duffey stretches into the range of the ball during the Varsity vs. Faculty game Friday at the High School. The Varsity won 88 to 84.

Kids escape harm

Police continued to hunt for the gunman, calling for state police dogs to search the woodlands.

Meanwhile, shortly after 11 p.m. the three local teenagers were in the parking lot at Cohasset Winter Gardens. They were forced to drive away by a man who told them he had a gun.

A call to the police station by someone who witnessed both the robbery and the kidnapping had police from Cohasset and surrounding towns looking for a Vega with a yellow ribbon tied to the antenna.

A Hingham cruiser spotted the car heading north on 3A. Before the chase was over, 23 cruisers from five police agencies were involved.

Speeds reached 100 miles per hour. Shots were fired back and forth. But police say they realized there were hostages in the car and no shots were fired into the fleeing vehicle.

Police attempted to set up road blocks at various points along the route. But the chase was moving too fast. Ten minutes after the call to Cohasset police on the kidnapping, the whole thing was over.

The pursued car, driven by Chris Pratt, stopped in a driveway in Quincy's Merrymount, blocked in by cruisers coming in both directions.

Two Quincy cruisers were damaged by bullet holes during the chase.

As the end came, the suspect jumped out of the car and faced the police, holding his gun ready to fire.

Five other cruisers pulled up. The suspect turned and ran. He was shot twice in the leg. Still he went for the gun on the ground and police from Hingham and Quincy dove to keep him from shooting.

Other police began to pull the upset hostages out of the car. They were handcuffed by Quincy officers for a brief time while being identified as victims of the crime.

By then a crowd of 150 milled about the area. Police roped the accident scene off, fending off the neighbors, roused by the flashing blue lights, gunfire and sirens.

Cohasset police chief John DeBassio, who went back to work as soon as the robbery happened, called participating police departments in the early morning hours, commending all the officers who were involved.

Lt. Charles Stockbridge, who handled communications for Cohasset police throughout the evening, commended all the Cohasset officers involved. Aside from the Chief and Stockbridge, the others were Sgt. Richard Barrow, Patrolmen David Palmarico, Paul Laugelle, Bob Jackson, Rick Grassie and Richard Fairbairn.

That includes the full compliment on both the 4 p.m. to midnight and midnight to 8 a.m. shift.

"They all did excellent work," Stockbridge said.

WOUNDED AND THEN ARRESTED — James Sico, 25, of Somerville is taken from a car in Cohasset a short time after the Stop and Shop robbery. The car is registered to the sister of another man arrested later. She called police that night from MCI Framingham to ask about her car.

THE ENDING — Above the three freed hostages move away from the end of the police chase in Quincy neighborhood. At right James Ferguson is carried away after being shot twice by police as he ran from the hostages' car.

CHS a co-winner in drama festival

The Cohasset Drama Club was named one of the two winners in the drama festival held last Saturday in Cohasset with their version of Jules Feiffer's "Hold Me."

Cohasset's cast also won the all-star cast ensemble award.

Duxbury High School was the other winner and Marshfield High School won the alternate award.

The Drama Festival, sponsored by the Massachusetts High School Drama Guild, the Massachusetts Secondary School Administrators Association and the Boston Globe, is held annually to encourage dramatic excellence in schools.

Cohasset's performance was the last on the day's agenda, following presentations from schools in Scituate, Norwell, Duxbury, Marshfield and Hull. Under the direction of Emmons, the cast and crew sailed smoothly through their first performane of Hold Me!, a dramatization of Jules Feiffer's cartoons.

Caroline Wampole, Cathleen Collins, Jerry White, Caroline Bonnar, Pat Duffy, Tim Libby, Missy Barcomb and Lindsay Gilmore offered humorous and often poignant performances as members of the cast. They were assisted by Leslie Collins, stage manager, Koren Lipsett, assistant stage manager and crew members Ed Booth, Matt Pakcard, Ken Ralff, Keith Ross, Bob Russell and Michelle Shea.

The semi-finals competition will also be held at Cohasset High School on Saturday, March 14 beginning at 10 a.m. Four winners will be chosen from the seven performing schools that day to go onto the State Festival at John Hancock Hall on March 27 and 28.

The schedule for the semi-finals is as follows: 10 a.m. Nauset Regional performing "Acrobats;" 10:40 a.m., Randolph High School with "Three Pills in a Bottle;" 11:30 a.m., Bishop Feehan performing a non-musical "Godspell;" 1:10 p.m., Sandwich performs "The Ugly Duckling;" 2 p.m., Joseph Case High School, Swansee presents "Vagabond Painter;" 2:50 p.m., Duxbury returns with "Rise and Shine;" and at 3:40 p.m. Cohasset is center stage with Hold Me! Admission is $2. Absolutely no one may enter or leave during any play.

Sorry, there are no photos of the Cohasset Drama Club's production. Our photographer, Greg Derr, was there but Ron Emmons, drama coach, was firm in his refusal to allow any pictures during the competition.

Our photographer, Greg Derr, was there but Ron Emmons, drama coach, was firm in his refusal to allow any pictures during the competition.

Emmons told a Mariner staff member that he would have allowed Greg to go back stage to take a few shots before the performances began.

Greg who doesn't think his work is disruptive said he wasn't planning to use a flash during the performances.

Wildlife talk at Historical Soc. dinner

Local history buffs, nature lovers, birders and amateur photographers will find something of interest at the dinner meeting of the Cohasset Historical Society Thursday, March 26.

The meeting will feature a slide show by Dr. Uve Hublitz of Cohasset who is recognized as one of the nation's outstanding amateur wildlife photographers.

The meeting, open to the public, will be held in Trueblood Hall of the Unitarian Parish House with a catered roast chicken dinner buffet at 6:30 p.m. Reservations at $5.50 should be made with Mrs. Howard Enders, 383-0743 or Mrs. Lawrence Parker, Jr., 383-0773, by Monday, March 23. Checks should be mailed to the Cohasset Historical Society, Box 324, Cohasset, MA 02025.

Dr. Hublitz, who has entertained scores of groups with his striking wildlife photographs, will focus on "Nesting Birds of the Eastern Shore," working in much history of the habits of the species in this area.

A radiologist at a Brockton Hospital, Dr. Hublitz has travelled widely throughout the U.S. on picture-taking projects. His work has appeared in the Audubon Magazine as well as at the Smithsonian Institute, the Museum of Science and the New England Aquarium.

Rec. Dept. to sponsor soccer, basketball

The Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct a Girls' Basketball League for Grades 8-12 Monday evenings from 6:30 to 9 at Cohasset High School.

The fee for the eight-week program is $6 per person with a 50 percent discount offered to families with more than one person registered. Bill Fallon, girls' varsity coach, will conduct the program which will begin Monday, March 16.

If interested, call the Recreation Department office at 383-6791 immediately.

SPRING SOCCER

The Recreation Department will accept registration via phone for boys and girls spring soccer leagues.

The program is designed for kids between 13 and 18.

There is a $10 per-person fee, for enrollment in the Boston area youth (Bay) League.

For further information/registration call the Recreation office at 383-6791, immediately!

Tough isn't it to raise an eyebrow in shocked disdain anymore. We're so cool. We train ourselves to read dispassionately about surrogate mothers (a nouveau hobby), open marriages and questionable happenings on dark streets.

And that's kind of a loss. In favor of acting like we've been around and aren't surprisable anymore, we surrendered that old-fashioned look of horror we wore when indignities were thrust on our standards.

But I was shocked last week when I read that UMass in Amherst is going back to single-sex bathrooms. So far had I progressed in pretending coed situations were only a rumor, that I couldn't believe sands of time were shifting backward. Seems parents, even students, there have had it with simultaneous bathrooming.

PATCHES

Ten years ago when word was whispered about that college kids left private bathrooms at home to share them with strangers of both sexes in school, at a hefty price, I was terrified. I knew there'd come a time I'd be on a college campus again. And when those years began and I was headed toward one, I teased for several gas station visits on route.

The very thought of an urgency that would mean my heels clicking on a tile floor at the same time as a pair of size 11 Nike sneakers were in a common repository sent me into a panic. I was reminded of a story of my grandfather who was innocently (so the story really does go) entrapped in a Ladies Room. When he, from within his allotted cubicle heard and saw high heels, he was imprisoned until the coast was clear with his masculine shoes up on the door so as to avoid shared embarrassment.

In the late 50s we believed we invented modesty. The thought of common facilities hadn't been mentioned. Men weren't allowed in the building beyond the hall and the lounge. So discreet was our demeanor that any need for a father, a little brother or custodian to breech the staircase to our upper domain was preceded by bellowing: "Man on the floor." That was followed by shrieks of terror as girls, clad in full slips raced to their rooms, slamming doors and forewarning those in the shower.

Any man who made it to the second floor was met only by a silent hallway of closed doors. Back then those chambers, including the bathroom, were emporiums of privacy. We exercised our shady sides only by cheering on the young men who conducted panty raids. Those were fun.

But the same bathroom at the same time? Who's got a towel that big? It must be something like being in a bus station and wishing you could choose a seat partner carefully. Someone mistakenly glamorized locker rooms and then the sharing of bathrooms.

Somewhere along the line we stopped protecting men from our presence 24 hours a day. And now they've given that up. Shocking. Maybe this is a trend to demure behavior. Before long they'll abolish coed dorms...that'll be a relief. Then I won't have to speak of my son as always being in the library in order to find peace, quiet and dignified behavior. And my friends can stop laughing.

from the kitchen

by Joan Pinkham

In ancient times, Greeks and Romans filled urns with herbs to keep their homes pleasantly perfumed. Nowadays, mulled cider simmering on the woodstove will do the trick. In grandma's day, a cup of chamomile tea was found to be soothing, comfrey was a pleasant tea to sip and lemon balm, "the scholar's herb," was known to keep them alert during studies. A pot of basil in a kitchen window is said to discourage flies, while fennel should be planted near the kennel, to keep fleas away from pets. Herbs have been used for centuries and today, there is what is known as an herb craze and they are used for medicinal, culinary, or aromatic purposes. Gail Anderson hostessed a Seaside Gardeners herb luncheon prepared by members and included in a delectable menu were Hot Mulled Cider, Green Goddess Dip, Herbed Butter, Dill Cheese Bread, Herb Cheddar Bread, Country Vegetable Beef Herbed Soup, Herbed Cheese Pot, Shredded Wheat Bread, Cardamon Cookies and Gingersnaps. Here, from this wonderful array of food, is the recipe for

SHREDDED WHEAT BREAD

Pour 2 c. boiling water over 2 shredded wheat biscuits crumbled. Add 1 tsp. salt, 1/3 c. sugar, 1/3 c. dark molasses, 3 tsp. shortening. Let cool. Add 1 yeast cake, dissolved in 1/2 c. warm water. Stir in 5 to 6 c. bread flour. Let rise to doubled in bulk. Cut down and knead into loaves. In greased pans, rise again. Bake 400 for 15 min. and 350 for 30 min. Makes two loaves.

"Parsley/Is Garsley" according to Ogden Nash, but many a good cook has a pot growing on her kitchen windowsill during the winter and a patch in her summer garden. It's rich in iron and Vitamin C and tasty in stews, salad and a dish such as this

PARSLEY SOUP

1 qt. diced potatoes
1 c. diced onion
1/4 c. butter
1/4 tsp. curry powder
1 tsp. Worcestershire Sauce
1 1/4 c. water
2 c. parsley, stems removed
3 c. chicken stock
3 c. milk
2 tsp. salt
1 c. heavy cream
1/4 tsp. pepper

Combine potatoes, onion, butter, curry, Worcestershire and water in saucepan. Bring to boil and simmer until potatoes and onions are tender. Meanwhile, put parsley and chicken stock in blender jar, blending till smooth. Blend potatoe mixture with some of the milk until smooth. Combine parsley and potatoe mixture in soup pot with remaining milk, salt, cream and pepper. Season with additional salt to taste. Heat, or chill to serve cold. Serves 12.

In the flu epidemic of 1918, those who ate lots of onions were said to have shown great resistance to the disease. A British medical report says: "Onions may soon become a primary weapon against heart attacks." A team of physicians at Newcastle University discovered that boiled or fried onions increased the blood's capacity to dissolve clots. Herbs for seasoning onions are tarragon and thyme. Think how healthy we'll all be by enjoying Andrea Anderson's

CHEESE AND ONION PIE

Pie crust for two-crust pie
1/4 lb. to 1/2 lb. cheddar cheese or any leftover cheese
3 large onions
Salt and pepper

Line shallow pie plate with crust. Alternate layers of cheese and onion. Salt and pepper top. Put on top crust. Prick with fork and bake at 375 degrees for 25-30 min.

Obituary

Vincent Sinopoli

Vincent Francis Sinopoli, 63, of Cohasset, an employee of the General Dynamics Shipyard in Quincy for 43 years, died Saturday at his home after a brief illness.

Born in Hingham, he had attended Cohasset schools.

A Navy veteran of World War II, he was stationed aboard the U.S.S. Massachusetts.

Before going to work for General Dynamics, he worked for Bethlehem Steel for many years.

He was a member of the shipbuilding workers union and the Massachusetts Battleship Association in Fall River.

He leaves his wife, Elizabeth Viola (Banko) Sinopoli; three sons, Thomas V. Sinopoli of Quincy and Nicholas A. Sinopoli and Stephen D. Sinopoli, both of Cohasset; a daughter, Barbara A. Sinopoli of Cohasset; a brother, Nicholas Sinopoli of Penacook, N.H.; four sisters, Rose Umbrianna of Rockland, Mary Sinopoli of Cohasset, and Elizabeth Hover and Jessica Walsh, both of Whitman; and several nieces and nephews.

A Mass of Christian burial was celebrated Wednesday in St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

ST. JUDE: O Holy St. Jude Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, Faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present urgent position, in return, I promise to make your name known, and cause you to be invoked. Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias. Publication must be promised. St. Jude pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. This Novena must be said for 9 consecutive days. R.T. (3/4)

Get fit at the Community Center

Registrations are now being accepted at the Cohasset Community Center for an hour long workshop on the incredible changes which can be achieved through fitness awareness.

The fitness clinic will be taught by Joanne Sheppard who is currently studying under Channel 2's exercise instructor, "Maggie the Beautiful Machine." The workshop will be taught Wednesday, March 4, from 10 to 11 a.m. and will cost $3.

Additional registration is being conducted for two quilting workshops with master quilter Mary Struzziero. On Friday, March 6, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., Ms. Struzziero will teach the patchwork classic, crazy quilt, and participants will make a placemat, potholder or pillow. On Wednesday, March 11, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., the simple and popular technique known as log cabin will be taught to make a classic pillow or potholder.

The fee for both quilting workshops is $6.

For those who would like to learn more about furniture refinishing or basic interior design, the center is offering two courses taught by Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Goodman. Mr. Goodman will work with class members who will bring a small piece of furniture to strip, repair and finish Tuesday, March 10, from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

Mrs. Goodman, a graduate as an interior designer and a member of ASID, will teach her course Tuesday, March 10, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Both classes will run eight sessions and will cost $20.

For further information, call the center Monday through Friday from 9 to 1 p.m. at 383-0088.

A chat with Arthur Clark

By Patricia Desmond

Arthur Clark, the town's unofficially fulltime selectman, could be tapped for the post of executive secretary to the board.

Sitting in his regular chair behind the work table in the selectmen's office, Arthur said: it's true, people have said he should take the job.

He will be stepping out of office in April after nearly 50 years service to the town.

"I think I'd be nervous if I had nothing to do," Arthur said in his calm, quiet way.

Who could be sure? There hasn't been a time when he had nothing to do.

Arthur was in his early twenties when he won his first election. He got on the school committee in a year when the voters surprised the incumbents.

"The incumbents were said to be unbeatable," Arthur smiled. One happened to be a bank president. But that year the women in town were organizing to get a woman on the school board.

The women voted as a block, casting only one of their two votes — with that one going to the female candidate.

The young crowd, as he puts it, did the same for Arthur. And he was bulletted into his first office. He stayed on the school board 12 years.

Back then the situation of teachers was quite

Most high school programs will stay

By Karin Bartow

Although the high school budget shows a reduction of $150,683 to $1,951,006, Eugene Crowell, school superintendent, said most programs will be maintained.

There will be a loss in art and ninth grade typing.

"I am most uncomfortable in the area of English," Crowell told the school committee Monday. "We are losing a professinal reading teacher with an alternative that's not as good. Everything else remains pretty much the same."

The English department will lose two teachers, one due primarily to declining enrollment, but the elimination of the reading lab specialist wouldn't be proposed were it not for 2½.

"The lab is an enrichment situation which I believe in," department chairman Bill Kite said. But with the budget cuts he felt the reading teacher should go so that a librarian, who would serve the whole school, can be hired. Remaining English teachers will cover the lab next year, however Kite is the only qualified reading specialist.

The foreign language department's staffing will remain unchanged and in spite of a request for six more cassettes to complete the language lab in the amount of $3,000, the department's budget shows a projected decline of $2,650. Chairman Paul Narkiewicz said the lab unit isn't operating properly with six stations down and will see if the problem may be alleviated by repair.

Mathematics department chairman Charles Davis told the committee that his staff will be cut by one teacher, but he will be able to keep the basic program running with the loss of a basic geometry offering for third year students.

While the reduction of one non-tenured teacher in the social studies department is due to declining enrollment, chairman Edward Sheehan said, nonetheless, it is a difficult loss as the teacher is "one of the most outstanding ones."

Town elections will be spirited

Patricia Walsh of 270 North Main St. won't be on the school committee next year.

She held off announcing her decision until the last minute and then failed to take out nomination papers for the annual election.

The school committee will be pared from six to five members in this election. Frank England, committee chairman, whose term is also up this year did take out papers.

The other candidate for the one seat open is Dick Conley of Holly Lane.

The selectmen's race will probably be the hottest contest on the ballot this year. Arthur Clark, chairman of the board, is not running for re-election. His decision has received a bit more press attention.

Three candidates have filed for the three year opening. They are: Mary Jane McArthur of the advisory board, Doris Golden, former school committeewoman, and Patrick Morrissey of Beach St., a dentist.

Morrissey hadn't officially announced his candidacy by the time nomination papers were due back at town hall. But the Mariner understands he plans to step up his campaign.

Another contest brewing involves the two year unexpired term on the board of health. John Burns, a dentist who lives on Jerusalem Road, Barbara Kern of Atlantic Avenue and Paula Knowles o Border Street, have all filed for the position.

The other seat on the board of health is not contested. Charles Bliss is unopposed for re-election to a three year term.

Two men are running for the one five year term on the planning board. They are Ernest Stevens of Cushing Road, and Daniel Cotton of King Street. Another person, John Kornet of Nichols Road, must have given the office some thought. He took nomination papers out but decided against running.

Others who are unopposed include a new candidate, Brian Wilkin of Pratt Court. He is running for the one two year opening on the board of Parents rap birth control talk

Some parents are up in arms over a discussion of birth control by a group of students from the alternative school.

The parents are countering by trying to cut off federal money for the program responsible, the Teen Clinic of the family planning center at the Hull Medical Clinic.

They are trying to lobby the Hull selectmen to prevent Community Development block grants from being used to keep the program going.

In the meantime Joy Robinson, director of the Teen Clinic, is running a program for Cohasset parents on how to talk to kids about sex.

She's given the course three time already and it's always been oversubscribed.

She's the person who spoke with students of the alternative school creating the parental furor.

Rumors about that talk are circulating.

High School Principal Richard Streeter said he was upset by the literature passed out during the discussion.

"I had a couple calls from parents," he said. He said he will be monitoring outside speakers more in the future. No policy existed on the matter in the past and Streeter was not aware the discussion was planned.

He wanted to make it clear the talk had nothing to do with the health curriculum that's in the planning stages.

He said the situation was one of poor judgment on the part of the classroom teacher. Had he been at the discussion, Streeter said he might have stopped the pamphlets from going home with the students.

"I can see why the parents are up in arms," he said, referring to the literature.

Ms. Robinson explained the talk was not on birth control methods but on responsibility and relationships. She said she did give away two hand-outs at the end of her discussion. One was a booklet called 'More Facts of Life,' something written by South Shore people, and a pamphlet on non-prescription birth control.

"I was surprised there were so many students there," she said of the talk. It was an after school discussion. The students there were juniors and

Cohasset's week

Water revenue up

After threatening non-paying customers with water shut offs, water department revenue is up.

Ben Curley, water superintendent, said that in the two weeks since the letters went out, $16,000 of $52,000 was collected.

The figure of bills in arrears has been steadily increasing. In the past there was a surplus account that could be used to tide the water department over until the slow payers came through.

Ben said for some residents water liens are an every year happening.

But the water department needed the cash to operate once the surplus was eaten up.

Now interest is charged on bills outstanding after 30 days. Since the water department bills only once every three months, many customers grew accustomed to paying bills in 90 days.

Ben said the new interest charge has speeded up the current accounts.

Pay to bathe, dump

For the first time Cohasset residents will pay for the privilege of sunning on the beach and dumping their trash at the landfill.

Slectmen last week put through a $10 fee for resident stickers. The fee is one attempt to offset the loss of revenue in town due to Proposition 2½.

Most fees in town will go up this year. Already the selectmen have raised the cost of taxi permits, business certificates and building permits.

Families with more than one car will get a special rate for the extra stickers but only if all cars are handled at the same time. Stickers are issued through the police station. The additional stickers will cost only $2, but all family members included in the special rate must live at the same address.

New anti-casino group

Statewide opposition to casino gambling in Massachusetts has resulted in the recent organization of a non-partisan, non-profit corporation known as Citizens Against Casino Gambling, Inc.

The corporation was formed in response to widespread offers of support from citizens of many communities throughout the Commonwealth for organized continuing opposition to casinos.

Purposes of the corporation are to inform the public of the social problems caused by the legalization of casino gambling, to coordinate efforts to oppose such legalization, and to provide a voice for private citizens to make their opposition known to public officials responsible for making the decision.

Incorporator of the new organization is Attorney Michael Austin of Hingham. Initial officers and directors are leaders of the grassroots opposition in the areas threatened by the drive to promote casinos. Carolyn Oteri of Hull is president, Juliette Guild of Cohasset is treasurer, and Jacqueline Dowd of Hingham is clerk. Frederick Moran of Adams is a director.

Membership will be open to all interested citizens of the Commonwealth. Several thousand have signed petitions originating in Hull, Hingham, and Cohasset. Signatures and spontaneous offers of support have been received from many other communities throughout the state. The new corporation is designed to afford a continuing means for all concerned citizens to make their opposition to casinos known and effective.

Anyone wishing to join or support this organization should address Citizens Against Casino Gambling, Inc., P.O. Box 2754, Boston, MA 02208.

Cemetery costs rise

Next year, with Proposition 2½, it will cost more to die in town.

The selectmen last week raised the fees for opening cemetery lots as well as raising the cost of the lot itself.

A plot in one of the town cemeteries will cost $250, rather than $155 as it is now. Grave openings will be $125 rather than $55. Sunday or holiday grave openings will be $150.

Healy charged with rape

Arthur Healy, 25, of 17 Cavanagh Road, Scituate, was released on personal recognizance after pleading innocent in Quincy District Court last week to a charge of rape of a child.

The 14-year-old victim was walking along Summer Street near St. Anthony's Church Feb. 27 when a man jumped her from behind.

Initially Cohasset police were charging Healy with attempted rape. The charge was changed by a prosecutor from the Norfolk County District Attorney's rape unit.

The district attorney's office had sought bail of $25,000 in the case.

Mariner open house coming

The Mariner will hold open house at its new location, 58 Main St., Marshfield, on Friday, March 20 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Staff members will be available to share coffee cake, crackers and cheese, coffee and punch with visitors. At that time guests can tour what is known as the "Old John Flavell property," next to Reed's Ark on Rte. 3A, which is now production center for five weekly newspapers.

The Mariner moved Feb. 6 after being at its Plain Street location since the Marshfield Mariner was first published in April 1972.

marine biology field trips was supported by Crowell. He said it was an "Example of the difference between supplementary field trips and an actual outdoor lab." One science teacher will be dropped.

The business education department shows a reduction of one four-fifth's teacher, with two teachers remaining. Chairman of the department, Doris Lahage, said she plans to work around the reduction by eliminating ninth grade typing, adding there were doubts about the program anyway.

Priority in filling typing classes will be given to seniors, then juniors, sophomores, with freshmen filling in last. Lahage also said she wants to see more special needs students enrolled in typing classes.

"One of the most successful comprehensive programs that we now run," Crowell said, is the industrial arts department, which will retain two teachers. Crowell said further that the program brings a lot of services to boys and girls and it is educationally sound to retain it as is.

England outlines school candidacy

School Committee Chairman Frank England, a resident of 48 Old Coach Road, announced his candidacy this week for a third term on the Committee.

"Obviously, Proposition 2½ is forcing School Committees everywhere to focus on the answers to pressing questions of educational priorities which are only now beginning to surface," he said in a statement outlining his candidacy. "In 1981-82 the Cohasset School Committee will be expending much of its energy in the ordering of those educational priorities which will be precedent-setting in both academic and non-academic areas."

"These complicated and troublesome challenges, can, however, lead to even higher plateaus of quality education at a reasonable cost."

England sees as the most important highlight of this past year on the School Committee as being the selection of a new School Superintendent, followed by approval of academic standards for basic skills, the implementation of the Health Education Program and the selection of its instructor, and the length to which the Committee has gone to make its proceedings more accessible to residents of the Town.

"This year, for the first time, budgets with back-up sheets were available to the press and the public at the same time they were available to School Committee members."

This year, England would like to assure student representation at all School Committee meetings, via "elected" student candidates. "I was especially aware of the need for student communication during the Cohasset-Hull fracas last year, and at various times throughout my six years on the Committee," he said.

England has already raised the question with the Student Advisory Committee, which said recently that 95 per cent of the CHS student body is in favor of having elected representatives on the Committee.

In addition to serving as Chairman of the Cohasset School Committee, England serves on the 20 member Game Officials Committee of the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association — the governing body for all inter-school sports in Massachusetts. He is a member of the GOC sub-committees negotiating the officials' fees for lacrosse, soccer, football and gymnastics.

He graduated from Syracuse University with a BS in Business Administration. He is also a graduate of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, and a former Commandant of the 1037th United States Army Reserve School. He is presently Bond Manager for Aetna Life & Casualty Company.

He and his wife Kathleen have four daughters, three of whom graduated from Cohasset High School: Kathy who is a Deputy City Attorney in Las Vegas; Terry a U-Mass. graduate and a para legal in Boston; and Janet a freshman at Ohio State University. Debbie, the oldest daughter who is married and lives in California, graduated from Northeastern University, has an MBA and is working on her CPA designation.

Burns seeks Board of Health seat

Dr. John M. Burns of Jerusalem Road has announced his candidacy for a two-year term on the Board of Health. The seat was vacated by the resignation of Lynne Buckley.

Dr. Burns is a lifelong resident of the area and maintains a dental office at West Corner. His practice includes residents of Cohasset and surrounding communities.

He received a Bachelor of Science degree and a Doctor of Dental Surgery degree with clinical honors. He is a member of the national, state and local dental associations, Hingham Study Club and Cohasset Rotary, where he is a member of the Board of Directors. He has lived on Jerusalem Road with his wife and two small children for the past four years.

He is actively concerned with health management in the Town of Cohasset. He has attended numerous Board of Health meetings for the past 18 months. While in attendance of these meetings, he has become aware of the range of subjects encountered by the Board of Health.

He would like to see stricter application of all health rules. He feels meetings need more organization and preparation for better utilization of time.

Dr. Burns feels his education and background in health, administrative experience of running a practice, and personal interest make him well qualified for a seat on the Board of Health.

He feels these excellent qualifications would compliment the two existing board members.

assessors created by the resignation of F. Allen Weisenfluh. The other assessor up for election is incumbent Warren Pratt of Red Gate Lane.

The three trustees of Paul Pratt Memorial Library will have a cake walk. The three incumbents who will be re-elected for three year terms are: Sheila Evans, Cordelia Foell and Doris McNulty.

Gordon Flint will be re-elected as treasurer-collector for three years. Harold Litchfield has no opposition for a three year term as highway surveyor. David Place has no opposition for three more years as town moderator.

Bill Montuori, the incumbent, is sure to be a water commissioner for another three years.

So too: Gerard Buckley, five years, recreation commissioner; John Muncey, five years, Cohasset Housing Authority, and Janet Daggett, three years, sewer commissioner.

Richard Silvia of Beechwood St. was the only one to file for the three year term on the South Shore Regional School Committee. The position was left open by Sumner Smith. Dana Green had papers out for the position but failed to file by the deadline.

Teenage pregnancy

Last year eight pregnant Cohasset teenagers sought help at the Hull Medical Center.

Only two of them went through their full pregnancy and gave birth.

Something more should be done to slow down the rate of teenage pregnancy.

Officials at the Family Planning Clinic in Hull say it is impossible to come up with statistics for teenager pregnancy in Cohasset. Local teens are more likely to have private physicians.

But the statistics in Hull are available. Before the clinic opened the teenage pregnancy rate was 12 percent. That is 12 percent of the girls 15 to 19 were pregnant.

Now the rate is 5 percent.

Lately the Hull Clinic has been having financial problems. A group of Cohasset's residents and others are working to see that the federal money granted Hull for Community Development won't go to keeping the teen clinic open.

We think that's the wrong approach. The teen clinic doesn't force birth control information on anyone. It hardly can be blamed for the sexual revolution. It has nothing at all to do with abortion — except to discuss the topic as an alternative with teens who are already pregnant.

"We're there to prevent abortions," Clinic director Joy Robinson said this week.

The fact that the teen clinic is there in Hull with a target population of Cohasset, Hull, Hingham and Scituate won't be enough to eliminate the problem of teenage pregnancy.

The responsibility falls squarely on the shoulders of parents and church leaders to take steps to promote a set of values strong enough to overcome this age-old problem. The tragedy of an unwanted pregnancy is more depressing when the parent is a child herself.

The Hull Clinic offers a course for parents on how to talk with their kids about sex. The course is always oversubscribed in Cohasset.

It might not be a bad idea if the town came up with some funds to expand the course so more parents could gain the help they need.

"When I give the course, I ask parents what they want to say to their child and then I help them package that so they'll be heard," Ms. Robinson explained.

Not a bad idea at all.

One ballot question

There will be one referendum question on the April ballot.

It asks whether the town will authorize the indemnification of town officials sued in their capacity as municipal officials.

The car after the horse

Looking back

By Gilbert Tower

No young person living in Cohasset today can imagine what the conditions of life were years ago before automobiles changed everything. My first recollections about automobiles began about 1905. (Now, I am being urged to write reminiscences.)

At that time Frank Brown, the apothecary, had a drug store located exactly where the Texaco filling station is now. He had the first telephone in town. I remember trying to adjust myself to speaking into it. There was an unused stable in the rear of the Willard house on South Main St., opposite Independence, where someone was down on his back fooling with an automobile. He was covered with grease which did not appeal to me. I decided then to have nothing to do with automobiles.

My first ride in an auto was in Attleboro, Mass. with our family friend, Mr. Sturdy of the Sturdy Chain Company, makers of gold chains with very small links. He had a Stanley Steamer which was expected to become very commonly owned. My father bought one and we drove it for two or three years. In front it carried a small water tube boiler, about the size of a wash tub.

It had to be filled from a convenient brook. There was a kerosene burner which had to be pumped up to build the steam pressure to 100 lbs. Then it would go like a streak, although the road was not too good. It had a throttle which admitted steam to the two cylinder engine which sounded "chou...chou." The Stanley Steamer was fun to drive, but gasoline motors replaced it.

My father, Danile N. Tower, decided that he must have an automobile. He claimed to have had one of the first high wheel cycles as a boy and he wanted to be about the first one in town to have an automobile. We went to Boston and shopped around. The first automobile manufacturers had small agencies.

The Pierce Arrow Company had put out its first model which was called a "Motorette." It was a one seated, two passenger car which was steered by a horizontal bar. We found one in a little, dirty garage south from Trinity Church. It had a small two and a half power Dedion Bouton motor made in France. To start it the motor had to be cranked by hand. My father was very proud of it and remarked it was so well built "it ought to last a good many years." He did not figure on obsolesence. As a matter of fact it was driven around Cohasset many years and its "put...put" gave it the name of "coffee grinder."

No license was required to drive it and no registration was necessary for it. After buying it my father was driven around Boston Common and we were ready for the trip home. After crossing Fore River Bridge, North Weymouth was an open field. At that time the Fore River Shipyard was started opposite Weymouth Landing and later was moved to where it is now.

In his work as superintendent of the Cohasset Water Company my father needed to do a good deal of driving around town, but he had been accustomed to a horse and wagon. So his mind had inclined towards a high wheeled vehicle and for that work he had a vehicle that was driven by a belt. It was a mistake as it would not go up hills so it had to be sold. I have forgotten its name. Eventually we had a "Winton" with two opposed cylinders that went "chug...chug." Numerous companies undertook to sell automobiles which they had put together by assembling motors and parts made in other plants.

Before automobiles transportation was furnished by horses and carriages. There was considerable local business to build upholstered carriages, gravel carts and "barges," all to be horse drawn. A variety of businesses in town served the needs of horses and carriages. There were numerous blacksmith shops where horses were fitted with iron shoes.

Open fields provided grass for grazing and drying to make hay for feed and "bedding." A harness-maker used leather for harnesses, saddles, bridles and reins. Now all that is gone. Instead we have filling stations, body shops, sales and service shops. Nobody thinks of walking anywhere, even to go to church.

Formerly horses littered the streets with manure. The manure bred flies. Few can fully remember what pests flies and also mosquitoes were (before spraying for mosquito control). There were numerous milk farms in Cohasset. The cows being driven to and from pasture spread offensive manure. Now the town is clean to live in and young people should be grateful for the changed conditions, but they should not throw beer cans and bottles around.

One day Father and I were headed for Boston and I was driving. At the "S" curve where Main St. crosses Weir River the Hingham Chief of Police, "Wash" (Washington) James, and a helper had established a speed trap. They stopped us and claimed we were speeding at 12 miles per hour. It was a hold-up to raise money and my father had to pay a $10 fine to the Hingham court.

Gasoline consumption was small. I used to take a pail to St. John's store at the foot of the Common, opposite the end of Depot Court where he dispensed gasoline from a steel barrel.

That area, which is now a memorial park, was then a confusion of stable, wagons and miscellaneous buildings including a post office. The stable burned and the ruins had to be cleared away. Joseph St. John could not do it so a number of public spirited residents formed The Cohasset Improvement Society. There were then three unsightly places to be cleared away. One was the Tilden Livery stable opposite the railroad station. It was a big wooden structure and a fire hazard.

Now there is a park where it stood. Another eye-sore, besides that mentioned at the foot of the common, was the vacant Hanlon Studio where stage scenery and costumes were made. There were five Hanlon brothers from England who started as gymnasts, but who developed a slap-stick stage show called "Hanlon's Superba." Every spring a group of dancers would arrive from New York and rehearse for Superba before it went on the road. It was comedy entertainment to children.

The buildings were between Ripley Road and the railroad, opposite the present post office. The present South Shore Art Center now occupies one small building of the Hanlon company. A Cohasset Improvement Society that accomplished so much benefit to the town could now be well succeeded by a town planning committee that would do town planning.

One could go on forever reciting the changes that have occurred and been forgotten. Railroads covered the country. Now they have been superseded by air routes. Where will it end? Now we have the problem of energy.

On conservation appointments

To the Editor:

There will shortly be a vacancy on the Conservation Commission. The appointing authority is by the Selectmen. In the old days, if there was a resignation before a term expired, the new appointment was made jointly by the Selectmen and the Conservation Commission. This was changed by the Legislature and, in recent years, the Selectmen have made the appointments as they have seen fit, with no particular regard to suggestions made by the Commission.

I like the way other towns handle these appointments. Often, a notice is placed in the local newspaper that there is a vacancy and interested townspeople are urged to write to the Selectmen indicating their interest in serving. These individuals are advised to attend some of the Commission meetings to understand the work the Commission is doing, and what would be expected of them were they to be appointed. Selectmen are advised by the Commission whom they consider suitable candidates for appointment. I think the Selectmen value and seriously consider these suggestions.

One serving on the Commission should realize that it involves a serious commitment of time, well over and above that taken up just attending the regular meetings and hearings.

The rules and regulations which apply to the Wetlands Protection Act, administered by the Commission, are lengthy and complicated. To do a good job, I believe one should occasionally attend the meetings of the Massachusetts Association of Conservation Commissions to find out how other different from today. There was no teachers' union nor any law on the equal treatment of women workers.

Few of the teachers ever reached the maximum pay level then. Most of the teachers were women and the rule of the time was that when a teacher married she could no longer teach.

Arthur says many young women from northern New England would come to town to teach and soon end up married and of course, out of work.

Towards the end of his time on the school board, Arthur got into a few disputes with the advisory board.

Almost as quickly as the young teachers found themselves out of work, Arthur found himself sitting on the advisory board.

"I guest they put me there to keep me quiet," he mused.

Then six years later there was an opening on the water commission so he ran for that.

Meanwhile Cohasset sun poured into the room. On either side of Arthur was an empty chair, waiting for the other board members who are occupied with other employments during working hours. Outside a few dark ducks waddled around the Common.

Arthur said he got into politics because he loved the town. He's lived all his life in Cohasset. Today he and his wife, Eunice, live on Hull Street in the house he was born in.

When asked some more about the job opening in the selectmen's office, Arthur says he isn't sure if he'll apply.

It depends on the qualifications, he explains.

"Today they all want a college degree," he said.

Arthur said his schooling came from the school of hard knocks. He became a plumber at 17 working for an established plumber. Back in the 50's he opened his own plumbing business.

He retired from plumbing in 1972. That's when he went to work fulltime for the town, having been elected to the board of selectmen in 1967.

He points out that he retired from plumbing before the field became so lucrative. Now plumbers get $20 an hour, then they got $8, and that was only in the last year of his career.

It's left him living on Social Security and a pension.

Back when he worked in town doing plumbing, he had keys to almost every house in town. People would ask him to look after the house as well as fix the pipes.

But times have changed from the small community Cohasset was back then. Problems are increasing. A few years ago, Arthur and his wife bought their first lock for the doors in their house.

Arthur, who obviously likes people, also obviously likes working out solutions.

The executive secretary's job will pay in the $20,000 range. Arthur has been doing the work, meeting with people who stop by the selectmen's office, trying to help them, for his expenses.

This past year the selectmen voted $5,000 to the chairman to defray expenses. It includes things like trips to Boston. Next year the regular salary prevails. Board members get $1,000 a year. The chairman gets an extra hundred.

The new position won't be open until July. Arthur steps down in April. Both the other selectmen have fulltime work. All three candidates work.

So what will the town do from April to July, anyway?

"It's a problem," Arthur said.

And what will Arthur do with all his new found free time?

He says he has a camp up in New Hampshire he may spend some time at. He's owned it now for 15 years and he's never spent a whole week there. Just weekends in the summer.

Why did he decide to move out of office now?

"I've been pondering that. It would have meant another three years."

When the lips slip

By Claire McDonough

When it doesn't particularly matter, I can be glib, articulate, and witty. When, however, I'm really anxious to make an impression — that's when the lip slips. Spoonerisms, bloopers, and malapropisms all tumble from my mouth with reckless abandon.

Let a creditor call to remind me of an overdue payment.

"Don't worry," I will assure him. "The meck is in the chail."

When I put down my diet Pepsi to answer the phone and find a principal on the line complaining about my son's latest peccadillo it's understandable that I'll be nervous. But do I have to blurt, "Oh, no, you're not bothering me a bit. My friends and I are just sitting around drinking?"

It doesn't really matter when I ask the grocer for a lead of hettuce or tell the doctor that my ache is heading. But just think how confused that poor saleslady at the exclusive lingerie shop must have been when, prior to my wedding, I told her that I hoped she could help me with my torso.

I'm at my worst when I'm lecturing my kids. They still recall with glee the day I swooped down on Patrick, Larry, and three of their young friends. The culprits had taken one bite out of each of two dozen oranges and I was furious. "Do you think," I asked icily, "that oranges grow on trees?"

Then there was the memorable dinner hour when Maureen had printed, "Kevin is a pig" with peas in her mashed potatoes. "There is to be no eating at the table," I informed her. "Either fool or go to bed."

They looked at me uncertainly, and I realized I was off base. "Never mind," I told them. "Just shut your mouth and eat."

Actually, the slipping lip may have been responsible for my plunge into wedded bliss. When I was in college I worked for a telephone answering service that was operated in a private home. The first day I was on the job my employer showed me a short cut that would take me to the back yard. The second day I was on the job I took the short cut, wound up in a back yard, and walked into the wrong house. I looked at the strange family seated at dinner, realized that one of the members was absolutely the most gorgeous young man I had ever seen, and reached desparately for some shred of dignity.

"Pardon me," I smiled, "but I believe you people are in the wrong house."

To his everlasting credit he married me anyway.

towns are handling problems, and to take advantage of the workshops offered.

Within the past few years, administration of the Wetlands Protection Act seems to take up all of the time of the Commission. There are many other areas of interest to which the Commission should direct its attention; in fact, are required to by law (maintaining an inventory of open spaces).

To do all this, a vigorous Commission is needed. If you are interested, come to one of our meetings. They are held at the Town Hall on the first Monday of the month at 8 p.m. Check the posting in the Clerk's office for other meetings or cancellations.

Gambling issue won't be on ballot

The casino gambling question won't be on the ballot of the April election.

The group that originally sought to put the referendum up for a vote decided they didn't want to appear to tell Hull what to do.

The 10 petitioners on the question submitted a second petition withdrawing from the issue.

Arthur Clark, chairman of the board of selectmen, said town counsel's opinion was sought on the way to go about a withdrawal.

Meanwhile the organization that was known as the Group Against Gambling, GAG, incorporated into Citizens Against Casino Gambling Inc.

Maria Plante, one of the coordinators in Cohasset, explained the change was to allow the organization to raise funds to lobby against gambling. The group is headed by Carol Oteri of Hull.

Also in the meanwhile another group incorporated and held an organizational meeting in Hingham. That group is headed by John Davis of Hingham. The second group hopes to have a more state-wide focus.

A late winter plea

Oh for the baleful summer complaint
That the air's so close it makes one faint.
Impose on March a steadfast law
Let no one say, "My word, it's raw."
Instead of damp, let's hear it's muggy;
Stash the cold snap, let it be buggy.
Trade static cling for our old friend sweat
No longer damp, we'd just be wet.
Loud let it ring with warm validity
"It's not the heat; it's the humidity."

☐When the afternoon kindergarten students of Mrs. Collins and Mrs. Correy decided to make President Reagan a birthday card and mail it, little did they know they'd be absorbing a whole study unit. "They talked alot about the election, on their level, and learned to recognize this new person," Mrs. Collins said. One child brought in a picture of President Reagan which mentioned his birthday and asked if the class could make him a card.

Their original, handcrafted card was signed by all: Joey Andrade, Jennifer Anstead, David Aronson, Nicole Batts, Anthony Bonano, Briar Brochu, Ben Chittick, James Conroy, Tim Conroy, Bridget Corkery, Patrick Cox, Penny Dane, Sam Delaney, Catherine Delima, Eric Drysdale, Doug Ellinger, Peter Fahey, Tara Gallagher, John Hill, Stephen Izzo, Jennifer Knowles, Alexandra Know, Andrew Kuhn, Colby Lawrence, Tim Leary, Marc Mercurio, Sean Milligan, Brian Pattison, Greg Pyle, Michael Russell, Ben Sparks, Michael Spenlinhauer, Doug Schultz and Sarah Thompson.

The class went to the post office, bought stamps and mailed their card. And the best part of all was that "Ronald Reagan" sent a thank you note on White House stationery! "How wonderful to be remembered on my birthday with your very special card! Your thoughtfulness in sending a handcrafted message makes me proud to know of your talents and your love of our country. I deeply appreciate the generous support you have shared in a most unique way." Signed, with best wishes always, Ronald Reagan.

☐"Kiss A Camel Week" at Osgood School was Beth Goff's way of saying "Have fun on your vacation in Egypt, Faith Bowker!" Faith took advantage of a good friend and college classmate's move closer to the USA to Cairo, Egypt from Jarkarta, Indonesia. She hastily arranged a trip during winter vacation. Hours before her departure (while still at school) her passport arrived and she announced, "Anwar Sadat wants me!"

Faith says she didn't kiss a camel, but her camel driver did and she has the picture to prove it. She found Egypt "incomparable to anything else" she's ever seen. "Things are 4,000 to 5,000 years old there," she remarked. The first difference that she experienced upon entering Cairo were oriental smells and sounds, food, sand, dryness, car horns that "play" instead of blasting. She and her friend Barbara, whose husband works for U.S. Aid, had just settled down for a catch-up chat (they hadn't seen each other in nine years) when the lights went out. "Welcome to Egypt," Barbara said! Lights and especially phones are unreliable services there. But then they have the pyramids (Faith climbed the inside of the Great Pyramid), camels and sand storms. The people were openly friendly and Faith observed a peacefulness about them. She said it was a great place to "reunion" and if her friend Barbara isn't back home in Maryland this June, she plans to go back to Egypt again!

Cohasset Hosts Drama Semi—Finals

By Steve Saleski

The C.H.S. Drama Workshop's newest production "Hold Me" has completed the first step in Massachusetts High School Drama Festival competition by winning a regional festival that was held at the high school last weekend. The next task for the cast is to win in the State semi-finals which Cohasset will host on March 14th from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Townspeople should take advantage of this opportunity to see seven fine one-act plays, all of which have won in regional competition around the State.

Many people remember the disappointing loss that Cohasset suffered in the semi-final round of competition last year, but director Ron Emmons is enthusiastic about Cohasset's chances in making it to the State finals this time. "Four of seven schools will be chosen as finalists and we have a very good chance to be selected," states Emmons. The cast shares his optimism. Gerry White, Caroline Wampole, Caroline Bonnar, Tim Libby, Pat Duffy, Lindsay Gilmore, Missy Barcomb and Cathy Collins are all hoping that they can bring the play not only to the State finals but also to the New England finals to be held in April; a feat which Cohasset accomplished just two years ago.

THE COHASSET LAMPLIGHT

The Legacy Of John Lennon —Humanitarian

By Jeff Giles

In a world where men tread noisily, few have left an impression that has not faded with the passage of thoughts and the failing of memories. Few have come to define success, and, at the same time, keep in touch with reality. Few have cared enough to change anything. But among the "might have beens," "could have beens," and "should have beens," there is a very special number of men whose lives have meant dedication.

When John Lennon was killed the world lost more than a musician and prolific songwriter. On December 8, the world lost a philosopher, a humanitarian — one of those who really cared. Lennon's life and music will stand as his tribute long after his name wears from the pages of history and his generation grows old. His message of peace and love will be echoed in the lives of those who took the time to listen.

But in order to understand Lennon's life it is important to understand the phenomena of which he was part. His years as a Beatle have left an irreversible influence on popular music. For nearly a decade the Beatles' music entranced an entire generation. It changed their way of life, their thinking and their perspective. It was hope for those whose life was Hell rather than Utopia. The Beatles sculpted music from a raw energetic, driving beat, to a creative art form. Their poetry reached out and touched the minds and sentiments of the world. From the thought inspiring verse of "Across the Universe": "Images of broken light which dance before me like a million eyes, they call me on and on," to the bitter social commentary of "A Day in the Life": "I read the news today, oh boy. About a lucky man who made the grade. And though the news was rather sad, I just had to laugh," and the reminiscing visions of "Yesterday," the Beatles painted the world on the delicate canvas of language with a touch of beauty and mystery.

Their music sparked change, controversy, peace, harmony, and rebellion. The Beatles were artists, craftsmen, long hair and honesty. Their combination of talent, wit, and showmanship, made John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison, and Ringo Starr, The Beatles.

To Beatle fans, the music of the world's greatest rock group will never be forgotten, and the memory of John Lennon will live on. Goodbye, John, and thank you.

Seniors Cracking Under Application Pressure

By Caroline Wampole

Being a senior in high school is certainly not what it's cracked up to be. And as I see more and more seniors literally cracking up, I can only ask myself: Why? Why all the self-inflicted torture just to get into the "school of my choice?"

Migraines, tears, and disappointments are not very good rewards for years of hard work, and the thin rejection slips that we receive from colleges somehow don't compensate for the hours and effort invested in writing applications. Why then, do we allow ourselves to be so caught up in what seems to be such a bum rap?

To answer that question, one must consider the enormous pressure that is enforced on students by parents and teachers beginning from Day One, e.g.: "Work hard, Bernie, or Yale will never accept you." or "I doubt if M.I.T. will take you if your math doesn't improve..." etc., etc. We have always been told to study hard and "be active" in extracurricular activities so that colleges will see what bright and outgoing people we are. Lost in the shuffle, of course, is the personal desire to learn and work, which should be the only reason you want good grades — right? (Ha! Tell that to Princeton.)

Though, of course, there are a few fortunate youngsters who still enjoy their work, and are motivated strictly by themselves, the majority simply moves with the flow, panicking when a paper is due or when a test is scheduled, thinking only: "My mother will kill me if..." or, "Mr. So-and-so will give me a bad grade if..."

Not that there's anything wrong with that sort of motivation; it's necessary, and people would be lost without it. But once in college, and after college, what then? Will you have a guidance counselor to scold you for your laxity when you're twenty-two years old?

The main problem with all this college nonsense is that students tend to place so much importance on what they hear about a school that they totally avoid finding out for themselves what it's all about. We have been conditioned, since childhood, to revere the Big Name Colleges, even if some may be relying solely on their reputations. Of course, once we've been accepted all our worries are over — until freshman year at college, when we learn about job and grad school applications!

Ahhhhhhh!

Letter To The Editor: A Kinder Cut For Music Dept.

In proposing the budget cuts made because of Proposition 2½, Mr. Crowell and the school committee seem to be making a sincere effort to make the cuts as fair as possible.

However, I believe that the cuts in the music department could be made with less impact on the students. At present the reduction of the position of instrumental music director to a parttime position is being proposed. Due to the number of students involved in the instrumental music program and the clear benefits of the curriculum, I believe that those implementing Proposition 2½ should look elsewhere in the department for cuts.

For instance, there are programs in the "vocal" music department such as guitar class, electronic music, and barbershop groups that have merit but could certainly not be classified as necessary. Guitar lessons are the only specific instrumental lessons offered in the school. There is no reason why guitar students should not take private lessons as would students of any other instrument. Electronic music is an expensive luxury that cannot be afforded under Proposition 2½.

A move to cut the marching band's away-from-home performances has already been suggested. Because of the equipment that must be bought specifically for marching band, and because of the group's small numbers and questionable success, perhaps elimination of the group should be considered.

With these changes in the present reduction plan, money that is now spent on "fluff" courses could be used for basic music courses such as the concert and jazz bands, choruses, and music theory.

Editors' Note: The Lamplight will print anonymous letters only if the author gives his or her name to the editors.

What Do You Think?

What are your feelings on Proposition 2½ cuts? If you see where waste in the schools could be trimmed or if you wish to argue for keeping a program to be cut, send us a letter. Our address is: Lamplight, c/o Mr. William Kite, Cohasset High School, 143 Pond St., Cohasset, MA 02025.

Merchant's Corner...

The Upholstry Shop

"Big enough to do the job yet small enough to care" describes "The Upholstery Shop" in Cohasset which Ann and Warren Sillcocks started eight years ago from a love of furniture and a lot of Yankee know-how. They chose a 3A location in Cohasset as central to the South Shore communities they serve.

The shop includes an upholstery workroom for antique restoration, reupholstery and custom new furniture which is open to the public. The showroom boasts a sample selection equaled by few in New England.

The Upholstery Shop crew seems to shift easily from totally furnishing a four bedroom model condo to redoing a 60-foot yacht to restoring an historic wing chair to stitching a purse or installing a kitchen shade.

Education is an ongoing project in this operation to promote an understanding of upholstery, reupholstery is better than buying new. If you reupholster you can actually redesign your old furniture into the look you need.

Not only are you assured of the appearance of your furniture, but you can be certain of its construction. Springs are retied, frames glued and new materials added. Reupholstering is the perfect way to have lovely, quality furniture, skillfully handcrafted by a professional upholsterer.

The name of the shop may be misleading because the Sillcocks also produce a quality line of draperies and other window treatments. They have wallpaper and carpeting. The shop also designs and manufactures new custom furniture. Complete design consultation is available but a single chair or window drape order gets the same care and priority as a whole house.

There are some crazy posters on the workroom walls but one stands out. "If it is worth doing it is worth doing well." That seems to be the motto of the Upholstery Shop in Cohasset.

4536 cookies sold

Many local Girl Scouts recognizing the importance of the Cookie Sale for funding their troop activities braved the winter chill to go door-to-door order-taking last month.

According to Debbie Haase and Becky Bates Patriots' Trail Council local Service Unit Cookie Chairmen, the total of initial orders for Girl Scout cookies in Cohasset is 4,536 boxes.

So far 14 Girl Scouts have qualified for the Council Cookie patch by selling 100 or more boxes. In addition to the 1981 Council Cookie patch which will be earned by all girls who have sold 50 or more boxes, girls selling 100 or more boxes will earn the 1981 T-Shirt. Girls who topped 150 will earn the all new 1981 Sun Visor and those who topped 200 will receive a stuffed Pegasus.

Beauty for teens

A special program for teens will be presented by the Cohasset Community Center Monday, March 16 from 2:30 to 4 p.m.

The local beauty spots — Hair Imports and Peridot — will bring their complete staffs of six artists to the Center for a full afternoon of workshops and demonstrations. They will do French braids, curling iron techniques, complete make-ups, facials and some sculptured nails. Adults are welcome from 1 to 2:30, or you and Mom may come together.

Donation to the Center is $3. Call 383-0088 to register, or stop by in person from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekdays. Fun and glamor are promised to all!

Don't judge this stove by its beauty!

They say beauty is skin deep. However, the Petit Godin has an inner beauty as well. The care and workmanship that goes into making this stove beautiful also produces one of the most efficient stoves on the market today. So efficient, many owners report their stove saved them as much as 50% of the cost of heating their home. Others claim it heated their entire home.

Most stoves are designed to burn only one fuel. Some burn only wood. Some burn only coal. The Petit Godin is designed to burn both coal and wood as effectively as those designed for one fuel.

The Recreation Report

Modern Diet and Nutrition

The Recreation Department will conduct a six-week program on modern diet and nutrition Thursday evenings at 7 in Town Hall Auditorium, beginning in late March.

The fee for the six sessions (one hour per session) will be $6 per person. Mark Mincolla will discuss updated looks at foods and their possible harmful effects, and review how to stretch your purchasing power in the supermarket.

Also, proper diet and dietary planning, including safe economical use of vitamins and food supplement will be discussed.

If interested, call the Recreation office at 383-6791, for registration.

Jazzercise Registration

Registration, by calling the Recreation office, will be accepted for the spring jazzercise program, to be held Monday evening, Town Hall auditorium, from 7 to 8 beginning March 23.

The fee is $6 for the eight-week program, and registrations will be accepted on a first-come-first-enrolled basis. Ms. Patty Antoine is the instructor.

Governor's Task Force on Juvenile Crime

Governor Edward King, as part of his anti-crime program, has created a Juvenile Crime Task Force. Members of the Task Force took the oath of office held Dec. 3.

The Task Force is chaired by Judge James Nixon and consists of 31 appointees. Members were selected primarily because of their interest and many years experience in the juvenile system in Massachusetts. The Task Force is also represented by victims of crimes committed by juveniles.

The Task Force will conduct a regional public hearing in the Gardner Auditorium at the State House March 13, from 1 to 5 p.m. This is the last opportunity that the public will have to make their views known. If anyone would like to speak, please call Walter Timilty at 727-7144.

New edition of narrative history is now out

Copies of the new Memorial Gifts Edition of the prized "Narrative History of Cohasset," recording the town's history through the 19th century, have been received from the printer and are now available through the Cohasset Historical Society. The society arranged for reprinting the out-of-print volume.

Copies at $20 each, plus $1 tax, are available through Mrs. E. Lawrence Parker, 383-0493, or by mailing checks to the Cohasset Historical Society, Box 324, Cohasset, Mass., 02025.

The new edition has been financed by funds contributed in memory of several prominent Cohasset citizens, so that proceeds of the sale will go to the Historical Society.

Those honored in the edition are the late Harold Fenno Barnes, Roger Brooke Coulter, Edward M. Fleming, August F.B. Petersen, Miriam C. Treat, Rev. Fred Veston Stanley, and Cornelia H. White.

Nursery school fashions at CCC

A delightful afternoon is promised to all who attend the Cohasset Community Center Nursery School Fashion Show, says Kathy Stevens, coordinator of the presentation which features clothes for pre-schoolers from Wrye's Country Store in Weymouth.

Sherbert punch, lemon tarts, coffee, tea and other goodies are refreshment features organized by Ann O'Connor. Hostesses will be directed by Eileen Norris. An "Easter Basket Raffle" will be conducted by Joanne Lennon. Entertainment by the Nursery School children is promised, and Caitlin Staunton, a center nursery school graduate now attending the Deer Hill School, will play the piano.

Tickets may be purchased at the center from nine until noon or call Mary Larson at 383-0775. Donation is $5. The show is scheduled for Sunday, March 29, from 3 to 5 p.m.

AT CURRY COLLEGE: Joe McCullough, a freshman center, was a member of the 1980-81 Curry College hockey team in Milton, where he had 11 points on three goals and eight assists.

Booster banquet...drama festival

CALENDAR

Monday, March 9 through Friday, March 13: Sports tryouts after school....tennis, baseball, girls softball and golf.

Thursday, March 12: Gymnastics show, 7 p.m., Sullivan gym.

Saturday, March 14: State Drama Festival semi-finals; auditorium, opens at 10 a.m. Cohasset's performance at 3:40 p.m.

Thursday, March 19: Early release day.

BOOSTER BANQUET A HUGE SUCCESS!

The Booster Club banquet was held last week with 450 people in attendance. All athletes who participated in winter sports were honored and trophies were given to the varsity athletes voted by the students for their enthusiasm and spirit.

Honored with Booster Club trophies were:

Keith Ross, boys basketball; Donna Chisholm, girls basketball; Torin Sweeney, wrestling; Janet Carlson, gymnastics and Jack McNeill, hockey.

Also chosen for the South Shore Leage All Star Team were:

Dan Bown and Domenic Campedelli, hockey; Karen Ekberg and Sue McMahon, gymnastics; Billy Kuntz and Pat Duffy, boys basketalll.

These athletes were picked by viewers who saw them in action. Congratulations everyone!

Mr. Streeter, principal, discussed the cuts in next year's athletic program. Because of Prop. 2½ he said all major teams will stay, with the exception of the junior high and freshman boys and girls basketball.

The Booster Club president is Rose Duffy, 383-0292. Please call her if you want to belong to the club or for any information about the club.

COHASSET HOSTS STATE DRAMA FESTIVAL

After hosting and winning the regional drama competition, Cohasset will now host the semi-finals, this Saturday, March 14. They will present Hold Me by Jules Feiffer.

Congratulations for their past performance and good luck for Saturday goes to: Ron Emmons, director; Gerry White, Caroline Wampole, Caroline Bonnar, Lindsay Gilmore, Cathleen Collins, Tim Libby, Pat Duffy, Missy Barcomb, and stage manager Leslie Collins.

The festival begins at 10 a.m. with Cohasset's performance at 3:40 p.m. Awards will be given at 5:30. Everyone is welcome!

GYMNASTICS SHOW

On Thursday, March 12, the league champion, Cohasset's gymnastics team, will present its annual gym show at 7 p.m. in Sullivan gym.

Tickets are on sale at the door: 50 cents for students and $1 for adults.

COMMUNICATIONS COUNCIL MEETING

The Junior/Senior High School Communications Council held its March meeting in Mr. Streeter's office last week.

Mr. Streeter remarked about a newspaper article regarding a woman searching the town dump for her child's retainer. He would like all parents and students to know that he keeps a box in his office for lost eyeglasses. Any student having lost a pair of glasses should come and take a look.

The main speaker was Phillips Burrows, the new METCO coordinator. Mr. Burrows said he believes one of the most beneficial aspects of the METCO program is the opportunity for these 45 students from Boston to learn how to relate to others with different social and religious backgrounds. Cohasset's host family arrangement, providing a local liaison, is unique to METCO program and a most obvious advantage.

NEW TENNIS COACH

We welcome Mrs. Peggy Lynch as the new girls tennis coach at the high school. Mrs. Lynch coached at Scituate previously.

SPRING SPORTS

Since the spring sports are getting underway with tryouts this week after school, the following names might come in handy:

COMMUNICATIONS COUNCIL
Nancy Sandell, 383-0486

Helen Pratt salute

Second, third and special needs students at the Osgood School saluted their physical education teacher, Helen Pratt, on Friday for the work she does every day, but expecially for the work she put into their gym shows last week.

Greeting her in the open space area with the song "It's a Small World After All," the children listened to Principal Jack Creamer proclaim March 6, 1981 as Helen Pratt Day in the Osgood School. "We salute Helen Pratt for her dedication to children," he read, "for her tenacious work in getting our new playground...for the energy she devotes to Snappy Sneakers Marathon Day...and just for caring."

Mrs. Pratt thanked the children for thinking of her and saluted them for "Showing me how you think about other people" and for trying their best. She said the teachers are good team players too, for helping the children remember their sneakers.

The tribute closed with the children singing "Magic Penny" which seemed to sum up the feelings of everyone in the room, "Love is something if you give it away...you end up having more."

A beaming Mrs. Pratt said afterwards, "That's the kind of school this is!"

Beauty days coming to Community Center

A day of beauty is among the exciting workshops now being registered at the Cohasset Community Center.

The latest in make-up and hair designs will be demonstrated by trained professionals. On Monday, March 16, from 1 to 2:30 p.m., Billy, Joe and Anthony of Hair Imports will demonstrate French Braids and curl iron and blow dry techniques. Mary-ann Doherty and her staff of Peridot will work with participants on sculptured nails, make-up techniques and nail care.

The workshop will be repeated for teens from 2:30 to 4 p.m., on the same day.

The techniques of collecting and drying herbs as well as their many interesting uses will be the subject of another workshop Thursday, March 19, at 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

In addition, the center is running a trip to the Flower Show and Quincy Market Wednesday, March 18, from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

Further information is available at the center Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. at 383-0088.

Beauty: treat or treatment?

By Lois Martin

Beauty's not easy. And what's more, pursuit of it is tiring. There are those among us, who are magnanimously forgiven, whose cheekbones are perfect, whose hipbones have been evident since birth, and for whom each hair assumes a becoming position.

But in my crowd a day of hustling after some degree of unusual attractiveness is one of three things — unattainable, frivolous, self-indulgent. All three for me.

Last week I exercised a birthday gift by heading to Newbury Street, Uptown, for a package beauty treatment. A friend went with me. And the day before we'd joked about what we'd have done. She wanted tucks taken in specified body sections. I opted for pleats. We thought we'd go for Afro eyebrows or even those tiny braids interspersed with gold beads.

PATCHES

Most of all we wanted a good laugh while we saw what they'd do with us as "before" women. But on Newbury Street one's appearance is no laughing matter. They're dead serious and aren't amused by people who've let themselves go.

As we made our arrival known, a woman was padding around with cotton between her toes. We were quickly remanded to a little room where we were to shift from blouse wear to a brown tie-around robe. Always minding beautifully, I followed my first leader, Linda, into a little room. She was my masseuse and I looked her over carefully. A delicate business, this, I thought as I checked the exit sign.

Linda was a shortish, pleasant-looking woman from Dorchester, it evolved. She'd been a physical therapist in World War II, a dental hygienist later and once the children were gone, she became a masseuse. She wouldn't let you wear anything for the massage. The robe was discreetly removed in favor of a mammoth beach towel, modestly effective. What was potentially a familiar event, especially for a novice, was in Linda's hands, relaxing and inoffensive.

She oiled and massaged, told me to relax my feet which stood straight out in ready defense. She knew she'd succeeded when I no longer held up my part of the conversation. True, at one point I believed anyone who leaned on me that day would slide off. But it was a restful experience.

From there I was sent to Fanny, a no-nonsense facial person from Romania. She tossed a comforting white blanket over me and then approached with a hot wax and honey mixture. That she slathered over my eyebrows, which should have been bald after she'd ripped off the gauze.

Fanny said unless I got some special cream on those eyes, I'd be in for a lot of wrinkles, but to lay off the cream elsewhere.

She spread on a cold pack that smelled like Halls mentholyptus cough drops, honey & lemon. That hardened before she smothered me in a hot towel. But I liked that and thought it might be nice to hide behind those now and then.

When she'd finished with me, I looked in the mirror. Oh my goodness. So made up was I as to be unrecognizable compared to the woman I usually see in the mirror. My lips had been spread to places they hadn't been before. And later my husband conceded I looked ready for the lead role in "Evita," singing "Don't cry for me Argentina."

It was after Fanny that we met Viola, the woman charged with delivering lunch. "Lunch" was an exaggeration of the modest peaches and cottage cheese. Linda stopped by to see how we were doing and confided that her legs were beginning to swell in her workday. Ours weren't. We hadn't done anything.

Next was Alex, my hairdresser. He's the baron of the beauty shop, the most esteemed by himself and by his clients. But he's good. He picked up a few strands of my hair and I thought I saw his nose tilt a little. But he had at it swiftly and proficiently, taking time to show me a flattering newspaper article written about him and listing his famous clients — Maria Callas, Marilyn Monroe. But that was no recommendation. Look what happened to them.

Anyway Alex did what he could and it was no small feat. I wasn't sure if I'd pass as easily in the Combat Zone as at a swank dinner party, but I was riding the tide.

The manicurist asked me why I didn't let my nails grow. I didn't have an excuse. She whittled and trimmed and polished. And I was completed.

That evening my friend, equally coiffed and perfected, and I went to a restaurant to meet our men. Intimate darkness, we discovered brought out the best in our appearances, softening the dramatic cosmetics. And we shared mirth as we dove into the round of cheese.

Would we do it again? Certainly parts of it. But there'd have to be a change in the lunch menu, a chef's salad or something. Meanwhile, don't be surprised if you see a woman in the supermarket aisle picking out a cereal with a steaming towel over her face.

Selectmen seek $20,000 in school $ for reserve

By Karin Bartow

The request by town officials for $20,000 from the school budget to replenish town reserve funds was aired at Monday night's meeting.

In a letter Selectman Arthur Clark and Jean Cotton, chairman, thanked the school committee for "meeting the challenge of replenishing the reserve fund from $75,000 to $100,000 for the next fiscal year in order to meet unforseeable emergencies, including those in the school department, which may be more numerous due to necessary cuts in meeting the limits of 2½."

With the surplus reserve depleted this year, the letter went on to explain, "It is necessary to fund $75,000 of the $100,000 from taxation."

Eugene Crowell, school superintendent, reiterated his support of compliance with the request stating that "It is a sound idea. Inter-department cooperation is so important (under 2½). We are all in this together."

No vote has been taken.

School committee members, however, and some people in the audience want to know more specifically how the $20,000 might be used and whether or not it will be returned to the school department if it is not used at town meeting for special articles. School committee candidate Dick Conley, said that both the selectmen and advisory committee had not taken an official position on the request.

Vice-Chairman of the school committee Jack Langmaid, wondered if the advisory committee should make this decision since their function is to advise. With few of the town budgets published for public perusal, Langmaid said it was difficult to know what their priorities are in making this request.

School committee member Diana Kornet agreed with the spirit of Crowell's gesture and reminded the committee that "We all will have a chance to deny these funds (if we choose to) at town meeting.

Advisory committee member Ozzie Ingram explained to the school committee that his board felt it wouldn't "be prudent to go to town meeting without surplus." He also indicated that other departments in town allowed $100,000 to be made available for special articles at town meeting from their collective budgets. Langmaid disagreed and suggested that the reserve funds are drawn as a separate percent from total revenue raised by the town.

Crowell told the committee that his discussions with Clark, Cotton and town accountant Bill Signorelli, were conducted "In the spirit of cooperation."

School briefs

Linda Jorgensen was appointed to the school bookkeeping position by a vote of 6-0. Jorgensen is presently a secretary in the high school main office and will move into her new position upon the retirement of Josephine Laugelli this spring.

The committee unanimously approved the 1981-1982 high school program of study.

The school committee approved at its March 2 meeting a basic skills testing program for the school system. Stephen Hart, director of special services, said the tests would continue to improve under continual revision.

The implementation of the listening portion of the basic skills requirements will be postponed for a year.

Stephen Hart and Deer Hill Principal Kenneth Ekberg, were instrumental in obtaining a $1668 grant for in-service training program for teachers in basic skills teaching from the state board of education.

A Note: Superintendent Crowell's rationale for help in the Deer Hill fourth grade next year is for teaching assistance in math, science and reading from Principal Ekberg. We left off that portion of the sentence in last week's write-up.

Birth control talk criticized

seniors.

"I talked about relationships and commitment. I talked about what the differences are between the sex that's touted in the mass media and a real caring relationship."

She says there is too much pressure on teenagers to become involved sexually.

She came to the school on the invitation of a classroom teacher.

"I was impressed by the maturity of the group. They wanted to talk about relationships. There's no where else they can go to talk about this."

She said the counselors at the family planning clinic encourage teenagers not to have sex until they are ready.

"Where else can they go and talk about not having sex?" she asked. "We're there to prevent abortions."

In 1980 there were eight Cohasset teenagers who went for pregnancy exams at the clinic who tested positively. Of those only two gave birth, Ms. Robinson said.

Cohasset has no health curriculum at present. But Michael Gill, the new health coordinator, is writing up a curriculum for Kindergarten through Grade 12.

Once the curriculum is developed it must be approved by both the parent groups and school committee.

Some parents who do want a health curriculum want the matter of sex left out of the school system. The health curriculum deals with many other issues like drugs, smoking, anatomy.

Ms. Robinson said when a teenager who is pregnant comes to the clinic counseling includes all the options.

Adoption, foster care, raising the child by herself and abortion are all discussed. The clinic does not get involved in any abortions. If that's the choice, the names of three places are given to the pregnant teen.

"The Supreme Court ruling was clear, no one can make that decision for another person and we don't try to push that decision or any other," she said.

Pallatroni-Keating

Mrs. Henry F. Pallatroni, Jr. of Mattapoisett, announces the engagement of her daughter, Nancy, to Christopher P. Keating, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Gerard Keating, Cohasset.

The bride to be, also the daughter of the late Henry Pallatroni, graduated from the University of Maine at Orono and is with The Talbots in Boston. Mr. Keating, also a graduate of the University of Maine at Orono, plays professional football for the Buffalo Bills.

Sculpture workshop

A one day sculpture workshop with Ruth Mordecai-Slavet will be given Saturday, March 28 from 10 to 5 at the South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Road.

This workshop is open to anyone interested in art (not necessarily a sculptor). The morning will be devoted to working in clay from the model on several small poses with one being selected for completion in the afternoon. Discussion, slides and notetaking in a journal will take place after lunch. The fee includes clay, a journal, model fee and the students take home a completed figure and their journals.

Cohasset Girl Scouts celebrate birthday

The Girl Scouts of Cohasset, along with almost three million girls and adults across the country are observing the 69th anniversary of the founding of Girl Scouting March 12.

As part of the week-long celebration, the Girl Scouts will hold a Juliette Low World Friendship program Friday, March 13 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the New Study Hall at the Cohasset High School.

The troops in town have been planning short programs representing various countries around the world. At this time, the girls will also make their annual donation to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund which supports exchange projects each year between Girl Scouts-USA and many foreign countries.

Parents and friends of Girl Scouting are invited to join the Scouts of Cohasset at the program on March 13.

Brown also honored

Dean Brown, a senior on the Cohasset High basketball team, was inadvertently omitted from the list of basketball players honored at the last game of the season.

Dean, like the other graduating seniors, received a trophy at the Varsity vs. Faculty game. Also it was Pat Duffy, not Bill Duffy, playing on the team this year. Bill graduated last year. Sorry, Pat.

Booster Club honors CHS athletes

By Rob Tis

Thursday night marked the official end of the winter sports program with a banquet.

The Booster Club out did itself with a superb feast of delicious turkey. Jack McNiell received the Booster award for the hockey team. The team which will only lose five seniors is looking forward to a record season next year. Clark Chatterton expressed his prediction that the team will be playing in the state tournament at theBoston Garden next year.

Keith Ross received the Booster award for the boys basketball team and Donna Chisholm for the girls team. Both teams will suffer big losses to graduation but still have hope for next year.

Torin Sweeney, who came in first in the division sectionals, but suffered a tough loss in the state tournament received the Booster award for the wrestling team. Coach Leone spoke of the "Munchkins" or the junior high wrestlers who will dominate in the years to come. He also mentioned that the team will have a strong group of juniors coming up, including Sweeney, Gordon Ricketts, Dave Rourke, Don MacKinnon, Beaver Buckley, Bob Donahue and sophomores Chris Mahoney and Paul Igo.

Janet Carlson won the Booster award for the gymnastic team and 7th Grade superstar Susie McMahon received an award for all league merit.

Next week a preview of the upcoming spring sports season.

Kids invited to Pratt Library storyhour

The Paul Pratt Memorial Library invites preschool age children to join a storyhour group on five Friday afternoons at 1:30 beginning March 20.

Seeds and plants, Easter and families are some of the programs being planned by guest storytellers Sue Terry, Carolyn Horn, Corine Leung, Susan DeMichele, Heidi Bishop and Mary Ann Hansen. Each program involves choice books, fingerplays and a simple craft project.

Children must be 3½ years old to register. Please call the library (383-1348) any afternoon to register.

The Thursday storyhour group is filled. Early registration may be made for the summer pre-school series.

School Board approves student reps.

Two non-voting representatives of the high school student body will sit with the school committee after April 3. The school committee approved student representation on their board at Monday night's meeting on a vote of 5 to 1. Committee member Irene Brown voted no because she felt the decision should be deferred until after town elections on April 11.

Last week the student advisory board reported the findings of a poll conducted at the high school which showed that 95% of the student body favored student representatives on the committee. Monday night Katie Smalzel, Scott O'Toole, Scott Johnson and Holly Grant outlined the voting procedure by which two students, a boy and a girl, will be elected to serve on the school committee. Ninth, tenth and eleventh grade students will be eligible to run, and the boy and girl with the most votes would serve a one year term. Students in grades 9-12 will vote.

Student members of the school committee won't receive confidential literature, nor will they attend executive sessions. They also won't be required to attend summer meetings. The student advisory board will run the election for student school committee reps on April 3.

Another victim of Prop. 2½

N. Cohasset fire station closed

By Patricia Desmond

The old fire station in North Cohasset closed this week, a victim of Proposition 2½ and reduced manpower.

Meanwhile town officials continue to work on plans for the new fire station at Beechwood.

Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink could have kept the station on the border of Hull open until July. But only if he hired three men with the idea of letting them go when the summer brings the new fiscal year and rigid austerity.

The town's fire department is authorized for 28 men. Three of those men retired recently, another is recovering from surgery and with vacations and more minor illnesses, the staffing is down.

Chief Piepenbrink said he had to close the North Cohasset station because he no longer had the manpower to operate it.

"It would have cost $20,000 to $25,000 in overtime to keep it open until June 30," he said. "It didn't make sense to spend that kind of money now."

So the town today is protected only by the central fire station outside Cohasset Village. The old Beechwood Station was closed when equipment no longer could fit inside.

"While we're cutting four men with Proposition 2½ at least nobody will lose a job," the chief said.

"The only place to cut was salaries, it's 95 percent of the budget. When you have to cut 15 percent, it's not easy."

He pointed out that he is short one man on every shift due to vacations right now.

The department has been running short-handed for sometime. The first of the vacancies happened last fall.

"I just had a feeling Proposition 2½ would pass," the chief said. "I didn't want to lose money by hurrying and training the men to be let go. It just didn't make sense."

So now the department reached the level of Proposition 2½ budgeting without a lay-off.

The chief recommended two years ago that both North Cohasset and Beechwood be closed. But back then he didn't plan on operating a one-station town. He wrote in his annual report that the town should

Make-up day at the Community Center

By Laura Doherty

It may have been grey and bleak outside, but at the community center's Day of Beauty, color and excitement were in the air.

In two separate sessions, adults and teens were given demonstrations in the latest fashions in makeup and haircare by Maryanne Doherty and her staff from Peridot and Anthony, Donna, Billy and Joe from Hair Imports.

From the reactions of many of the women participants, there were probably a great many surprised husbands that night, and also more than a few last minute plans for dining out. "I should have prepared by husband," worried Jean Brett who had been transformed from center nursery school teacher to glamorous sophisticate during the workshop.

"The only problem with something like this is you really don't want to go home afterward," was an

Exec. secretary search to be open

By John McNabb, Jr.

The Committee to Study Town Government Structure wants a search committee established to find the town's first executive secretary.

During the meeting, Committee Member Tom Atkinson raised the question of whether the job description was being "written for a known person or for an unknown person." He said he was concerned about discussions in town that the position would be created just with Selectman Arthur Clark in mind.

Committee Member Donna McGee proposed that a search committee be established because Cohasset has "set a precedent in the selection of the new police chief and school superintendent," which involved citizen participation in a search committee, and that a similar procedure "provides an openness that we need in this situation."

Ms. McGee proposed that the Town Structure Committee: "recommend to the Selectmen that a screening committee be appointed by the town appointing authority to review candidates for the Executive Secretary position and to recommend candidates to the Selectmen."

The motion passed unanimously after a short discussion concerning how much time a search committee would have to do the job. It was agreed that the Executive Secretary could not start before July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year, but that he could be appointed at any time after that.

The search committee and Selectmen can take as much time as they wish, since there is no deadline for the appointment.

The Town Structure Committee discussed two "tentative drafts" for a job description: one written by Selectman Henry Ainslie, and one written by Mary Gainor and Donna McGee of the Committee.

This meeting was the first time committee members had seen both proposals. The Selectmen have not seen the committee proposal, and there has been no opportunity yet for a joint discussion on the subject. Committee Chairman William Weeks said that they have had "very little discussion with the Selectmen" about the proposed job descriptions.

While committee members agreed that the two proposals were very similar, they did point out some differences. The Selectmen's version, they said, did

Boosters could save Jr. High sports

If the junior high school sports program is to survive it will be up to the fund-raising efforts of the various school booster clubs.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell said this week he hopes the Boosters can raise $5,000 to $10,000 to keep the program going.

"There will be no major cuts in the sports budget next year except for junior high sports," he said.

He said he would like the four or so clubs to work together on a large-scale fund-raising effort to keep junior high sports and expand the intramural program.

The athletic budget is going from $110,000 to $80,000 next year but Crowell says no major sports are being eliminated.

A revolving fund will be set up for the sports program by the booster club money.

Crowell thinks a night at the Music Circus or a dinner dance might be the sort of effort the group could work to.

"I know we couldn't merge the clubs under one umbrella. They have distinct identities. But I don't want to nickel and dime the people and make pests of ourselves.

"At least we aren't looking for our whole sports budget," Crowell said.

"The cuts had to be made to safeguard the academic program."

Cohasset's week

Keep well clinics

There will be two Keep Well Clinics in March. The first is Thursday, March 19 at the Unitarian Parish House at 11:30 a.m., with the second coming Wednesday, March 25 at Harbor View from 10 a.m. to noon.

At both clinics there will be a nurse to take blood pressure, do urine tests, check weight and discuss any health questions.

The office at 83 South Main St. is open for anyone to stop by to have blood pressure taken or to consult with the nurse or social worker. Hours are 8-9 a.m. and 12-1 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

The social service league is moving March 31. The new address will be 16 Highland Ave., Saint Stephen's Parish Hall, entering at the back of the church.

The shuttle bus will run March 31, moving day. Be sure to make reservations the day before on March 30.

King taps Cifrino

Gov. Edward J. King appointed Paul J. Cifrino of Jerusalem Road to the Massachusetts Nutrition Board.

Cifrino is retired and now works as a consultant after a lifetime in the food industry.

"I am impressed by Paul's extensive experience in the food business. It will enable him to be a valuable participant on the Nutrition Board," said Gov. King.

Cifrino received a bachelors degree from Harvard University in 1941. He is a member of the Advisory Committee to the United States Secretary of Agriculture. Cifrino resides at 792 Jerusalem Road.

Healey released

Arthur Healy of Scituate is no longer being charged in the rape of a Cohasset child two weeks ago.

The young man was released through court action yesterday after the 14-year-old victim failed to identify him in a line-up.

The charges were dismissed.

Job board at CCC

A bulletin board carrying teenagers job notices will be installed at the bus shelter on Cohasset Common now that selectmen have approved the project.

The idea came from Larry Fone, owner of Cookworks.

Cemetery expansion

The Beechwood Cemetery may expand into the Woodside area, if the conservation commission will go along with filling.

The selectmen want to talk about the possibility with the conservation board before going ahead with plans.

Police compensatory time

Police officers going to school may be offered compensatory time off for their effort, according to Police Chief John DeBassio.

The chief wants to encourage the men to continue their schooling.

Two officers on the force have degrees. One a bachelor's and one an associates degree. The Chief would like to see more of that.

Bobby fair after amputation

Bobby Beale, the young man from Cohasset who was flown home through the goodwill of friends and well-wishers, lost his left leg last week.

The 20-year-old Beale was hit by a car in Florida Jan. 30 as he walked by the side of the road. He has been in a coma ever since.

Hospital officials describe his condition as fair.

Executive secretary search

not include grantsmanship or centralized purchasing as a duty of the Executive Secretary.

Perhaps the most crucial difference is in the qualifications section. While the committee's version specifies that the Executive Secretary must have a "degree from an accredited institution of higher education," the Selectmen's version requires the college degree OR equivalent experience in municipal government.

This provision could be a stumbling block for Selectman Arthur Clark, who does not have the required college degree. He would be qualified only if the job description provided for equivalent experience as a substitute for the degree.

Member John Wilson said that "this job description should not eliminate Arthur Clark, which it doesn't. His name should be included in the list of candidates considered by the search committee, if the committee wants to."

The committee decided to work with the Selectmen to draw up a combined job description, based on both their proposals, and to help the Selectmen come up with an approved and agreed upon job description in time for Town Meeting, April 4.

The subcommittee, members Gainor and McGee, who worked on the draft proposal, were directed to write up an updated draft, based on changes suggested at this meeting.

Advisory Committee member Mary Jane McArthur suggested that the Executive Secretary be given the job of reviewing the activities of other town committees, and to report to the Selectmen concerning their findings.

Chartis Langmaid suggested that the job description include a provision to direct the Executive Secretary to keep an inventory of people in the town and their qualifications, to be used as a resource by the town appointing authorities when they find it necessary to appoint someone to an open post.

Both suggestions were accepted by the committee and will be included in the redraft of the committee's proposal. The redraft will be presented to the Selectmen by the subcommittee, who will help them draw up a combined job description.

There was discussion concerning possible conflicts between the proposed job description and the duties of existing town officials. The committee agreed to discuss with those officials, the Personnel Board and the Town Accountant, what the possible areas of conflict could be and how to avoid them.

Donna McGee said that their subcommittee's proposal was based upon the Town Meeting Article 43 of April 5, 1980, which established the post of Executive Secretary. She said they based the proposed description on job descriptions for similar positions in other towns in Massachusetts, and from materials from the Mass. Municipal Association and some state agencies.

A question arose as to the term of office for the Executive Secretary. It was agreed that the term would be determined by the Selectmen and the Executive Secretary, since he would be hired under contract that would have to be jointly decided upon.

TOWN CLERK SALARY

In other business, the committee discussed an earlier request by Town Clerk Charles Marks that the committee sponsor an article at Town Meeting to request that his salary be raised so that he could work full time. Chairman Bill Weeks said that at that time, the committee had decided that the committee had no jurisdiction in that matter, and would not act on it.

Chairman Weeks read from a letter from Town Counsel Blake Thaxter that stated the committee did in fact have jurisdiction, since the request concerned a change in the structure of an office in the town. He said that he "considered the matter moot."

After a short discussion, the committee decided not to change its earlier position. If asked at Town Meeting, he said, the committee would state that they did not at the time consider it in their jurisdiction, and would not comment on it.

Police must wait to get grievance pay

Local police have been heard grumbling lately.

They won an award amounting to $8,000 from the town last month but payment won't be until after town meeting.

Each of the men who were on the force two years ago during the time permanent intermittants were employed to hold back overtime are due to a small share of the money. About $500.

Police Chief John DeBassio said the money will be paid as soon as town meeting authorizes it but there is one technicality. The funds can't come from taxation or the men will have to wait until July.

N. Cohasset fire station closed

consider building one modern facility in a more centrally located spot to replace both old stations.

While the chief was moving quietly to close down the North Cohasset station, the design plans of the new Beechwood Station were being worked on.

The annual town meeting will be asked to come up with $110,000 to build the two-bay structure on the site of the abandoned Beechwood Station.

Arthur Clark, chairman of the board of selectmen, said his board wasn't taking a position when it awarded the design contract and ordered the plans.

"In last year's special town meeting a group from Beechwood came in very well-organized and approved $3,000 for plans."

He said the selectmen have been doing what they were instructed to by the special town meeting.

"That's not to say the article will pass this year," Arthur said.

Last year townspeople were told the construction could be accomplished for $65,000. This year's estimate from the architects, Schwartz-Silver of Boston, is nearly twice that.

Will the building just stand empty if it is built?

Chief Piepenbrink said he would need more men, more than the 24 he can expect, to operate a second fire station.

No more cuts

The town should hold on to its firefighter slots.

Twenty-eight is certainly a small enough number.

If there are economy measures to be desired, let some other department come up with them. The across the board cuts of the fire department are not true economy.

According to some, the reductions may leave the people of North Cohasset paying more than their share of the property tax in insurance premium increases.

The four men cut out of the budget mean there is only one fire station in town. Now Cohasset has always been a small town but this is ridiculous.

The fire department is half the size of the Hingham force. Does that mean we expect half the protection?

A crowd from Beechwood managed to push through a special town meeting article last year calling for construction of a new station for that part of town.

What good will the station do without anyone inside it? And does anyone expect that structure to go up?

Lament for a tree

As you may recall, at the opening ceremonies for our new clubhouse (last summer) we joined in planting a tree in the circle formed by the driveway behind the clubhouse. It was a small beech tree which we hoped would someday shade the driveway and entrance to the clubhouse.

Recently some vandals snapped the little tree off at the base, thus desecrating a fragile symbol of community spirit.

Perhaps the worst part of this little tragedy for me is that I rather expected it would happen. Sadly, we have come more and more to accept that public property will not be respected, witness the litter poured daily upon our town common and beach. But we must not let the unacceptable become acceptable. We must not let a mindless minority which has no respect for beauty or community or life set the tone for our town or our club.

A tree will be planted and replanted again and again until either the vandals tire or the trunk becomes strong enough to resist their attacks.

One tree may be destroyed, but as long as there is some dirt and a few seeds left on earth we must make it clear that an idea cannot be so easily killed. We must demonstrate that people who care outnumber those people who do not.

A far reaching disease

Commentary

To the Community of Cohasset:

Twenty-one months ago, under the sheltering tent of the South Shore Music Circus, I stood before you as a graduating member of the Class of 1979, and considered how much I owed the Cohasset school system, declaring, "I don't believe any other high school, public or private, could have done as much." My sense of gratitude deepened during my freshman year at Williams College, where I found that my academic background compared quite favorably with the backgrounds of classmates who had graduated from such high school "superstars" as Horace Greeley in New York, or New Trier in Illinois, the "guiding light" of high school education according to a recent Boston Globe feature article. I was proud that I could compete on equal ground with graduates of highly respected, prestigious private schools, and I felt sure that Cohasset residents had no need to send their children out of town to receive a good education. I wish I was still so sure.

Upon receiving the February 26 issue of the Mariner in today's mail (news travels slowly in the Berkshires) my suspicions were confirmed — my suspicions that the Cohasset school system was in trouble. The lead story declared that Proposition 2½ would be "painful, but not fatal" to next year's budget, but the budget cuts are only symptomatic of a more far-reaching disease, and one that may indeed prove fatal in time: taxpayers are losing interest in their children's education. A quick tour along the oceanfront of Cohasset, or through the town parking area, will discover homes and automobiles that would suggest a good deal of wealth, perhaps more than the Yankee heritage of most residents would care to acknowledge. But Proposition 2½ received overwhelming support in Cohasset, and the school budget is being reduced by $180,000. It seems that many members of the community would prefer to spend their money elsewhere than on the education of their children.

Particularly disturbing is that so much of the budget cut will take the form of a reduction in faculty. The Mariner article claimed that "All across the board, teachers, coaches, and aides will cover in more areas to ensure the delivery of good education." This statement presents an interesting paradox: how can the same amount of time be spent on each class, when faculty members are teaching five classes instead of four? How can the same amount of time be spent on each student, when class size grows from twenty to thirty? Forcing faculty to "cover in more areas" will not "ensure the delivery of a good education," but the opposite; it will mean less time for preparing classes, for grading papers, for meeting with students individually. Larger classes will mean the difference between stimulating discussions that provoke student thought and participation, and lecture-format classes in which students are given all the answers, while they alternately take notes and doze off.

The problem here extends beyond the town lines of Cohasset; there has been an unfortunate shift in American attitudes towards our nation's educators. Once considered as the molders of future generations, teachers are now seen as little more than inefficient entries on a budget. The profession is no longer regarded with respect; the quote from G.B. Shaw in John Cutler's column of the same Mariner issue epitomizes the all-too-prevalent modern attitude toward education — "Those who can, do; those who can't, teach." My brother, who graduated from CHS in 1973 and from Dartmouth in 1979, has encountered this frustration teaching high school biology in New Hampshire. Unlike the corporate world, where dedication and hard work are usually rewarded, the teaching profession frequently fails to distinguish between excellence and mediocrity, rewarding teachers according to how long they've done their job, rather than how well they do it. Here I think there is a policy at Williams worth mentioning — the student evaluation. The final week of each semester at Williams provides students with an opportunity to critique the courses they have just taken, as well as the professors who taught them. These evaluations are later taken into account in awarding tenure. Perhaps such a system would be less feasible in the lower grades, where students could be biased according to the amount of work and discipline involved; but surely departing seniors, and recent alumni, could be more objective. Students are in a better position to observe the quality of teaching, and too often they are also the only ones who really care.

There was once a time when those members of society who "made good" vowed to give their children the educational opportunities they never had. Now those children have grown up, and now educational quality is taken for granted. Community members no longer show the same support for their schools, nor the same respect for their teachers. But students are still greatly affected by the lessons they learn in these schools, at the hands of these teachers. The influence that many Cohasset faculty members have had on my life has been profound, often equal to the influence of my own family. Likewise, the education I received from twelve years in the Cohasset school system largely determined the values, the goals, and the beliefs that I hold today. The administration of an institution so fundamental to a student's intellectual, emotional, and moral growth should not be taken lightly.

Never having taken Economic 101, and being as distant as I am from Cohasset's politics, I cannot pretend to provide an informed solution to the threat of declining educational quality in Cohasset. I can only hope to provoke some thought, and to ask the members of my community to consider what value they place on the minds of their children, in the hope that future generations of CHS graduates may benefit from the same academic excellence and opportunity that I enjoyed.

Sincerely,
Leslie M. Jones

In response to pro casino 'facts'

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to the fact sheet published by VOICES — the Hull-based Pro-Casino group.

Statements out of context can certainly mislead and confuse the reader. Misinterpretation of data can also lead to erroneous assumptions.

The VOICE fact sheet states: Additional taxes from the gaming will be divided between town and state — that could mean another $5 million.

The facts are clearly stated in the bills now before the Committee on Government Regulations. House Bills S-540, S-524, S-571 and H-1125 and I quote from Section 14 of S-540:

"Each licensee under the provisions of this chapter shall pay to the state treasurer within thirty days after the end of each calendar quarter, a sum equal to seven (7) percent of the total gross income earned by the licensee during such calendar quarter from the playing of games of chance. The state treasurer shall deposit twenty percent (20%) of such income into the general fund of the Commonwealth and shall deposit eighty percent (80%) into a special account to be known as the "CASINO FUND." Said eighty percent (80%) will be allocated to the Massachusetts Department of Elder Affairs. As used herein, "Gross Amount of Income" shall mean the total of all sums, including checks and markers actually received and collected by a licensee from gaming operations, less only the total of all sums paid out in winnings to patrons."

VOICE facts state: 80 percent of adult Americans gamble and believe it to be moral.

This sentence was taken out of context from the Federal Commission Report on Gambling in America - 1976 - "Carefully reflect on the significance of the fact that a pasttime (gambling) indulged in by 2/3 of the American people and approved of by perhaps 80 percent of the population, contributes more than any other single enterprise to police corruption in their cities and towns and to the well being of the Nation's criminals."

VOICE says that unemployment in Atlantic City has dropped from 26 percent in March 1976 to 7.9 percent in December 1980. The fact now is that unemployment has increased from 7 percent to almost 11 percent — and in the latest figures coming in from Atlantic City, Casino employment has proven to be seasonal — which only adds to the winter months burden of unemployment costs. The Mayor of Atlantic City has stated that 15,000 jobs were created by the Casino influx, but only 2 percent — or 300 residents of Atlantic City are Casino employees.

VOICE says that business in town would be year-round (12 months) instead of only 10 weeks during the summer. The truth is that the Chamber of Commerce in Atlantic City is near bankruptcy. Casinos provide for all needs of guests. Small business is almost non-existent in Atlantic City. VOICE says that low income groups show lower participation rates for gambling than higher income groups. Seventy-four percent of those betting have incomes of lower than $15,000.

VOICE says the increase in violent crime in Atlantic County has gone down since the introduction of casino gambling. The key words in their statement are violent and county. (It is like comparing Plymouth county with the town of Plymouth). Violent crimes include murder, rape, and armed robbery. Sgt. George Nelson of the Atlantic City Police Department reports crime — including muggings, purse snatchings, robberies, breaking and entering, auto thefts, prostitution, and illegal drug use are up 500 percent since 1978, the year Atlantic City's first Casino opened. Ninety-five percent of all persons arrested have been out of state residents or visitors.

New Jersey's Attorney General, John J. Degnan's testimony the week of February 23, 1981 before the Legislators in Connecticut concluded — "the costs that come with Casino gambling far outweigh any benefits. Three things come with Casino gambling — crime, corruption, and congestion." One needs only to read the February 1981 issue of Life Magazine — pages 66 through 72 to draw his own conclusions.

VOICE mentions spin-off effect of quality business and current business being able to up-grade. Mr. Joseph A. Lafente in the Comm. of N.J. Dept. of Community Affairs stated that since May 1978, 120 new businesses established and only one is not Casino-related. Two hundred forty small consumer businesses have closed.

History seems to be repeating itself. Hull is being sold the same bill of goods. Property values did increase in Atlantic City — some as high as 400 percent to 800 percent — but this caused the displacement of many Atlantic City residents. I strongly urge Hull residents to look into all the facts before grasping for fool's gold. The only one who benefits from casino gambling are casino owners!

Divisions deep over sexual conduct

To the Editor:

The headline of your front page article of last week, "Parents rap birth control talk," is misleading. If some "parents" objected to the talk I suspect that at least an equal number of "parents" strongly supported it. The simple fact of the matter is that the parents of our community are deeply divided on the question of what is responsible sexual conduct. Until these differences are resolved it is doubtful that a really effective health education curriculum, which ought to include an understanding of human sexuality and responsible parenting, can be implemented in the public schools.

Ms. Robinson observes, "I was impressed by the maturity of the group. They wanted to talk about relationships. There's nowhere else they can go to talk about this." That simply is not true. For the past ten years the First Parish in Cohasset has presented a course in human sexuality for junior high age young people. This course provides information with regard to birth control and abortion as well as many other important areas of concern and includes ample

Bad example and influence on society

To the Editor:

Your editorial "Teenage Pregnancy" on March 12, made the statement that the (Hull) "teenage clinic doesn't force birth control information on anyone...It has nothing at all to do with abortion — except to discuss the topic as an alternative with teens who are already pregnant."

It is naive to suppose that adults and especially those who have authority, or large amounts of money (federal or otherwise) behind them, do not have a powerful and decisive influence on how a teenager will act. It is wrong, moreover, to use public funds for purposes which the overwhelming majority of Americans have always regarded as immoral.

The reason that some young people are having more than the usual number of problems in regard to sex is the bad example and influence of adult society. Only when adult Americans honestly face up to and correct the errors of their own lives will young people follow their example, and then many of these problems will be corrected.

Memories in the morning

By Horace Kostos

I went for a walk today very early in the morning.

The sky over the Harbor had already adopted its grey face and the clouds hid the sun, leaving me cold as I walked toward the water.

The scene looked like a huge aluminum pot, dulled by frequent use, pitted with water marks. The lid of the sky hung depressingly low, thick and foreboding. Leaves, dead for so many months now, shook their backs to the wind, fluttering softly to the northwest.

I felt like an intruder as I walked among the barren trees and silent sky, wondering whether I am a leaf or a cloud.

And I thought of her with her slender wrists and round eyes and soft lips. And I wondered whether she is hidden like the missing warmth of sunshine or just invisible like the wind that runs over the small swells of ocean in the Harbor, over the brown earth and yellowed grass, over the decaying leaves over my empty life.

And I walked alone, wishing I were with her still.

25 MPG AND THE PERFORMANCE OF A BMW.

While the BMW 320i (with standard transmission) complies brilliantly with fuel-efficiency regulations, delivering [25] EPA estimated mpg, 36 estimated highway mileage and, based on these figures, an estimated mpg range of [383] miles and a highway range of 551 miles, its extraordinary performance remains uncompromised.

(Naturally our fuel efficiency figures are for comparison purposes only. Your actual mileage and range may vary, depending on speed, weather and trip length. Your actual highway mileage and highway range will most likely be lower.)

☐"Fangers" are the Osgood open space classroom's answer to spring. Children were given hangers, bright colored paper and material, and told to "think spring." Their "fangers" are hanging in the center of the room proclaiming flowers, sunshine, fair weather clouds, and life outdoors are all on their way. And when the decorations come down, they become "fans" for cooling off over hard paperwork in the spring classroom. Clever idea teachers!

☐Stuart Pratt is The Insurance Consortium of America's regional marketing director for Massachusetts and former director of marketing and franchise sales for Century 21 of New England. ICA, Connecticut-based insurance franchising pioneer, has expanded into Massachusetts and Pratt says he expects to enroll 40 franchises by July 1.

☐John Bowen, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Bowen of 15 Juniper Rise, has been named to the Dean's List at Norwich University for the fall semester. He is a senior majoring in physical education.

☐Paul Hurtig of 58 Gammons Road was named to the Dean's List at Wentworth Institute for the first semester.

☐Sean P. Kelley of Cohasset was named to the Headmaster's List, First Honors, at Derby Academy in Hingham, for the first term of the academic year. Mary Jane Benson, Amery Burnham and Eric Wurzel were awarded Second Honors.

☐"Nanna" Goff has spread the news, but in case you haven't heard, Edward and Jane Goff of Ledgewood Drive have a new baby, their first son. Edward Francis III was born at 11:38 a.m. on March 9 at St. Margaret's Hospital. He weighed 9 lbs. 9 ozs. and is 22 inches long!

Ed and Jane also have two daughters, Priscilla, 4½, and Courtney, 2½. Grandparents are Beth ("Nanna") and Ed Goff and Frank and Ann Evans, all of Cohasset. Viola Racette of Cohasset and Mary McKenna of Hyannis are great grandmothers.

☐William "Pop" Ditmar celebrated his 85th birthday on March 1 at a special breakfast at the Log & Line with daughter-in-law Jan Ditmar, his grandchildren Joy, Julie, Mark and Brad, the Ciciotte's and O'Loughlin's. "Pop" plans to celebrate his 85th again next year, too! Many happy returns.

☐Zaven Dadekian of New Jersey is the new owner of the Cushing Plaza shopping center on Route 3A. Dadekian, who has real estate holdings in the New York City area and in the South, bought the twenty store and professional building complex from the Crown Investment Group for $1.47 million.

☐Maura Young, a student in Mrs. Price's third grade class, had some poetic thoughts for her parents on St. Patrick's Day: "Happy Saint Patrick's Day, I can say this in a different way, I love you! I am so happy we got a letter from Wally. I hope he's feeling jolly."

☐"Dandylion," a three year old duck who lives in a pen behind the Clapp's house, spent several days recuperating from a sore leg in their bathroom. Dandylion enjoyed her weekend in the tub. She tried to get a look at the rest of the house, but was foiled in her attempt to leave her porcelain suite. Her leg is much better and she's back in the yard waddling around with the other ducks.

☐First graders in the Osgood School are trying to hatch a goose egg in time for Easter.

☐In other animal news, only three of "Papa Skinny's" dump puppies are left and still seeking homes. Sixteen puppies in all out of three litters were born at the town landfill over the past two months.

Some rules for firefighting

To the Editor:

A number of years ago on a Saturday afternoon the writer was at home at 35 North Main St. and heard the fire alarm sound. A neighbor was running down the street and I asked him "Where is the fire?" He said right down here, pointing to the George Collier house at 25 North Main St.

I went there and found a pumper connected to the street hydrant with a hose extending into the house. It happened that I felt much at home there, so I opened the door and went in and called. No one answered. There was no fire in the first floor. I went up stairs and there was no fire there. I went to the attic door, pushed aside a screen and went up the stairs. The attic was thick with smoke, so I risked being suffocated, although I crawled along the floor.

The first need was to let the smoke out. There was a window with a hinged sash at each end of the attic, and I opened the sashes, but they insisted on swinging closed. However, I finally made one stay open.

Red flames cannot be seen through thick smoke. But I found smoke coming from a mattress on the floor. I folded the mattress over and managed to push it out the window. There was a little patch of fire where the mattress had been. So I went down to outside of the house to get the small booster hose. In about two seconds the fire on the attic floor was extinguished by the booster with no damage by water. There was considerable water damage caused by the nozzle of the large hose which had been left running on the second floor. A boy cried out "I can't shut it off!" So I flipped over the handle of the nozzle. About then the Chief and a deputy appeared and I showed them where the fire was burning in the attic.

Lessons taught me by that fire: (1) The first fireman to arrive should first investigate instead of connecting the pumper to the hydrant and laying a large hose. Often the booster will be sufficient and would be quicker. (2) Find the fire and put some water on it. In this case the arriving firemen first stopped to put up a ladder to the attic window, presumably to fight the smoke. (3) I never learned the cause of the fire in the mattress and I did not learn who notified the Fire Department. Whoever it was should have waited to meet the arriving firemen and direct them to the trouble. (4) If that fire had started at night while people were sleeping, it might have resulted in loss of life due to smoke inhalation. Smoke detectors are needed in every house and apartment. (5) After a prompt alarm three of four firemen are sufficient. The job of the Chief is to supervise the firefighters and actively take part.

Time to boycott the Sox

To the Editor:

I've been a Red Sox fan for forty years and always waiting for next year hoping they will do better. Well I won't have to wait any longer for the Red Sox. The straw that broke the camel's back just happened. With Fisk leaving the Red Sox, I have no intentions of going to any more games or even watching them on T.V.

It's time for the silent majority to be heard. I believe it's time to boycott ballgames in protest to the ridiculous salaries being paid ballplayers. Remember if we don't go to games there will not be money to pay players. I blame the players not the owners. The players are all money hungry and have no loyalty to their Club or fans that made them what they are today.

Let's start to strike back by not going to ballparks across the country. If the players can strike, let's show them we can too.

time for the discussion of attitudes, relationships, and decision making. The classes meet in private homes in the presence of responsible adult leadership. Interest and attendance of our young people has been excellent every year the course has been provided.

I applaud the work that Joy Robinson is doing, but since there is disagreement among parents over a number of issues regarding human sexuality why not direct the young people to their churches where these issues may be discussed in a framework of moral values? At the First Parish in Cohasset these values include respect for persons, respect for individual freedom of choice, responsible parenting and respect for the total environment and the limits of growth. The activities and programs of the First Parish are open to the community.

The Tis spring review

By Rob Tis

It's that time of year again. The high school is buzzing with activity. Both tennis teams have new coaches. The boys' team will be under the tutelage of chemistry teacher Greg Jones. The girls' team will be under the reins of Mrs. Peggy Lynch.

The boys' team has a lot of depth this season and is expected to make the state tournament and possibly the division title. Two singles players will be returning from last year, first singles player and co-captain Gerry White as well as yours truly. Andy Pottenger and co-captain Joe Whelan who played doubles last year will also be returning. Jason Gill, who played second singles for Norwell last year will be joining the team. Veteran Shannon (Mr. Cool) Collins and Mike Brady will also be returning as well as Rob Whelan, Paul Riley and Mike O'Donnell. More than any other year in tennis history, this team has a chance to make a mark in the state tourney.

GIRLS' TENNIS

The girls' tennis team has similar hopes. Mrs. Lynch has been working them hard all week long. Last year's first doubles team of Sue Dalyrimple and Karen Murphy are the co-captains of the squad and will most likely be playing first and second singles. Other veterans from last year include Joy Pratt, Mia Graham, Chrissy Ralph and the lone senior Lauren Oliemian as well as Jenny Mitman, Jenny Oliemian, Ann O'Connell and Diana Heintz. Last year's team mounted a 10-4 record missing the state tournament by one match. The first two singles players of that team, Lauren Occoner and Janet England were lost to graduation, but the squad is young and like the boys has a lot of depth.

"We're all looking forward to a successful season, our new coach will be a tremendous asset as well as the large amount of talent we have," summed up co-captain Sue Dalyrimple.

Both tennis teams have all the necessary tools to have a successful season this year except one, fan support. If you're a tennis fan, make an effort to come up to the high school courts some Tuesday or Thursday afternoon this spring. Both teams would love your support.

SOFTBALL

It's going to be quite a change from last year for the softball team. This year, no boys, no controversy, no Miss Watson but hopefully another good season.

This year's all female team will be coached by Mr. Fallon. Returning starters include Heidi Brown and Lindsay Gilmore in the outfield and Karen Froio and Gia Barressi in the infield. First base for the Skippers seems to be wrapped up by Madeline Roy. Gia Barressi and Liz Atkinson are fighting for the second base position. Karen Froio will be at shortstop and Ellen Digilronamo will be at third. Joining Heidi and Lindsey in the outfield will be Stacy Thompson, Laura Hines, and eighth grade standouts Janet Digilronamo and Kristen O'Brien.

Pitching looks to be a strong point for the Skippers this year. Jennifer Carrol will be returning this year as well as fast balling Laurie Sandblom. Liz Russell, who pitched near perfect ball on the J.V. team last year, will also be a mainstay in the rotation. Catching this experienced staff of hurlers will be the job of Sara Froio and Sally Cook.

Last year's softball team mounted a record of 17-3 including post season play but that has no bearing on how well this team will do, after the team's many changes. As Madeline Roy stated, it seems that everyone is glad no boys went out for the team. The big question, however, is will the other teams counteract to last year's Skipper team with squads full of power hitting boys? We'll soon find out, scrimmages start next week.

The Rec Report

The Cohasset Recreation Dept. will accept registrations for girls' gymnastics program to be taught by Ms. Ruth Ann Sargent. Programs are open for girls in Grades 4-12.

The fee for the six-week program is $6 per person. Classes are limited to eight participants each. Classes will be held for advanced gymnastics Tuesday evenings from 7:30 to 8:30, beginning Tuesday, April 7.

Classes for beginners will be held Friday evenings from 7 to 8, and intermediates from 8 to 9, beginning Friday, April 10.

For further information and registrations, call the Recreation Office at 383-6791. Also, a basic gymnastics program for Grades K-3 is being planned for mid-May. Information regarding that program will be forthcoming.

ARRP meets

The American Association of Retired Persons, So. Shore Chapter 1139 will meet Thursday, March 26 at 1:30 p.m. in the Sons of Italy Hall, Hingham.

Miss Mabel Diggs, program chairman, will present a program of interest.

Refreshments will be provided by chairman Vi Giardino and her committee.

CHS Drama Club wins round two

The Cohasset High School Drama Workshop won again in the second round of competition in the 1981 Massachusetts High School Drama Festival. Cohasset was named one of four winners in the semi-finals festival held here on Saturday.

The cast also won the all-star ensemble award for the day. The award was given to the Drama Workshop at the regional festival also two weeks ago.

"The quality (of performances) was very high and the day ran tightly," said Ron Emmons, director of the Drama Workshop. "We're more relaxed now and they'll just go in and entertain at the finals."

Duxbury, Joseph Case High School of Swansee and Randolph were the other winners on Saturday. Cohasset and Duxbury were named winners of the regionals on February 28. Marshfield High School alternate winner at the regionals, will compete in the finals also, having won the alternate play-off this weekend.

The Drama Workshop will be up third on Friday, March 27 at the John Hancock Hall in Boston with their presentation of Hold Me!, a dramatization of Jules Feiffer's cartoons. The two day State Festival begins at 1 p.m. on Friday and continues through Saturday. The state winners will go on to the New England Drama Festival at the University of Bridgeport, Connecticut on April 23-25. Emmons said, "I'm pleased we've come this far."

Members of Cohasset's cast are Caroline Wampole, Cathleen Collins, Jerry White, Caroline Bonnar, Pat Duffy, Tim Libby, Missy Barcomb, and Lindsay Gilmore. Leslie Collins is stage manager. Koren Lipsett is assistant stage manager and members of the stage crew are Ed Booth, Matt Packard, Ken Ralff, Keith Ross, Bob Russell and Michelle Shea.

The Drama Festival, sponsored by the Massachusetts High School Drama Guild, the Massachusetts Secondary School Administrators Association and the Boston Globe, is held annually to encourage dramatic excellence in schools.

Knowles to seek Health seat

Paula A.M. Knowles of 15 Border St. announced her candidacy this week for the Board of Health seat recently vacated by Lynne Buckley.

Mrs. Knowles, a 10-year resident of Cohasset, said she is familiar with many of the testing procedures done by the Board of Health. She has had experience with Board of Health and state regulations for livestock and dairy farms in both New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and attended many of the recent Board of Health meetings held to rewrite Cohasset's livestock regulations.

However, Mrs. Knowles feels that her Brandeis University training in working from blueprints and plot plans, as well as her own study of an continued interest in waste disposal and septic systems are her most important qualifications for the Board of Health position, especially in view of recent proposals to allow the building of multi-unit housing in Cohasset. She believes that the strict and educated enforcement of Title V sanitary sewage disposal regulations is essential to all further land development in Cohasset.

Mrs. Knowles, a dressmaker, and her husband, Keith F. Knowles, vice president of Globe Rubber Works, Inc., of Rockland, have two children, Gregory and Jennifer. She is a member of the Joseph Osgood School Communications Council, Curtain Call Community Theatre, the Tigerettes, a Cohasset softball team, and was a candidate last year for the Board of Health seat vacated by Dr. Roger A. Pompeo, until that office was removed from the ballot by order of the Attorney General's office.

Coffee scheduled for Golden candidacy

Thursday, March 19 at 10 a.m. Mr. and Mrs. Glen Spung of 215 Forest Ave. will hold a coffee hour for Doris Golden of Bound Brook Lane. Mrs. Golden is seeking a three-year term as Selectman in the April 11 election.

Persons wishing to learn more about Mrs. Golden's candidacy at this coffee hour should contact Mrs. Spung at 383-0113.

Last Sunday afternoon Ms. Carol Cody of Jerusalem Road held a coffee for Mrs. Golden during which the candidate for selectman announced she was opposed to legalized casino gambling in both Hull and the Commonwealth.

She also said she is a strong supporter of the great strides being made in the Cohasset Police Department and completely supports Police Chief John DeBassio in his quest for crime-prevention and departmental efficiency funds.

Crown Investment sells Cushing Plaza

Crown Investment Group, Inc. of Cohasset this week announced the recent sale of Cushing Plaza Shopping Center to Zaven Dadekian of New Jersey for approximately $1.475 million.

Purchased in 1978 for approximately $1.065 million, the sale of the Plaza was negotiated by Joseph Quinn and Arthur Rother of Data Realty Corporation of Boston.

Robert Swain of North Scituate, President of Crown Investment Group, said that "this sale gives strong indication that despite high interest rates a healthy market exists for prime real estate."

Crown Investment Group consists of four independent operating subsidiaries: Crown Investment Management, a registered investment advisor firm; Crown Financial, a brokerage firm; Crown Properties, a property management company; and Crown Realty, a real estate brokerage firm. In addition, Swain is the General Partner in five condominium construction projects in Punta Gorda, Florida, as well as a general partner in fifteen additional prime real estate holdings in the New England area.

Dadekian, a Rhode Island native, is a graduate of M.I.T. with family and many friends in the Greater Boston and Rhode Island areas. He said, "An investment portfolio in the South Shore area was a very desirable acquisition. I intend to maintain and improve the Plaza consistent with its important contribution to the life of the Cohasset community. As part of an investment diversification program and because of an attachment to the area, I have made the Cushing Plaza Center a first choice of available New England properties. It is my way of re-affirming an attachment to the area which I will always maintain." Dadekian also has substantial real estate holdings in the metropolitan New York and southern United States areas.

A morning walk on Sandy Beach

By Patricia Desmond

There I was walking along Sandy Beach on a chilly, windswept Saturday afternoon when I should have been sitting at home warm and wordy at my typewriter.

But sometimes even an editor has to take time away from meeting-going, mail-sorting and the never ending scramble for a story to walk along the water, getting sand in her shoes and perspective back in her life.

Not that I was alone there.

Timmy, my two-year-old, kept running after the beach birds, yelling, "Don't go, birdie. Wait until I just give you a hug."

June, my nearly-eleven-year-old darling, was trying hard to skip rocks across the surf.

A dozen people looked on from parked cars on the nearby asphalt.

But I felt I could manage some feeling of solitude, if only I could walk without having to answer any questions or take any notes.

Friday the 13th had gotten to me. Nothing I had tried to accomplish that day worked out at all. My publisher wanted to know why I didn't have more stories written. My bank bounced a check just because I can't add very well. My mother told me she expected me for dinner Sunday, adding, "Well don't publish the police log if that's the only time you have to copy it down."

Her suggestion sounded like such simple good sense.

That's when I knew I was losing track of reality.

The wind kept after me, blowing my hair in my face. The waves kept pounding the shore. Crash. Crash. Crash.

Just like my life these days.

People keep asking me how I like my new job. My publisher asked me if I was sorry I'd switched jobs. His perspective showing.

For the first month, I kept thinking that soon things would be under control and I'd get to sleep on Tuesday night. Then I started to think things would get under control and I would be able to tell every Mariner reader in town how their town government really works.

Most of the time I like the job. I have come to dread the deadline day. Why is it someone I've been trying to reach all week always calls just when I'm already a half hour late for my final deadline?

I'm beginning to find out who's who in town. I like the chance to make all my own mistakes. And I especially like the people, who have been patient and kind, explaining the background on projects I've only read about.

Then Friday the 13th happened and I didn't even have time to curl my graying hair. And I remembered two great stories I'd meant to write for last week's paper and I ran out of milk just before dinner.

I tried to call my best friend to tell her all my troubles but there was no answer.

I tried to talk over the direction I thought I'd try for next week's paper with my publisher.

But he said in his gentle way, "Can't we talk about it some other time, I'm watching the news?"

How can I get it all together, I wondered.

My publisher came ouf of his shell, looked over my shoulder, saw what I was writing, and said, "You can't print that. Who cares that you don't have enough time to knit afghans and paint watercolors?"

"I thought the news was on?" I retorted brilliantly.

"Trouble, trouble," the lighthouse out on the rocks started blinking at me. I realized I was getting cold. Why don't children get cold?

"Look at that," June said interrupting my depression. "Look at that seagull. He just did a loop."

"Pick me up, please," Timmy said. "I want to see it better."

Perspective. It comes slowly. Sometimes solitude isn't the way to capture it. Sometimes it comes from two demanding, active children, who most importantly just happen to be mine.

LWV to review warrant

The League of Women Voters will review the warrant for the upcoming town meeting at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, March 26, at the Unitarian Parish House, 23 N. Main St.

Articles to be discussed include zoning by-law changes, cluster zoning, new business variance, Fire Chief exempted from Civil Service and ballot Question No. 1 providing that the town indemnify town officials from lawsuits.

Each article has been researched by a league member.

This meeting is open to all interested townspeople. Babysitting is available for a small fee.

Trapunto workshop

Last year's trapunto workshop was so popular that the Cohasset Community Center will repeat it, once again, this year, on Friday, March 27 from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m.

Registrations are now being accepted at the center for the workshop which is $8. Participants will complete a pillow and may choose a beginner's pattern or a more complicated intermediate pattern. Materials are provided.

School Board gives music a boost

By Karin Bartow

The reinstatement of the junior/senior high school instrumental teacher on a half-time basis and the refocusing of the marching band to a performing orchestra were given a preliminary nod of approval by the school committee Monday night.

Ideas are also in the works for ways to keep the junior high athletic programs going. They were originally proposed to be eliminated or consolidated in next year's budget.

Review of the proposed $3.6 million budget for 1982 continued this week by the school committee with a deeper look at the remaining half of the junior/senior high school departments. The committee will vote on the budget at a meeting scheduled for Friday, March 27 beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the high school choral room.

A joint meeting with the advisory committee will take place on Thursday, March 19 at 8 p.m. and the committee will conduct their public hearing on the budget on Tuesday, March 24 at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell offered an alternative scheme for the music department where the instrumental teacher was to have been eliminated, leaving the vocal instructor to carry on the program. Crowell said funds could be moved around in the budget to allow Jeffrey Dodge to teach instrumental music part-time, and with the committee's approval, he could give private music lessons in the school during the first half of the day to compensate for the reduction in his salary.

Proposition 2½ has made it necessary to eliminate the school's marching band at away games and Crowell said that by restructuring the present band into a performing, dance and stage orchestra, the school could continue to provide instrumental music for those who want it. "We're hoping at no cost to the school, if there is an interest, to have an orchestra down the road." The introduction of private string instruction paid by students and parents would also be instituted towards that end.

Dodge said he is willing to accept a part-time position if he could teach private lessons in the school during the first three periods of the day and perhaps after school. He would offer instruction in percussion, flute, saxophone and in violin, viola, cello and bass violin. Lessons would be paid for by parents at a cost of $8 per half hour once each week. Dodge feels "Cohasst kids are above average musicians" and the notion of including string instruments in the school orchestra would be feasible. There is presently no string instruction offered in the school system.

Dodge's part-time salary of $6,500, plus $500 for handling the performing band, would be juggled within the budget Crowell suggested. Savings of $4,000 in the art and music departments (due to the elimination of a flag majorette advisor and uniforms) and $3,000 from pre-buy would be used for his salary. (Crowell explained that pre-buy is when supplies are purchased out of the current budget for the next year. Savings that accrue from teachers who leave and are not replaced and from other areas may be spent in the current fiscal year if there are no offsetting costs.)

Bryan Marks, vocal teacher, said the orchestra idea with string instruments is a system that is going to take time to develop. There is also admitted risk that Dodge may not fill his private lessons with high school students, but he is willing to take a chance. "I'm involved here; it's my whole thrust."

Committee member Diana Kornet said, "I think this is an excellent proposal and appreciate the creativity and thought that has gone into it." She also felt that it is realistic that the school body would support 18-20 private students.

Last year the school committee eliminated the requirement of general music for junior high students. No instrumental offerings have been eliminated and Dodge would continue to teach senior concert band, theory and arranging and jazz ensemble and junior concert band and jazz and improvisation during the afternoons. After school he would instruct band, ensemble, brass ensemble and orchestra.

ATHLETICS

Regarding the proposed elimination and consolidation of junior high sports committee vice-chairman Jack Langmaid said, "I feel everybody is giving up on these seventh, eight and ninth graders. If all these kids are not going to have anything to do from 1:50 p.m. on they are going to get into trouble."

Crowell agreed that they should not be abandoned and pledged himself to keep junior high athletic programs going. Crowell said that an umbrella group of booster club representatives is already thinking of working with him to develop a well-timed, large fund-raising event to cover the approximately $7,000 needed to keep intramural and interschool junior high sports going. Fund-raising would bolster the school's revolving athletic fund which can be carried from year to year at up to $10,000. By using school facilities and personnel, Crowell reassured Langmaid and the committee that the junior high students would continue to be serviced.

ALTERNATIVE SCHOOL

Although the alternative school will be reduced by an aide, help will be provided from the guidance department and Chapter 766 special service personnel. Crowell said the program "answers a viable need for the community." He also acknowledged the community support and volunteers who have given time to the school over the past seven years.

HEALTH EDUCATION

Since this program is still in the development stage, very humble budget requests for supplies were received from Mike Gill, health coordinator. Gill will be a resource person, coordinating and developing material for the elementary school teachers who will begin a comprehensive health education program next year in grades K-6.

The first year of comprehensive health education for high school students will be targeted for the seventh grade with Gill running a morning elective for other high school students.

LIBRARY

Library coverage will be refocused next year, said Crowell, but not reduced. He has recommended hiring a new library coordinator who will be a teacher of library science. The new librarian would be in charge of the ordering and sorting of supplies and control of processing in K-12. "One of the most important functions of the librarian is to help staff select, weed out and purchase reference materials needed in the classroom," Crowell said. The library coordinator would work with the aides in the three libraries striving towards more standardization throughout the system.

School Briefs

BUDGET HEARINGS

The combined advisory and school committee meeting to review the proposed fiscal 1982 school budget will take place on Thursday, March 19 at 8 p.m., possibly at Town Hall. (The exact location of the meeting was not known at press time.)

The school committee will conduct their public hearing on the budget on Tuesday, March 24 at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The committee will meet to vote on the 1981-1982 budget on Friday, March 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school choral room.

OUTDOOR SCHOOL

At 12:30 p.m. Monday all Deer Hill fifth grade students and their teachers arrived safely on Thompson's Island via the Martha Washington, Superintendent Crowell reported at Monday's meeting. He said that at suppertime, "the students were snug and warm and liked the food!" They were also looking forward to the prospect of a storm in the middle of Boston harbor.

FAMILY PORTRAITS

The committee gave its approval for a request by the junior/senior high school communications council to set up a booth to sell color family portraits at the annual town meeting and at town elections. Appointments will be made for family portraits at a cost of $7.95 with $5.00 going to the council's fund for the Dave Toma program.

23 DAY VACATION

School superintendent Crowell will put forth his idea to save energy money next year by doing away with the traditional February and April vacations and closing down the schools instead for 23 consecutive days during March and April at the committee's next regular meeting. Business manager John Raftery estimates that there might be a $7,000 to $8,000 fuel savings by shutting the boilers down and electricity off. Admitting there were disadvantages as well as advantages to this scheme, Crowell said, "This is just an idea that I will present for exploration at the next meeting."

Sargent resigns

Kenneth Sargent, town hall custodian, resigned from the historical commission, effective April 1, due to some possible conflicts with his job.

observation made more than once during the workshop. Several ladies decided to solve that particular problem by dining out. One, however, was doubtful. "My husband is so practical — he'll probably suggest we stay at home so he can admire me," she laughed.

Both adults and teens were fascinated with the demonstrations of the French braid and its different variations. Several waited in suspense to see if Donna Grafton's shoulder length hair was long enough for the popular style; it was and the result was very flattering.

The correct ways of using a blow dryer and curling iron were demonstrated on many participants including Winnie Kuhn and it was amazing the different effects that can be brought about by using proper techniques. Somehow, it all looks so much easier when it is being done by the experts.

There also was a good deal of interest in Maryanne's demonstration of sculptured nails. The process itself is time consuming — about an hour for a full set of nails — but the result is more than worth it. Longer nails definitely do result in more graceful looking hands. They also provide an incentive to nailbiters who can see instantly what they will look like.

Many of the participants were especially delighted with the results of the various makeup techniques they learned, such as using a dark blusher below the cheekbones for a "hollow look."

It was difficult to say which beauty technique drew the most interest but one thing was certainly obvious — the center's day of beauty was also a day of fun for all who participated.

WILL IT EVER BE RIGHT? Lauren Smith, 14, works at brushing her hair the way the experts do during the Day of Beauty at the Cohasset Community Center.

HAIR RAISING — Julie Atkinson, 14, seems trusting enough as two hair stylists from Hair Imports, Anthony Lorina and Joe Molino, decide what to do with her lovely, long tresses.

EYE CAPTURING — Brenda Kehoe, 15, sits back as Joyce Otis of Peridot, a skin and nail shop, shows her the best way to apply eye liner.

On Beacon Hill, a house of cards

Commentary

By Paul Steven Stone

Have you found yourself wondering lately about this Commonwealth you live in? Have you figured out why it's suddenly necessary to dismantle hundreds of programs that teach your children, protect your family and enhance your life? Have you stopped to ask yourself: "Just what the hell is going on?"

Well here's the truth, friend: you are riding on a bus that's out of control. The driver keeps turning around to tell you not to worry, but he's going where he wants to go, and you're going along for the ride.

Did you think you were sending a message to the State House when you voted for Proposition 2½?

Well, the same week that your fire chief was closing down another fire station and the superintendent of schools was asking parents to raise funds to keep junior high school sports alive, your governor was increasing the Milk Control Commission budget by 12 percent and the Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee was doubling the very budget he'd be taking over when he moves to the state auditor's office.

Did you buy the theory that the legislature would be forced to act responsibly once the chaos of 2½ became evident? Well, take a look at the budget that's shaping up in that House of Cards on Beacon Hill and you'll find no shortage of the usual political payoffs. New friends are getting jobs; old friends are getting raises; firm political allies are getting their power bases enlarged. The Governor even budgeted for the same high legislative and executive salaries that you and I voted down last November.

It won't work, friend. You can't chastise a junkie by talking sternly to his children. The fact that your town can't afford to keep its streetlights burning won't eliminate a single legislative junket nor reduce a single Beacon Hill perquisite. The fact that your kids will get into trouble during afternoons when they used to participate in school sports won't keep the Governor from taking along his retinue of state troopers on his next visit to Saratoga.

Face up to it, friend; we are bound to lurch from crisis to crisis for as long as we tolerate the one crisis that never seems to go away.

Democracy is held captive in the House of Cards. It's not the will of the people that governs, but the men holding the highest cards. If you want something done in your state government, it must be done with the approval of three men: the king and the two knaves. Since the system was bred on corruption and avarice, only a fool would expect it to accept change without a fight. It was just that resistance to change, and the comcomitant avoidance of responsibility, that led to the wellspring of frustration that produced Proposition 2½.

The system in the House of Cards has roots that run deep. Leadership in the House and Senate passes from one faithful player of the game to another. You go along to get along, as the saying goes. Team players huff and puff about their independence, their power, their integrity, but in the final analysis they take their orders from those higher up in the pecking order. And in return for their loyalty they're appointed to positions that bring them prestige, large staffs, swollen expense allotments, attractive offices, and a substantial increase in their earnings.

They gave up their independence for a larger slice of the pie, and they rationalize that sellout under the guise of protecting the interests of their constituents.

Well, that won't wash. There are those in the House of Cards who refuse to play the game — people like Phil Johnston — who will go to the mat when they've got a just cause; and they've shown that integrity and an honest sense of outrage can stand up to the system. Maybe none of their friends will become clerks in an already overstaffed court system, but then their definition of serving a constituency doesn't embrace personnel work.

Have you asked yourself when your interests were last served in the House of Cards? Weren't you the fellow who was waiting for tax relief, for undiluted laws to combat waste and fraud in state government, for relief from the epidemic of state mandated local largesse? Aren't you the fellow who's now waiting for the Governor and the legislature to stop saying "I told you so" about Proposition 2½, and to start doing what's necessary to make it work?

But what do you expect? Should the state lay off one of the four men paid to open the doors to the Massachusetts House? Should the state education department tell local school systems to ignore state laws that force high schools to hire more physical education teachers when English and history teachers are heading out the door?

If Proposition 2½ did nothing else, it proved beyond a doubt that it is time for us to take back the power of the people from those who have abused and twisted it to serve their own small interests. If the Governor wants to make it in Massachusetts, he'd better start fighting the excesses of a captive democracy instead of using them to advance his own position. If our representatives wish to remain in power they had better start searching for a set of values to serve instead of a set of leaders.

In the weeks and months ahead we will be hearing many individuals and organizations blamed for the upheaval and pain brought on by Proposition 2½. We will see our leaders working diligently to uncover the best possible scapegoat to serve the largest number of practical applications. And yet nothing will have changed.

Like most crises in our state, Proposition 2½ only seems to take the focus away from where it really belongs. The real crisis in our Commonwealth was never at the level of city or town government. It was in the House of Cards. No longer can we afford to allow a handful of small-minded men to rule our destiny. No longer can we afford to let the jokers run wild.

Where's Spring? en route!

By Lois Martin

A man stomped into the office last week and snarled, "Where the hell is spring?"

He caught me off guard. I unswaddled from my winter coat and straightened my jacket over my sweater, blouse and turtle neck attire. And I confessed I hadn't seen a sign of it.

Not that I hadn't been looking or listening. I've heard a few crows which someone said sounded better than a snow plow. But mostly we've spent time sniping about lustless brown lawns and nasty mean March weather.

PATCHES

And that's wrong. Anyone ought to be able to count on its hometown newspaper for a clear report on spring's location. The big papers do that. The Globe sent two women southward to find spring last week, for goodness sake. And here sit I making no effort to determine the whereabouts of the season.

Of course up here we wait for mousey March in which to rid ourselves of hostility. Now we've got our chance. For example, I really want my poinsettia to die. I'm sick of seeing a December flower.

And I wish I could wear a short-sleeved blouse, just once. I probably could if I had on a peach colored Fruit of the Loom undershirt like my grandmother wore.

Up here you have to make spring out of winter if March won't do it. My friend muddled through mud last week to take forsythia for forcing. It'll take brute strength now but there are actually signs of crocus and pussy willows.

Sometimes I believe spring is wasted on the south, like youth on the young. Give it to us first. We know how to appreciate it.

Last year I was allowed to go to Disney World. As we rolled down that long eastern seaboard hill, we saw spring blooming more and more. If we'd have had that kind of weather up here, there'd have been a state holiday.

One embittered Alabama-born woman who now lives in our varied climes suggested she would shoot the ground hog next year before he gets his eyes focused on his shadow.

But back to my responsibility, a sound report on "where the hell" spring is...I called Sterling, Virginia in hot pursuit. Ten years ago I spent my last spring in that town, admist marvelous neighbors. It was where the air was magnificent in May before it smothered you in June. And spring came early.

I called an old friend Peggy Day, who wasn't home...probably out sprinting amongst the daisies. But her son was home, Bryan, the boy I knew as a snappy tow-head ballplayer.

My how he's grown, deep voice, enriched in his native accent. Fortunately he remembered me and my predictable aberrations from routine behavior. So when I asked Bryan to look out his window and tell if he saw spring out there, he was readily compliant.

There are little buds on the maple tree in the Day's back yard and a few flowers "are coming out of the ground," said the 19 year old horticulturalist and you can hear the birds now in the morning.

Add to that the warm truth that Bryan was leaving for college classes in 60 degree temperatures.

So there you have it. Spring's in Sterling, Virginia. And they'll send it along within the next few weeks. Bryan promised. One thing about the south, they always share the good weather even if they're late mailing it.

As soon as that man with the foul disposition returns to this office I, like the big papers in the city, now stand ready to give a hometown spring report. And for good measure I'm giving him my poinsettia, already pruned.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

Now comes that very special occasion, the first day of Spring. It's been a grey world lately — leaden skies, molten sea and stark, dreary trees — and if your spirits need a lift, wander through a nearby nursery. We did the other day and the sight of pussy willows, jonquils and tulips puts one in a spring-like mood. Before spring fever sets in, why not make up a batch of this mix, so handy to have in reserve when you want to be out tending your garden. You store the mix in glass jars or tin cans, close tightly and store until you want hot biscuits or muffins. A few little additions and you're all set.

8 c. sifted all-purpose flour
1 c. dry milk
1/4 c. baking powder
3 tsp. salt
1 c. shortening or lard

Sift the dry ingredients together three times. Cut or rub in fat until consistency of cornmeal. Lift mix lightly into containers without packing. Then, if you want to make 12 medium-sized biscuits, you just measure out two cups of the mix and add 2/3 c. fluid milk or water. Combine lightly with a fork or spoon only enough so particles of dough still cling together. Turn onto greased or lightly floured board. Pat out or knead 15 strokes. Roll 1/2" thick and cut. Bake on baking sheet in 450 degree oven for 10 to 12 min. If you wish, you can make cheese biscuits by adding 1/2 c. grated cheese. Drop biscuits can be made by increasing liquid to 1 cup and dropping from spoon onto baking sheet. You can make pin-wheels by rolling dough into a thin strip, spreading with melted margarine or butter and sprinkling with mixture of 4 T sugar and 1 tsp. cinnamon. Roll and cut in 1" slices.

By the time Spring is here, we'll all be fat, fat, fat. When boredom sets in, food seems all too tempting and being in close proximity to the kitchen, we consume more calories than we should. So, before we shed our winter wraps, it might be well to try such recipes as Donna Poole's Weight Watchers'

CORN PUDDING

4 medium eggs
1 c. cream-style corn, divided
2 slices enriched white bread, cubed
2 oz. enriched yellow corn meal
1 oz. onion, chopped
Artificial sweetener to equal 4 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. vanilla extract
2 canned green chilies, chopped

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. In blender combine eggs, 1/2 c. corn, bread, corn meal, onion, sweetener, baking powder and vanilla. Process until smooth. Fold in remaining corn and chilies. Pour into 8x8" baking pan, greased. Bake 30 min. Serves four.

"For, lo the winter is past; The rain is over and gone; The flowers appear on the earth; The time of the singing of the birds is come, And the voice of the turtle-dove is here in our land." This Biblical verse is appropos these days, with red-winged blackbirds in the marshes; scarlet cardinals at Flora Lawrence's feeder and pussy willows along the Driftway earlier than ever this year. Before you dash off to gather an armful, why not a batch of another Weight Watchers' recipe called simply

CHOCOLATE CUPCAKES

2 eggs
1 oz. white bread, made into crumbs
1/2 c. Alba chocolate non-fat dry milk powder [look in your supermarked]
1 small banana
Dash of salt
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. soda
1 tsp. vanilla

Put all ingredients in bowl and mix until well blended. Pour into 6 to 8 cupcake tins. Spray with a release agent (such as PAM) first. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 min.

Register for Community Center programs

The Cohasset Community Center is now conducting spring registration for several upcoming programs.

Joanne Sheppard will again offer her very popular course in exercise for fitness and fun — a workout to music aimed to slim, trim and tone while achieving aerobic efficiency. She will also include, at no extra cost, an aerobic walk after each class.

A two day program on Tuesday and Thursday, from 9 to 10 a.m. will cost $36. A three day program on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 to 10 a.m. will cost $52.

Judy Volungis will again be teaching needlepoint and pulled thread on Thursday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The course cost is $15.

The center will again offer last year's popular workshop in Trapunto. Participants may choose a beginner's pattern or a more complicated intermediate pattern. Materials are provided in the $8 workshop which will be held on Friday, March 27, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

All courses will run eight weeks and are scheduled to begin during the week of March 30.

Fashion show to benefit Little Wanderers

The annual Champagne Fashion Show for the benefit of the New England Home for Little Wanderers will be held Monday, April 6, at the Barnside Tavern in Norwell.

Champagne will be served at 7:30, after which Carol McCole models will show fashions from Hoffman's of Hingham. There will be something for everyone's style and pocketbook, and you can discuss your favorites over dessert and coffee. Tickets are $6 and are limited, so call Nancy Snyder at 383-1636.

Personal

SAINT JUDE, Thank you for enlightening my mind. M.M.A.L. (3/18)

ST. JUDE: O Holy St. Jude Apostle and martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, Faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present urgent petition, in return I promise to make your name known, and cause you to be invoked. Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias. Publication must be promised. St. Jude, pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. This Novena must be said for 9 consecutive days. LT&MH (3/18)

Drama Club to present 'Night Must Fall'

By David Wadsworth

The spring production by the Cohasset Dramatic Club is Emlyn Williams' "Night Must Fall," a 1935 English thriller.

Performances are scheduled for the evenings of May 7, 8 and 9 at the Cohasset Town Hall. Tryouts for the cast were held last Sunday and Wednesday. Casting is expected to be completed within a short time.

Directing the play will be Wayne Miessner of Scituate and Jane Marshall of Cohasset is the production manager. Whitney Hall is the set designer; Arthur Paquette is the lighting chairman and Chris Williams will be in charge of music.

Written in 1935, "Night Must Fall" is a three act thriller considered ideal for small dramatic groups. It premiered in London in 1935 with a cast including May Whitty, Emlyn Williams himself and Betty Jardine. The play received enthusiastic acclaim. Its New York debut the following year was disappointing, but in 1937 "Night Must Fall" was made into a successful movie starring Dame May Whitty, Robert Taylor and Rosalind Russell.

The movie premiered in Hollywood in May of that year. A second movie production was made of "Night Must Fall" in England in 1964. This starred Albert Finney (former leading man in the movie "Tom Jones"). This second movie was an experimental production which attempted to turn the grim events of the original play into a social commentary on English society in the 1930's. The play itself is a murder thriller inspired by an actual crime which rocked England during the 1930's.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club, founded in 1920, is one of the oldest continuing dramatic groups on the South Shore and features members having diverse dramatic talent, coming from several communities. This spring's production marks the second time the Club has performed "Night Must Fall;" the first Town Hall production of the play was in 1941.

No 'God given right' says DeBassio

Getting a gun in Cohasset

By John McNabb, Jr.

If you want a permit to own a handgun in Cohasset, you had better have a good reason for needing it.

Police Chief John DeBassio, who has the authority to grant or deny applications for gun permits, does not think that there "is a God given right for people to carry guns.

"I don't think there is anyone who would automatically be granted a gun permit," said the Chief. He indicated that concern about crime was not enough reason, that to get a permit you had to be in a job or position where your life would be directly threatened.

Chief DeBassio said that security guards and people entrusted with large sums of money would be "given due consideration" if they wanted a permit. In any case, he said, there is a standard procedure to be followed in granting a new permit.

Twenty-four permits were issued in 1980 in Cohasset. The permits are good for five years and cost $10. In 1979, 59 were issued, compared to 77 in 1978 and 62 in 1977. These figures include both new licenses and renewals.

DeBassio said that there "has probably been a decline in the number of permits issued," in the last few years, and that the total number of applications is probably less now than last year, despite a possible increase in concern about violent crime.

Cohasset has established the same firearms policy as the neighboring towns of Scituate, Hingham, Hull, and Norwell, as part of their mutual aid agreement. The policy was drawn up by a planner hired under a Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant to the five towns.

There are five steps in obtaining a new gun permit in Cohasset: one, the applicant completes the general application; two, the police department does a background check on the applicant; three, the applicant submits three letters of reference; four, the applicant takes a basic exam given by the police; and five, the applicant must pass a range proficiency test, and satisfy the range officer that he has the necessary skill to use the gun responsibly.

Chief DeBassio said that when the general application is made, he would take that opportunity to talk to the applicant, and to discuss why he thought he needed a gun. In particular cases, he said, he would try to discourage the person from getting the permit.

He would explain that "if you carry a gun, remember that it can be turned on you," and that there are serious responsibilities involved in owning or carrying a gun. Some applicants would tend to have second thoughts, he said, and would decide not to continue the application, or agree to a restriction

Cemetery space needed

Joy Place is full

By Patricia Desmond

The grass is yellow at Cohasset Central Cemetery.

Killed off by the bitter winter and sea winds.

At the edge of the cemetery, newer graves seem ready to sink into the path of oncoming traffic. But there's never much traffic on Joy Place.

Staring out into the peacefulness of Little Harbor, the name Joy Place seems understandable enough. And I know most organized religions talk about the joy of death, eternal reward, happiness ever after.

Still the name seems strange leading nowhere except to a few small homes and the long, narrow stretch of graves.

The cemetery, like others in town, is out of space. There's a cemetery space study committee. The committee which hasn't met in six months, is charged with finding more space for graves in town.

There are still lots available at both Beechwood

Cohasset high in public safety $

By John McNabb, Jr.

Cohasset has the eighth highest spending per person in the state for public safety, according to a new report by Citizens for Limited Taxation (CLT).

CLT, which sponsored Proposition 2½, ranked the per capita spending for 286 of the state's 351 cities and towns according to 13 major areas, such as highways, schools, libraries, and general government.

Barbara Anderson, president of CLT, told the Mariner that they prepared the study to "help town officials, taxpayer groups, and others, to understand the spending patterns of their community relative to other communities, and the spending patterns in their town."

Basically, she said, the study was designed to help cities and towns to identify "areas of opportunity" for budget cutting. Anderson indicated that CLT was concerned about the trend of some towns to make across the board tax cuts, which CLT does not support or encourage.

The report was based on information supplied by cities and towns in their Schedule A finance reports to the state. The total amount a town spends in each category, minus some federally financed accounts and some loans. This figure, total operating expenditure, was divided by the population of the town to give the amount spent per capita.

These per capita figures were then ranked from one to 286, the number of cities and towns for which information was available. For example, Cohasset ranks 45 in per capita spending for schools. That means that 241 cities and towns spend less than Cohasset does on their public schools, and that 44 cities and towns spend more than does Cohasset on schools.

The study has some flaws, which should be pointed out. The rankings do not take into account important differences between the 286 cities and towns, such as amount of land area or population. Also, cities and towns with more money, like Cohasset, would be more likely to spend more per capita, and to be ranked higher in most areas, as

Morrissey announces his candidacy for selectman

Dr. Patrick O. Morrissey of 137 Beach St., Cohasset, this week announced his candidacy for Selectman.

A resident of Cohasset for 14 years he has been a practicing dentist in the Boston area for the past 25 years. He is a graduate of Roxbury Latin School, Harvard College (A.B. American Gov.) and the McGill University Faculty of Dentistry.

In his announcement Dr. Morrissey addressed what he feels are the most important problems that face town government today.

"I believe that the fiscal problems that must be confronted by the adoption of Proposition 2½ require an imaginative approach on the part of all future elected officials.

"I feel that by applying the same managerial principles that successful private enterprises must follow, these problems can be alleviated, if not eliminated."

He went on to discuss the other major issues in this campaign. The first major decision the new Board of Selectmen must make is the appointment of the Executive Secretary.

He is for personal screening of the applicants rather than delegating this authority to a screening committee. He believes that with the Selectmen screening applicants a candidate who can work in harmony with the members of the board is more likely to be chosen.

He is opposed to both articles in the Town Warrant dealing with the Fire Department. He believes that the removal of the fire chief from civil service would be a step backwards. He reasons that we have always had superior service from this department and any changes would destroy morale and performance by placing the chief at the mercy of the Selectmen.

Dr. Morrissey is against casino gambling in Hull, feeling that the traffic congestion and criminal overtones that would result would be disastrous to our community.

He is an advocate of a sensible cluster zoning law which would allow Cohasset to grow while maintaining its present character. He feels that some condominiums and small housing units are essential if we are to retain residents who no longer have use for their large family homes. It would be a tragedy to lose these people because no alternative housing is available. The construction of small units would not be child-oriented and hence would not overburden our existing school and municipal facilities, he said.

He favors the eventual commercial development along Rte. 3A which would bring highly technical

Cohasset's week

Who's got the chairs

The Mariner Police Report for March 11 had only part of the story—that two chairs were stolen from the Greenhouse at about 1:20 a.m.

Yes, police did apprehend the suspects, with the chairs, and bring them to the police station.

But, what was not reported in the police blotter was that while the officers were inside the station booking the suspects, they left the chairs outside. And, as Chief DeBassio told the Mariner, the chairs "subsequently disappeared."

Who stole the chairs from outside the police station? How was it possible for anyone to steal anything from outside the police station? Why did the officers leave the chairs outside?

Chief DeBassio said he is investigating the incident, to see if the chairs can be recovered, and to determine if any disciplinary action is warranted.

Special permit granted

The Cohasset board of appeals granted a special permit recently for Keith and Paula Knowles to add a dormer to their house at 15 Border St.

The Knowles' house is non-conforming because it fails to meet the 30 foot setback requirements.

No baby boom here

If there's a baby boom, it hasn't hit Cohasset yet.

Town Clerk Charles Marks released his report on vital statistics for 1980 in the town report.

"The total number of births recorded was 79, of which 10 were delayed returns and corrections of past years.

"The total number of marriages was 48 including those where both parties were non-residents of Cohasset, 36 were solemnized in Cohasset.

"Total number of deaths was 78 including residents of Cohasset who died elsewhere and non-residents who died in Cohasset."

Recreation job program

During the past two years, the Recreation Department through its Job Opportunity Program, has placed approximately 50 Cohasset youth on part-time, intermittent jobs.

In a continuing effort to place youth on jobs of all types, the department is asking any businesses or individuals who have a need for part-time workers to call the Recreation Office at 383-6791 to file their worker requests.

Once a job is filed with the department, you will be given names of individuals who have applied for jobs that fall under the guidelines of your request. From these names you may select any individual whom you feel will best suit your needs. All compensations will be worked out between the employer and employee.

Likewise, Cohasset youth seeking some form of part-time employment may also call the Recreation Office for a job application. Upon completion of the application, you will be placed on file as a candidate for possible job referral.

Leonard appointed

Selectmen have appointed Robert Leonard of 39 Bancroft Road to the Historical Commission. He replaces town hall custodian Kenny Sargent who recently resigned, citing time conflicts.

Okay to canvass

If you're wondering who those people are who have been going door to door in your area, don't worry. They are from the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group, and have the permission of Police Chief DeBassio to solicit money.

Legitimate canvassers will be carrying a picture ID card, identifying them as canvassers for the Mass. PIRG group. A list of licensed canvassers will be on file at the police station. Chief DeBassio said that if anyone had any questions about the canvassers, they could call the station.

PIRG has permission to go door-to-door from 4 to 8 p.m. Monday to Saturday, for three weeks starting Monday. Chief DeBassio expects PIRG to have 6-10 canvassers a day during that time.

The canvassers will be doing research as well as trying to raise money, and will ask Cohasset residents what their view is of the bottle bill, telephone rates, hazardous wastes and safe energy issues.

Youth Art Month

Youth Art Month is being celebrated at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library with a display of works by Cohasset students.

The kindergarten class at Osgood School has contributed chalk impressions of the wind. Perspective drawings of buildings have been donated by the sixth grade class at Deer Hill School.

A combination of techniques utilizing cut paper, perspective and water color are the work of the fourth grade at Deer Hill.

This exhibit was arranged by Carolyn Horn, children's art exhibit chairman for the Friends of the Library in cooperation with Jane O'Malley of the Deer Hill School and Elizabeth Wyman of the Osgood School.

The show will remain in the children's room of the library until spring school vacation.

DeBassio named constable

Selectmen last week appointed Police Chief John DeBassio as a Temporary Constable, so the town can legally post the Warrant for Town Meeting.

DeBassio will be filling in for Constable Barbara Elliot, who is on vacation in Florida. As Temporary Constable, DeBassio is responsible for posting copies of the Warrant around town and making sure that all residents are notified.

Plante testifies on 766

Maria Plante of Jerusalem Road is working to keep present state law on special education.

The state is considering a change in its Chapter 766 regulations which would loosen the law.

"I submitted testimony stating that Proposition 2½, which is supposed to be a tax reform measure, has meant the destruction of quality education for a generation of children (and particular devastation for those with learning disabilities.)

"Tax reform has to begin at the state level.

"More inter-agency cooperation is necessary.

"We are so lucky in Cohasset to have a fiscally responsible town. After listening to some of the testimony, it certainly made me appreciate Steve Hart and the Cohasset school system."

Trustees cut library budget by 11%

At their March board meeting, the trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library agreed to cut the library budget 11 percent for the coming year, as requested and approved by the Advisory Committee.

The trustees issued the following statement to promote public understanding of reduced library service in fiscal year 1982.

"It is with mixed emotions that we have developed a substantially reduced budget for fiscal year '82. We are reluctant to cut back library services, but we feel we must respect the voters' mandate of last November and comply with the Advisory Committee's request to all town departments to submit reduced budgets. Our budget for the next year is cut 11 percent from this year's budget, and after the effects of inflation are added, the buying power of the library will be even further reduced.

"We regret to see the library take this backward step, especially at a time when the demand for library services is increasing. More books circulated from the Cohasset library during the last three months than ever before; 300 people use the library every day.

"The approved budget reduction involves more than simply closing the library on Tuesdays and early on Saturdays. Seventeen percent less money will be spent on books and magazines. Fewer staff members working reduced hours may not be able to provide the same level of service as before, unless there is an unexpected cutback in the public's demand for services.

"The trustees believe it is ironic that at a time when demand for library services is going up, the funds for those services are being reduced. We look forward to the day when an adequate budget will be restored and the library can fully respond to the growing demand for library services in Cohasset."

League town affairs night Tuesday

The Cohasset League of Women Voters will hold its annual town affairs night Tuesday, March 31 in Town Hall at 7:30 p.m.

There will be discussion of selected warrant articles, including proposed cluster zoning, followed by presentations by candidates.

Candidates will answer questions from the floor following their talks. The league will also distribute a Voters Guide at the meeting and throughout town. The meeting is open to the public, and refreshments will be served.

The annual town meeting is scheduled for April 4 with town elections April 11. Offices and candidates include: Moderator (three years), David Place; Selectmen (one opening, three years), Doris Golden, Mary Jane McArthur, Patrick Morrissey; Assessor (one opening, three years), Warren Pratt; Assessor (to fill vacancy, two years), Brian Wilkin; Treasurer-Collector (three years), Gordon Flint; Highway Surveyor (three years), Harold Litchfield; School Committee (one opening, three years), Frank England, Richard Conley.

Also, Trustees of Library (three openings, three years), Sheila Evans, Cordelia Foell, Doris McNulty; Board of Health (one opening, two years to fill vacancy), John Burns, Barbara Kern, Paula Knowles; Board of Health (three years), Charles Bliss; Planning Board (one opening, five years), Daniel Cotton, Ernest Stevens; Water Commissioner (three years), William Montuori; Recreation Commissioner (five years), Gerard Buckley; South Shore Regional School Committee (three years), Richard Silvia; Cohasset Housing Authority (five years), John Muncey; Sewer Commissioner (three years), Janet Daggett.

The Leaague of Women Voters is a nonpartisan organization which neither supports nor opposes any candidate for election.

Orthodox Church dedication April 5

The newest Orthodox Church Community of the Greater Boston Area, The South Shore Hellinic Church Association, would like to extend its warmest invitation to interested persons of all faiths for its Dedication Day Celebration on April 5.

The day will begin at 9 a.m. with a special and very unique service at the Community's home, the Pope Memorial Church on Jerusalem Road, Cohasset. The church's new name will be: Kimisis Tis Panayia; in English: The Assumption of the Most Holy Virgin. Officiating will be His Grace, Anthimos, Greek Orthodox Bishop of Boston.

There will be a lenten dinner of celebration immediately following at nearby Golden Rooster Restaurant in Scituate. A limited number of tickets for the dinner are available.

The school superintendent reports

By Eugene Crowell

It is with a great deal of pleasure and anticipation that I submit my first Annual Town Report to the Cohasset Community.

As most of you know, I accepted the Superintendency in October of 1980 moving from a North Shore Community where I had served more than twenty years as a Central Office Administrator and Superintendent. I consider it a privilege and an educational challenge to have won this opportunity. Your community is well known for its high academic standards, its support of education, and its fine student body and staff. In addition, to be living in such scenic South Shore surroundings is by no way a distraction from the situation. Because this is my first formal report to the Town I feel that I would like to briefly describe my Educational Philosophy in order that you may have a benchmark against which to judge my educational style.

I have long been an advocate of a well-balanced, comprehensive program for public education which will meet the individual needs of all of the students enrolled in the schools across our land. Only through such programs can the American goal of equality of educational opportunity be realized. Education continues to be the paramount force in providing the public with a means of social and economic mobility which is so important to a growing nation. If the American way of life is to survive in this world of clashing ideologies, the work of the public schools must regain the confidence of the American people and be reinstated as a national priority.

In these times of economic crisis, the comprehensive nature of our schools will be seriously threatened; the arts, the humanities, vocational and avocational programs, athletics; in short, most of the affective learning needs of our students can be lost or so diluted as to become ineffectual. These affective learning patterns, I believe, blend with cognitive skills to produce the true character of American public education and educate an aware electorate which continues to contribute to our nation's strength. Our goal of educating "all comers" must not be put aside. Each student's needs and personal learning styles must continue to be addressed by meaningful programs.

As Franklin Delano Roosevelt so aptly said, "Public education provides the raw material for the American Way of Life and in the long run what our teachers do across our land is perhaps more important than the work that we do here at the White House even in this time of national stress." It is ironic that in a time when the public needs our help with so many new social problems and concerns, that we must retrench and limit our efforts so drastically. We must work toward an "economy model" of comprehensive education, striving for quality even though it must be done within limited means.

Speaking from the questionable base of two months of experience in your community, I will try my best to report to you the educational accomplishments of your school system during the 1979-1980 school year.

In order to plan for the next five years of necessary change for the Cohasset School System, I have prepared the following enrollment projection. My fiscal year 1982 budget will be based upon these estimates and in a very real way have influenced the assumptions which we have made as to school plant and facilities as well as program design. These projections show an average enrollment decline of 70.4 students per year over a five-year period. The method used in the projection is known as the cohort survival method of straight line projection. One significant fact that we will watch closely is that the Osgood School student population seems to be stabilizing and remaining constant. Our decision to leave the Osgood open was partially based on this information. We will be watching this trend closely in the months ahead for our long-range planning.

Editorial

Don't exclude Arthur

The job description for the town's executive secretary is becoming the debate of the month around the town.

The way we see it, the camps are divided into those who would like to see retiring Selectman Arthur Clark step into the job. And those who wouldn't.

There are probably some fence straddlers but we haven't heard much from them, as yet.

Some people have asked whether the job specifications are being written for Arthur. But some of the specifications are surely being written to exclude him.

In the end the decision on the job will be up to the selectmen. And that is certainly proper since the executive secretary will be charged with carrying out the directions of the board.

Our considered opinion is that Arthur shouldn't be deliberately written out.

We confess we like him.

But we also want to point out, Arthur has been doing the work of the town's executive secretary since 1972 with precious little financial reward.

The town government committee thinks a search committee should be involved in selecting the new administrator. Not a bad idea. Nothing wrong with the committee approach to government.

But we disagree with the idea of demanding the town's first executive secretary have a college degree. Arthur doesn't have one, nor do a number of other capable people with a good common sense approach to government.

We think the degree requirement is one designed to keep Arthur out of the field of candidates. There should be some latitude, as Henry Ainslie suggests, with the requirement waived for suitable experience.

The list of candidates is sure to be long. Let the best person win, but let's not write-off anyone at the onset.

It started locally

To the Editor:

A reply to the thoughts of Paul Steven Stone's commentary in the March 19th Cohasset Mariner.

Well done Paul, however it didn't all start at the state level, many of the chosen few on the (Hill) started at a local township level. They claim they worked their way to the top, maybe they did, but they sure left a mess behind.

President Reagan wants more control at State level to help the economy, I wrote and told him it has to start at the local level and be maintained through the state level and it will never happen here in Massachusetts.

Here's my answer to Gov. King and his Make it in Massachusetts slogan.

Libraries & the quality of life

By Richard Hayes
Library Director

In the August, 1980, issue of "The Futurist," the journal of the World Future Society, is a report by Daniel Yankelovich and Bernard Lefkowitz, titled "The New American Dream."

These pollsters report that traditionally optimistic Americans have turned pessimistic, generally because of personal economic difficulties. "The public is still struggling with the idea of limits and economic instability and is reluctant to accept it."

They say that "one of the most fundamental changes has been the decline of confidence in government." Confidence in the federal government dropped from 40 percent in 1966 to 17 percent in 1979, and in local government from 28 percent in 1973 to 19 percent in 1978.

For managers in public services, this survey raises the question, how to gain the political support needed to deliver services which the public, as consumer, demands?

Public libraries, for example, have always enjoyed a high level of public approval, and generally are not seen as part of the political process. On the other hand, the policy control over libraries, and the tax funds that support libraries, are absolutely subject to the political process.

The Yankelovich article goes on to say that 69 percent of the public believe it is possible to cut taxes without decreasing services. This finding corresponds well with the 60 percent vote in Massachusetts for Proposition 2½.

Yankelovich believes, however, that the valid complaint about government waste becomes wishful thinking about the extent to which taxes can be cut and services increased.

The experience in Massachusetts cities and towns these past few weeks shows, perhaps, how futile it is for public officials and managers to attempt to change this belief. Even after services are cut next year, many will believe that cuts in the services they want were not necessary, if only those in charge had chosen instead to cut waste. Nor is it easy to find out who is responsible for those decisions.

The Yankelovich report gives some basis for optimism. The majority of Americans believe "doing without something and living a more austere life would be a good thing." They believe (79 percent) that more stress should be placed on "teaching people to live with basic essentials" than on "reaching a higher standard of living." They believe that we should learn to get pleasure out of non-material experiences as opposed to pursuing more goods and services. "A new antiwaste morality is gaining momentum," say the authors. "The public is unlikely to support any government program that it regards as potentially wasteful, and there is support for regulations that curb wasteful practices by the public itself."

Consider the contradictory implications of these attitudes for a public service like libraries. On the one hand, people want government to cut spending. On the other hand, they want to reduce private consumption and waste and to promote non-materialistic, humanistic values.

The public library is a paradigm of conservation: for less than $20 per person per year, a town like Cohasset can have an excellent collection of current and basic books, magazines, and professional services, in an attractive facility that is open seven days a week. What kind of waste is it, on the other hand, to lock up these resources one day a week, and to stop buying useful materials? People are then encouraged to resort to personal purchase or to travel to other libraries (also suffering cutbacks) to get what they need.

The library conserves by sharing and recycling materials useful to many people over many decades, and by joining in a network with other libraries and data bases. What good is the collection, or the network, if the library is closed?

The library stands for the best in American values: energy efficient recreation; the pursuit of intellectual, cultural, informational and spiritual enhancement of the individual and the community; a source of self-help and practical knowledge.

There must be a growing awareness that there is unconscionable waste in private expenditures. We must go after that, as well as the waste in government. Our society can afford excellent universities and schools, symphony orchestras, institutions for the advancement of the arts and sciences, libraries, parks and a good quality of life for all. Our current materialism is not affordable, nor satisfying, for many.

We must work to build a society that is healthier, more rational, more civilized, more satisfied. The price of such a society will be offset by the reduced costs of policing and reparing self-destructive and anti-social behavior, so much of which is caused by the very things we choose to promote and consume.

Cohasset public safety spending

Cohasset is.

Barbara Anderson admitted that differences in rankings between different departments may not be a problem, that those numbers might reflect an allocation of resources that a community really wants.

Selectman Arthur Clark pointed out that "there's just so much variation between towns, that with these numbers, you really can't tell that much."

Town Accountant William Signorelli was concerned that the numbers might be distorted, and not really reflect true operating costs for the towns studied. He wanted to know whether the totals from Schedule A that the study used included large capital expenditures, debt service costs, or federal funds. It was not clear at press time whether or not these costs were included. So, in reading the following rankings, keep in mind that they could be distorted and may not accurately reflect Cohasset true operating expenditures.

Below is a table showing the results of the CLT report for Cohasset and the surrounding towns of Hingham, Hull, and Scituate. Note that while the four towns are adjacent to each other, they do differ in population, land area, and assessed valuation.

The superintendent reports

At the secondary level areas (7-12). Under the able direction of Principal, Richard Streeter, the Junior/Senior High School continues to enjoy a fine post secondary and college placement record. Students from the class of 1980 matriculated to a total of 140 diversified colleges and our follow-up studies show a high success rate during our students' initial year. Included for your inspection is our Profile of the Class of 1980.

ADVANCED EDUCATION PROFILE

4 year college attendance	68%
2 year colleges	6%
Technicians, nurses and others	6%
Work	17%
Services	3%
Total further education	80%

The graduating class of 1980 totalled 146 students.

Students at the Junior/Senior High School continue to score impressively on both our locally contracted tests and our nationally normed Science Research Ass. (SRA) Achievement Test. In December of this year, the School Committee adopted demanding standards in math, reading and writing for the newly created State-mandated Improvement of Basic Skills Program. We feel that by emphasizing these skills at all levels of our curriculum that we will ensure a continued commitment to excellence in the fundamentals of the 3 R's. This program, which tests our student body annually, will monitor student progress for all to see and hopefully reinforce the public's confidence that the Cohasset School System is truly dedicated to the elimination of functional illiteracy.

In the exciting field of computers, the school system has added to a program of "software" and "hardware" designed to make all of our student body cognizant of computer terminology and the learning opportunities of these amazing work programs. This perhaps may be the new frontier of American Education. The computer has revolutionized our world. Information processing is vital in our complex society and young people must be literal in and knowledgeable of computer opportunities. Programs such as our new reading laboratory, our humanities programs, our advanced and honors courses, and opportunities in the arts and music continue to deliver quality services to young people. Our Special Services Department with its various individualized programs for the physically and educationally handicapped is meeting its responsibilities under Chapter 766 as well as the national mandates of the Federal Law 94-142. Mr. Stephen Hart continues to "watch dog" this operation to make sure that needed service is extended to deserving individuals in the most economic method possible. In these difficult times of limited means many are prone to quickly criticize the expenditures of this mandate, but speaking from experience in comparing the costs and degree of services provided by other communities, I believe that Cohasset has a realistic program which is efficiently and economically run by a competent, innovative Administrator. We must all remember that children with special needs have just as much right to quality, equal educational opportunities as normal students. It is unfortunate that this education, because of its very nature, is more expensive and therefore seems to be disproportionate in comparison with cost per pupil figures in our regular day programs. Included for your information is our Special Education report for December 1, 1980.

Elementary Education — Grades K-6. I am impressed by the primary and intermediate beginnings of Cohasset students. The warmth and family atmosphere of the Osgood School is a credit to the Principal and staff and gives primary youngsters a strong start in the fundamentals of reading, writing and arithmetic.

The intermediate level's task is to begin the departmentalized process. It is a period of rapid physical and intellectual growth for the students, and an innovative and talented staff brings not only the standard programs expected from a middle school but programs for special students, the gifted/talented, and a variety of out-of-door, music, and art education experiences. The school is professionally and strongly led by a competent, experienced Principal.

In sports and student activities, the Skippers have had winning fall seasons. As their Superintendent I have never seen our football team lose. Their 5/4 record was the best in nine years and in hockey, field hockey, track and basketball, townspeople are seeing good competition from well coached teams.

All of course is not sweetness and light. There is much for all to do in the years ahead. Alcohol and drug abuse continue to be a real concern of both parents and school officials. We are working with our Police Department and its new Chief, John DeBassio, and the cooperation which we are receiving from officers like Sgt. Jack Rhodes and our new Health Coordinator, Michael Gill, could not be better. Town officials and Advisory Board members are cooperating with us in the problem of Proposition 2½. A special thank you to Town Accountant, William Signorelli, for current information on Chapter 580 without which budget preparation for next year would be impossible. Massachusetts public education, however, will find a way to overcome these difficulties. That is the American way. However, the cooperation and understanding of all of us will be necessary to accomplish this end. The transition period for those adjustments necessary under Proposition 2½ will be hectic and at times chaotic. We ask that all remember that none of the necessary reductions in our existing programs are the School Committee's, my own, or our staff's recommendations but action that we must take in reaching our mandatory levy. We will cut services which we feel will least damage the education of the Cohasset student body.

Respectfully submitted,
Eugene C. Crowell
Superintendent of Schools

☐Richard Stevens of Cohasset has been elected to the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Taxpayers Foundation. He is president of the Foxboro Savings Bank.

☐Janice Millard of 6 Ripley Road, a sophomore at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, has been elected Pledge Master of Alpha Phi Omega fraternity, a campus service organization.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Millard of Cohasset, and a graduate of Cohasset High School.

At WPI, she is majoring in Mechanical Engineering.

☐Patricia Ledoux of 91 North Main St., local representative for Mutual of Omaha and United of Omaha, recently completed a comprehensive insurance course offered at the National Sales Training School in Pittsburgh, Pa.

She is associated with the Eastern Massachusetts Division Office, the Mutual and United Agency in Canton.

☐David Zaloga, a third grade student in Miss Baush's class and a first year cub scout, is on his way to becoming "super scout" of Cohasset's Den #4. David has earned a Wolf badge, one gold and five silver Arrows and will receive three more Arrows at the next meeting.

Each badge earned represents many achievements that a scout completes with the assistance of a family member. The Wolf requires 52 projects be completed and each arrow requires ten. "Scouting tries to encourage families to work with their child," Den Mother Jane Long says. When the project is completed a parent signs a card indicating fulfillment of the work.

David says, "I like scouting. We can do so many projects." He said he's recently completed work on bird sighting, making model boats, Indian teepees and earlier in the year, completed projects on the family, flag, books, tying, community and family trips. He plans to go onto Webelos and then boy scouts.

David and other Cohasset cub scouts will give their hand-made race models a workout on Wednesday night at the "Pinewood Derby" to be held at Town Hall at 7:30 p.m.

☐Cari Golden, daughter of Doris and Jack Golden, was named to the dean's list at Northeastern University School of Nursing for the fall semester. Cari is a Cohasset High School graduate and in her freshman year at Northeastern.

☐Annie and Jim deCastro ran Cohasset's Road-Race-by-the-Sea last year and decided they wanted to live here. They moved to Linden Drive last July and on February 4, 1980 their family expanded to include a son, Matthew Davis, who has red hair, freckles and loves an Irish jig. He weighted 8 lbs. when he arrived at Boston Lying-In Hospital. Jim is station KISS 108 (WXKS AM) manager. We're glad they moved to Cohasset.

☐Shirley Marten just returned from a 3½ day conference in Washington, D.C. sponsored by the National Council for International Visitors. She's very excited about what she learned at the conference and will tell us more about it next week.

☐There are just a few days left until the Cohasset Sailing Club's 2nd Annual Gourmet Dinner on Saturday, March 28, 7:30 p.m. at St. Stephen's Parish Hall. Gerry Schultz has arranged for award winning photographer Susan Reilly of Hingham, to provide the group with a slide presentation on pictures she's taken of the Tall Ships, ice boat racing, one design racing and general sailing scenes. She'll also give a talk on sailing with a small section devoted to tips on taking good sailing pictures. Sounds like a good preview to another sailing season.

The gourmet French menu is being prepared by gourmet French chefs right here in town and will include Boeuf Bourguignon, carottes glacess, salade d'epinards, gateaux au fromage, le petit pain and cafe, only ten dollars per person. Advisors to school committee: 'bottom line' is what counts

By Karin Bartow

The advisory board told the school committee at their joint meeting last week that their main interest in the school budget is the "bottom line."

Exactly how the school department spends its allotted share of town revenue, said advisory board chairman Jean Cotton, "Is up to you."

No questions were raised by the five members of the advisory board after school superintendent Eugene Crowell outlined the proposed $3.6 million school budget which will decrease by $160,000, or 55.3 percent, of the town's overall cut-back mandated by Proposition 2½.

Crowell's proposed additional cut in the school budget of $20,000 to help the town offset depleted reserves and special warrant articles, came under fire. Committee vice-chairman Jack Langmaid asked if the money was important enough to the town to take away from the schools for things like a new alarm system or a reading teacher.

Cotton explained that the town ordinarily covers the costs of things like group and fire insurance, workmen's compensation and pensions that are directly related to the school department. With all town budgets tight this year she said her committee was grateful for the extra $20,000, although they didn't ask for it. She estimates that $27,000 of the town's budget relates to school costs.

Advisory member Ozzie Ingram who has followed school committee budget hearings felt it was "lenient for the schools to contribute $20,000 for special articles when other town budgets are giving up $120,000." $141,000 has been allotted for special articles and $100,000 for the town's reserve fund which is set aside for unforeseen emergencies that cannot be planned for in advance.

Ingram also pointed out that "The effect on the schools is on the order of 5 percent while other town budgets are being cut by 11 percent to 15 percent."

Mary O'Brien, who pleaded with the committee not to "let that $20,000 go," also asked rhetorically, "When was the last time the school committee asked for reserve fund money?"

School committee member Diana Kornet and chairman Frank England seemed to support the idea of helping out the town. Pat Walsh said, "The (increased) insurance costs are a concern of ours."

Dick Conle, who is a school committee candidate, angrily attacked the school committee "For shutting off debate between me and the advisory board." He said the school committee lowered itself by "Bowing down before the advisory board," and reminded them that priority is with the school system."

Crowell told the meeting that at a major meeting with the chairman of selectmen Arthur Clark, Jean Cotton and town accountant Bill Signorelli, he was told that, "Anything the school department could do to help would be appreciated." He was not asked for a finite amount of money and added that he takes "Responsibility for the recommendation to my committee."

The school committee will meet on Friday, March 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the choral room of the high school.

School Briefs...

SCHOOL CALENDAR

Superintendent Crowell said at last Thursday's meeting that he would not present the proposed school calendar until late spring. He wants the chance to circulate his proposals widely throughout town. "We ar going very slow and want people to write and talk to us," he said.

Three concepts under consideration are an early school start with a long Christmas vacation, four day weeks in mid-winter or a twenty-three day spring closedown.

READING SPECIALIST

Crowell told the committee that he feels he can restore the reading specialist in the junior/senior high school from "selected material savings" that he said would not hurt programs. The committee agreed to consider the cuts from materials totaling $13,775 at a later date.

LUNCHES TO INCREASE IN PRICE

The committee voted to increase the price of school lunches from 50 cents to 65 cents (adult meals to be raised accordingly) effective April 1. The increase will facilitate making the food service department self-sufficient next year, but prices must go up this spring in order to build up reserves for the fall.

Used book sale

The Cohasset Library is getting ready to offer a roomful of used books at their annual sale scheduled for Friday and Saturday, April 10 and 11 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Public donations and library discards and duplicates are being sorted and stacked for the sale. Donations are still welcome, however they should be in within the next week.

Lots of paperbacks, priced at 25 cents, and hardcovers at 50 cents, have been collected for the sale. Children's books, records, National Geographics, current biographies, recent best sellers and reference books will be available too.

Kyricos demonstrates

Chris Kyricos of 573 Jerusalem Road, participated in the demonstration held in Boston on Sunday to protest the U.S. involvement in El Salvador.

Kyricos said he went "for support and to help increase public awareness, and to find out more about the issue myself." He added that he was against the U.S. involvement because he saw the conflict there as the people's struggle for economic justice, and not as an incursion by Communist forces.

Cemetery space

and Woodside cemeteries, according to the treasurer's office.

Town cemetery lots are for sale through the treasurer's office. Something that can be discovered by calling any town department. Of course there's no phone listing for any cemetery in town.

Anyway the treasurer's office says there is no immediate crisis. Land is needed for future expansion.

Right now the selectmen are thinking about taking the town-owned land on Route 3A that's the site of the inactive Cohasset Sportsmen's Club for cemetery expansion.

Perhaps if they do that, they'll rename Route 3A as Happiness Highway.

Getting a gun

for target shooting only.

The background check and letters of reference are used to weed out obviously unsuitable applicants. Under state law, a gun permit cannot be given to anyone who has been convicted of a felony, the illegal use of drugs, or who has a history of mental disorder.

This procedure also helps the Chief decide if the applicant has a compelling reason to own a gun. Under state law, a police chief has wide discretionary authority in the granting of gun permits. Chief DeBassio's policy to grant a permit is strict, perhaps stricter than that of former Police Chief Randy Feola.

The state law also says that if you are refused a permit, you can go to court to appeal. In the six months that DeBassio has been chief, no one has appealed one of his decisions, possibly because he makes a point of discussing the matter fully with the applicant, and in trying to reach agreement on the reason for a gun.

He would also make sure the person knew how to use the gun properly. The written exam asks questions about the proper use of a pistol, the laws regulating its use, and how it works. The test itself is not that difficult; I took it in the police station and got a 65 percent, which would be a passing grade.

But, DeBassio said that would not be enough to get a license, that the test is used as a basic checklist for the applicant and the range officer in the proficiency test. The applicant must not only pass the written test, he must show that he can pass a range test where his ability to use the weapon is reviewed.

Chief DeBassio was asked if there have been any gun-realted accidents in homes with gun permits. "I haven't had an instance since I've been here, or when I was in Brockton, which is a city of 100,000, of accidents," he said.

About 60 percent of the permits he issues are for target and practice range use only, he said. "Police departments are becoming more concerned about the dangers of indiscriminate licensing," he said, and are tightening up on requirements.

Firefighters will fight fire articles

On the floor of Town Meeting, the Cohasset firefighters union will state its position on articles which would take the fire chief's position out of civil service.

William Protulis, president of the union, confirmed that they will make a statement at town meeting. Since the Local has not yet met to decide the issue, he said he could not speak for all the men on this as yet.

Speaking for himself, Protulis said he was against the proposed change "for the same reason the chief is. We've never had any problem with the system we've had now. I don't see why the selectmen want to change it."

One article would take the chief's authority over the department and give it to the selectmen. The other article would remove the chief's successor from civil service.

The selectmen gave their reasons for the articles at an Advisory Committee meeting last week. Selectman Arthur Clark said that he thought that "every department head should be required to be under someone," and that no department head should have absolute authority.

Selectman Henry Ainslie said he thought that no department head should be under Civil Service. Clark remarked that he thought that no department head should have tenure.

Ainslie said they proposed the two articles "to get the fire department into the same administrative structure as the police department." He added that this move would be a mechanism to combine fire and police into a single public safety department.

Clark pointed out that the fire department is the second largest budget in the town, and that the fire chief is the only department head to have complete authority.

Advisory Committee member Osborn Ingam said the town does have control over the purse strings of the fire department, and that the fire chief's authority is not total. He added that since the chief has been defeated at least twice at town meeting for special articles, that the town certainly does have much control over his department.

Clark said, "We have a good working relationship with the police department now," and that "I think it's easier to work with the police department now than with the fire department."

Commenting on the arguments against the proposed change, Ainslie said that the "same fears were expressed when we changed the police department over. I think people in town think that this way works better."

Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink, who was not at the meeting, told the Mariner later that he is opposed to the proposed articles. He said that "the track record of the present system has proven to be good. I just don't know what the selectmen think they're going to gain."

The advisory committee did not discuss nor vote on the matter at that meeting. Their recommendation on the articles will be made from the floor at town meeting.

Unitarian leader to speak at 1st Parish

Dr. Richard S. Scobie, Executive Director of the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee, a private, non-profit organization for social change, will be the guest speaker at the First Parish in Cohasset (Unitarian Universalist) Sunday, March 29 from 3 to 5 p.m.

The program will take place in the Parish House at 23 North Main Street.

In January of this year, Dr. Scobie participated in the UUSC-sponsored fact-finding mission to Central America for three members of Congress including Congressman Gerry Studds of Cohasset and other congressional staff representatives.

The group travelled to Costa Rica, Nicaragua, and Honduras to study first-hand the realities of the current Central American situation. It is the third such Congressional mission conducted by the non-sectarian service and action agency, as part of UUSC's ongoing mandate to inform elected and appointed officials, and the American public, of true conditions in that area.

Although security conditions made it unwise for the group to go into El Salvador, the Congressional members conducted extensive meetings with many persons who had recently fled that country. They met with Salvadoran Junta member Antonio Morales Ehrlich. And they travelled into the border area between Honduras and El Salvador, where thousands of Salvadoran people have taken refuge.

It was in meetings with these refugees that the UUSC-led group recorded testimony to atrocities perpetrated by government-controlled Salvadoran security troops; they also received new information concerning the investigation into the murder of four American women church workers, and other Americans, in El Salvador last November and December. Dismayed by the testimony of the refugees, the contradictory stories coming out of the State Department, and Washington's decision to increase U.S. military aid to El Salvador, the three Congress people petitioned President Reagan and their colleagues on Capitol Hill to stop the arms shipments "in the name of justice and humanity."

With a 40-year history of recognized programs in many areas, the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee, with headquarters in Boston, offices in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, Atlanta, and Washington, D.C., and international staff in Central America and Europe, works to promote human freedom both in the United States and abroad. Dr. Scobie has directed the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee since 1972, during which time UUSC has doubled its staff and funding. Under his leadership, UUSC has reconfirmed its commitment to work for a world in which people have a greater degree of freedom and control over the decisions that affect their lives. Operationally this has meant concentrating on the more oppressive aspects of the U.S. criminal justice system, and on processes by which third world peoples can become empowered. In the course of his work, Dr. Scobie has presented testimony in Congress, worked directly with project personnel in Africa, Central America and the Caribbean, and particpated in national-level conferences in the areas of international development, social welfare, and criminal justice.

Before joining UUSC, Dr. Scobie worked with a number of government agencies and organizations addressing social problems in both the United States and Latin America. A published author in the field of social reform, he is a former chapter President of the National Association of Social Workers and earned his Doctorate at Brandeis University's Heller School.

We are very sorry, but due to your enthusiastic response, we ran out of Globes early and had to substitute Heralds. In order that we can accomodate those who were inconvenienced, we will again run the special next Sunday, March 29 with an increased supply of Globes. Again, thank you for your overwhelming response.

Raves for 'My Fair Lady'

By Patricia Desmond

Color, pageantry and excellent music swept through Hingham High School last weekend along with a cast of hundreds from the Hingham Civic Music Theater.

"My Fair Lady," starring Martha Gaffey of Cohasset as Eliza Doolittle, brought raves from the audience. Saturday night's performance is already sold-out.

But there are tickets available for Thursday, March 26 and Friday, March 27. Tickets are available at the Hingham Public Library, Hingham Bookstore and Women's Exchange.

The scene at the race track at Ascot was done in mimic of the portion of the movie with its black and white costume and horseless action.

Eliza and Martha carried off the part with all the humor and light pathos ever intended.

Bruce Cameron of Cohasset as Freddy Eynsford-Hill was in particularly good voice.

Kudos to everyone including the wardrobe makers. Marion Hawkins of Marshfield and Claire Barton of Hingham made the costumes on a scale suited for Broadway. Blanche Clark of Hingham did the hats.

Most people in the audience imagined the costumes had to have been rented. In fact even the men's suits were produced by the women.

Other applause goes to the rest of the cast.

The story centers on the transformation by Higgens, F. Davis Dassori of Hingham, of a Cockney flower-seller, Eliza.

In this he is aided and abetted by Col. Pickering, Bennet Driscoll of Cohasset.

Eliza's father is Alfred Doolittle, Ben Duffy of Hingham, and his two cronies Jamie, Bard Barton of Hingham, and Harry, Tom Myers of Cohasset.

Mrs. Eynsford-Hill is Cynthia Kellem of Hull. Mrs. Higgens is Violet Villani of Hingham and the housekeeper, Mrs. Pearce is Claire Berman of Hull.

The cast is ably rounded out by the appearance of Hingham Civic's talented chorus and dancers: Candace Collins, Carl Wright, Holbrook; Killy Lambert, Mary Brown, Sharon Doherty, Eddie Fee, Lee-Ann Swider, Frank Isabelle, Jeanette Wall, Laura Warner, Dana Hall, Judith Hall, Doris Herzberg, James Moore, Sandra Moore, Hingham; Paul Johnson, Jason Gill, Sarah de Lima, Peter O'Laughlin, Betty Mullaney, Diane Kenney, Cohasset; Al Hodgkins, Scituate; Pat Tedeschi, Heather Kelleher, Letitia Riel, John Taylor, Jeanne Scammel, Norwell; Joe Urnaitis, Rockland; Diane DeLucia, Andover; Patrice Duffy, Dorchester; Rose Sawyer, Carol Whittaker, Braintree; Michael Kreitman, L.M. McGray, Susie Lawler, Nancy Beneducci, Barbara MacSwan, Jean Neil, Kim Cavicchi, Weymouth; Jennifer Long, Ellen Lightman, Randolph; and Donna Savage, Marshfield Hills.

Directed by Veronica Hilton Neilsen, with musical direction by Salvatore Bartolotti and choreography by Joan Kenny, Hingham Civic's production is a continuation of the excellent performances the group has provided in the past. Proceeds from the show will go to increase the scholarship fund, which provides funds for students wishing to pursue a career in music or the theater arts. HCMT is also available for entertainment at functions for a fee.

For further information, call 383-1641, Betty Driscoll.

2½ is here and he's out of work

The human cost of Proposition 2½ was dramatized at the selectmen's meeting last Wednesday night. James McNamara, a wire department employee scheduled to be laid off because of Prop. 2½, came to the meeting to ask a few questions.

"I believe I've been laid off," he said, "and would like the answers to a few questions.

"Why was there no objection from the board of selectmen when the wire department was cut?" he asked.

Selectmen Rocco Laugelle and Arthur Clarke explained that they followed the advice of the superintendent of the wire department, who said he could operate the department with only two men.

McNamara said that the selectmen "should have realized he wasn't a very competent department head," because of the cuts he proposed.

"We can't give him an argument when he says he can do the job with only two men," Selectman Rocco Laugelle responded.

Arthur Clarke said that wire department supt. Wigmore suggested the cut be made.

McNamara claimed that while the "work force was being cut by one-third, the work done would be cut by one-half."

"Aren't you supposed to be a watchdog over these departments?" he asked.

Clarke and Ainslie explained that McNamara came to the town as a CETA employee, was trained by the town, and is now a licensed electrician. "You've learned your trade from the town of Cohasset," Clark pointed out.

McNamara said he thought the cut would really hurt the wire department. "Do you want to cut off your nose to spite your face?" he asked.

"Some things won't be done that should be done," said Ainslie, "but, we can't do anything about that. We didn't want Prop. 2½."

"I'm the only one being laid off in the town," said McNamara.

Clark explained that under Prop. 2½, "we have to operate with less people, just the same."

McNamara claimed that "I'm the only one who's losing a job," and that other departments were only losing positions.

Clark asked him "What do you want? Do you want us to give you your job back?"

"No," said McNamara, "I just want to say my piece."

McNamara asked "If only two men are needed, why is there $5,000 in their budget for extra help? Why is there $1,200 in there for gas allowance?"

Rocco Laugelle said, "You have no right to ask that. You're not a resident of the town." McNamara lives in Weymouth.

"I don't have a future in this town," McNamara said, "for me, it's all over."

Rocco Laugelle said, "We don't want to lay anybody off." "But," he said, "now we think it's right" that McNamara be laid off. "We have no alternatives but to make Prop. 2½ work."

"You don't want to give me the answers," McNamara stated.

"I feel bad you're being laid off," Clark responded, "but there isn't anything I can do about it."

Peter Pratt suggested that since CETA has an office for referral of former CETA employees that have learned a skill, that the town could use these services to refer McNamara and other CETA employees working for the town to other jobs. Selectmen indicated that McNamara himself could do that, but that the town would take no role in it.

"I consider myself a minority," said McNamara, "not because I'm Irish, but because I'm a combat veteran of Vietnam."

Selectman Laugelle said, "I don't think the Town of Cohasset owes you anything."

"Why am I being singled out?" asked McNamara in his characteristic Irish brogue. "I'm the only one in town being laid off."

The St. Patty's crowd at Jerusalem Road

Among the more than 70 guests at the 4th Annual St. Patrick's Day party held last Saturday at the home of Jim and Mary Richard at 703 Jerusalem Road, were Cohasset author Ubi DiBennetto and WBZ sports commentator Jim McCarthy.

At the party, Mary Richards' son Chuck Campion, former trip director for Vice President Walter Mondale, met Peter Pratt, former member of Senator Kennedy's national campaign staff. Pratt told Campion "The ticket in 1984 will be Kennedy-Mondale, right?" No way, said Campion, who told him it would be "the other way around." Chuck Campion also said he expects to soon be appointed to a staff position with the Democratic National Committee in Washington, D.C.

Also attending were Cohasset residents John Burns, candidate for the Board of Health, and Bob Collins, principal of Scituate High School. Brother Dan and Father Richard from the Glastonbury Monestary also attended.

Superb Irish coffees were prepared by Ed Doyle, of Westwood, a professional bartender at Boston's prestigious Hampshire House. Doyle is the founder of the Barley Hoppers, a Boston jogging group, as well as being a champion dart thrower.

The guest of honor was Mary Richards' father, former State Representative (D-West Roxbury) Edmund J. Donlan, who turned 80 recently. Donlan, known affectionately by friends and family as "Papa" served 22 years in the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Gambling film to be shown in Hingham

The Citizens Against Casino Gambling will present a public film showing Sunday, March 19 at 7 p.m. in the Hingham Community Center.

Informational displays will outline the effects of casino gambling in other states. Sign-up sheets will be available for interested volunteers to join the following working committees: membership and campaign; finance and fundraising; legal; media; public relations and advertising; legislative lobbyists and special interests; calendars, speakers and projectionists; economic development alternatives and impact; and newsletter.

Carol Oteri, of Hull, President of C.A.C.G., noted the non-partisan, non-profit nature of the corporation and extended an invitation to anyone wishing to oppose the legalization of casino gambling in Massachusetts.

Persons unable to attend announced meetings may send correspondence or contributions to C.A.C.G., Inc., Post Office Box 2754, Boston, Ma., 02208. A showing of "Atlantic City - Winners and Losers" will take place Wednesday, April 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the V.F.W. Hall in Hull.

Travers-Soccorso

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Travers of Cohasset announce the engagement of their daughter, Leslie Ann Travers, to Noel Gerard Soccorso, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick A. Soccorso of Scituate.

Miss Travers, a graduate of Cohasset High School and Bridgewater State College, is a special needs teacher in the Scituate school system.

Her fiance, a graduate of Scituate High School and Bridgeton Academy, attended the University of Massachusetts at Amherst and is employed at Cirelli Foods, Inc.

Grono-Kravette

Cheryl Gravo & Sanford Kravette

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Grono of Whitman announce the engagement of their daughter, Cheryl Anita to Mr. Sanford Marlow Kravette, son of Stephen Kravette and Norma Kravette, both of Cohasset.

Miss Grono and Mr. Kravette are both graduates of the Boston Conservatory of Music where each held principal positions in the symphony orchestra and opera orchestra. Mr. Kravette has won several awards and prizes, among them, the Boston Conservatory Alumni Association Prize for high scholastic achievement, and first prize in the Boston Conservatory Orchestra and Plymouth Philharmonic concerto competitions. He has also performed with the Rome Festival Orchestra and is currently performing with the Boston Civic Orchestra.

Both Cheryl and Sanford are teaching and free-lancing in the Boston area.

A June wedding is planned.

Winn-O'Connell

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Winn of Cohasset announce the engagement of their daughter, Maryellen Winn, to Paul H. O'Connell, son of William J. O'Connell of Quincy.

A June 6 wedding is planned.

Trackmen, ball players get ready

By Rob Tis

Who are those athletes pounding the pavement all around Cohasset during the after school hours?

Of course, it's Coach Davis' track team. Once again it looks as if the powerful team will be quite a contender. The Mr. Versatile award for this year goes to Greg Raffa who can sprint faster, jump higher and throw the discus further than just about everyone. Pat Duffy will be throwing the shot and the discus as well as the high jump and the hurdles.

Just like last year, Chris McNabb will run 'til he's ready to die and probably end up winning the two mile every time. Jaimie Repogle and Joel Lindsey will specialize in running the mile. Among other things, Mark Wilken will be dominating in the hurdles.

Along with Raffa, there is a large crew of runners from the 100-yard dash to the ½ mile, this will in all likelihood be the Skippers' strong point this season. Keith (The Iceman) Ross, Jim (Tunebox) Leonard, Diarmud O'Connel and Freshman standout David Rice will all be doing the sprinting. Steve D'Onofrio, Mike Glasfeld and Dennis Erikson will be running the quarter and half miles.

BASEBALL

The boys of summer have already started practice this spring and are working toward April 3, their first game against Scituate.

Graduation has hurt this team with accredited names such as Plante, Ayer, Drago, Sullivan and Maynard gone forever. But the strength of this team will be in its well stocked pitching staff. Co-captain hurler Bill Kurtz will return to the starting lineup with fireballing right hander Jack Hernan. Two southpaws, Bob Meers and Andy Shoshan, along with Dana Infasino complete this experienced squad.

Veteran slugger Bob Donahue will be behind the plate as well as oversized sophomore Bill Cuff.

Paul Buckley will be at first base. When not pitching Bill Kurtz will be at second, when he is, Kevin Dooley will take over. Joe Becker will be at short, and Mark Froio will be at the hot corner. For his third varsity year Bob Russell will be in the outfield as well as versatile pitchers Jack Hernan and Bob Meers as well as Rich Evans.

The Vince Lombardi of Cohasset High School, Mr. Kuntz will be at the reins of this powerful team with unlimited potential.

Studds labels Reagan program radical

By Ann Fogg

What we're getting from the Reagan administration is far from the general belt tightening and discipline of federal bureaus we were led to expect during the campaign, Congressman Gerry Studds told the Pre-White House Conference on Aging early this week.

Instead, Congress is being asked to support radical change, "by far the most radical transformation of the American system since the New Deal."

Studds of Cohasset addressed approximately 250 delegates from Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell, and seven other South Shore towns who met for a regional forum for the President's White House Conference on Aging, held every ten years since 1961. The 1981 Conference will be held early in December.

Keynote speaker Richard Rowland echoed his sentiments. "We should be alarmed. This is not the campaign Reagan ran. What you see under attack are the basic social programs...We can't solve the social problems with money, but we'll solve the military problems with money."

After a welcome from Ruth Spencer of the Hingham Council on Aging and President of the Board of Directors of the South Shore Home Care Services, and short speeches by Congressman Studds and Dr. Rowland, the meeting broke into five workshops to discuss recommendations for the White House Conference.

The issues discussed in the workshops run counter to the economic cutbacks being proposed in Washington. In the workshop on health care, leader Ann Hill from Milton pointed out that Medicare money can be used only once a person is ill, not for long term maintenance to prevent illness.

In the workshop on economic security, Dr. Rowland discussed a move afoot to tax the 50% of Social Security payments which the employer has paid and which therefore hasn't been taxed. In response to a complaint from a man in the group about the high tax on interest, he said that statistics show the United States saves less than other industrialized nations because of this.

In the housing workshop, people discussed the current shortage of housing for the elderly and looked for alternatives. Apartments in large houses, for example, provide security for the old person and use otherwise unused space, yet town governments are apt to reject them on the grounds of not wanting to turn the town into rental housing.

"All the big houses on Main Street in Hingham have such apartments," said Mrs. Spencer.

The workshop on a better deal for caregiving families stressed the importance of available education on how to bathe and carry an adult and how to find and hire someone to stay overnight with an aged person.

"Often it's the first time people have hired anyone," said leader Eileen Kirby, Executive Director of South Shore Home Care. "They're not explicit enough about what they want the person to do or not to do."

The workshop on enhancing aging discussed myths, stereotypes, and finding new careers and education. "I'm not retired," one woman said. "I have a new job. I'm a student at UMass Boston, and I've never been happier!"

"If you behave in December the way the Congress is behaving, I'm going to be very disappointed in you." Gerry Studds told the assembly. We're being asked to reorder the priorities of the country, in the process hurting those least likely to vote. Your challenge is to inject backbone into those who purport to lead you."

"The elderly are increasing in numbers," said Dr. Rowland, and expences are increasing. But there's a rumbling of people who say, 'Let's take money from the social programs and give it to the Pentagon, to business to tax breaks.'

"Look at what will happen if the elderly aren't assertive. Those reordering the priorities say things will get better down the road. But down the road, we might all be dead."

Roger Vaka sang St. Patrick's Day songs to the 60 Plus Club last week.

Election '81

McArthur speaks out on solid waste

During the coffees that Mary Jane McArthur, candidate for selectman, has been attending, many citizens have been expressing concern about the solid waste and wastewater management problems facing the town.

Through her 20 years of experience on town boards, particularly on the Advisory Committee, candidate McArthur feels that she has gained an overview of these and other problems — many of which she sees as interrelated.

"For instance," she notes, "I see the importance of solving our solid waste disposal problem not only because of the limited life of the dump but also because of its impact on the proposed sewer project."

According to Mrs. McArthur, it is not yet known whether the study now being conducted on the dump will recommend its life can be extended or its immediate closing. She emphasizes that whatever the outcome, the town must be prepared by carefully researching possible solutions immediately.

She points out that the town may find it will be necessary to spend funds to prolong the use of the dump. For instance, she explains, structures to control the leachate or capping a portion of the dump could become necessary.

Mrs. McArthur also sees the need for an improved recycling program as a means of prolonging the life of the dump. "The people have to understand the importance of recycling," she underlines as she recommends a town wide education program.

However, she continues, "people shouldn't get the idea that the life of the dump will go on indefinitely because it's not." The town should also explore regionalization such as the solutions now being explored by the 128 West Resource Recovery Council, she advises. Members of that council feel that due to the economics of scale in large, regional plants, savings can be realized while disposing of refuse in an environmentally acceptable manner.

Exec. secretary facts needed, says Golden

During a recent coffee hour, Doris Golden, candidate for Selectmen, told residents she feels Annual Town Meeting should be presented with "all the facts" regarding an article requesting funding for the position of executive secretary to the board of selectmen.

"Before funding the article, voters should be knowledgeable of a comprehensive job description, the salary range for the position, and all benefits which would accrue to the individual selected," she said.

Mrs. Golden also stated she would like to see government become far less complicated than it is today. "We are deluged by laws that are becoming too restrictive, almost punitive in nature, in many areas of local government."

She added: "I believe people are the government, and their voices should be heard. I am concerned that I see a bare quorum at our Town Meetings. People must be made to realize their responsibilities to government, and government must at the same time find ways to better invite that participation."

Cast picked for 'Night Must Fall'

By David Wadsworth

Director Wayne Miessner of the Cohasset Dramatic Club has announced the list of cast members who will perform in the Club's Spring production of Emlyn Williams' English thriller "Night Must Fall" at the Cohasset Town Hall on the evenings of May 7, 8 and 9.

In the leading role of Dan, the enigmatic young man, will be Carl Slotnick of Cohasset; in the other leading role of Olivia Grayne, the rich widow's niece, will be Joanna Stockman of Cohasset. In the major supporting role of Mrs. Bramson, the rich widow, will be Diane Gallagher of Scituate.

Supporting roles will be filled as follows: Dora Parcoe, the maid, by Susan Leigh Anthony of Cohasset; Mrs. Terence, the Cockney cook, by Betty Miessner of Scituate; Nurse Libby, the District Nurse, by Lisa Fichtner of Cohasset; Inspector Belsize of Scotland Yard by John Farrell of Scituate; Hubert Laurie, the visitor, by David Wadsworth of Cohasset, and the Lord Chief Justice of the Appeals Court by John Rice of Scituate.

"Night Must Fall" is a classic thriller set in an English cottage during the 1930's. The characters portrayed represent a wide range of apparently typical English personalities. Typical, that is, until the unfolding series of grim events makes one aware that at least some of the personalities portrayed are anything but typical. (One, for instance, is a murderer.)

Some of the cast members are new to the Cohasset Dramatic Club, some represent long experience in the Club's productions, and two are returnees to the Club after considerable absence. They represent diverse theatrical talents learned both in the local club and elsewhere.

As for the play, Director Miessner observes that "Night Must Fall" sometimes is considered to be a "period piece," representing a particular time in English history and a unique type of English society existing in the years just before the upheaval of World War 2, an era and a society now gone. But the violent events portrayed in the play are not limited to any one time or place, they are all too familiar to us in the contemporary world. Seemingly random and sometimes almost unexplicable violence appears around us, even in the most ordered of societies, and can at any moment invade our lives or the lives of those near us.

The author Emlyn Williams was a student of the subject of violence, and wrote extensively about it. "Night Must Fall" is an analysis of that particular and peculiar human trait that allows us, of all species, to willingly take the life of others of our species. Murder sometimes occurs from exercise of violent passion, sometimes with cold-blooded calculation. The cast of "Night Must Fall" will be portraying both of these cases in their presentation of the play.

Well then, how about body building!!

By Lois Martin

There's this ad on television which shows a man and woman enduring a quiet evening at home. He's into his newspaper and she's buried beneath mounds of an uncompleted afghan.

The TV man asks viewers if this is the way we feel, bored to death with the same old projects, sick of spending the after supper hours by the hearth.

Well, yes, now that he mentions it, I am. I don't want to see another skein of yarn until late November. And if I get my hands on one I might toss it across the living room at the man behind the paper.

Seems to me we have to revolt against genteel sozzling in late March. Enough hibernating. So I've been amenable to all suggestions, especially for couples. Time to get the old boy into new interests, renewed vitality.

First I broached the possibility of being contestants on "Dance Fever." He was quick on his feet when I met him. And with a little practice I figure we could enter as the Mid-Life Madness duo.

Costuming wouldn't be costly. He's got a tee shirt with the word "Rowdy" on it and that could be brought to life with a pair of red satin britches. For my part, I told him, it would be only a matter of reworking my old shortie nightgown with a cinch belt.

But his response to my practice sessions was only to burrow deeper in his reading material.

So I moved for doubles surfing. This kind of couple activity is featured on "Wide World of Sports." It would seem to call for good physical conditioning, bathing suits that stay put and a spirit of cooperation on a skinny little board together.

With our memories still keen about the last time we attempted to put up the same strip of wallpaper in harmony, I realized I might as well skip shopping for the bathing suit. There's no way we'd be on the same surf board and agree: on a wave, who gets to stand up front, and whose fault it was. I bailed off just as we caught the judge's eye.

But as a last resort I think I've got it. Body building pairs. Magnificent hobby. I saw a couple on television we'll use as a model. She, well she was something, beautifully tanned, proportioned body, all greased for competition, dressed in smoky plum pieces of fabric which couldn't have taken much time to make.

She had muscles but they looked good on her. And he, oh my goodness, had flexes where most of us have unresponsive flesh. They smiled a lot, and moving in utter synchronization, they exhibited their well developed biceps.

It was moving. The part I liked best is when he lifted her up with ease and she assumed a graceful, weightless position. I thought our training should begin with that part. If he couldn't get me off the ground in the living room by the coffee table, no sense going on.

I asked him if he felt he could get me up over his head and hold that position for a few seconds. He said he believed he could but that he suspected it would be the last thing he'd ever do.

Some people have no sense of adventure. They aren't willing to try new things. And after his forehead broke out in beads of sweat and he moaned something about a front end loader, I went back to the couch.

And it's a waste. The boys surely would have been proud to see their parents break away from doldrum activities. And I have some strange looking underwear hidden in the attic that was given to me for a birthday by friends with rare senses of humor that would have been perfect.

But the old boy's not without a sense of compromise. He said we could look forward to boating together as soon as the weather turns nice. If he thinks that weightlifting routine was tough, wait till he tries getting me in that boat. But I'll make it up to him. I'm crocheting a tasteful looking sail out of my yarn scraps.

But I'm still forced to confiscate his "Rowdy" tee shirt.

Saturday special: Town Meeting begins at 1

By Patricia Desmond

Come Saturday town meeting will sit down to put together a budget like none before.

Proposition 2½ dictated the bottom line, although the pending revaluation put some elastic in the calculations.

Town Moderator David Place said he expects the work can be completed in one session "if we get off to a good, prompt start."

That means 1 p.m. at Cohasset High School. The starting time of town meeting was changed from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. due to problems getting a quorum at the onset.

A quorum is 200.

Town officials expect there will be less trouble this year. Proposition 2½ has opened the school budget for town meeting action for the first time in recent history — fiscal autonomy of the school committee now being an idea of the past.

At least a few school teachers and parents are planning to be there.

And then the crowd from Beechwood is expected. Last October that group pushed through an article to build a new fire station in that section of town. The old one was closed when it became too small to hold a modern pumper.

They need town meeting approval to go ahead with construction. Bids are in and the price tag is $110,000.

Of course the fire chief has closed the town's other satellite fire station in the meantime due to a decrease in manpower. To reduce his budget for 2½, Chief Charles Piepenbrink needs to cut four of his 28 men. He's doing that by not filling jobs as people retire, which is leaving the department short already.

A good number of town employes are expected to fight any reductions that might come up on the floor of town meeting.

Anyway the moderator said if an evening session is necessary, it would most likely be on Monday night.

"Of course you understand that would be up to town meeting," Place said.

The budget as prepared by the advisory board is based on the town's valuation increasing drastically from $99 to $225 million. The revaluation is underway and will be finished in July.

The school department is assuming 55 percent of the cut in tax levy. School committee worked independently to develop their budget.

The advisory committee handled other departments. No across the board cuts were ordered. In fact the police budget wasn't cut.

"Some departments are too small to absorb a personnel cut," the advisory board says collectively in the warrant.

"Other departments have expanded beyond what seemed necessary at this time. There are also contractual obligations that have to be included and they vary from department to department.

"As far as the money available allows, we feel it prudent to continue any necessary maintenance and capital expenditures which, if omitted, would affect us adversely in the future.

"It is unrealistic for us to assume that our figures will be exact in relation to the total tax levy that will be allowed by the state."

In making its recommendations the advisory board kept the bottom line figure in mind.

Indeed that's the way town meeting will have to operate this year — deficit budgets being illegal at the local level.

Crime Watch comes to Cohasset

A Crime Watch program is beginning in town with zero budget but strong police support.

Police Chief John DeBassio said this week he hopes local businesses will pay the expenses involved in purchasing the etching machines needed for the identification program, as well as paying for Crime Watch signs and printing.

The program began with Patrolman Gerald Doyle who just finished a course giving him the background to run Crime Watch surveying the local banks.

"We're pointing out the deficiencies they might have in the structures," Chief DeBassio explained.

Doyle is also putting together a resource card with background information for the police on local banks.

The same type of survey will be done for local businesses and private homes, on the basis of requested appointments.

Neighborhood Watch is one facet of the Crime Watch program. So far neighborhood groups haven't been organized.

The first meeting of the project was scheduled for Wednesday at the Jack Conway office on Route 3A where Chief DeBassio and Patrolman Doyle were to talk with local business people.

The same program was run in Sharon recently without funding from local government. Businesses there came up with the money.

"It's not a large amount of money," the chief explained.

The Crime Watch program is based on making it more difficult for burglars. There are some simple ways of tightening security sometimes with better locks, sometimes by placing a safe in a location visible from the street. Sometimes the method is simple identification of valuables, making it more difficult to sell off stolen merchandise.

Chief DeBassio pointed out that many business people have a vested interest in this sort of program.

For insurance agents, the success of Crime Watch means fewer claims. For real estate people, it offers one more advantage of the community.

The League of Women Voters polled the candidates for local office. Their survey begins on Page 16. The advisory committee recommendations to town meeting are on Page 20.

School Board o.k.'s $3.6 million

By Karin Bartow

On a vote of 4-2, the school committee accepted School Supt. Eugene Crowell's $3,614,475 budget for 1981-1982 at a short meeting Friday night.

In accepting the "bottom line" figure the committee also approved the adjustment within the budget for the reinstatement of a high school reading teacher and half-time instrumental music teacher and an instructional aide for the fourth grades at the Deer Hill School.

Committee member Irene Brown said that although she approved of the budget, she nonetheless "wouldn't vote for it because I don't agree with giving the town $20,000." Crowell reduced the school budget by that amount in order to help the town fund special warrant articles and the reserve account. Brown feels there is maintenance work in the schools that should be addressed with that money.

Pat Walsh also voted against the budget, but without comment at the meeting. She said in a telephone interview over the weekend that there were some areas that she would like to have seen changed in the budget, but when the motion to accept the budget came early and was quickly seconded, she decided to vote against it. "Some accounts could have more accurately reflected what we spend," she explained, citing those for roof repairs and glass replacement for example.

Walsh also objected to the dismissal of three aides who, in her opinion, were not the least productive people. She feels that non-tenured personnel should be evaluated. The school committee would then have

Four honored at state drama festival

Four members of the Cohasset High School Drama Workshop cast of Hold Me! received recognition at the state finals of the Massachusetts High School Drama Festival held this weekend. Jerry White, Pat Duffy, Kathy Collins and Tim Libby were named to the finals all-star cast.

Cohasset placed fourth overall out of 14 finalists in the competition which took place on Friday and Saturday at the John Hancock Hall, Boston.

St. John's Preparatory School and Wayland High School were the winners and Cambridge Rindge and Latin School won the alternate spot.

The other members of Cohasset's cast were Caroline Wampole, Caroline Bonnar, Missy Barcomb and Lindsay Gilmore. Leslie Collins was stage manager, Koren Lipsett, assistant stage manager and members of the crew were Ed Booth, Matt Packard, Ken Ralff, Keith Ross and Barbara Wilson.

The Drama Workshop won the regional and

Murray wins praise

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray won the praise of the Massachusetts Municipal Association, the statewide organization of cities and towns, for voting in favor of increased state aid to municipalities next year.

The effort to bring to the House floor a resolution to up state aid by a minimum of $300 million in fiscal year 1982 was defeated by a vote of 44 in favor and 108 opposed.

"People must realize that it is now up to the legislature to make Proposition 2½ work, and this will require at least $300 million in new state aid to offset some of the local service cutbacks," explained Municipal Association Executive Director James Segel. He added, "It's going to be an uphill fight. Representative Murray's vote showed real political courage and a genuine commitment to implementing Proposition 2½ in a responsible manner."

Ground Round closed

The Ground Round on Route 3A is closed.

The sign went down from the street side and the logo was pulled off the retaurant building last week.

It is known that the restaurant had been doing less business in recent months than it had in the past.

Exec. Secretary meeting

Selectmen will meet with the committee to study the structure of town government at their meeting on Thursday, April 2, at 8 p.m. to discuss the job description for the town's first Executive Secretary.

They expressed surprise they have not received any communication from the committee about the job description. They said all they had heard about the committees proposed description came through the press.

New bids opened

Selectmen opened bids last week for town hall renovations, involving a new heating system, ventilating system, and sprinkler system.

The Town Offices Space Study Committee will present the figures at town meeting.

There were eleven bids for the proposed new town hall heating system. The low bid was $38,600 by Scott Bailey and Co. of Cohasset. The high bid was $85,132, from AJS Piping Co., Inc. of Braintree.

Of the six bids for a town hall ventilating system, Leonard Engineering Corp. of Boston had the low bid at $8,381. The high bid was $13,500, from the Apex Corp. of Braintree.

There were four bids for the sprinkling system. The low bid was $28,598 from Automatic Sprinkling Co. of Newton. The high bid was $47,900 from Gaffney Plumbing & Heating of Middleton.

Bryant resigns

John K. Bryant of 251 Forest Ave., notified selectmen last week he is resigning from the conservation commission. The board voted unanimously to send Bryant a letter of thanks for his work on the commission. Bryant cited "pressure of business" as his reason for stepping down.

Trees in the Village

Selectman Arthur Clark said last week that the Cohasset Village Merchants Association wants to put three trees up in the Village. The trees would go in front of South Shore Bank, the News Store, and the Hardware store. The Association would pay for the trees and for the cost of placement.

Selectmen expressed no objection to the proposal, but were concerned that if the trees were put up in the sidewalk, they would be in danger of being hit by cars.

Building repairs

Selectman Arthur Clark said last week that $2,652.05 was left in account to do outside work at the Fire and Police Stations this year, and that those buildings needed more work done. The problem is soft bricks were put in where hard bricks should have, and that those bricks needed to be replaced.

Dog officer resigns

John H. Barrett told the selectmen last Wednesday he is resigning as dog officer April 1, or when a successor is appointed. Selectmen voted to send him a letter of thanks for his five years of service to the town as dog officer.

Selectmen will accept applications for dog officer until April 8. The job pays $2,000, with $1,075 for expenses, if the advisory committee recommendations are accepted.

Susan Young places

Susan Young, a junior in the Alternative School at Cohasset High School, placed second runner-up in her age group at the Carole McCole's Model of the Year Pageant held last Sunday.

Her sponsors were: Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy, Erwin W. Cone, Red Lion Inn of Cohasset, James L. Gallagher of Cohasset Wallpaper and Painting and the American Legion Auxiliary, George H. Mealy Post 118 of Cohasset.

Crafters show

Country Crafters has gathered together another interesting group of crafters for a show and sale on April 4 and 5 at the Norwell Town Hall (Rt. 123).

The hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and 12 to 4 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is always free so you can feel free to browse if you would like.

Barbara Rohrdanz is one example of the unique talents within the organization. She has been creating Ukranian "Pysanky" egg decorating for many years. "Pysanky" is a miniature story in symbols applied on the universal 'Symbol of Life,' the egg. It is kept in the home and regarded as a talisman.

Other crafters from Cohasset are: Marsha Silvia with hand embroidered bibs, quilts and pillows and Bob and Betty Ripley with children's clothes posts and toys.

Appeals Board hearings

The Cohasset Board of Appeals will hear two cases at 8 p.m. Tuesday at town hall.

One involves the application of Barbara Anderson of 35 Stockbridge St. for a special permit to remodel an existing building on an undersized lot.

The other involves the appeal of Chester Magee of 508 Beechwood St. from the permitted uses section of the bylaw.

School budget approved

"a better handle on whether they should be arbitrarily dismissed or not."

Funds for a reading teacher of $13,775 will be taken from "supplies and equipment scattered throughout the budget," Crowell said. He does not yet know exactly where it will come from but said, "I know I can do it." Some of the money may come from pre-buy.

The half-time instrumental music teacher, at a cost of $7,000 will be funded from art and music supplies accounts and savings from pre-buy. The Deer Hill instructional aide will be funded by the elimination of a half-time clerical and cafeteria aide and from money from the library fund.

The budget, which is 4.7 percent lower than last year's, will eliminate 31½ positions, including 11 classroom teachers. Superintendent Crowell said at the open budget hearing held last Tuesday, that he feels the necessary adjustments made to meet the mandate of Proposition 2½ "have been accomplished without damaging the academic quality of the Cohasset school system." He attributed some of the cuts to declining enrollment which has brought the schools to a "break point" in enrollment this year, although it is leveling off at the Osgood School.

"All we lose academically is ninth grade typing and a reduction in seventh grade art offerings in photo classes," Crowell said. Beefing up of the junior high sports program beyond its proposed reorganization into a sub-varsity category, will depend on the efforts of the boosters clubs and townspeople to subsidize it.

Twenty people came to the budget hearing and some voiced their concerns about transportation which will operate on a budget of $80,000 next year versus $111,485 this year. Crowell said there wouldn't be transportation plans for parents to look at until late spring.

The schools are considering either contract, leasing or possibly maintaining their own fleet of buses next year. Fewer youngsters in grades 4-12 will ride the bus and more will walk to school or a depot stop. Crowell said, "If this budget passes, there will be a transitionary period for the people of Cohasset. We will provide as safe and complete a bus service, but I'm not trying to kid you that it's going to be as good."

Objections were raised by some parents at the budget hearing over the superintendent's decision to further reduce the school budget by $20,000. Crowell defended his decision to help the town out this year when they need to add to reserves (for unforeseen emergencies in the year ahead) and for special warrant articles proposed for consideration at the annual town meeting.

Crowell said the town pays for the school's insurance costs which amount to approximately $112,000 a year. Next year, the increase alone will amount to $27,000. He said he was also grateful for not having to cut $80,000 from the school budget to meet the excise tax shortfall in January.

The cafeteria is already on its way to becoming self-sufficient with the increase in school lunches to 65 cents effective April 1. Business manager John Raftery warned however, that President Reagan's proposed budget would cut aid to school lunch programs and if passed, could mean an additional 40 to 45 cents added to the price of Cohasset's lunches.

semi-finals competition with their version of Hold Me!, a dramatization of Jules Feiffer's cartoons. Director Ron Emmons said that the cast worked for three months on the play which is a "cutting" from a longer version.

Emmons explained that one of the reasons he picked the play was because it would give the kids good training. "I'm very proud of these kids," he said after the finals. "They deserve so much praise." Many of the cast members were totally new to the Workshop. Jerry White and Kathy Collins were also named to the all-star cast at the state finals two years ago when Cohasset won with Story Theatre.

Firefighters oppose chief articles

By The Cohasset Permanent Firefighers

Commentary

The Cohasset Permanent Firefighters would like to take this opportunity to express our views in regard to Annual Town Meeting Warrant Articles 29 and 30.

Article 29, inserted by the Board of Selectmen, proposes to limit the Fire Chief's authority and give the Board of Selectmen more control over the operation of the fire department.

Article 30, also sponsored by the Selectmen, proposes to remove the position of Fire Chief from its present Civil Service status.

You Cohasset Firefighters believe these articles are not in the best interests of your fire department and the Town of Cohasset for many reasons. Most importantly, the Board of Selectmen have not considered or consulted with the Firefighters regarding the articles and present no viable alternative to Civil Service status for the Chief of the Fire Department. Although they do not affect the present Fire Chief, the articles will have an effect on the careers of all present and future fire officers and firefighters in the Cohasset Fire Department.

If the two articles are passed, the operation of the fire department would be controlled by persons not knowledgeable or experienced in the field of fire protection and emergency medical services, namely the Board of Selectmen. The efficiency of your fire department would certainly suffer as the result of management by non-professionals in fire protection.

The reasons given by members of the Board of Selectmen for wanting the Fire Chief's status changed are debatable. The Board's reasoning in regard to the 'every department head being required to be under someone and that no department head should have absolute authority' is inaccurate. Under the present system the Fire Chief is appointed by the Selectmen after passing a competitive examination in the field of fire protection. The Selectmen have the opportunity to appoint a Fire chief from several candidates. To change the present system would mean asking the taxpayers to spend money for a selection process which is already a function of the Board of Selectmen.

The Selectmen feel that because the fire department budget is the second largest in the town

Fire protection for Beechwood

Letters

To the Editor:

As residents of the Beechwood part of Cohasset we are very concerned that there has been a reduction in fire protection in our area, while other parts of town continue to maintain high levels of coverage.

It is our understanding that most of Cohasset is covered under a "four minute umbrella." However, based on two calls from homes on Aaron River Road, response time is about double that.

It seems to us that it would be wiser to have a few trained people to cover an emergency or fire quickly and then have them backed up by additional equipment from the Central Station.

The current policy of having all of the fire department equipment arriving all at once, but perhaps too late, makes little sense.

We understand that there are people in this area who are alive today because of the timely actions taken by firefighters covering the Beechwood Station.

We are not talking about expansion as some believe. We wouldn't be asking for a new fire station if the old Beechwood Station had been kept in repair and if the new fire truck had been purchased to fit inside of it!

This part of Cohasset is one of the few areas where there is available land for development. On our street alone, there will be 13 more families. This is in addition to the soon to be developed Riverview Drive which is off Beechwood Street.

These sections are accessible only by Beechwood Street and are miles away from any other town able to respond to an emergency in a timely manner.

These new areas are and will be contributing to an expanded tax base. Why should we settle for less protection than other areas of Cohasset? We are certainly entitled to fair and equal service and the construction of the new fire station which we are requesting will give us that!

Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. McAllister

Explaining the Pro-Family Forum

To the Editor:

In response to the coverage of arguments presented by members of Pro-Family Forum of the South Shore against further funding of the Hull Teen Clinic which appeared in many newspapers, I felt there was a need to clear the air as to what our organization was since the question was raised by the press so often.

We are a national organization with headquarters based in Ft. Worth, Texas. There are Pro-Family Forum chapters in just about every state in the nation. Our national president Lottie Beth Hobbs was recently named to President Reagan's advisory Comm. on the Family.

Some of the basic premises of Pro-Family Forum is recognizing the family as the basic unit of society. The proven successful arrangement of the family unit as shown historically is the recognition of the male as the provider and the female as the rearer of the children. Together there is a bond of love and legal commitment. When this order is lost or redefined in some way the society ceases to be successful. Nothing can substitute for this societal unit, particularly government. All laws to be considered should be looked at and examined in terms of how it affects the family. If it discourages family life and growth, then it should be discarded. Children need a full time mother in the home but with the rate of inflation and high taxes many mothers have been forced to enter the job market. Local state and federal governments must do everything in their power which includes severely cutting taxes and reducing spending to help American mothers to stay at home. Increased teen suicide, drug abuse, juvenile crime and sexual activity are all symptoms of the fallout of mothers having to leave the home to go to work.

The family is under a lot of pressure today. So many outside forces want to assume the role of mother and father, this has made things very difficult for parents; hence, Pro-Family Forum evolved. We address all issues concerning the family and society.

You can better inform youself as a parent or concerned citizen and find out where your role is in helping to preserve the family unit by attending our upcoming Learning Luncheon, April 23. The subject to be addressed is "Humanism." This is another force that is attempting to undermine the family unit. Please come and bring a friend. For further information regarding our luncheon or Pro-Family Forum of South Shore please contact us at P.O. Box 243, Cohasset, Mass. 02025.

Zoning questions

To the Editor:

In evaluating Articles 36 and 37, many questions arise in my mind.

Could the elimination and the rewording of certain sentences of the zoning bylaws have much effect on the future development in this town?

Many facts indicate that a vast majority of the undeveloped land in this town is subject to surface water flooding due to low elevations and not coastal or wave damage as indicated by these changes. In general a piece of property which has a history of flooding, regardless of whether it is coastal, wave damage or surface flooding should be left unde-

Fire chief authority

Town meeting opens Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. at Cohasset High School.

One of the 44 articles in the warrant would give selectmen authority over the fire department. Right now Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink has absolute authority.

We agree with the advisory committee and with the selectmen, who drafted the article, that the fire chief should answer to someone.

The people who voted for Proposition 2½ clearly wanted more say over the spending of town government. And as Arthur Clark is wont to point out, the fire department is the second biggest expense in the list of town departments.

Obviously the school department is the biggest spender and even then the school budget is approved by an elected school committee.

Chief Piepenbrink has done well in running his department. And we're sure he needs 28 men not 24 to operate it. The money for the cuts dictated by Proposition 2½ could come from some other town department. From some project less vital to life than the fire department.

That's not the question here. The question is whether one man, no matter how professional or qualified, should run any town department.

This is a democracy. And the way it works on a town level seems indeed wise. Professionals are hired to run the day to day operations of government while citizens, elected by the community, decide the larger policy issues.

The politicians are subject to political pressures from time to time. If 100 residents of Beechwood were to show up at the selectmen's meeting and demand better fire coverage for their section of town, the selectmen would certainly pay serious attention.

That's what our government is about. Politics and political pressure are not dirty all by themselves. And as far as we know they aren't dirty in Cohasset town hall.

So the charge that if the selectmen are involved, politics will come to play makes about as much sense as charging that the moon comes out at night.

The answer to the charge is: so what's wrong with that? Anyone making that charge must have another system of government in mind.

Best wishes

To the Editor:

Best wishes in your new location, continued success and may you soon need even larger quarters.

Many thanks from the 60 Plus Club for all the publicity you give us.

veloped or developed under very strict regulations.

In reference to Article 37, the question which enters my mind is if state and federal flood maps are based upon 100 year storm, how would we benefit by changing our laws based on the 25 year storm?

With major changes such as these, my question now is why were they put in the warrant by a citizen petition instead of by the board which is appointed to set up and change these laws? Could it be that these changes were initiated with one particular project in mind and not the future development of the town?

I guess the only way to get any answers is to attend the Town Meeting on Saturday. Sure hope someone will shed a little light on the above subjects.

Respectfully,
Susan Kecskemety

60 Plus trip

Cohasset 60 Plus Club members are invited to a free, all-day bus mystery trip, sponsored by Channel 5, Thursday, April 23.

The first 40 members to call 383-1130 or 383-6769 will be the lucky winners.

Quincy Market will be the lunch stop, not included in the trip.

Questions road alteration article

To the Editor:

At several town meetings, Cohasset voters agreeably voted a total of $109,186 for site preparation for Carzis' motel. We did this in amounts under $35,000 at a time, to "reconstruct" Elm St., our widest avenue. It had a park on either side, one with huge 100 year old elms and the other with great maples, etc. A week before the '72 town meeting all the elms were cut to the ground. Despite a state law requiring the posting on a large public tree and at a central place, of such intention, there was none then, nor has there been since, for our more normally dying giants.

The reconstruction resulted in the sharpening of a curve at Margin Street where the road suddenly narrowed, and a similar hazard to people at the town end of our new, one block highway, now denuded of its long parks. To give the motel space, our public road was moved north and lowered, cutting short and steepening the entrance to Margin Court.

That dangerous cut off entrance was addressed at town meeting in '74 and correction voted for in '75; to fill in the removed land and ease the hill up from Elm St. crest, as you can verify by reading Cohasset's '76 town report.

In the years since, 6-8 inches deep of highway tar were laid down the length of Atlantic Avenue and on Border Street and the entrance to our fire department was raised, though not voted for, or a problem to compare with that of Margin Court.

In short, there have been plenty of tar and manpower, to enact the repair we voted for in '75.

Apparently, plans are afoot for another site subsidy. Rather than elevate a lowered section of road, we're being asked to spend $10,000 to cut off a granite ledge, which will decrease the visibility of cars at the Margin Court, Elm Street intersection. Article 39 has no specifications, just as did the articles we agreeably supported, to "improve" Elm Street.

One wonders how costly it would have been for the motel to provide for its own drainage, rather than continue to turn the north (hill) side of Elm Street into a water catch.

Safe to predict it would be less than the $119,186 taxpayers will total, if this latest grab is allowed. If our paid town employees can ignore our '75 vote for the conservative repair, why do we believe anything else we labor to support at town meeting cannot be equally ignored?!

Weekly papers

Back in the 1880's the Cohasset Cottager, a weekly newspaper, was in most of the homes in town.

Today the Cohasset Mariner claims the same distinction. The old Cottager was published out of Rockland by Stillman B. Pratt, who had established a chain of South Shore weeklies.

The way to buy the Cottager was to walk or buggy ride over to Newcomb Bates' periodical store in the Village.

Town water

The town water system was established in 1886 by a group of residents who formed a private company.

The initial capital was $100,000. Wells were driven in the swampy lowlands of the Tower pasture near Ripley Road.

Daniel Tower was the first superintendent.

around town

☐Annie and Jim deCastro's son Matthew arrived on February 4, 1981, not 1980 as reported last week!

☐"DRAMA JOCKS" are an idea whose time has come for recognition! High schoolers from all over the state were wearing the "Drama Jock" buttons at the 50th Annual Massachusetts High School Drama Festival held in Boston this weekend. Actors work just as hard as athletes; they try out, practice, spend long hours refining their skills and "entertain" equal numbers of their peers and townspeople. They even compete! Cohasset High School's Drama Workshop, under the direction of Ron Emmons, has made it to the state finals in two out of the last four years. That's a record worth supporting, both in spectator terms and in dollar terms also.

☐Welcome to Michael Wing Baird, third son of Pat and Bill Baird of Redgate Lane. Michael was born at 2:10 a.m. on March 20 at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston and weighed 7 lbs. 4 ozs. He joins brothers Billy, 8, and Danny, 5.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. G. Sherman Wing of Falmouth and Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Baird of Norristown, Pennsylvania. Mrs. G. Sherman Wing of Falmouth is great grandmother.

☐Jolie Kowal has joined the staff of Garden Craft of Assinippi, a year round garden center.

☐Members of Explorers Post 28 deserve our thanks for canvassing the town for "Project Identification." Explorers have been recording homes with youngsters or elderly members who could need assistance during a fire. Fireman decals are supplied for windows where those members of the family sleep and a listing is made for the fire department.

☐Neal O'Brien is participating in the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps program at Villanova University, Pennsylvania.

☐Jimmy Bruno celebrated "a" birthday last weekend with the "Old Coach Crowd." It was not a milestone birthday, but those who were there said you would have thought so. Jimmy was paid a visit from a belly dancer and the "Pigateers," four entertaining piglets (otherwise known as Ellie Waal, Jeannine Broadhurst, Gail Convery and Barbara Potolocihio.)

☐Herb and Karen Crehan got a sunburn in Scottsdale, Arizona last week and also got a good look at Colorado's Grand Canyon...simply breathtaking, they say. And no crowds in March.

☐JoAnn L. Fichtner of Cohasset will be busy over the next week with last minute production details for "Fiddler on the Roof."

JoAnn is the choreographer for the show to be presented from April 9 to 12 by the Boston College Dramatic Society.

She has been associated with the school's drama department for the past three years. Ticket information is available by calling 969-0100, ext. 4291.

☐Welcome to the world of Cohasset Patrick Alden O'Reilly! Born March 4 at Beth Israel Hospital, Boston, to Jim and Sally O'Reilly of North Main Street. Patrick weighed 6 lbs. and 5½ ozs. when he arrived at 6:30 a.m.

Mary and Alden Swain of San Mateo, California and Sarah O'Reilly of Dorchester are grandparents.

☐Cohasset resident Anne MacDonald has been named a staff manager in the business marketing department of New England Telephone. She began her telephone career in 1973 as a communications assistant in the sales department. Since then she has held various positions in that department and was an account executive prior to assuming her current assignment.

She is a native of Bennington, Vt., and a graduate of Bennington Catholic High School and Trinity College in Burlington, Vt., with a bachelor's degree in sociology.

Anne and her husband, Daniel, live on Lantern Lane.

☐Youth Art Month is being celebrated at the Cohasset Library with a Children's Art Display of Cohasset school children's work. Arranged by Carolyn Horn, Children's Art Exhibition Chairman of the Friends of the Library, with cooperation from Jane O'Malley of the Deer Hill School and Elizabeth Wyman of the Osgood School, the exhibition will continue through April 17.

Chalk impressions of the wind by Kindergarteners, sixth graders perspective drawings of buildings and fourth grader's works using the combination of cut paper, perspective and watercolors, are represented in the show.

☐Art work from elementary students and high school students also, will be shown at the South Shore Art Center April 5 through April 17 in celebration of Youth Art Month.

Works of three senior artists, including Mercie Nichols of Ripley Road and one of the founders of the Art Center, will be on display in the invitational gallery at the same time.

☐It's difficult to part with books today...they're expensive to replace, but if you've got a duplicate copy of a hardcover or paperback, please bring it down to the Cohasset Library this week for their annual book sale.

☐Seth Low's third grade friends received postcards from him during the February vacation when he and his family traveled to Africa and Egypt. His sister Lisa, a sixth grader, will be giving a slide show on the trip at the Deer Hill School.

☐Beth Hitchcock of Jerusalem Road is a Peace Corps recruiter who as a veteran Peace Corps volunteer, knows first-hand how rewarding service abroad can be. Beth served in Afganistan from 1967 to 1969 and in Libya from 1971 to 1973.

The fact that at age 77 she works hard at her job three days a week wouldn't come as a surprise to us if we lived by her philosophy of enthusiastic living, no matter the age. She was a school teacher for 39 years and helped raise eight foster children.

And, she has written an amusing and inspiring book stressing the positives (and there are many) of growing older and living life to the fullest. "Off Your Rocker" offers cheerful and downright good advice to everyone who inevitably faces retirement and old age.

There's a lot to be learned from other cultures, Beth says both in her book and in a recent telephone interview, where "Seniors are respected and revered for the very fact that they have lived a long time. Their advice and counsel is sought by the younger members of their society."

Although she feels her book has helped many people, she laments the fact that it did little more than amuse her brother and sister to whom it was addressed. "They've given up and stay in bed all day," she said. That's not likely to happen to her — ever!

She's been busy lately collecting artifacts from other former Peace Corps volunteers in the area for a display at a 20th anniversay Peace Corps program to be held at the John F. Kennedy Library on Saturday, April 11 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. The public is invited and Senator Paul Tsongas will be the main speaker.

"Off Your Rocker" shouldn't be missed. Look for it in local Cohasset shops.

Firefighters oppose...

the Fire Chief should not have absolute authority. It certainly is true the fire department budget is the second largest, but the present Fire Chief has always spent money wisely and in the best interests of the Town of Cohasset. The Fire Chief is also accountable to the people at town meeting in regard to what the fire department purchases. The fire department budget also receives careful consideration by the Advisory Committee.

In regard to the members of the fire department affected by the change of status, articles 29 and 30 would have demoralizing consequences. Through a change in the selection process, members who have made the Cohasset Fire Department their career and have spent time and effort tofurther their education in the fire service would suddenly become ineligible for the position of Fire Chief. A new selection process may bring candidates with more scholastic credentials from outside the town, but they would lack the knowledge and familiarity with the Town of Cohasset which is so important to the work of a firefighter.

Under the present system vacancies in the fire department roster have been filled in the past with qualified and dedicated people. The present system of Civil Service status for the Fire Chief was instituted in 1947 because a better system, without political intervention, was needed.

Now the Citizens of Cohasset are being asked to change a system which has worked well for almost 35 years. Changing from a proven system to one of uncertainty is not in the best interests of the Town of Cohasset. The Cohasset Permanent Firefighters respectfully request the defeat of articles 29 and 30 at the Annual Town Meeting on April 4.

College degree not required for Exec. Sec.

Donna McGee of the Town Government Study Committee said this week her proposal for the job of selectmen's executive secretary does not require a college degree.

Donna said her proposal, like that of Selectman Henry Ainslee, requires a degree or experience.

She said she is concerned that the process be open and hopes the committee's recommendation of a search committee is accepted by the selectmen.

This week the committee worked on the language of the proposal to combine wording from the original statement with wording from Ainslee's plan.

Young beauties in fashion at the Community Center show

By Patricia Desmond

Priscilla Goff, a beauty queen of perhaps four years, chose a brief nightshirt for one of her scenes in the spring parade of children's fashions.

Priscilla, barefoot and looking self assured, strutted through the tables with their pink linen cloths and heaps of family and friends at town hall.

In her arms was an Easter bunny.

She paused just a moment to speak to someone halfway down the aisle. Probably her Mommy. Amidst the flash of camera lights, she continued.

The Cohasset Community Center and the Nursery School Parents had a true success on their hands. Too bad the performance can't be repeated next week for any of you who missed watching those small and poised models.

In the background, the piano player kept the mood thinking of spring with tunes like "Here Comes Peter Cottontail."

Outside the sunny, warmth had a group busy playing football on the Common.

Balloons brightened up the room and Kathy Stevens, as program chairman and master of ceremonies, was superb.

Of course the little frothy outfits, provided by Wrye's Country Store, were lovely. A nightgown with spaghetti straps, a bathing suit in white with a big pink Easter egg and coverup, white was very popular.

The list of credits for the Nursery School Fashion Show includes many little future stars.

The models were: Jessica Aronson, Kate Brown, Priscilla Goff, Julie Good, Jessica Jenkins, Matthew Larson, Michael Lennon, Andrea Mercurio, Courtney Schultz and Emily Spencer.

Performers were: Kate Carroll, Mindy Cheel, Amanda Douglas, Jarred Graves, Matthew Graves, Kathy Hanlon, Tobey Horn, Samuel Lane, Katie Norris, Seamus Reedy, Gregory Schultz, Amy Silvia, Danny Silvia and Megan Staunton.

Junior Hostesses were:

Jennifer Egan, Kara MacDonald, Debbie Maley, Lisa Mercurio, Dina Potolicchio, Ginger Putnam and Arlene Walsh.

Committees were: Organization, Jane Goff and Lee Jenkins; Tickets, Joanne Lennon, Mary Larson and Paula Almeida; Refreshments, Ann O'Connor, Paula Almeida, Eileen Norris, Betsy Good, Karen Spencer and Rosemarie Mercurio; Decorations and Set-Up, Karen Spencer, Mimi Aronson, Mary Larson, Janis Brown, Rosemarie Mercurio, Lee Jenkins and Ann O'Connor; Entertainment, Regina Schultz and Marcia Silvia; Backstage, Sandy Putnam, Marianne Smith and Kathy Carroll; Hostesses, Eileen Norris and Marion Lane; Ribbon Corsages, Betsy Good and Joanne Lennon.

Gloria Wrye gave commentary on the fashions.

Caitlin Staunton and Mrs. John Hunt played piano.

Folk singer was Sally Avery.

Cub winners listed at Pinewood Derby

The Cub Scout Pinewood Derby (wooden car models raced on downhill track) March 25 at Town Hall was as much fun for parents as the boys.

Ribbons were presented by Denmaster Jeff Forsdick and committee chairman Merle Brown for winners by age. They are as follows:

Eight year olds: First, John MacDonald, Second, Richard McLaughlin and Third, Gregory Lennon; Nine year olds: First, Troy Haase, Second, Brian Schultz and Third, Terrence O'Leary; Ten year olds: First, Michael Lelecas, Second, Nicholas Lelecas and Third, Arthur Meachum. John MacDonald won against all entries and was presented the "over-all" trophy. All will compete against twelve area towns in Hull next week.

The next Round Table for leaders at the South Junior High School, Route 228, Hingham, will be held April 1 at 7:45. The next Committee meeting is set for the Unitarian Parish Hall, April 26 at 7:30.

The final Pack Meeting at Town Hall will be held at 7 p.m. April 29 at Town Hall.

South Shore Vo-Tech a well-kept secret

By John McNabb, Jr.

Why is the South Shore Vo-Tech school "one of the best kept secrets in Cohasset?" as Richard Silvia, unopposed candidate to the regional school committee, describes it.

Why has Cohasset, in the almost twenty years that it has been a member of the regional school district, never sent its full quota of students to the school?

Why have only two Cohasset students applied to Vo-Tech so far this year, when there are 12 spots reserved for Cohasset students? There are now only nine Cohasset students there, far less than the 40 total spots reserved for Cohasset.

For some reason, Cohasset students have been reluctant to take advantage of the Vo-Tech School and the opportunities there. Part of the reason may be that students must decide whether they go to the Vo-Tech when they are in the 8th and 9th grade.

"Many of the parents I talk to think the 8th grade is too soon for the student to make such a decision," Cohasset High School Guidance Director John Leary told the Mariner. He estimated that perhaps 30 students in grades 8 and 9 would find the Vo-Tech school "appropriate."

Leonard Cody, Director of Guidance for the Vo-Tech school, thinks the problem is that "parents don't know what the vocational school is all about, they probably think of it as the old trade school, which was a dumping ground."

Cody pointed out that South Shore Vo-Tech has sent many students over the years to engineering, technology, and business schools of higher education. He estimated that 10 to 15 percent of Vo-Tech graduates go on to higher education.

The academic program is not one dimensional. While students are required to spend 50 percent of their time learning the trade they're interested in, they also spend 25 percent of their time on related academic subjects such as drafting, math, and science. The other 25 percent of their time is spent on traditional academic subjects such as English, social studies, and phys ed.

Vo-Tech offers training in electronics, electrical engineering, carpentry, combination welding, machine drafting, machine shop, auto repair, auto body repair, auto mechanics, and sheet metal work. Cody said that Cohasset "could become more familiar with what is at the Vo-Tech."

"The Vo-Tech school is needed for Cohasset," said Siliva, "because Cohasset High School does not provide the vocational and technical programs that many students need." His impression was that if a student was not going to go to college, the Cohasset High School didn't have a place for him.

His analysis is supported by the 1972 Evaluation of Cohasset High School, which was commissioned by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. In their final report, the evaluation committee recommended that "Further consideration be given to the increasing problem of providing career training for all students, including those who do not plan on higher education."

The evaluation report recommended Cohasset High School should enlarge and improve its industrial arts program to give students the opportunity to acquire a saleable skill and that "Intensified efforts be made to encourage students to explore the opportunities at the South Shore Vocational School."

Cohasset High School traditionally sends about 80 percent of its graduates to college; the other 20 percent go to work or into the service.

Leary said parents think 8th or 9th grade is too early a time for the student to exclude college as an option. But, as Silvia and Cody said, going to Vo-Tech does not keep a student from going to college.

Since Vo-Tech does not offer foreign language, its graduates cannot get into a liberal arts college. Cody said some Vo-Tech graduates who went to a community college were able to get into liberal arts programs. Leary said he would not try to discourage the college bound from going there, because "even a college-bound student can go onto higher education from the Vo-Tech."

College is not right for every student, Silvia said. Cody suggested that the problem in Cohasset would be that "parents pressure kids to go to college," when the kids really would be better off at the Vo-Tech. He said that Cohasset was unique, among the six towns in the regional school district, in its low participation at the Vo-Tech.

Two methods have been suggested for dealing with this problem: 1) start a public relations program to educate students and parents in Cohasset concerning the Vo-Tech school, and 2) institute a career education program to run from grades 5 to 8, which would expose students to the world of work and would familiarize them with the decisions they will have to make later in life about their careers.

Silvia said he, as the Cohasset member on the South Shore Regional School Committee, will work to publicize the opportunities at the Vo-Tech school. However, he said, Cohasset High School should pick up the ball and work harder at selling the Vo-Tech option to parents and students.

Used book sale coming at Library

The Paul Pratt Memorial Library will hold its annual used book sale Friday and Saturday, April 10 and 11 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Hardcover and paperback donations, as well as records, magazines and children's books have been made to the library over the past month and are priced at only 25 cents for paperback and 50 cents for hardcover. Library discards and duplicates — current biographies, best sellers and obsolete reference materials — have also been added to stock for the sale.

Don't miss this opportunity to add to your own library while helping Cohasset's with some of the best book bargains you'll find anywhere this spring.

Redken gives your hair more of what it needs.

Your hair may need protein for one of these reasons:

- ☐ To increase body and stylability
- ☐ To solve dryness
- ☐ To help correct frizzy damage
- ☐ To close split ends
- ☐ To help correct sun damage
- ☐ To maintain a healthy look

Protein is a primary hair conditioning agent. We have a six-year scientific study that confirms it. And only Redken products use CPP Catipeptide™ protein, an exclusive protein that gives your hair more of what it needs. CPP Catipeptide is absorbed up to three times better than proteins previously used by Redken. So its benefits last longer. Only Redken products have CPP Catipeptide, because Redken has a patent on its use. (U.S. Pat. No. 4,188,186).

Try Redken's superior hair protein. No matter what others may claim, protein has been scientifically proven effective in improving hair condition.

The soccer boom takes hold in Cohasset

By Rob Tis

It has been said that soccer is the up and coming sport in America. This certainly holds true in Cohasset.

Two years ago Erin O'Brien and Lorraine Carrol practically forced the school committee to put girls soccer on a varsity level. Now James Leonard has done his part to get the youth of Cohasset off the street and onto the soccer field by organizing a viable spring soccer organization.

There is both a girls and a boys team that will play in the B.A.Y.S. (Boston Area Youth Soccer Association). The competition is expected to be even tougher than in the fall high school league.

The girls team goes by the name, The Cohasset Waves and are under the direct tutelage of Coach Duncomb. The Waves practice every Saturday from 10 to 12. They will start pre-season play in two weeks and then jump into their 10 game season, which will include such power houses as Medfield, Walpole and Dover.

The team they will field will be as skilled, if not more so, than the high school varsity team. Twenty-two players will be participating on this team, many of whom have already made a name for themselves in the world of high school soccer.

The team includes Michelle Shea, Barbara Gurnis, Mary O'Brien, Joanie Chisolm, Tara Pompeo, Kristen Wilken, Sue Dalyrimple, Holly Grant, Nora Leary, Maureen Buckley, Kristen O'Brien, Chrissy Ralph, Katie Clinton, Ann O'Connel, Amy Duncomb, Ginger Ralph, Tina Birman, Christine Barret, Maureen Kelly, Caroline Lord and Jill Nedrow.

This very enthusiastic squad had a non-league scrimmage against Scituate last week. They played to a deadlock at 2 with Holly Grant and Mary O'Brien scoring the goals for Cohasset but the real credit goes to Goalie Carla Lucas who had a sterling performance.

BOYS LEAGUE

The boys have basically the same setup in the Boys League. The Skippers lineup will be very similar to the varsity team with Greg Raffa in goal; Ed Booth, Matt Packard, Steve Donofrio and Pat (The Cat) Duffy at fullbacks; Todd Langford, Mike Nedrow and Dean Brown at midfield.

The strikers consist of Gordon Ricketts, Jim Leonard, Bill Duncomb and Andy Pottenger.

The boys are coached by Martin Asevedo of Scituate. They lost their first two scrimmages to Hanover and Madison Park but these have been chalked up to experience and they are all looking ahead with high hopes.

Since neither of these teams are affiliated with the school the buses cannot be used for away games. They will drive themselves. They are also both buying their own uniforms as well as suffering other inconveniences.

It is obvious that these kids really want to play. Come on up to the high school and give them your support.

McCarthy excells at Babson basketball

Ellen McCarthy, of 63 Old Pasture Road recently completed her first year on the Babson College Women's Basketball Team in Wellesley.

McCarthy, a freshman, started at forward and averaged eight points per game while leading the squad in shooting percentage from the floor.

"Ellen's scoring ability and rebounding was one of the best on the team," said head coach Nancy Dizio. "She has a lot of potential for the coming years and is very dedicated."

The Babson team finished the season at 7-10 with wins over Brandeis, Suffolk, Regis, Wellesley, Pine Manor and Nichols.

McCarthy is a 1980 graduate of Cohasset High School where she captained the basketball team as a junior and senior. She also starred as a field hockey player for four years.

She is majoring in Marketing at Babson.

Rec. basketball was popular

Recreation department basketball for boys and girls in Grades 4-7 ended last weekend with the final consolation and championship games.

Approximately 150 kids participated in the three leagues: fourth and fifth grade boys, sixth and seventh grade boys and fourth through sixth grade girls. Twelve adults volunteered as coaches and high school basketball team members acted as referees for the twelve teams throughout the four month season.

Larry Shultz, sixth grade teacher at the Deer Hill School and coordinator for the program, said this year's set-up with a separate league for the girls was the "absolute way to go." Every player was given equal participation and Shultz noted that there were no forfeits all through the season. The referees covered all games and coaching was "outstanding," said Shultz.

Results of the consolation and final championship games this past weekend are:

Fourth and 5th grade boys, consolation game: Spartans 37 (high scorer Jason Marsac, 16), Crimson 35 (high scorers Ron Massa, 12 and David Shumaker 10); championship game: Irish 40 (high scorer David Shultz 18), Eagles 32 (Todd Fitzpatrick, 21).

Sixth and 7th grade boys, consolation game: Lakers 65 (John Rotchford, 22, Tom O'Brien, 19, Jeff Aaron, 16), Suns 60 (Kevin Dunn, 21, Karry Songer, 17 and Bill McKenna, 15); championship game: Celtics 47 (Bobby Shultz, 26, Mark Crough, 12); 76'ers 42 (Floyd Hardwick, 25, Todd Trautwein, 10).

Fourth, 5th and 6th grade girls, consolation game: Skippers 16 (high scorer Maria Cahill, 8), Bullets 6 (Margie Murphy, 4); championship game: Celtics 19 (Betsy Wilson, 8), Hurricanes 18 (Maureen O'Leary, 18).

Shultz said that the recreation department hopes to have a 7th and 8th grade league next year, in addition to the 4th through 6th grades.

Congratualtions to everyone who participated in the games.

The Rec report

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept registrations, via phone, for a girls' gymnastics program to be taught by Ruth Ann Sargent. Programs are open for girls in Grades 4-12.

The fee for the six-weeks program is $6 per person. Classes are limited to eight participants each. Classes will be held for advanced gymnastics Tuesday evenings from 7:30-8:30, beginning Tuesday, April 7.

Classes for beginners will be held Friday evenings, from 7 to 8, and Intermediates from 8 to 9 p.m., beginning Friday, April 10.

For further information and registrations, call the Recreation Office at 383-6791.

On Wednesday, March 25th, Mr. Graebener's Psychology II classes were visited by E. Roche, a practicing psychologist associated with South Shore Counselling.

He discussed his formal training at Notre Dame, his area of special interest, the kinds of services psychologists render, and then spent about 40 minutes answering student questions.

As a whole, the sudents found the visit informative, enjoyable, and have a better understanding of, and appreciation for, the work of the mental health provider.

League questionnaire

The following questionnaire was prepared by the Cohasset League of Women Voters.

All candidates running for office were requested to answer the following two questions. Their answers appear under their names.

1. What experience do you have that would help you to perform the duties of the office you seek?

2. What problems and opportunities do you see for this position during the next term of office?

SELECTMAN (One opening, Three-year term)
Doris C. Golden, Bound Brook Lane

1. I am the only candidate for Selectman in the April 11 Town Elections who has formerly served the townspeople in an elected Town position.

During my two terms as a School Committeewoman, and as chairman of the School Committee for five of the six years I served, I dealt with all the variables which the Selectmen of the Town deal with.

I've a sound knowledge of how Town government operates. In my attempt to control expenditures within a school system which is the largest employer in the Town — its fiscal budget being in excess of 50 per cent of the Town's total budget, I instituted the position of business manager. That position has proven invaluable in controlling costs within established guidelines. It was the first of its kind in the Cohasset School System.

Annual Town Meeting 1981 will be asked to vote to fund another unique position in the Town — the position of Executive Secretary to the Board of Selectmen. As the present Board of Selectmen have not yet developed a job description for this position, I am unsure at this time whether I would support the article on Town Meeting floor.

2. The major problems of the 80's will continue to be in waste by-product areas: sewerage, sanitary landfill, drainage. The opportunity has always existed for us to approach the solutions to these problems on a regional basis. But now we must act upon it.

Just as Prop. 2½ is directing our teachers to the private sector for jobs, Town Government will also be forced (through limited funds) to deal more and more with the private sector.

Certainly, Prop. 2½ will for an uncertain period of time put us into conflict with its strong mandates. But there is a lot to build upon. We have many successful sectors in the community and in the economy on which we can draw for support.

Selectmen of the 80's must become mini-legislators, and be politically astute at local, state and federal levels. As the Reagan Administration plans to transfer billions of dollars from domestic services to military hardware, we must deal with the high stakes at risk for our citizens, both economically and socially.

Mary Jane E. McArthur, 37 Elm Street

1. During the last 20 years I have been involved in our town government by serving on the School Facilities Committee, the Conservation Commission, the Government Island Study Committee, the 1970 Bicentennial Committee, the Historical Commission, and the Capital Budget Committee as the Advisory Committee's representative. Currently I am serving my second 3 year term on the Advisory Committee and my second year as Vice-Chairman. I have also served as Chairman of the Community Center Nursery School Committee. This committee was responsible for the budget, the hiring of personnel, and the purchase of equipment. I am currently an officer of the Cohasset Historic Trust, Inc. My service on the Advisory Committee has given me an unique opportunity to participate first-hand in the review of each town department in terms of its function, performance, use of manpower and equipment, current and future needs, and cost.

2. During the next 3 years I see the opportunity to help provide the leadership necessary for the promotion of good government by establishing objectives and priorities for the future and instituting sound managerial procedures. I see the opportunity to address some problems and concerns such as:

1. The need for an adequate and reasonable level of services while responding to the escalating cost of town government.

2. The adverse effect that the proposed casino gambling would have on our community.

3. The solution to our wastewater problem.

4. The need to find a long-term solution for solid waste disposal including regionalization.

5. The promotion of orderly growth in the town with an eye to a sound tax base and the preservation of open space.

6. The need for an education program on fire prevention and safety.

7. The need for an improved recycling program at the sanitary landfill.

8. The need for central purchasing for town departments.

9. The need for additional elderly housing.

10. The need for adequate town office space.

Patrick O. Morrissey, 137 Beach St.

1. Having administered my own business for a period of twenty-four years, I believe that I have the necessary skills to make the personnel and accounting judgments which are essential to this office. I have had extensive experience working in political campaigns, have studied American government at the college level and appreciate the interplay of ideas and personalities which must be coped with in administering the executive branch of a government.

2. The problems which present themselves during the next term of office will be the same as those that exist now. Proposition 2½ is not going to disappear. Amendments to Proposition 2½ may have to be formulated and passed by the State legislature. There is one major weakness in the proposition that prevents a town from increasing its tax base despite new commercial and residential building. It will be the duty of the select persons to speak out on this and other issues when the occasion makes it necessary.

The open town meeting, while it is the most democratic form of the legislative branch of government, can be most disappointing unless people can be encouraged to attend. The turnout at town meetings in recent years has been very discouraging. I believe it is the function of the executive branch to motivate the people. This educating function may be the single most important role of the Board of Selectmen.

MODERATOR (One opening, Three-year term)
David E. Place, 53 Summer Street

1. I have been privileged to serve for twelve years (four terms) as Moderator, which is to be the head of the legislative body of our Town. The preparation for and presiding at the Town Meetings, at which every adult citizen is a voter and has an equal voice, is half the job; the other half is the responsibility for appointment of the membership (with, usually, the like joint participation of Chairmen of the Selectmen and the Advisory Committee) of the various Committees which are creatures of and advise the citizens of the Town Meetings.

2. These Committees, arms of the Town Meeting, are legislative; not executive, not under the Selectmen. Only the Meeting authorizes expenditures and sets policy, adopts bylaws. Outstanding, fair-minded citizens serve and represent our diverse constituencies. Issues ahead: sewerage, protection services, school quality, citizen participation and spirit, i.e. concern for others, redirection of anger, racial practices, respect for public service, etc.

ASSESSOR (One opening, Three-year term)
Warren S. Pratt, 56 Red Gate Lane

1. Through many years on the Board of Assessors (12 years, 9 as Chairman), I have developed an understanding of the complexities in the process of property assessment in general and Cohasset's property in particular.

I have attended many courses offered by the Association of Massachusetts Assessors at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

2. The State Department of Revenue has mandated that each city and town revalue all of its Real Estate, Land, and Personal Property at full and fair market value. Our program is well underway; it is being done by Mr. Tom Mahony, formerly of Cohasset and now has his office in Wellesley. The Board of Assessors also assist in this program. The Revaluation will be completed in time to send out the Tax Bills by October 1, 1981.

ASSESSOR (To fill unexpired term, 2 years)
Brian R. Wilkin, 8 Pratt Court

1. The experience I will bring to the Board of Assessors includes 17 years in the fire insurance business and 6 years on the Advisory Committee.

During my insurance career, I have inspected and appraised all types of buildings including dwellings, commercial, industrial and institutional properties. As head of the Claims Department, I must maintain a current knowledge of building costs and types of construction.

Other areas of responsibility include data processing and systems and procedures. My term on the Advisory Board consisted of 1 year as Chairman, 3 years as Vice Chairman. During this time, I was able to get considerable insight into the budgetary process and the working of various Town Departments.

2. I do not foresee too many problems ahead. I'm sure the Assessors will continue to fairly assess the property in Cohasset. It is my understanding the majority of the 100 percent revaluation is completed.

The opportunity will be to get the tax bills out at the earliest possible date. The earlier the bills go out, the less the Town loses on the money it has invested and possibly the less it will have to borrow. In light of the "belt tightening" that must be done by Town Government because of Proposition 2½, the Board of Assessors must achieve a more timely performance.

TREASURER-COLLECTOR
(One opening, Three-year term)
Gordon E. Flint, 21 Clay Spring Rd.

1. Thirty years of service in the field of Municipal Finance.

Thirty-five years as a practicing accountant and tax consultant.

2. Because of proposition 2½ long-term financing of city and town bond issues is going to be more of a hardship on Municipal Treasurers. Banks are becoming more and more reluctant to finance these issues because of the questionable ability of cities and town to repay.

Municipalities are going through many changes in accounting and municipal finance due to the advancements in modern technology and computerization. These are the challenges and opportunities of the future.

HIGHWAY SURVEYOR
(One opening, Three-year term)
Harold W. Litchfield, 171 Beechwood St.

1. I am in my 21st year of service on the Highway Department, the last three years as Highway Surveyor. During these three years, I feel I have fulfilled all the requirements of this position; at least I've not received any major complaints as to my performance on the job. Of course, as with any public official, I realize that I cannot please all of the people all of the time. Nonetheless, I will continue to do my job to the very best of my ability.

2. I have been involved with the problems facing us at the Disposal Area from the very beginning. As most citizens are aware, we are considered as being in violation of the state laws pertaining to landfill operations. As of July 1, 1980, the operation of the Disposal Area has been under my full jurisdiction. Therefore, one of the major problems facing me will be finding solutions to the many difficulties at our present site.

On recommendation of the Advisory Board upon passage of Prop. 2½, I have cut a full 15 percent from the Highway Department budget and 15 percent from the Disposal Area budget. Few other town departments can boast of a better co-operation in implementing Prop. 2½. These cuts had to be made in manpower, equipment purchases, materials, etc., which necessarily will result in a slow-down in services.

More than ever, because of 2½, I will continue to actively pursue any and all opportunities for any State aid which may be available.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE (One opening, Three-year term)
Frank W. England, 48 Old Coach Road (Incumbent)

1. My experience as a school committee member for the past six years — and chairman for the past year — has given me firsthand knowledge of the Cohasset School System and the educational concerns of students and their parents. As a member of both the Game Official Committee of the MIAA and the subcommittees negotiating the officials' fee for soccer, football, lacrosse, and gymnastics, I also am especially aware of the importance of interscholastic sports in our overall educational program.

In addition, to these school-related experiences, I bring to the school committee more than 30 years of general business experience. This includes personnel supervision, experience on executive-level staffs, line business experience in "Management by Objectives," and involvement in short- and long-range fiscal planning and budgeting. My service as Commandant of the fifth largest U.S. Army Reserve School has given me valuable experience in managing, motivating, and directing an academic staff of over 40 instructors, 40 per cent of whom have held a Doctor of Education Degree.

[turn to page 17]

League questionnaire

As the father of three Cohasset High School graduates — including one just last June — I am keenly aware of what services students need and expect from their school system so that they may go on to higher education or enter the job market.

2. The most important problem we face immediately is to ensure the continuation of quality education in the Cohasset School system while meeting the fiscal requirements of Proposition 2½. The proposed budget for 1981-82 does ensure Cohasset students the same high-quality education their predecessors enjoyed.

Cohasset has always been proud of the education of its young people. Many opportunities exist for the School Committee to assist in carrying on this proud tradition. Working with our fine staff of administrators and our many excellent teachers, we must find innovative ways to maintain our high standards of quality education as well as the comprehensiveness of our overall education program. Some policies I have already proposed, and that have been implemented by the school committee include:

1. Listening to our students' concerns and thoughts about their education, as expressed through their own representatives who will be elected to nonvoting positions on the School Committee this April. As the major proponent of including nonvoting students on the School Committee, I feel it is necessary to hear what our ultimate consumers — our students — have to say about their education.

2. Providing the Cohasset community with as much detailed information as possible concerning the Committee's decisions. To increase the public's understanding and acceptance of our decisions, I have insisted on the early publishing of the proposed 1981-82 budget, complete with back-up sheets.

3. Continuing the use of citizens' committees to aid our school system. Cohasset has many talented people who are very willing to help on a limited basis. Over the past two years we have had four citizens' committees, each of which has done outstanding work for our schools: (1) a committee to develop a new teacher evaluation system, (2) a health education committee, (3) a screening committee to help in the search for a new superintendent, and (4) a basic skills improvement committee. No town could afford to hire consultants with the same talents these committees have brought to their assigned tasks. I am pleased to have been instrumental in urging the use of local talent and expertise to help achieve our goals as a school committee.

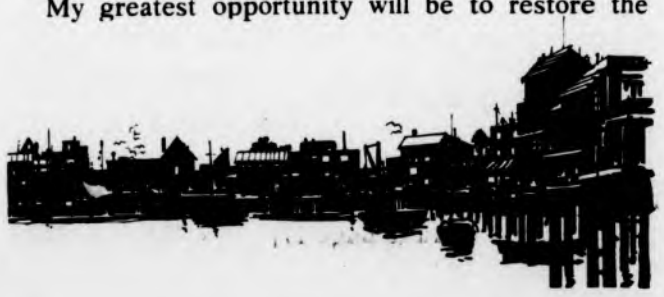
Richard M. Conley, 10 Holly Lane

1. With five school age children, I am vitally interested in the well-being of this community. For the past 20 years, I have been a volunteer for various organizations serving children and adults. Some of them include the Cohasset Chapter of the American Red Cross, the C.Y.A.A. — Coach in their Minor, Little and Pony Leagues, member of the Community Health Needs Assessments Committee, High School Communications Council, Search Committee for a Health Coordinator, Ambulance Study Committee, Coordinator of Ambulance Services, Health Curriculum Advisory Committee and Trustee for the Drug Education Committee responsible for bringing "Toma" to our town.

During my tenure as Chairman of the Red Cross, I had extensive experience working with budgets, supervision of personnel, inventories, purchasing and other fiscal matters which are directly related to the business operation of the school department. Serving as an elected member of the School Committee, rather than one of their appointed volunteers, will enable me to continue to work diligently and harmoniously in the best interests of our children and our town.

2. The single biggest problem confronting the School Committee will be its ability to maintain academic excellence despite the passage of Proposition 2½. The mandated reduction in funds and the expected continued decline in enrollment will require that we have the best possible means of evaluating programs and staff.

My greatest opportunity will be to restore the confidence of the Cohasset residents in their School Committee. Secondly, I look forward to working with the soon to be elected student representatives and help instill in them and all the Cohasset students a deep sense of pride in their buildings and in their educational programs. Throughout my many years of public service, I have learned how to disagree without being disagreeable. I pledge to you a spirit of cooperation working together to resolve issues.



TRUSTEES PAUL PRATT MEMORIAL LIBRARY
(Three openings, Three-year terms)

Sheila S. Evans, 72 North Main St.

1. Nine years of paid work in the management consulting field and 20 years' experience on a number of boards and in administrative capacities in volunteer work have I think helped me to focus on central issues. Several terms as a library trustee have also given me specific knowledge and experience about public libraries and Cohasset's library in particular.

2. Cohasset's use of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library has been increasing steadily over the last several years. It will be a challenge to continue to meet this demand if budgets remain as unresponsive to needs as recommended for next year. Promising opportunities for economy are in a conceptual stage — utilizing computers and extensive regional cooperation. Cautious, but vigorous, exploration of such possibilities will be on the agenda in the next few years.

Cordelia T. Foell, 43 Black Horse Lane

1. Nine years' active participation as library trustee.

2. The tougher the times, the more people seek out libraries. People look for consumer information, job-search help, self-education and inexpensive entertainment.

Library trustees must help the library 1) adjust to increasing demand for services; 2) adapt to new information techniques; and 3) provide cost-effective programs.

With commitment and careful management the trustees can preserve the library's valuable role in society.

Doris R. McNulty, 80 Nichols Road

1. Three years as a Trustee of the Cohasset Library plus fifteen years' experience in a variety of library and information handling situations.

2. The problem is to try to maintain the same level and kind of service at the Library that Cohasset has had, when budget cuts and inflationary pressures combine. Not just fewer hours, but fewer books and smaller staff will make the task of maintaining our reputation for excellent service at the community a challenge to the Trustees and staff.

BOARD OF HEALTH
(One opening, Two years to fill unexpired term)

Dr. John M. Burns, 718 Jerusalem Road

1. I believe the following experiences ably equip me to perform my duties as a member of the Board of Health: A lifelong resident of the local area; a resident of Cohasset for four years; received a Bachelor of Science degree and a Doctor of Dental Surgery degree with clinical honors; a member of many health oriented associations; a member of the Board of Directors of the Cohasset Rotary; gave a dental hygiene talk to my son's nursery school class at the Cohasset Community Center; provided dental supplies to residents during the Blizzard of '78; attended numerous Board of Health meetings for the past 18 months; and have the administrative experience of running a highly successful dental practice.

2. I anticipate no personal problems for the Board of Health position during the next term of office. However, three important problems of the Town of Cohasset are landfill, recycling and Strait's Pond. The opportunities for a Board of Health position are numerous. There is a great opportunity to survey present land usage in regard to the future health of the citizens of Cohasset. There is the opportunity to establish communication between the Board of Health and the school system's new health co-ordinator. There is the opportunity to develop mutual environmental rules between the Board of Health and the various town boards in the area of future land development.

Barbara A. Kern, 111 Atlantic Avenue

1. As a resident of Cohasset for 24 years I have followed the growth of the town and the town government with interest. During this time I have attended Board of Health meetings as an observer, and as an interested citizen. I have been active in the campaign for a Bottle Bill in the state, and I am a member of the recycling program in the town. I served as Chairman of a League of Women Voters study on the landfill area, and am on the present study committee. I was awarded a Fellowship at Tufts University where I studied Environmental Law, and land use and planning. I feel that my knowledge of town boards and how they function, especially the Board of Health, makes me qualified to be an active participant on the Board.

2. One problem the Board of Health faces is our town landfill area. It is the Board's responsibility to ensure that the town has a safe and sanitary landfill area. If this is not possible at the present site, then another solution must be found. There are many possibilities, and I see the opportunity of exploring these alternatives and making recommendations to the town as an opportunity for the Board of Health. Other problems are the continuing ones of the best use of our land for septic systems, living amicably with pets and livestock, the public health of the town, etc. I see the opportunity for me to bring a balance to the Board, and since I have some free time, to act as liaison between the Board of Health and other Boards if needed.

Paula A. M. Knowles, 15 Border Street

1. A ten-year resident of Cohasset, I have had experience with Board of Health and State regulations for livestock in both New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and attended many of the Board of Health hearings on the revision of livestock regulations in Cohasset.

I feel that my Brandeis University training in working from blueprints and plot plans, my continued interest in and study of waste disposal and septic systems, and my familiarity with the plumbing and testing procedures used in such systems would be invaluable aids in the enforcement of Title V regulations. I would also bring with me to the Board of Health a well-rounded knowledge of the health code as a whole, a working familiarity with many of the testing and enforcement procedures performed for the board by the Health Agent, and a desire to see that the duties of the Board of Health are carried out with unbiased professionalism.

2. I see two main issues facing the Board of Health in the near future. With public interest in multi-unit housing increasing, the full and consistent application of Title V septic regulations is essential. Having a Board of Health educated in these regulations and committed to their enforcement is a must if we are to insure that future land development in Cohasset is neither potentially hazardous to the public health, nor inconsistent with the needs of the Town itself.

It is also time to call a moratorium on the "livestock issue." Public hearings have been held and the regulations revised. It is now time to allow the Board to review each case individually, and concern itself primarily with the applicant and his abutters. Only through case by case experience can we determine which rules are necessary, just, and reasonable; and weed out any that prove unworkable, unenforceable, or superfluous.

BOARD OF HEALTH
(One opening, Three-year term)

Charles M. Bliss, M.D., 76 Summer Street

1. In March 1980, I was appointed to the Cohasset Board of Health to complete an unexpired term. A graduate of Amherst College and Boston University School of Medicine, I am a physician on the faculty of Boston University School of Medicine and Chief of Gastroenterology at Boston City Hospital.

During the past year, as a member of the Board of Health I have participated in revising the Board of Health rules and regulations for on-sight septic systems and permits for stables, horses and other animals. I have also participated in the selection of an engineering firm, which will perform geohydrological studies at the dump as required by the state.

I not only understand the functions and duties of the Board of Health after this one year's experience, but I have become aware of the concerns of citizens regarding Board of Health matters. I look forward to serving on the Board for the next three years.

2. Over the next three years, the Board of Health and the Town of Cohasset will be asked to address a number of difficult problems. The pressures of growth will be felt by each Town Board and member of the community as the availability of suitable land diminishes for single family houses and their attendant on-sight septic systems. How the Board of Health meets this challenge will be a key issue in the future development of the town.

The hopeful conversion of our present dump to a

Decorating Easter eggs at C.C.C.

Easter is just around the corner and the Cohasset Community Center is offering an opportunity for those interested in learning how to decorate the traditional egg using either decoupage or cutouts Thursday, April 9, from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m. at the center.

Registrations are now being accepted for the workshop which will cost $7 including materials.

A pillow that combines patchwork, quilting and applique will be made in a two session workshop. The workshop will be held on Fridays, April 3 and 10, from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m. and will cost $12.

The center will also reoffer several courses which have been especially popular for its spring term. The Exercise for Fitness and Fun with Joanne Sheppard now includes an optional aerobic walk after each exercise session. Two separate eight week programs are available from 9 until 10 a.m. either on Tuesdays and Thursdays or Monday, Wednesday and Fridays at $36 or $49.50.

Needlepoint and Pulled Thread will be taught by Judy Volungis on Thursdays from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m. Course cost for the eight week program is $15.

Obituary

William O'Connell

William Joseph O'Connell, 50, a Paradyne Company, Boston, employee, died at home March 23 after a long illness.

He was born in Boston and had lived in Cohasset for eight years.

He attended Cathedral High School, Boston, and was a 1957 Boston College graduate.

He worked in computer sales at Paradyne.

He was a Korean Conflict Army veteran.

He leaves his wife, Dorothy Anne (Campbell) O'Connell; three sons, William J. O'Connel Jr., John C. O'Connell and Robert M. O'Connell, and two daughters, Annemarie O'Connell and Susan C. O'Connell, all of Cohasset; three brothers, Cornelius F. O'Connell of Lynn, John T. O'Connell of Milton and Kevin G. O'Connell of Carver and two sisters, Maureen E. O'Connell and Eileen T. Duffy, both of Melrose.

A funeral Mass was celebrated March 26 in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Donations in his memory may be made to Glastonbury Abbey, 16 Hull St., Hingham, 02043.

Selectmen mull DeBassio request for licensing agent

Selectmen are thinking over a request by Police Chief DeBassio that one of his officers be appointed a town licensing agent.

DeBassio said the request was part of a move to encourage more specialization within the police department. He mentioned a lab specialist and photographer as two other specialties.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle said perhaps Cohasset is too small to really need a licensing agent. Selectman Henry Ainslie said he is concerned about delegating the powers of the selectmen to an officer.

sanitary landfill will allow the Town only a few years in which to plan for the long-range solution to solid waste mangement. Intensive recycling and its support by all the townspeople, evaluation of resource recovery programs, and the development of a regional approach to these problems are but a few of the issues that the Board of Health will face.

SEWER COMMISSIONER
(One opening, Three-year term)
Janet M. Daggett, 80 Summer Street

1. For the past 10 months I have been Chairman of the Board of Sewer Commissioners. Prior to my serving on this Board I was a member of the Citizens' Advisory Committee for the site selection for the proposed sewer plant.

2. Several major problems will be faced by an individual serving as Sewer Commissioner during the next term of office. One is maintaining the present twelve-year-old plant so that it can continue to function as best as possible for the next three to four years while, at the same time, being economically prudent. Another problem is to find a dumping site for the sludge generated by the sewer plant.

Since the wastewater issue is impacted by others, such as the problem at the sanitary landfill and the disposal of septage pumped from buildings not connected to municipal sewer lines, the opportunity exists for the various concerned boards to enter into serious long-range planning while addressing these problems.

As a voter service project, the Cohasset League of Women Voters sought additional background material for citizens in their consideration of ballot question No. 1, and Warrant Article #26 [Cluster Development Zoning]

Ballot Question No. 1

If the voters of Cohasset, at annual town meeting, accept Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 258, S13, the Town would be required to indemnify municipal officers, elected or appointed, when sued in an official capacity. This reimbursement of elected or appointed officials could be in an amount up to One Million Dollars for any losses and expenses, including reasonable legal fees which would result from "any claim, demand, suit or judgment by reason of any act or omission, except as intentional violation of civil rights of any person, if the official, at the time of such act or omission, was acting within the scope of his official duties or employment."

At present, the controlling statute, Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 258, S9, allows, but does not require, the Town to reimburse one of its public employees (including full or part-time elected and appointed individuals) for any amount up to One Million Dollars for any claim, action or award resulting from an act, omission or violation of an individual's civil rights, unless such violation was grossly negligent, willful or malicious. Thus, although this state statute authorizes the reimbursement of personal losses and payment of expenses, it does not stipulate that a town or other public employer must indemnify its employees for these expenses or provide the legal representation which would incur these legal fees.

Currently, the Town does have insurance coverage which provides for the indemnification of individual members of the school committee for expenses and losses which result when those members are sued in their official capacity. However, that policy does not appear to provide for indemnification for expenses and losses which result from civil rights actions. The current 3-year policy for school committee members and six top administrators costs $2357, payable in three annual installments of $943, $707 and $707, due to expire in March 1982.

Warrant Article #26

The Residential Cluster Development by-law offers an option for the sub-division of land for single-family and a limited number of multi-family dwellings. The purpose of the cluster is to encourage a more creative use of the land; to encourage a less sprawling form of development, while providing some diversity in housing; and to preserve as much open space as possible.

The cluster development would be permitted in Residence B (20,000 sq. ft.) and Residence C (30,000 sq. ft.) districts and would be by special permit of the Planning Board. The cluster would require a minimum of ten acres of land*; multi-family dwellings could not exceed thirty per cent of the units in a residential cluster; thirty-five per cent of the land must be common open land, and no more than forty per cent of the open land or open space could be marginal or unbuildable land. The number of building lots and/or buildings could not exceed the number allowed in a conventional development plan.

Unlike a conventional development plan, there are design standards for the dwellings, landscape design standards, and parking design standards. Common land which would be used principally by the residents of the cluster would be conveyed to a Homeowners Association and would be maintained by the Association.

*For example: ten acres in Residence B (20,000 sq. ft.) = maximum of fourteen single family units and six multi-family units (with one dwelling per unit) = 20 dwelling units.

PLANNING BOARD (One opening, Five-year term)
Daniel C. Cotton, 27 King Street

1. A resident of Cohasset since 1946, my business is industrial real estate in Southeastern Mass. I am involved on a daily basis with land use, zoning and conservation compliance and the concerns of the community as well as with those of owners and developers of property.

I organized a group to present a Zoning By-Law for Cohasset in the early 1950's and served on the Zoning By-Law Subcommittee in 1955 when our first Zoning By-law was adopted. I was a member of the Advisory Committee from 1962-68, Chairman for the last two years, a member of the School Committee from 1970-73 and of the Town Hall Space Needs Committee since 1976.

2. Towns are subject to a variety of pressures urging change. The Planning Board is concerned with the nature and rate of some of these changes. My interest is in helping guide those changes which will affect our town's future.

Ernest M. Stevens, 1 Cushing Road

1. Former Land surveyor.

Formerly a planner for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

I am currently the Senior Realty Specialist on the Operational Planning Staff of the U.S. General Services Administration's New England Headquarters in Boston. My job is to evaluate proposals for new federal office buildings. My evaluations analyze both the economic and the environmental impacts of construction.

My educational experience is also relevant to a planning position.

1. AB Business Economics at Case Western Reserve University.

2. Master of Public Administration at Cornell University's Graduate School of Business.

3. Juris Doctor Suffolk University School of Law.

2. Cohasset is a prime target for development because of its coastal village atmosphere, its quality school system, its relatively low tax rate, and its accessibility to Boston. Development must be controlled. We have difficulties with our sewer plant and our landfill. A great deal of our town is Wetland. It will take skill and courage to plan within these limits. Quality must not be sacrificed. As a concerned resident and a professional planner I would like to help meet the challenge.

WATER COMMISSIONER
(One opening, Three-year term)
William J. Montuori, 47 Brewster Road

1. Active in various committees for past 20 years.
2. Financial.

RECREATION COMMISSIONER
(One opening, Five-year term)

1. As a police officer, I recognize the value of recreation programs as they relate to youths. Police work on a municipal level deals with youths on a day-to-day basis. My experience working with youths may have a viable input in performing the duties as a member of the Recreation Commission.

2. With the advent of Proposition 2½, I feel the major problem as a member of the Recreation Commission would be to secure proper funding for existing programs and to stimulate the growth of any new programs. I see an opportunity to serve the Town of Cohasset in the coming months.

SOUTH SHORE REGIONAL SCHOOL COMMITTEE (One opening, Three-year term)
Richard J. Silvia, 445 Beechwood Street

1. Cohasset School Committee — Vice Chairman

Certified vocational education teacher with experience in automotive, computer science, electronics, engineering drawing, etc.

Certified political science and social studies teacher.

Police Chief Selection Committee.

Owner/Manager of Silvia's Garage which employs students and graduates of S. Shore Vocational Technical High School.

Former Administrative Assistant to a Massachusetts State Senator and Congressional candidate.

Former Administrative Assistant to a Massachusetts State Senator and Congressional candidate.

Former Customer Engineer, I.B.M. Corporation, Boston.

Graduated Bridgewater State College, B.S. Education concentrated in Government and Social Science.

President of College Veteran's Association.

Bridgewater State College Graduate School: Administration and Supervision.

Graduated I.B.M. Corporation Field Training Center, San Jose, California. Course in management, programming, engineering, and customer relations.

Attended General Motors Training Center, Ford Motor Company Service Training Program, Northeastern University, and Cleveland Institute of Electronics.

Graduated Cohasset High School — Class President; Captain South Shore All Scholastic Football Team.

Coached football: Cohasset High School and C.Y.A.A.

Co-founder of the South Shore Automotive Service Council.

2. The public has become intolerant of rising costs, inefficiency and poor communication. Many programs and employees are facing cutbacks. With funding becoming increasingly more difficult, there is an urgent need to take an intelligent and comprehensive look at the educational needs of our children and our community.

Sound management dictates that we survey our educational needs and assets, better enabling us to maximize the use of those assets we have in meeting the real needs of our children and community. A student's needs improperly addressed and even ignored are as much an intolerable waste as an asset not being used to its optimum potential.

As an asset, South Shore Vocational Technical High School is one of the best kept secrets in town. Its modern facilities, top-notch staff, caring administrators, and advanced technical and career oriented programs offer students the options, upon graduation, of employment in highly-skilled career fields or of continuing on directly to many of the finest colleges and universities in the country. Programs from electronics technology to engineering drawing all offer career placement and guidance.

South Shore Vo-Tech is one of our finest and most underutilized assets. Of the 619 public high school students in Cohasset, only 9 are taking advantage of this fine opportunity. This year, there are no applicants to date from Cohasset. With all of the difficult challenges facing young people growing up today, is it really prudent to restrict their options and limit their horizons by ignoring such a positive asset? I don't believe it is!

I hope to improve communication in this area by bringing you together with your vocational school administrators, staff, and guidance counsellors at community meetings, in newspaper articles, etc. I strongly urge anyone who would like more information to contact me, Richard J. Silvia, at 383-9395 or Mr. Cody, Guidance Director at 878-8822.

School briefs

Advisory board chairman Jean Cotton said at the joint meeting with the school committee two weeks ago the estimated increase in insurance costs that relate to the school department is $27,000. The town spends a total of around $112,000 for group and fire insurance and workmen's compensation that are school related.

It was incorrectly reported last week that the total amount of school related costs carried by the town is $27,000.

RATIFICATION

The school committee ratified contracts with the school secretaries (7 percent salary increases over a three year period); the business manager (two year contract showing a 7 percent increase each year to $31,152); and approved the non-union salary increases of Agnes Brighton, secretary to the superintendent (7 percent to $14,200) and to Marylou McCarthy, secretary to the school committee.

Advisors' recommendations on T.M. articles

The Warrant for the 1981 Town Meeting, mailed to each household, outlines the procedure followed by the Advisory Committee in its approach to departmental budgets in this year of Proposition 2½, and reports our recommendations on these budgets as listed under Article 4 to a total of $6,931,894. We believe that, without exception, the department heads and committees have accepted these recommendations, perhaps not enthusiastically, but in a true spirit of cooperation.

Because of the uncertainties about the total effect of Proposition 2½ and the expected level of state funding, it was not possible to make recommendations on the other special articles before the printing deadline. Following are the Advisory Committee's recommendations on the remaining articles, as completed by Saturday, March 28:

Article 5 — 7½ percent increase to non-union town employees and certain changes in classification ...$50,072.

RECOMMENDED, in the interest of fairness.

Article 6 — Increases to certain elected officials: Highway Surveyor, Treasurer-Collector...$3,784.

RECOMMENDED in the interest of fairness.

Article 7 — Reserve Fund...$100,000.

RECOMMENDED increase from $75,000 to $100,000 in the light of uncertainties of already tight budgets and energy cost increases.

Article 8 — Town liability for damages that may be incurred by work of Mass DPU.

RECOMMENDED. This is standard formality.

Article 9 — So. Shore Regional Vocational School assessment...$18,121.

RECOMMENDED. This continues as an extremely valuable educational opportunity for our young people, and the assessment represents a decrease from $23,936 this year.

Article 10 — Authorization for Treasurer to borrow in anticipation of revenues.

RECOMMENDED. This is standard procedure.

Article 11 — Mosquito control certified by State... $2,739.

RECOMMENDED. This is a mandated assessment.

Article 12 — Mosquito control under regional program.

NOT RECOMMENDED. Program has been suspended.

Article 13 — Straits Pond insect control...$1,230.

RECOMMENDED. Continuation of worthwhile cooperative program.

Article 14 — Salary increase of $1,600 for Town Clerk, to bring salary to $6,199.

RECOMMENDED. Town Clerk will assume some duties previously held by temporary employees, and spend more time in office. Funds to be supplied by transfer within budget.

Article 15 — Unpaid bills of Hingham Water Company for 1975, 1977, 1978...$2,701.55.

RECOMMENDED. These bills are for replacement of hydrants damaged by automobiles and are considered an obligation of town.

Article 16 — Painting of steel of Cunningham's Bridge...$18,000.

RECOMMENDED. This has not been painted for 10 years, is badly rusted and should be sand-blasted and painted.

Article 17 — Authorize contracts with state and county for road work.

RECOMMENDED. Routine authorization.

Article 18 — Road re-surfacing...$35,000.

RECOMMENDED. Continues annual program of road resurfacing. To be used for Sohier Street from Ripley Road to North Main.

Article 19 — Correction of drainage problem on Forest Notch...$2,800.

RECOMMENDED, providing easements can be obtained. Serious flooding problem.

Article 20 — Capping of dump.

Article to be withdrawn.

Article 21 — Engineering fees to continue use of dump...$15,000.

RECOMMENDED. Recent report indicates dump can be used for several years, but engineering plans are essential to gain permit.

Article 22 — Ventilating system for Town Hall (Request for $12,000).

NOT RECOMMENDED. Some question as to effectiveness, and results might be achieved with less expense.

Article 23 — Conversion of Town Hall heating system to hot water, with areas zoned...$34,300.

RECOMMENDED. The present system is at least 50 years old and the conversion would bring energy savings and personnel comfort.

Article 24 — Sprinkler system for Town Hall ($38,180 requested).

NOT RECOMMENDED. Expense not justified at this time.

Article 25 — 25 percent increase in water rates.

RECOMMENDED. Water Department faces operating deficit, needs to repay debt to town and build surplus. Anticipated annual revenue increase of $112,000.

Baseball films at the Pratt

Baseball is in the air, and Paul Pratt Memorial Library is getting into the swing with a pair of baseball movies to be shown Tuesday, April 7 at 3:15 p.m. in the children's room.

The first film, "World Series, 1975," features highlights of the series between the Boston Red Sox and the Cincinnati Reds. The second movie, "Rookie of the Year," stars Jodie Foster as a talented eleven-year-old girl who is invited to join a Little League baseball team.

Baseball lovers of all ages are invited to attend this program which will end at about 4:30 p.m.

Advisors' recommendations

Article 26 — Cluster zoning.

RECOMMENDED. Provides option for more desirable use of land.

Article 27 — Contribution to Special Retirement Fund...$50,000.

RECOMMENDED. Continues program of retirement funding.

Article 28 — Replace heating boilers .t Government Island House...$2,800.

RECOMMENDED. Boilers old and inefficient.

Article 29 — To place Fire Chief under Selectmen.

RECOMMENDED. Comparable to Police Chief relationship, removing absolute authority.

Article 30 — To remove future Fire Chief from Civil Service.

RECOMMENDED. Comparable to Police Chief, permitting employment contract for specified period. Does not affect present Fire Chief and does not preclude appointment from within department.

Article 31 — Beechwood Fire Station.

NOT RECOMMENDED. Without plan for manning does not seem to offer greater protection. Fire Chief believes present response time satisfactory.

Article 32 — Arbitrators award of police overtime ...$8,337.

RECOMMENDED. Town is obligated to pay overtime retroactively for improper use of intermittent men.

Article 33 — Abandonment of easement.

RECOMMENDED. To correct situation growing out of sewer installation. Easement no longer needed.

Article 34 — Increase of fine for sewer violations from maximum of $20 to maximum of $500.

RECOMMENDED. Present fines seem ineffective.

Article 35 — Repairs to wall at Border Street and Parker Ave...$1,500.

RECOMMENDED. Wall has been damaged and needs rebuilding.

Article 36 — Amendment to zoning by-law.

NOT RECOMMENDED. Concur with Planning Board in belief this is not advisable.

Article 37 — Amendment to zoning by-law.

NOT RECOMMENDED. Concur with Planning Board this change is not advisable, and may be ambiguous as written.

Article 38 — Authorization for Selectmen petition for right to contract for telephone system.

RECOMMENDED. Present law limits term of town contracts. This would make possible economies in telephone service.

Article 39 — Reconstruction of Margin Court... $10,000.

RECOMMENDED. Correction of condition arising out of relocation of Elm Street. Truck access now difficult.

Article 40 — Insulate attic of Government Island House...$1,500.

RECOMMENDED. Energy savings.

Article 41 — Insulate attic of Bates Building... $1,300.

RECOMMENDED. Energy savings.

Article 42 — To permit petition to legislature for grant of an additional alcoholic beverage license.

RECOMMENDED. If enacted this would enable Selectmen to consider issuing a special license permitting year-round sale of all alcoholic beverages by store now limited to 8-months seasonal license.

Article 43 — To complete funding of settlement of claims involved in the dam and reservoir project... $20,000.

RECOMMENDED. This represents an advance to the Water Department which does not have sufficient funds to pay the settlement.

Article 44 — Re-zoning of two lots at 508 Beechwood Street.

NOT RECOMMENDED. We are advised that this action would be illegal.

Gustafson-Thompson

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Gustafson of Boulder, Colorado announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Lee, to Douglas Allan Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Thompson of Cohasset.

Miss Gustafson, a graduate of Grinnell College, is a teacher of English as a second language.

Mr. Thompson received his BA in Environmental Science and an MS in Biology from Northwestern University. He is an ecologist for the Environmental Protection Agency in Boston.

A June 27 wedding is planned in Boulder.

Anti-casino group seeks help

The Citizens Against Casino Gambling, CACG, set up a series of committees at their meeting in Hingham Sunday.

The group is looking for state-wide backing in its effort to keep a proposed casino out of Hull. So far 10,000 signatures have been raised for the campaign.

Carol Oteri of Hull said her group will now begin lobbying legislators.

The new committees include: organization and campaign coordination, finances and fundraising, legal, media, public relations and advertising, research, legislative lobbyists, alternative economic developments and newsletter.

The group recently incorporated. They are planning to talk to members of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Friday morning. Pro-casino forces made a presentation to the Chamber last month.

Carol said the organization wants to buy a copy of a film by John Chancellor on the situation in Atlantic City. It will take at least a month before the film is available.

About 150 people attended the CACG meeting in Hingham. Among the directors present were: Jack Conway of Cohasset, Judge Paul Reardon, Charles Chittack, Penn Brown, Jon Davis, Alex MacMillan, Mary Jo Janney, all of Hingham, and Carol Oteri of Hull.

McArthur favors cluster zoning

At several gatherings and coffees held for Mary Jane McArthur, candidate for Selectman, during the past week, she has been questioned about the proposed change to the zoning bylaw which provides for residential cluster development.

"In the 30 years I have lived in Cohasset, I have seen many changes and I believe this is one which will benefit the town," says Candidate McArthur. "Cluster zoning as proposed by the Planning Board will provide for a more efficient and creative use of land in our town," she continues.

Mrs. McArthur notes that at least 10 acres of land will be required for a cluster development. She emphasizes that the number of dwellings to be constructed under cluster zoning may not exceed the number now allowed under the zoning bylaw.

"I feel that the standard requirements for cluster development which have been set up by the Planning Board will provide the town with more control over housing design, landscaping, parking and open space," Mrs. McArthur explains. She particularly favors the provision that 35 percent of the area in a cluster development would be open land.

In addition, cluster zoning is one way of meeting the needs of young or retired couples for smaller homes, according to Mrs. McArthur.

England coffees

The remaining series of coffees have been scheduled by residents for Frank England, candidate for re-election to the Cohasset School Committee.

On Thursday, April 2, Mr. and Mrs. James Donohue, 221 Forest Ave., will hold a coffee at their home at 8 p.m.

On Sunday, April 5, the Committee to Re-Elect England will hold a coffee at the Cushing Room, Rockland Trust, Cushing Plaza from 4 to 6 p.m.

On Thursday, April 9, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fitzsimmons will hold a coffee at their residence at 116 Doane St. from 8:30 to 10 p.m.

Morrissey calls for end to apathy

At a recent reception held at his home on Beach Street, Dr. Patrick Morrissey, candidate for Selectman stressed the apathy which has prevailed in town elections in Cohasset.

He encouraged people to exercise their democratic privilege by voting. When 1,200 out of 4,400 people vote the results hardly represent a concensus. He stressed the fact that the annual town meeting is the only legislative session held in Cohasset during the year. While in theory the open town meeting is the most democratic form of government in the world its purpose can be completely distorted when only small special interest groups attend.

He implored the people to make themselves familiar with the issues and candidates in the coming election, to attend the town meeting and vote in the general election Ap il 11.

Pro casino forces lobby legislators

Nancy Burns, chairman of the pro-casino group called VOICE (Volunteer Organization Interested in Community Economy) told a VOICE gathering Sunday that both she and Selectman Claudette Fitzsimmons have been holding personal meetings with state legislators over the Hull casino issue.

Mrs. Burns said the two women had thus far met with 40 legislators, one third of whom pledged their support, one third of whom were decidedly against the issue, and another one third who were undecided.

VOICE plans to meet with the remaining 120 legislators either in person or at a public meeting to be held April 8 at the State House from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., during which time two films will be shown: a film on the MGM proposed Jet Foil boat and a film on MGM-style entertainment.

Hull residents and other interested parties will be able to view the same program at a meeting to be held April 12 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the VFW on George Washington Boulevard in Hull.

Last Saturday VOICE met with Governor Edward King who told VOICE that he had not yet taken a position on the casino issue, Mrs. Burns said, and would reserve his opinion until such time that he had received all facts.

"We feel we can convince the Governor and legislators that the one-casino issue in Hull will not be the Atlantic City story," Mrs. Burns said.

Persons in Hull and surrounding communities who wish to join the VOICE organization should send a $3 check made out to VOICE, to Ms. Helen Bond, 14 V Street, Hull, MA. 02045. Bumper stickers and pins saying "Support One Casino in Hull" will be sold for $1 each in the near future.

Spring Fling - Ski, Swim & Fun

Wildcat Mt. Group Trip

Friday evening at 7:00, April 10, is an important date.

A luxury motorcoach will be leaving Buckles & Boards for a fun-filled weekend of spring skiing. The trip cost is $119.00 per adult, based on double occupancy. Children 12 and under, $89.00, under 6, $69.00 (sharing room with parents). Treat yourself!

The trip includes meals: 2 full breakfasts, Saturday night dinner, 2-day lift tickets, and accommodations at Town & Country Motor Inn. Roundtrip transportation from Marshfield is included.

$50.00 down payment will reserve your seat for this Great Spring Fling.

Wildcat has a gondola, 2 double chairs, 1 triple chair, and 1 T-bar. Its 14 trails are equally divided to serve beginner to expert. Its elevation is 4100' and its vertical drop is 2100'. Nastar is held on Sundays.

Town & Country Motor Inn offers sauna, game room, indoor swimming pool, dancing Saturday night and a lounge featuring complimentary hors d'oeuvres late afternoon.

Do you recognize yourself in this picture of group trip to Waterville Valley in December?

Treat Your Skis with Care Before Storing

Don't put your skis away without preparation for the dampness ahead. Bring them in for a full tune-up. Hot waxing will protect those edges from rust. We'll clean the road salt, mud and dirt from those bindings before the metal corrodes. Treat your skis to a tune-up. They're a valuable possession.

Skiers — Don't Despair!!

Skiing isn't over — it's just warming up.

Where in the world do skiers contend with such varied weather as in New England? From the December depths of 25° below zero and wind chill factors approaching 90° below zero to the seemingly interminable January and February thaw dumping rain all over our whitened mountain with May-like temperatures. What, then, is happening to the ski areas?

Mountains of N.E. will continue business as usual into May. March and April are traditionally good snow-fall months for N.E. ski areas. With the combination of the recent snowfalls and snow-making, areas like Wildcat, Waterville, Sugarbush and Killington will continue to operate until late April or May.

Cohasset Mariner

vol. III, no. 27 | thursday, april 9, 1981 | 25 cents

Selectman, school races highlight election

Close to 50 per cent of the Cohasset electorate is expected to go to the polls for Saturday's Town Election.

The polls at Town Hall will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Town Clerk Charles Marks expects that 2,200 to 2,300 of the town's 4,862 registered voters will turn out.

There are races for selectman, the school committee, board of health and the planning board, and although none are wildly feverish contests, the selectman and school board campaigns have drawn more attention than usual — particularly for politically tranquil Cohasset.

With nearly 50 years of service in town government, Selectman Arthur Clark has become an institution around Town Hall, and his decision not to seek another term has prompted the most spirited campaign of this election.

In the race are Doris Golden, a former school committee chairman, Jean McArthur, a veteran of the advisory board, and Dr. Patrick Morrissey, who is a newcomer on the political scene.

All have stressed the need for leadership to live with Prop. 2½. They are uniformly opposed to casino gambling in Hull, favor a recycling program at the dump and endorse the concept of an executive secretary. Golden and McArthur have emphasized their experience and contributions to town government.

The winner gets a three-year term and the chance to fill Arthur Clark's shoes.

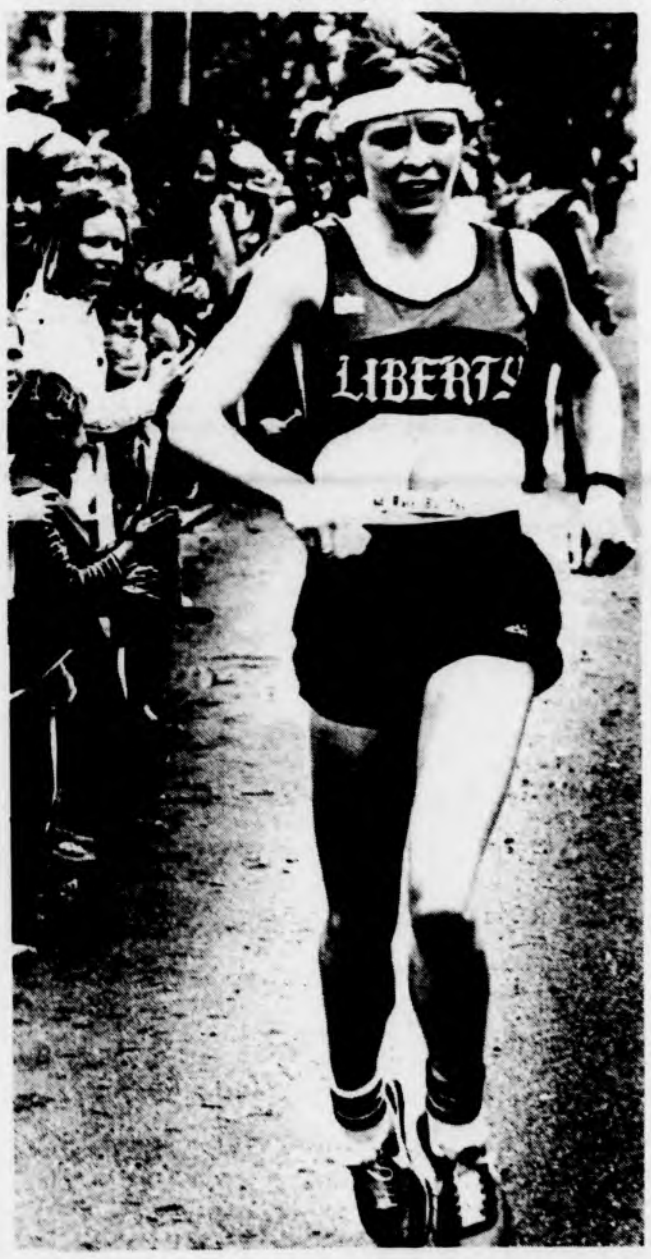
The school committee, which goes from six to five members after Saturday's election, will be without the services of Patricia Walsh who decided not to seek reelection this year. Running for the new fifth spot and a three-year term are incumbent Frank England and Richard Conley.

As the incumbent, England defends the committee's work, and among the board's accomplishments cites the appointment of a new school superintendent, a health coordinator and the student representation on the committee. Conley is less enthusiastic and has criticized the six-member committee for its tie votes which he says indicate an inability to work together.

Three candidates are running for the two-year unexpired term on the board of health. They are John Burns, Barbara Kern and Paula Knowles.

Daniel Cotton and Ernest Stevens both are seeking a five year term on the planning board.

Other candidates are running without oposition.



THE WINNER — Sarah Linsley, the first woman across the finishing line of the Jaycees 10 kilometer Road Race by the Sea was also the first person from Cohasset to make it to the finish line.

T.M. approves $6.9 million budget

By Patricia Desmond

The mood of town meeting was one of conservatism and jelly beans.

The session began Saturday only a half hour after the schedule and proceeded to move quickly to adopt the plans for the town outlined by the advisory board including a budget of $6.9 million, which town officials say complies with the regulations of Proposition 2½.

Still what some voters failed to realize in the flurry of votes, is that the tax bills will probably be about the same as last year. While Proposition 2½ dictates local government, in general, must cut its taxes by 15 percent next year, Cohasset is revaluing and assessments are expected to more than double.

There was quite a bit of talk about the proposition at the meeting.

Town Moderator David Place kept the discussion to the point as routine business was transacted and little time was wasted reading motions that could be found in the warrant.

Roy Fitzsimmons of Beechwood tried to segregate the fire department salaries to guarantee the Beechwood Fire Station would be manned. The Beechwood Station was closed last fall by Chief Charles Piepenbrink.

His attempt lost on voice vote.

Fitzsimmons pointed out the fire department response time to his part of town is eight to ten minutes.

Chief Piepenbrink, who more recently closed the North Cohasset satellite stations, said he sympathizes with Mr. Fitzsimmons but that he decided to consolidate his manpower faced with a declining budget. Four fire fighters are being eliminated this year through retirements. The department will be 24 men in the future.

The chief said this means there will usually be five men on duty at any one time.

The highlights

- passage of a cluster zone for residence B and C which allows 30 percent apartment construction under a special permit from the planning board.
- a budget of $6.9 million which includes a reduction of four firefighters and 31½ school jobs. Eleven of the school cuts are classroom teachers.
- a resolution calling for the selectmen to appoint a search committee to screen candidates for the job of executive secretary.
- a new heating system for town hall.
- backing of a Harvard study on the effects of casino gambling.
- a resolution in favor of Arthur Clark, who is retiring from the board of selectmen, after more than 40 years in town government.

Hodge, Linsley Road Race winners

By Rob Tis

Holding with tradition the Cohasset Road Race was run this Sunday. This, to many, is considered the athletic as well as social event of the season.

It was a perfect day for running with a temperature of around 60 degrees but a wind that kept the runners cool and did not present much of a problem.

Most of the better runners from the New England area were in the race including the four running giants who dominated the lead all the way through: Bob Hodge, Bud Hearsh and two previous winners of the race, John Kessenger and Vinny Fleming.

These four stayed close together for the first mile which was clocked at four minutes and 32 seconds.

At this point the runners complained of the fumes from the pace car. But nonetheless, they were chugging along at a good pace. At just about this point Hodge and Fleming pulled ahead despite the direct head wind they were facing near the beach.

At the second mile Mark Hodge pulled out about a 15 yard lead. All of the four runners were still close but as the runners passed the beach and headed up Atlantic Avenue Bob Hodge was clocked at a 4:41 mile. He was able to open up a 60 yard lead. From here on it was all Bob Hodge.

He finished his fourth mile in 19.25 and had a chance at the best time ever on the course, but he cruised in at a remarkable 30.50 minutes which was 35 seconds longer than last year's time.

Vinny Fleming finished in second place, Bud Hersh in third and John Kessinger who holds the course record in fourth.

T.M. approves new budget

After accepting the budget as devised by the advisory committee, town meeting continued on accepting the committee's recommendations.

One of the nicer gestures of the meeting was to proclaim the town's gratitude toward retiring Selectman Arthur Clark. Selectman Henry Ainslie read the resolution commending Clark for his accomplishments over the years.

The meeting passed a resolution backing a study of casino gambling planned by Harvard University. The resolution went through at the request of Maria Plante, a member of the anti casino gambling group.

It also passed a resolution asking the selectmen to appoint a search committee to screen applicants for the position of executive secretary. The motion was made by Donna Magee.

A resolution to encourage recycling at the dump went through.

A plan for cluster zoning of parcels of more than 10 acres was accepted with only minor controversy over the wording.

The planning board, which proposed the article, will have authority to grant special permits altering the construction regulations. The same number of units allowed under traditional zoning will be permitted but 30 percent of the units may be apartment or condominium construction.

Pat Facey, chairman of the planning board, said her board thinks the cluster offers a chance for better design.

Members of the planning board showed slides of clusters in Duxbury, pointing out the homes appeared to be single families.

Dr. Charles Bliss, member of the board of health, said his board backs the concept. He pointed out that builders already gerrymander the lots to find percable land.

T.M. wrap-up

Other appropriations

Among the more minor actions at town meeting this week were the regular appropriations of the town.

South Shore Regional School District was granted $18,121, which is what the district requested, $5,000 less than last year.

The treasurer was authorized to borrow funds in anticipation of taxes.

The search committee for the police chief was disbanded.

The appointing authority was granted the right to choose town officers not elected by ballot.

The town accepted the traditional statement that holds the state DPW harmless in the course of doing work on the rivers and streams.

The State Reclamation Board was given $2,739 to control mosquitos in tidal marshlands. Nothing was allocated to the defunct South Shore Mosquito Control. Another $1,230 was approved for midge control at Straits Pond.

Town Clerk Charles Marks was given a raise of $1,600, brining his salary for the parttime job to $6,199.

Unpaid water bills amounting to $2,600 were paid.

Repainting Cunningham's Bridge was authorized for $18,000.

The town decided to accept any money the state might come up with for road reconstruction and appropriated $35,000 for resurfacing of streets.

The drainage problem at Forest Notch won $2,800.

And $15,000 was authorized for plans to find a way to cap the landfill to prevent pollution from seeping into the water table. A separate article for permanent closing of the dump on Cedar Street was postponed indefinitely on the recommendation of Marilyn Sweeney, chairman of the board of health. That article had been placed in the warrant before engineering studies of the landfill were finished.

The meeting voted $34,300 for a new hot water heating system at town hall. Related articles for a sprinkler system and ventilation at town hall were indefinitely postponed at the request of Daniel Cotton, chairman of the town office space needs committee, which drew them up.

"The money's just not there. The work ought to be done but not now," he said.

The town put $50,000 toward offsetting the costs of contributory pensions.

The meeting voted $2,800 to replace the boilers at the apartments at Government Island House.

Federal $ may not be available for sewer

Federal funds for the sewer treatment plant construction may not be available, Jan Daggett, chairman of the sewer commission, told town meeting.

Even the money for design plans is behind schedule. That grant was expected in February when the application was processed.

"Now we're told it won't be approved for some two or three months," she said. And what the state will go along with will be considerably smaller than the one million gallon plant approved by the town.

"We won't be allowed to start construction until we have a 20-year plan for disposal of the sludge. We were hoping to use the sanitary landfill and that has an expected life of seven years."

Mrs. Daggett pointed out the change in Presidential administration has caused some of these problems as the direction of the federal government is being changed.

She read some technical wording on sewer users fees.

"It could be so serious that this means that as users we will pay for the cost of the building of the system."

Money for construction could be switched from a grant to a loan program.

"We don't want to design a plant we have no hope of building. We hope to seek a guarantee there are construction funds."

Mrs. Daggett pointed out the town is under a consent decreee involving the sewer issue. The present plant is overloaded and in need of extensive maintenance work.

"What we need is your trust and wishes for good luck," she said.

Plaudets, applause for Maynard, DeBassio

Two gentlemen were literally applauded for the work they have done for the town at Monday night's final session of the town meeting. Townspeople gave a standing ovation to Hermon Maynard for the six years he has served on the advisory board and a loud round of applause to Police Chief John DeBassio for the "good work" he has done in the police department.

"Let's give a round of applause to Chief DeBassio," Selectman Henry Ainslie suggested as he began to present an article to the townspeople. "Let's tell him to keep up the good work!"

Two charged in carpet robbery

Two South Boston men are being held in lieu of bail on charges stemming from the robbery of the Sheridan Smith Oriental Rug and Carpet Gallery on South Main Street.

A third suspect is sought in connection with the rug heist.

The saga began shortly after 3 a.m. Friday when the alarm for Smith Rug went off at the station. Now an alarm going off is no unusual happening in town. The fact is faulty alarms are so common that the Mariner leaves most alarms out of the published police log.

Within three minutes a cruiser was at the shop on South Main Street. The door of the store was open, indicating right away the break was real.

Police from nearby towns were asked to be on the lookout for suspicious vehicles. In the past month a Hingham rug store had been robbed three times. Police from the two towns talked over the possible similarities right away.

A collection of orientals had been taken worth $16,390, wholesale. Retail price is double that.

Three hours later Patrolman Robert Jackson spotted a car in Whitney Woods that seemed suspicious. The two occupants fled. He found a collection of rugs in the back. Police from surrounding towns were called immediately. There was a request for the state police search dogs. The dogs weren't available for an hour and a half but in the meantime local police continued their search.

Lt. Charles Stockbridge just happened to notice someone going into the Car Barn shortly after 9 a.m.

"Another few seconds and he would have been inside," the lieutenant said.

That man was arrested and charged with breaking and entering in the nighttime and larceny. He is James O'Brien, 20, of South Boston. It wasn't until shortly after 11 a.m. that Thomas Dooley, 18, also of South Boston was arrested in Wompatuck Park on the same charges.

And it wasn't until early the next morning that the rest of the loot was discovered.

Phillip Smith, owner of the rug shop, said he thinks the police did a spectacular job.

The same two men are charged on Hingham warrants with a larceny at the Tree of Life in Hingham.

Police found 10 orientals stolen a week and a half ago at the Hingham shop in the woods off Route 3A, Hingham, only a short time after the burglary.

Ah, the joy of sport

By Claire McDonough

Last Saturday I attended Skipper's first soccer game of the season. It was a glorious April day, and I was really delighted to see my friend, Kathy, whose son was playing on the other team.

"Come and sit with me," I invited. "We can chat while our kids kick at each other."

She smiled back. "Isn't it great that they're getting this healthful outdoor exercise? It's so... healthful."

I agreed, shaking my head sadly when a lady in front of us yelled, "Lose the ball one more time, Buster, and it's no supper for a week!"

Kathy and I looked at each other in sympathy. "Some mothers are so competitive," she sighed. "Heads up, Brian!"

"I know," I concurred. "I really pity those poor kids whose mothers don't know enough to shut up and let their sons play the game. WATCH YOUR FEET, SKIPPER!"

Kathy smiled again. "They're worse than stage mothers, really. It doesn't matter if your kid's team wins. All that matters is that he gets plenty of healthful exercise. For heaven's sake, Brian, look where you're going!"

"I know," I said. "To hear some of these women you'd think their kid's whole future was at stake. After all, it's only a game. Good move, Skipper!"

"Good move?" Kathy's eyes narrowed. "Do you suppose poor Skipper's inherited your eye trouble?" She gave a forced laugh. "I mean, he stepped right in front of my Brian and jabbed him with his elbows. I can't imagine how the ref missed it."

"Do you think so?" I asked gently. "I mean, poor little Brian has always had such trouble with his balance. Do you think it's safe for him to partake in sports like this?"

"Don't get upset," Kathy cautioned.

"You'll get more wrinkles if you scrunch your face up like that — especially in this sun." She ran a hand over her flawless brow.

"Whaddya mean, more wrinkles?" I took a deep breath. "And anyway, of course I wouldn't get upset about a soccer game. After all, it is only a game."

Kathy laughed. "Of course it is. Wouldn't it be silly to take it seriously? Oh, look — Brian's team got a goal."

"You don't mean they're going to allow that goal?" I gasped. "That little creep of yours checked Skipper. I saw him shove him on purpose!"

"I don't have to sit here and listen to these insults," Kathy retorted. She picked up her tote bag, flounced twenty feet away and watched the rest of the game in sullen silence.

Twenty minutes later the game had ended in a tie and Skipper and Brian came off the field laughing happily.

"Get into the car, Skipper," I said icily. "We're going to have to have a talk about certain relationships."

"Come away, Brian," Kathy told her son. "There are certain people with whom it does not pay to associate."

Really, I never knew Kathy could be so childish and petty.

Good police work

This is a rave for the Cohasset police department.

The calibre of work done by that small group of men is as potent as any .357 magnum.

This week the quick action and team effort of the force resulted in the recovery of oriental carpets worth more than $30,000 retail.

Two men face charges in connection with the robbery of Smith Rugs on South Main Street.

It seems unlikely that a police force with only two officers on patrol could manage to foil many crimes. But lately the Cohasset police have been doing just that.

Last month they did a great job working on the robbery of the Stop & Shop and the kidnapping of three teenagers. How they do it without even one detective is anyone's guess.

But they pull if off. Andresults are what counts.

Police Chief John DeBassio plans to catch even more crooks with his new Crime Watch Program. Figures from other communities show crime goes down with implementation of Neighborhood Watch and Operation Identification.

It should be mentioned that Friday morning when the alarm came in from Smith Rugs, police response time was three minutes. Phillip Smith called the Mariner this week to praise the men for their work, especially for their perseverence in searching for all the missing rugs.

Six of the stolen orientals weren't found until a day after the arrests. They were discovered in the woods near where the suspects' car was spotted. The rugs were covered by dirt and leaves.

Smith said he expected the police attitude would be to say 'so what, you're insured' when they realized only part of the merchandise was recovered in the car.

"They were great," he said.

The Mariner thinks so too.

Vote Saturday

Don't forget to vote.

The election is Saturday, April 11. The polls at town hall are open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m.

We are not endorsing any candidates, but we do endorse the political process. Voting is a right and responsibility. A good many seats are going unchallenged this year, but there are races for the open seat on the board of selectmen, the school committee, planning board and board of health.

The schooners came to Cohasset

Looking back

By Gilbert Tower

When I was a boy 15 years old, in the year 1900, it was not uncommon at Cohasset Harbor to see a vessel tied up at one of the wharves unloading a cargo of coal, or lumber.

Coal was burned in cast-iron kitchen stoves, and in hot-air house heating furnaces in cellars, and also in what were known as air tight stoves in living rooms. The coal was easy burning, soft coal from Norfolk, Virginia. The lumber, consisting of boards and joists, came from saw mills at various places in Maine.

All houses in Cohasset were built of wood and even larger buildings, like the Osgood School, were built of wood, not brick, and much of it came in on those schooners. One of the coasting schooners that used to come into Cohasset was the schooner "Joe" that sailed out of Millbridge, Maine.

She was owned and captained by Captain Kelly. His husky son, George, was mate. There was the cook and a deck hand and that made up a crew of four sleeping in the cabin.

It occurred to us boys to ask Captain Kelly if we could sail back to Millbridge with him, and he said "Yes." So one summer afternoon we set sail out of Cohasset. Our idea had been to sleep on deck, up forward, in the space forward of the anchor windlass. That idea did not work. At night it was cold and the wind blew through the hawse holes, which the anchor chains passed through.

We had not thought to bring along any blankets so we boys went aft and slept in the two bunks vacated by two of the crew. Two of the crew sailed the ship while the other two slept. In the morning when it came time to eat two of the crew sat down and two boys. When it came time for breakfast we had smoked herring and blueberry pie from the same plates in succession. At first we were squeemish about eating from the plates which had been dirtied. We learned that when one is hungry enough one can eat anything.

The ship's course to Millbridge, Maine, passed several light houses which gave us our bearings at night. Arriving at Millbridge we anchored in the river and the crew went home leaving us four boys to sleep on the ship for a week, or two. There was a sardine canning factory in the town and several cans of little herring helped to feed us. One day George Kelly took us in a small boat down to see two hermits who lived on an island. One was named "Sim" and he wore patch pants. When a hole wore through he would sew a patch over the hole and continue to add many patches.

The schooner's next voyage would be to transport a load of lumber. There was a raft of lumber in the river up above Bar Harbor. So one day we sailed the schooner up to Bar Harbor and anchored for the night. The next day we sailed across Frenchmen's Bay to Jefferson. I had the job up aloft of shifting the fore topsail from port to starboard whenever the ship came about.

The tide flowed up a river and a little tow boat towed us up to the lumber. Two boys on the raft of lumber and two on the ship made a deck load of the lumber. A problem was to stand on the lumber and to remove the last pieces while standing upon them. At that point my cousin, Hobart Tower, and I felt we had had enough so we walked down to Jefferson and took the steamer "Calvin Austin" to Boston.

The writer continues to be urged to write reminiscences. So there is a little story that possibly may be interesting to readers.

Toward bringing world peace

Commentary

By Shirley Marten

Confrontation is not the answer to world peace. I believe that the best way to achieve peace is through education, communication, personal contact and mutual understanding of other cultures.

Two weeks ago I attended a 3½ day conference of the National Council for International Visitors (NCIV) in Washington, D.C. and enthusiastically learned how much we can do at a local level to improve and strengthen world relationships. It is impressive that world-wide, 37 current heads of state and 378 current cabinet ministers are alumnae of NCIV.

The local NCIV organization, the Center for International Visitors of Greater Boston, assists more than 1,000 foreign nationals annually in meeting their professional or avocational counterparts and introducing them to "the real America" through sightseeing tours and home hospitality. These visitors are from all over the world and all walks of life and are selected for their potential leadership qualities.

Recognize a unique opportunity and reach out. Become a citizen diplomat and offer them your wealth whatever it may be. Share Boston baked beans, a walk on the beach, the local library, sailing or handicrafts. In return, learn about their country and daily life, their needs, desires and goals. The rewards will be enriching and hold no boundaries. A cottage industry may be exported to far away places or a future overseas business trip may include R & R with your visitor as host.

Murray votes yes for more local aid

To the Editor:

On March 24, the state representative from Cohasset, Mary Jeanette Murray, (R), who also represents Hingham and Hull, voted Yes on a motion to offer a Resolution for more local aid.

This Resolution would have asked the state government to share in the cost of Proposition 2½ with $300 million in additional aid to the cities and towns.

Local aid in Massachusetts is 12 percent below the national average. State spending is 13 percent above, and local spending is 12 percent above, that same average. This year, while communities cut under Prop 2½, the state budget is increasing by 8.3 percent.

The message of Prop 2½ was for both local and state government to tax and spend less. Despite this message, the motion was defeated 108-44. Representative Murray should be commended for being one of the few legislators to vote against the House leadership and for the best interests of her community.

Murray introduces 'Better Budget'

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray this week announced she is sponsoring the Better Budget in response to the Governor's Fiscal '82 budget. The Better Budget will free an additional $320.8 million for local aid. Cohasset, Hingham, and Hull would be eligible for $895,340 more in local aid under this budget than under the Governor's recommendation.

"The Better Budget" applies the message of Proposition 2½ to the state's budget," Mary Jeanette said. "I believe it is essential that we, in the legislature, do everything possible to share the responsibility of cutting the cost of government."

"The following is the breakdown for my towns:"

Community	Lottery Formula	Ch.70 Formula	Total
Cohasset	$101,563	0	$101,563
Hingham	265,676	0	265,676
Hull	275,413	$252,688	528,101
			$895,340

The Better Budget reduces the Governor's recommendations by making cuts in costly and ballooning administrative accounts and through the consolidation of public and mental health institutions. That money is then applied to local aid.

In addition, the Better Budget responds to the Governor's 56 percent reduction in the fuel assistance account by restoring that funding to the current Fiscal 1981 level. It also provides for a 6 percent increase in the funding for persons under Aid to Families and Dependent Children and General Relief.

"It would be irresponsible for us to expect senior citizens and others living on limited fixed incomes to be able to keep up with inflation and soaring fuel increases when we have a state government unwilling to trim its own budget," Rep. Murray said.

"The Better Budget responds responsibly to the needs and concerns of the cities and towns and the people of Massachusetts." Mary Jeanette concluded, "I urge your support in this effort."

☐John Lanata and Joseph Mercurio of Cohasset were promoted recently to Boston University administrative positions.

Lanata, of 78 Beachwood St., is the University's new assistant vice president for auxiliary services. Mercurio, of 3 Cedar Acres Lane, is now comptroller and assistant vice president for financial and business affairs.

Lanata will supervise management of the University's food service, bookstore, housing, parking services, telecommunications, mail and conferences. A 1971 graduate of Bentley College, Lanata came to the University in 1975 as assistant to the vice president for operations. In 1977, he was named director of auxiliary services.

Associate comptroller since 1977, Mercurio joined the University in 1973 as a budget analyst, and became associate director of the budget in 1974. Mercurio, who holds an associate's degree from Bryant & Stratton College, will receive a bachelor's degree from the University's Metropolitan College this spring.

☐The monthly bulletin board in the main hall of the Deer Hill School is a work of art. Every notice, announcement and piece of information is displayed with accompanying illustrations — each colorful and original!

Barbara Conte, Deer Hill School secretary, is the artist behind the bulletin board. Every month she changes the board, giving each one its own theme and bits of history from months past. The start of the Civil War, Hank Aaron's 715th home run and national laugh week are just some of the important events that have taken place, or occur, during April.

Whoever lost blue barrettes, a gold ring or leaf necklace shouldn't have any trouble identifying their treasures with Barbara's precise pictures to help them. A robbin, frog, baseball and bits of Japanese art also liven up the hallway.

The next time you visit the school, take a few minutes to enjoy the artwork displayed on the April bulletin board.

Thursday is early release day

Thursday, April 9, will be an Early Release Day in the Cohasset Schools.

There will be no afternoon Kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule: Junior/Senior High School, 12:20 p.m.; Deer Hill School, 12:40 p.m.; and Joseph Osgood School, 1 p.m.

Lunch will be served in all of the schools.

This Early Release Day has been authorized by the Cohasset School Committee to allow the staff at the Junior/Senior High School to continue work on their Self-Evaluation Program, and to allow the staff at the Deer Hill School to continue work on the activity planning for Grades 4 and 6, and the competency testing for Grade 5. It also allows the staff at the Joseph Osgood School to continue work on the listening skills for Kindergarten and Grade 1, the competency testing for Grade 2, and activities planning for Grade 3.

Rec. Dept. sponsors Easter egg hunt

On Saturday, April 18, the Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct an Easter Egg Hunt for children ages 3-11 at the Deer Hill School Field, at 1 p.m. Sharp!

The Recreation Department will supply organization and candy for the program. Local merchants are contributing merchandise for prizes.

The Cohasset Jaycee's are cosponsors of this event.

Children will be subdivided into three groups: those are 3-5 years old, 6-8 years old and 9-11 years old.

Parents are asked to accompany younger children.

Each child will receive candy, and prizes will be awarded to those children finding eggs with an attached number corresponding to prize.

Conway Co. joins Crime Watch

The Cohasset police and the Cohasset office of Jack Conway, realtor, joined forces to bring Crime Watch to town.

The program is aimed at showing residents how to deter break-ins to the town's 3,000 homes.

Cohasset Police Chief John DeBassio met with the Conway brokers yesterday to outline the program which will concentrate on organizing the community in Neighborhood Watch and Operation Identification.

DeBassio said the Conway realtors could become the first link in the information program designed to show newcomers as well as present residents how to keep their home from being burglarized, and how, if a break-in occurs, they might be able to recover valuables through participation in Operation Identification.

Cohasset Crime Prevention Officer Gerald Doyle told the very receptive group of realtors that their help was needed because "we can't handle it by ourselves."

"Less than 17 percent of crime is reported. Of the crimes cleared in the courts, less than 1 percent go to jail," Doyle said.

This is why the Cohasset Police Department and Jack Conway are going to ask neighbors to look out for others through Neighborhood Watch, Doyle said.

Also speaking to the group was Sharon Police Officer Harry Carlson who noted that the breaking and entering rate in Sharon dropped 33 percent over the last year after the "Crime Watch" program began there.

Chief DeBassio said the Cohasset Police Department needs some "very basic tools" to get the program off the ground such as "Crime Watch" signs and stickers as well as engraving kits to mark valuables.

Jack Conway will pay for those items and assigned his company's public relations director Bruce McLain as liason for the project.

Muriel Desmond, Manager of the Jack Conway Cohasset office, told Chief DeBassio that all of her some 20 brokers were "very impressed with the program" and pledge their full cooperation.

The two organizations plan to kick-off their joint program with an open community seminar to be scheduled within the next month in the town.

S.S.L. to sponsor diabetes clinic

The Social Service League will sponsor a Diabetes Screening Clinic April 15, from 2-4 p.m. at the new location, 16 Highland Avenue.

The test for diabetes takes only a few minutes. A drop of blood is obtained from a simple finger prick and is analyzed for elevated blood sugar. Do not eat, smoke, chew gum or eat candy until the blood sample is taken. Only water may be consumed.

No appointment is necessary. Children should be accompanied by thier parents. A donation of $2 will be requested. For further information call 383-0771 or 383-0821.

KEEP WELL CLINICS

The Monthly Keep Well Clinics will be held April 16, at the Parish Hall prior to the 60 Plus Club meeting at 11:30 a.m. and April 22, at Harborview from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

Blood pressures, urine testing, weights and health consultation will be available to all Cohasset residents.

Meet Brad Mallers: a success story the hard way

By Laura Doherty

Despite a diagnosis of serious learning disability, twenty-three-year-old Navy Seaman Bradford Mallers has come a long way and, because he wants to help others, he's willing to tell his story.

He has dyslexia, a disorder manifested by difficulty in learning to read, write and spell despite conventional instruction, adequate intelligence and opportunity.

Today, Brad is proud of what he has been able to accomplish and enthusiastic about his future. An honor graduate from the fleet combat training center, Brad is now serving as an operations specialist on the amphibious assault ship, the Iwo Jima. He also holds an air traffic control license.

Brad was in the navy for less than a year, when he received a citation from the commander of his fleet for his part in combating a serious fire on board his ship while it was docked at Norfolk, Virginia. Recently, he was named Sailor of the Quarter for the second time in a row for "his desire to learn, unselfish devotion to duty and ability to excel no matter what the task."

But there was a time when Brad began to seriously doubt his own capabilities and almost left high school. "It was terrible," he recalls, "everything was going over my head and I couldn't talk to anyone. I felt lost."

Although already diagnosed dyslexic and assigned special tutors by the time he was in the 9th grade, Brad knew he was falling seriously behind.

"I looked at everyone around me and I knew I couldn't compete with them," he continues as he explains the frustration of trying to understand his assignments when he was unable to read half the words.

Brad's dilemma was common to many students with special handicaps until the passage of Chapter 766 in 1974. Described as an educational "Bill of Rights," the law makes sure that children with special needs get training and assistance.

As a result of the law, a core evaluation was conducted on Brad. "I found out that it was not me and I felt glad," he remembers.

Chapter 766 & special help made the difference

Because Brad's disability was so severe, it was decided that he needed a more specialized program than was then available at Cohasset High School. In 1978, Brad completed his high school education at Proctor Academy in New Hampshire where his program of studies was carefully planned to meet his individual needs. When possible, he was put into regular classes such as math and science. For other subjects, he received special help which sometimes required his working on a one to one ratio with his teacher.

Brad underlines the importance of special equipment in his program and also the specialized training the teachers at Proctor are required to take. "I learned how to read by reading to a tape and noting the words I didn't know. These words I'd make into learning aid cards to be drilled on with my teacher." Part of the success of the system according to Brad was that he was responsible for finding his own learning aids so that he actively took part in the learning process.

He feels that the needs of students with severe learning disabilities such as his cannot be met in many public school systems. "The school must set up a proper structure for the special student — without it where are they going?" he asks. Often the costs of equipment and trained personnel make it financially impractical for towns to offer this type of program within its system, he continues.

"What Brad needed just can't be offered in a class of 35," noted his mother, Helen Mallers. Mrs. Mallers points out that it cost $6500 each year at Proctor for Brad, for which Cohasset was reimbursed except for the per pupil cost. She feels that it cost the town less because special tutors and equipment were not included in the per pupil cost.

"It's more practical not even considering the humanitarian point of view," she emphasizes as she points out that Brad is now a contributing, tax paying member of society. "I can support myself, now," underlines Brad, who is now taking courses toward a college degree.

Candidates night draws 80 residents

Selectmen candidates anti-gambling, pro exec. sec.

By Jennifer Grisdale

The selectman replacing retiring board chairman Arthur Clark will be against casino gambling, in favor of a more comprehensive recycling program, and will not object, at least to the concept of an executive secretary.

Candidates Doris Golden, Mary Jane McArthur, and Patrick Morrissey all agreed on those basic points when they spoke to an audience of about 80 people at candidates' night held recently at the town hall.

The Cohasset League of Women Voters sponsored the program, asking each candidate to address the problem of what should be done with the town's solid waste once the dump on Cedar Street closes.

That facility has been operating in violation of state sanitary codes for several years. A recent study of the situation revealed the dump could be utilized for about seven more years if it were properly repaired.

Candidates expressed beliefs that long range planning for handling solid waste after the facility closes should begin soon. In the meantime, they felt a sound bottle-can-paper recycling program should be developed to keep as much material out of the dump as possible.

Each candidate also talked about the town's financial situation, especially as it copes with the Proposition 2½ mandate.

"Although we must look ahead to fiscal belt tightening, we will not only survive, but grow," Golden stated.

"I see the selectmen's role as one of leadership. They must listen to the voice of the people and be responsive; establish objectives and priorities, and apply sound managerial procedures," McArthur said.

"We will need to enlist input from town citizens to help establish those priorities," she added.

"Proposition 2½ is the dawn of a new era," Morrissey commented. "It's like a strong wind forcing us to trim back our sails. Two and a half should not be thought of as a burden, though, but as a challenge. There should be an immediate, thorough, analysis of each department and then we should rationally re-evaluate our goals," he continued.

Elections are this Saturday and polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the town hall.

England praises school board work, Conley doesn't

Maintaining the high academic standard of the Cohasset school system while complying with the Proposition 2½ mandate is the number one goal of both school committee candidates, but their opinions differ on how well the committee has done its work this past year.

Incumbent Frank England, presently chairman of the committee, and candidate Richard Conley spoke to an audience of about 80 people at candidates night last week at town hall.

England said his committee had a "productive year," citing the passage of a school budget which complies with the proposition while maintaining Cohasset's academic standard, the hiring of a new school superintendent and health coordinator, and the reaching of a "personal goal" of instituting two non-voting student members of the school committee.

"At last we will hear from the final consumers — the students," England commented.

"I feel I can be proud of our accomplishments, and I'm glad I've been able to serve as chairman of the committee," he concluded.

Conley, however, was less pleased with the committee's work. "I find it disturbing that the townspeople had to reduce the number of school committee members from six to five because of the 42 tie votes the committee had this year alone," he said.

"People are not willing to work together to meet common goals," Conley added.

England explained the tie votes have been occurring for several years during which time the committee had been forced to face "quite a few problems." He said when tie votes occurred, he was the one who usually changed his vote to give a majority.

Conley also told the audience that during the committee's budget sessions, which he said he attended, members said "we can live with these programs (which received cuts), but never once did they ask can the kids live with these programs!"

He said he has five school age children "which range from the honors group to the chapter 766 program," and has volunteered for many organizations and committees including the search committee for a health coordinator and the health curriculum advisory committee, the Cohasset chapter of the American Red Cross, and the Cohasset Youth Athletic Association.

60 Plus Club meets

The Cohasset 60 Plus Club will meet Thursday, April 16, in the Unitarian Parish House.

The coffee hour is at noon, followed by a short business meeting.

At 1 p.m. our guest speaker will be Mary A. Letorney who writes a column for the Quincy Patriot Ledger called Practical Astrology.

She is a former English teacher, also an author of a book, "Astrology in the Buff." She is also now a well-known lecturer.

Derby will again offer summer program

Derby Academy will offer its third annual Summer at Derby, a four-week program of review, instruction and enrichment July 6 through July 31.

Open to all area students entering Grades 5 through 11, classes will be held daily from 8:45 a.m. until 12 noon, combining academic and non-academic subjects in a stimulating, informal environment.

A new language department will add remedial French, Spanish, Latin (for first and second-year students) and pre-Latin courses to the core curriculum of reading, writing, math and study skills.

A separate course in the latter is designed as an introduction to study skills in English, history and mathematics for students in grades 7-10, through a series of activity-oriented units. Students are encouraged to balance the morning with a workshop in art or ceramics, or the typing course, which includes a study of proper procedures for term papers and correspondence as well as techniques.

Francis Ranieri, assistant headmaster and chairman of the Mathematics Department, will direct the program again this year. A member of the Derby faculty for 34 years, Ranieri is the author of five instructional publications in the field of mathematics.

Other faculty will be teaching professionals from Derby and throughout the South Shore area.

Petersen-Bell

Mr. and Mrs. James Telesco of Cohasset announce the engagement of their daughter, Gail Petersen of Cambridge, to William McKinley Bell of Boston.

Miss Petersen, a graduate of Cohasset High School, Elmira College and Glasgow University, Scotland, is the New England coordinator of Public Participation for the Environmental Protection Agency.

Her fiance has a bachelor of science and a master of science degree from Northeastern University and is a senior project Engineer at EIC Laboratories, Newton.

A June wedding is planned in Cohasset.

Edminster-Atwood

The engagement of Lynne Hanson Edminster of Wellesley Hills to Brian Gareth Atwood of Cambridge is announced by her parents, Howard W. Edminster of Syracuse, N.Y., and Mrs. Elizabeth S. Edminster of Cohasset.

Ms. Edminster graduated from Cohasset High School and received her bachelor of science degree in Interior Design from Syracuse University. She is with M. Brown, Inc. of Boston as an Interior Designer.

Mr. Atwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Atwood of Vacaville, Calif., received his bachelor of science degree from the University of California at Irvine and his masters degree in Biology from the University of California. He will receive his MBA from Harvard in June.

A June wedding is planned.

Higgins-Gately

After a wedding trip to Disneyworld, Florida and Nassau, the Bahamas, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Higgins Jr. (Kathleen A. Gately) are making their home in Randolph. They were married recently in St. Mary of the Nativity Church, Scituate, by Rev. Robert F. Gately, the bride's uncle. A reception was held at Barnside Tavern, Hanover.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Gately of Scituate. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jean Higgins of Cohasset and the late James F. Higgins.

Barbara Morse of Osterville was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Cheryl Spezzano of Dedham and Rose Berkowitz of New York.

Alan Perrault of Hanover was best man. Ushers were Robert Higgins and Thomas Higgins, both brothers of the bridegroom.

The bride, a graduate of Boston University, is a physical therapist at Massachusetts Hospital School, Canton.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Harvard College, is a sales representative.

Historical Society receives valuable documents

By O. F. Ingram

More than 50 rare 19th century documents relating to land in Cohasset and involving some of the best known names in the town's history, have been received by the Cohasset Historical Society as a donation of an Orleans resident whose family once lived here.

The documents, consisting mainly of deeds to land, easements, rights of way and mortgages, are the gift of Mrs. Elizabeth McCutcheon of Orleans, the daughter of F. Cliff Pearce, formerly of Cohasset.

Acquisition of the documents resulted from a letter to a question-and-answer section of a Boston newspaper. This was noted by Mrs. E. Lawrence Parker, Jr., president of the Historical Society, who then made contact with Mrs. McCutcheon, traveled to Orleans and accepted the gift of the material.

Through arrangements made by Drexel Gibson, a director of the Society, the documents have been appraised professionally and a statement of their estimated value reported to the donor for income tax purposes. Under a new program of the Society, gifts of such material, including old letters, stamps, deeds and the like, are being encouraged and these will be professionally appraised.

In the case of the latest documents received, it is planned to offer copies for sale to present owners of the land as a fund-raising effort of the Society.

A review of the documents shows that they relate to land in three areas of the town: The Sandy Cove and Meadow Lane section along Atlantic Avenue, the Deer Hill section and Beechwood. In addition there are deeds to lots in the Cohasset Central and Forest Hills Cemeteries, and to "one-half of a broadside pew in First Parish Meeting House."

Oldest of the documents is an 1801 deed conveying two acres of land "southerly on Deer Hill Lane" from David and Sarah Beal to John Jacob Lothrop. This land had been purchased only two months before from Samuel Bates.

An 1812 document records the granting of a right of way by William Whittington to Levi and Nichols

EXAMINING OLD DOCUMENTS recently donated to the Cohasset Historical Society are Mrs. E. Lawrence Parker, Society president, and Drexel Gibson, director.

Tower, from "Sandy Cove Road leading to Cove Lane on the southeast side of the Beach."

Evidence of the changed values of land in Cohasset is given by several documents. One in 1816 records the conveyance of more than nine acres "in the second part of the Third Division" for $102.50, while in 1831 a dwelling at Sandy Cove with a half-acre of land was sold for $390.

One of the largest transactions recorded is that of May 6, 1820 when William and Hepzibah Whittington conveyed to John Jacob Lothrop "my mansion home and farm with buildings thereon...about 37 acres" in the Sandy Cove section. Some of the later documents record subsequent dealings in this property, and mention "Balch Avenue," now Lothrop Lane.

Prominent Cohasset names appearing in the documents include Elisha Doane, Caleb Nichols, Hannah and Nathaniel Treat, Caleb Lothrop, Southworth Pratt, Christopher James, and other members of these well-known families.

One Thirty Seven
Beach St
Cohasset, MA 02025

My Dear Fellow Resident:

I have placed my name in contention for a seat on this town's Board of Selectmen. There are many reasons for this:

First, I have been a resident of Cohasset for 14 years; my children were raised and attended the public schools in this town. My deep concern and enchantment with this town and its people have made me vitally concerned about the preservation of its unique character and its continued stability. I believe that our town government must be ever vigilant in defending Cohasset from the creeping encroachment of urbanism. We don't want our town to become just another mediocre suburb of Boston. For this reason, I am vehemently opposed to the proposed Trojan Horse of casino gambling in Hull, with its inevitable traffic congestion, increased crime and the introduction into our community of people with less than noble virtues.

Second, the mandate of Proposition 2½ constitutes the dawn of a new era. Some have called it a fresh breath of air. I liken it to a strong wind — forcing us to trim our sails, to take up the slack in all aspects of local government, resulting in the elimination of all the waste from the budgetary bilges. Proposition 2½ should not be thought of as a burden — but rather a challenge — a challenge to bring to town government the same modern, efficient practices utilized by private enterprise. Indeed, 2½ should cause our government to be 2½ times more creative, 2½ times more imaginative and 2½ times tougher.

If we are to apply the same sound fiscal policies that all successful businesses must follow, it will mean an end to all political patronage, featherbedding and business as usual attitudes that have infiltrated our system over the past 200 years. Further, we must institute an immediate and thorough analysis of each and every position in this town to determine its necessity and usefullness. We must assiduously scrutinize every budgetary item and rationally reevaluate our goals in order that maximum fiscal efficiency may be obtained.

I am convinced that this new and necessary Get Tough Policy will enhance rather than detract from the quality of town services. I am eager — and humbly suggest qualified — to help guide this town along its new course. Therefore, I ask you to support my candidacy by casting your vote on April 11 in my column.

Thanks, Good Health

Dr. Patrick Morrissey

Morrissey
2½ Times Tougher

I believe that the fiscal problems that must be confronted by the adoption of Proposition 2½ require an imaginative approach on the part of all future elected officials.

I feel that by applying the same managerial principles that successful private enterprises must follow, these problems can be alleviated, if not eliminated.

Cohasset Road Race

This is truly a monumental achievement considering close to 700 people participated. Jackie Bowen was the first Cohasset resident to finish. He rolled in in just under 25th place.

Pammy Ellis was the first under 12 runner to finish. She was also part of the C.H.S. girls' team who took the women's team trophy.

Other runners included Hannah Clinton, Caroline Zwicker, and Mary Jo Mahoney.

The women's winner was Sarah Lindsey of Cohasset who, along with her sister, has been winning this race as long as I can remember.

The object of this event for most people, however, was not to win, but to finish.

Quite a few notable Cohasset residents put in sterling performances, including Jaimie Replogle who finished 83rd, C.H.S. Spanish teacher Mr. Narckowhich who finished just behind him.

Cohasset High School students finishing were Jack McNiel, Chuck Tebbets, Paul Johnson, Mike Glasfeld, Steve Bowen, Dan O'Niel, Danny Bowen, Mark Brown, Bobby Shultz, Paul Dormitzer, Hannah Clinton, Caroline Zwicker, Mary Jo Mahoney, and Pammy Ellis.

Other finishers include Chet Ellis, the enthusiastic track mentor Ron Emmons, the ever training Pete Chapman, Jim McCarthy, Bill O'Brien, Michael Cotter, Joel Lindsley and a score of other die hard runners who lived up to a very challenging test.

The top 200

Some runners didn't turn their times over to the Cohasset Jaycees and so there are some gaps in the list of winners.

The following are listed as the top 200.

Bob Hodge, 30.05.3; Vin Flemming, 30.40.7; Ron Gillooly, 30.50.7; John Kessinger, 31.06.1; Brad Hurst, 31.16.7; Francis Kolb, 31.53.7; Bert Petracca, 31.55; and Dr. Robert Chasson, 32.13.7.

Others are: H. Hatch, T. Gilligan, P. Gillooly, G. Stone, J. Powell, P. Dowling, J. Milligan, M. Orlando, J. Magill, S. Lindsley, D. Vanderstein, S. Gill, C. Moore, R. Christie, K. Spitz, L. Resseguie, R. Pratt, E. Marsh, M. Price, C. Curtis, B. Arnot, and M. Coleford.

Also C. Haynes, D. Benelli, R. Donohue, E. Welch, J. Clifford Jr., D. Sides, R. Rumble, M. Estner, J. Gardell, J. Smell, S. Newpkerk, G. Delaney, G. Kelley, S. Wilcox, M. Vacca, J. McCormack, M. If you have any questions regarding your child's schedule for next year, please call the Guidance Office.

The Strong Campbell Interest Inventory and the Differential Aptitude test will be administered Saturday, May 9 to all students who signed up during the pre-registration period. As announced in CHS Guidelines, a Guidance Department newsletter, this test administration is approximately five hours long and the fee is $7.

If a parent is still interested in having a child tested, arrangements can be made by calling Mr. Leary at the high school. The deadline for notifying him is Tuesday, April 14.

Mr. Leary attended a National Leadership Conference in Philadelphia. The purpose of the meeting was to gather the presidents and presidents elect of all the state and regional associations, fifty in number, to discuss national issues, impacting on post-secondary education. Major issues discussed were financial aid to college students and truth in testing legislation as it pertains to students writing college board tests.

ART SHOW

The art works and photography of the entire Cohasset schools from kindergarten to the high school will be featured in an exhibition at the South Shore Art Center for the entire month of April.

Come and see the talents of your fellow classmates and friends.

FAMILY PORTRAITS

The Cohasset Citizens for Drug and Alcohol Education are sponsoring a Family Portrait Day to be held Saturday, May 2 at the high school.

The price for the family portrait will be $7.95 with a major portion of this cost going to the sponsor to help cover the cost of the Dave Toma Program.

Appointments can be made at the following locations: Saturday, April 11, Town Hall; or call: Nancy Clapp, 383 -0987; Carol Sandbloom 383-1812; Dick Conley, 383-1039; or Mike Gill, 383-6107.

CLASS NOTES

□Mrs. Wood reports that her fourth period English (8-H) class is presenting original plays and other projects based on the students' recent reading of "A Tale of Two Cities."

□Mrs. Wood and members of the Dramatic Literature (Junior-Senior) elective class treated themselves to an evening performance of Moliere's "Tartuffe" at the Shakespeare Repertory Theater in Boston.

□The third volume of 1980-81 "Tessahoe Tales," the high school literary magazine, is being compiled by its dedicated editor Jane Higgins. They look forward to publishing in May.

□Mrs. Dorothy Wondolowski's senior elective class in law made a recent field trip to Quincy District Court. During their morning visit to the court, the students had the opportunity to witness arraignments, as well as actually sit in on two non-jury trials.

After their first-hand experience of court procedures, students met with a probation officer and a city prosecutor. Each court officer made a formal presentation and then fielded questions from the students.

Town Hall & Dramatic Club go together

By David Wadsworth

This year Cohasset's historic Town Hall is celebrating its 124th anniversary. For 60 of those years the Cohasset Dramatic Club has been producing and performing plays on the Town Hall stage.

This year's spring production by the Club is Emlyn Williams' 1935 thriller "Night Must Fall," an English murder story, and it is the most recent of a long line of well known (and some not-so-well known) dramatic productions staged by Cohasset's amateur theater group.

The history of the Club itself and the history of the Town Hall are almost one and the same; the relationship between the two might best be described by the scientific word "symbiotic," meaning that each needs the other in order to exist. In this case, the Town Hall stage and auditorium provide an excellent facility for the presentation of theater pieces, and the Dramatic Club, in using that facility, provides the community with a valuable cultural and artistic asset.

An architect recently studying the Town Hall was overheard to remark about the uniqueness of its auditorium and stage. Things aren't built that way any more, it seems. But things weren't always the way they now are, either.

When the Cohasset Town Hall was constructed in 1857, as a combination Town Office building, assembly hall and school, there was no large auditorium on the first floor. Instead, two smaller halls existed, one on the first and the other on the second floor. Town offices were upstairs, and the school used the downstairs. Later, the school function moved elsewhere, and both the Cohasset Historical Society and the Public Library used areas of the first floor.

The two small halls served many diverse community functions, ranging from moving picture shows to basketball and even boxing matches. First aid classes and flower shows took their places beside the official municipal functions of Town Meetings and elections.

By the early 1900's, interest in amateur theatrical activity was increasing in Cohasset as the community widened its already extensive artistic and cultural base. In 1921, the Cohasset Dramatic Club was founded for the purpose of giving play readings, social activities and performances. At first, one performance was presented each year. (The first one was a comedy called "Nothing but the Truth," produced in June of 1921.)

The Club continued to gain momentum, and before long was presenting three separate shows each year. Numerous well-known townspeople rose to the challenge of the footlights to help produce and act in the Club's presentations. Those early plays were not given in today's spacious auditorium, for not until 1928 did the Town make the decision to combine its two smaller halls into one large one.

By the mid-1920's, Cohasset felt the need for additional room for its community theater and for public assembly. The first plan presented would have seen the construction of a 1300 seat auditorium and stage in a new addition behind the Town Hall. It was defeated at Town Meeting, and a second plan was drawn to build a new brick building of classical architecture containing both Town Offices and auditorium, to be located where the Town Hall parking lot now exists. This also was turned down by the Town's voters. Finally the decision was made to change the interior of the existing building.

The new plan envisioned the removal of the old second story, and the building of a high-ceilinged auditorium with full stage facilities. This new ceiling was to be supported by massive steel beams rising vertically from the ground and spaced along the sides of the building. Dressing rooms and a kitchen for banquets were planned below the stage. This plan was accepted by the Town, and in 1928 the present auditorium was constructed.

During the 1930's the Dramatic Club shared its new facility with a prominent professional summer theater group known as the South Shore Players. This latter group eventually became the parent organization of today's Music Circus. But in amateur theater the Dramatic Club reigned supreme, with residents of neighboring towns joining Cohasseters in the presentation of numerous plays representing many different schools and traditions of the theater. The Club itself has provided for some improvements to the auditorium; purchasing the large stage curtain and smaller curtains for the windows of the hall.

Recently the Townspeople voted to continue maintaining this unique auditorium and its stage facilities for the use of the various community organizations of which the Dramatic Club is one of the oldest and best established.

This year's production of "Night Must Fall" marks the 124th year of the Cohasset Town Hall, the 60th anniversary of the Club, and the 40th anniversary of that play's first appearance on the Town Hall stage.

Performances are scheduled for the evenings of May 7, 8 and 9. Directing the play is Wayne Miessner of Scituate, and Jane A. Marshall of Cohasset is the production manager.

Our supermarkets offer a beautiful array of foods and yet, someone has labelled us a nation of nutritional illiterates. Many of us choose packaged creations with eternal shelf lives, cheese that is made to be sold, not eaten, tomatoes and bananas packed green so they will ship well, frozen eggs and waxed apples, pretty to look at, but tasteless. More and more women are shunning the breads that are chemically treated to last forever and a day; the mixes containing artificial ingredients. Ginny Ansbergs admits she was once a "junk food junkie," but when she took a yoga course some years ago, it led to a new way of life whereby five-year-old Christa has been brought up on natural foods and though her husband still likes a roast beef dinner now and then, they are mainly vegetarians. Ginny writes: "Everyone, even people who aren't into natural foods, says this is wonderful." This is quick, chewy and high in iron and B vitamins and is called:

BRAN WHOLEWHEAT SQUARES

1 c. wholewheat flour
1 c. bran
1/3 c. wheat germ
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
2 T nutritional yeast, optional
1 egg
1 c. buttermilk or yogurt
1/4 c. hot water
1/4 c. olive oil
1/4 c. honey, or 2 T honey and 2 T molasses

In medium bowl stir together whole wheat flour, bran, wheat germ, baking powder, salt and yeast. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Mixture will be thick and wet. Spread evenly in a thin layer in greased 15 x 10 x 1" pan. Bake at 425 degrees for approx. 20 min. Cut into squares and serve with apple butter, or topped with applesauce. Sprinkle with walnuts, pecans, sunflower seeds and you have a hearty snack or breakfast.

And who could be more attuned to nature than the dedicated staff and volunteers of our fabulous South Shore Natural Science Center? They suggest this no-bake recipe for a high energy snack food which takes little energy to prepare, especially if you cook them up on your wood stove! They write: "These are yummy made with carob powder instead of cocoa and you could substitute honey for sugar, too. After you've removed the cookies from the waxed paper, crumble it up (sticky side in) and use it to wipe off the warm wood or coal stove — brightens it right up." Here's how to make their

NO-BAKE CHOCOLATE COOKIES

1/2 c. margarine
2 c. sugar
2 T cocoa
1/2 c. milk
1/2 c. peanut butter
1 tsp. vanilla
3 c. quick oats

Melt margarine. Add sugar, cocoa and milk. Mix, bring to boil, stirring constantly. Boil one minute. Remove from fire and add vanilla and peanut butter. Stir and pour hot mixture into oatmeal which is in large bowl. Mix well and drop by teaspoon on waxed paper. Cool. Makes approx. five dozen.

Murray land for gardens

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray and her husband, Phil, have offered land for vegetable gardens this summer.

"There are some people who would like to have gardens, but need a little more space," Mary Jeanette said.

The Murrays have always had a garden and have enjoyed the fresh vegetables as well as the savings.

"Through the Department of Food Agriculture, citizens of the Commonwealth are encouraged to garden," reports Murray.

Democrats at convention

Four Cohasset residents will attend the State Democratic Issues Convention in Springfield on Saturday, April 11. The woman delegates are Donna McGee of Hill Street, who is Chairman of the Cohasset Town Democratic Committee, and Mary Richard of 703 Jerusalem Road.

The male delegates are Peter Pratt of 75 Ripley Road and John McNabb, Jr., of 53 Pond Street. A total of over 3500 delegates will attend the convention and vote on a Platform for the Massachusetts Democratic Party.

Munchkins sweep

Three 7th graders, known as the "Three Munchkins," swept the 80 pound and under category at a Junior High Wrestling Tournament last Friday, April 3.

John Riley won First Place in the tourney held at Plymouth-Carver Intermediate School. Second place was won by John Parziale. Third Place went to Jeff Martin.

Also winning awards was John Pereiar, who won Second Place in his weight class.

Chief loses 'absolute authority,' Civil Service status

The next fire chief won't be under the protection of civil service and won't have "absolute authority" over his department, townspeople decided Monday night in two votes taken by secret ballot.

Board of Selectmen Chairman Arthur Clark emphasized the two articles would not affect the present fire chief, Charles Piepenbrink, and the move to make these changes did not reflect a lack of confidence in the chief or his department.

Clark also stated that current members of the fire department would be considered for the chief's position when he should decide to retire.

The 55-year-old Piepenbrink has given no indication when that will occur.

"The overwhelming vote in favor of the proposition is a message to the selectmen that they should clean their house," Clark explained. "We need to have better management of town affairs."

The Advisory Board recommended the vote be taken by secret ballot on the two articles, which were strongly opposed by both Piepenbrink and members of the Cohasset Permanent Firefighters Association.

The vote to remove the next chief from civil service was 190 in favor and 105 against while the vote to remove his "absolute authority" over his department was 178 in favor and 111 against.

The legislative act giving the chief absolute authority over his department was voted by townspeople in the 1920s and could not be recinded until proposition 2½ passage allowed townspeople to take a second look at these acts.

Under the present act, the fire chief is not directly answerable to the selectmen, although Piepenbrink pointed out he is required to make "periodic" reports to the board. He also reminded townspeople his budget must be scrutinized by the Advisory Board and approved by the townspeople every year, and without budget approval he had little power.

The change put forth in the article will make the next fire chief directly responsible to the selectmen, much as the police chief is now.

The next fire chief will be chosen by a five-man search committee, according to the article approved by townspeople. Members will determine the job qualifications and any exams to be taken by applicants. They will also be required to advertise the position in at least one Boston paper.

T.M. nixes Beechwood fire station

Beechwood residents lost their six month battle to return a fire station to their section of town Monday night when townspeople voted 56 in favor but 194 against building a new Beechwood fire station.

The proposed new two-bay facility that would have replaced the present building which was shut down last fall because it is in need of extensive repairs, would have cost the town $110,000. The fire department, however, had to cut four men from its present staff of 28 because of Proposition 2½, and Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink said he will not have enough men to man the new station.

Firefighter James Fiori of Schofield Road, commented, "If we can't afford to pay the men, we shouldn't be discussing the issue. A building can't put out fires or help save heart attack victims."

Beechwood residents have argued the station is needed to protect the health and safety of local inhabitants.

Efforts to appropriate money to man the station at Saturday's session proved unsuccessful.

The advisory board and capital budget committee both voted against recommendation of the article. Adviser James Lagrotteria reported his board had done studies of Beechwood and North Cohasset, formerly the site of a second satellite fire station. He said the board found that in a one mile radius of the Beechwood station there are 200 homes while in the same radius of the North Cohasset station there are 345 homes, 14 of which house more than two families.

"We feel that there is probably a greater need for a substation in North Cohasset, but we are not promoting this," Lagrotteria explained. "We are satisfied with the recommendation of the fire chief that we have adequate fire service to the Beechwood section of town."

Piepenbrink said two studies have been done on fire safety in the town, one in 1961 and the other in 1974, and both indicated the town would be adequately served with two fire stations — provided they were centrally located in the town. He did not feel Beechwood Street would be a central location for the second station.

In other business, townspeople voted to grant John Muncey, owner of Harbor Liquors on Elm Street, a year round all-alcoholic liquor license replacing his present eight-month seasonal license.

McArthur triumphs, Conley upsets England

All weekend the phone rang at the police station as townspeople sought out election results.

Lt. Charles Steckbridge, who was on the desk Saturday evening, read off the results without comment.

"Yes, I have the results right here. Your new selectman is Mary Jane McArthur. She won almost two to one. Your new representative on the school committee is Richard Conley."

People came in off the street, looking for the numbers, town hall, of course, being closed once the results were posted.

Meanwhile other townspeople trooped into the various parties, scattered about the town, to get their results.

Some visited Frank England's home on Old Coach Road without even realizing the six year incumbent was off the board.

Town Clerk Charles Marks did some party-going himself. At the historic Lothrop House, he issued the oath of office to Mary Jane, while her campaign workers and family looked on.

"A ton of people worked for me," the new selectman said when she finally had a chance to sit down for a minute. Her day began at 6:30 a.m. Saturday and continued with incredible campaigning.

"I owe them a real vote of thanks. They were fantastic," she said.

As she talked town officials and friends milled about the old building which she rented for the party, partly to bring in some people who had never seen the house before. The historic society is working on restoration of the house.

What's been done is lovely but it could use some more furnishings. The new selectman has been active in town government for 20 years. Besides being a member of the advisory committee, she is an officer of Cohasset Historic Trust Inc.

She teaches in the field of learning disabilities at the Hatherly School in Scituate.

Mary Jane had only good words for her opponents. She pointed out that Ellen Morrissey, wife of the number two candidate, Patrick Morrissey, gave her a ride in her pony cart during the long day of campaigning in front of town hall.

"The candidates were all so gracious. We shared our food. When it was over, they all congratulated me."

The number three candidate in the race was Doris Golden, former school committee member and the

Crackdown coming on parking violations

The Cohasset police department is about to begin a crackdown on violators of the town parking ordinances.

Police Chief John DeBassio issued the instructions last week to his senior officers, creating new walking beats in the Village to implement the crackdown.

Parking tickets cost $3, $5 or $10 depending on the infraction involved. The most expensive tickets are for violators at the beach, Wadleigh Park or Government Island.

Unless plans change, the key hours to watch out for are 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4 to 7 p.m. in the Village. During those hours, one of the town's two cruisers will be parked to give an officer a chance to ticket cars.

The increase in issuance of parking tickets will bring the town more revenue.

Murray files casino study bill

By Patricia Desmond

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray is pushing for a late filed bill to study the whole question of casino gambling in the Commonwealth.

Lt. Gov. Thomas O'Neill, who has been on the same anti-gambling side at the State House, issued a quick statement criticizing her effort.

Mary Jeanette says "a vigorous investigation is necessary to determine the overall effects casino gambling will have not only in Hull but throughout the Commonwealth."

She says she feels stronger than ever about the ill effects of casino gambling. Her bill is now in Rules Committee.

It calls for a special commission consisting of two members of the state senate, five representatives, a representative of the secretary of public safety, five appointees of the governor, the director of the legislative research bureau or a designee to evaluate the effects of gambling and report back by December, 1982. A final report would be required by March, 1983.

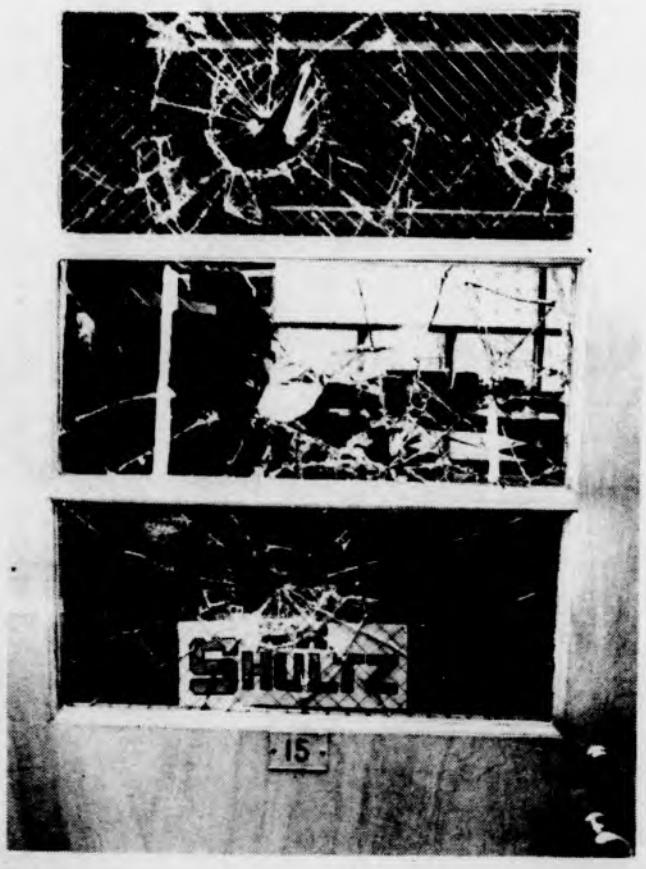
But Science Fair goes on

Vandals hit the Deer Hill School



IMPOSSIBLE TO CAPTION — What can anyone say about the destruction discovered Saturday morning at Deer Hill School? Ken Ekberg lists the damage at about $400 to $500. (Derr photo)

At Deer Hill School some heartsick youngsters are trying to salvage a vandalized science fair.

The sixth graders began rebuilding their knocked about projects when they returned to school Monday morning. Over the weekend someone entered the building and went on what seemed to be a senseless rampage.

Windows were smashed. Damage to the windows alone is $400. Every poster and exhibit, readied for this week's fair was dashed to the ground. Several items were stolen. The school nurses office was ransacked, with the leftover wreckage scattered about. A few classrooms were vandalized. Vulgar insults were written on the building.

Police Chief John DeBassio began investigating the crime almost as soon as it was reported early Saturday. The damage was discovered by Robert Barrow, a school custodian.

Police are unsure of how entry was gained to the building.

Several items stolen in the break at the school were found Sunday morning in the woods nearby. That included a Polaroid camera and musical instruments.

Police seem fairly sure the vandals are youths, perhaps even students at the school or recent graduates.

Initially it seemed the science fair had been destroyed. There were 125 projects entered into the competition.

Some were displays not easily replicated, like one of Egyptian materials gathered by a child who had vacationed abroad. Another project was home grown bacteria.

Police Sgt. John Rhodes said other parents of children at the school called him all weekend, looking for information about the displays.

But the sixth graders worked on repairing the damage Monday morning and by afternoon Ken Ekberg, school principal, was able to say the projects were repaired.

He said judging would begin Monday as planned.

The fair is open tonight for parents to look over the projects. Planning for the fair began months ago.

Cohasset's week

Ride-A-Bike coming

The Cohasset Teachers Association will sponsor the Tenth Annual Ride-A-Bike from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. May 3. This is a state wide effort to raise funds to help the 160,000 retarded citizens through the work of the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens and its local affiliates.

All ages are welcome to participate either by riding, sponsoring a rider or helping man check-points on the day of the ride.

Riders solicit sponsors from within the community who pledge the cyclists a predetermined amount of money per mile. After the ride, the contributions are collected by the participants from their sponsors.

Interested riders may obtain forms which will be available at all the Cohasset Schools. The route will be published later.

McGee appointment

Donna McGee of Cohasset has been named administrative assistant to State Rep. Philip Johnston, D-Marshfield.

Mrs. McGee, who has been active in local and state politics, is a recent graduate of the "Women in Politics and Government" program at Boston State College and was a Massachusetts delegate to the National Democratic Convention in New York City last summer.

Last week, she was among Cohasset Democratics who attended an issues convention in Springfield.

She has worked in Rep. Johnston's office for the past year and was described by her boss as being "very knowledgeable about state government and committed to working on issues affecting the South Shore and the entire state."

Higher mooring fees?

A proposal by the Harbor Study Committee to charge mooring fees to boats tied up at floats was discussed by Selectmen last week.

Selectmen, noting they didn't have the exact proposal of the Committee before them, said the issue would be discussed in more detail at a joint meeting of the Committee and the Selectmen April 2.

Charles Smith from the Yacht Club said he had reservations about the proposed fee, and said it was a form of double taxation. He said that the Yacht Club has never charged a fee for the use of its floats, and neither has the Sailing Club.

Smith suggested that the town consider taxing something else before it looks at the floats. He said that his impression was that the Harbor Study Committee was supposed to help encourage the use of the floats, not to discourage their use, as he said the proposed fee would do.

There are a number of floats in Cohasset Harbor. There are three town floats, one at the Yacht Club, Sailing Club, Hugo's, Mill River Marina, and others.

Too little for lights

Funds for the town street lights may run out soon, town accountant William Signorelli told Selectmen last week. He said the town appropriated 15 per cent less for lighting next year but that Eastern Edison has increased its rates 16 per cent.

Harvard casino study

The selectmen will send a letter to the Harvard University Dept. of Community Assistance, informing them that Cohasset is in favor of the proposed Harvard study on the effects of a casino in Hull.

Harvard will be informed of the vote at Town Meeting where Cohasset residents expressed their support for the study.

Cogill permanent patrolman

David Cogill has been appointed a full-time police officer in Cohasset, promoting him from the permanent intermittent list. His appointment was unanimously approved by the Selectmen last week, and will become effective when Cogill is certified, probably in early May.

Cogill was appointed from the permanent intermittent list the Civil Service said was effective until April 10. Selectmen said they did not expect any grievance from the Civil Service, since they agreed to extend the time of the list.

Firefighters union

An election will be held at the Central Fire Station on Friday, April 24, to decide if the Cohasset Permanent Firefighters will join the International Association of Firefighters (IAFF), and whether the IAFF will represent them in collective bargaining.

CETA positions cut

Cohasset has only 8 positions open this year for the CETA Youth Corps, the Selectmen were told last week. CETA said towns were allocated only 80 per cent of the positions they had last year. Cohasset had 10 CETA Youth Corps positions last year. This year, Cohasset town departments had requested a total of 12 positions.

A birthday goodbye to Mr. Clark

The town father retires

Arthur Clark, dean of the Cohasset selectmen, went through the agenda of his last board meeting last week with his usual dispatch.

Terse comments about problems with the street lighting budget, speedy votes on pending license applications. The meeting moved to its logical conclusion: a surprise party for the outgoing chairman of the board.

Reporters outnumbered the board members in the small selectmen's chambers as the well-wishing got underway. It turned out to be a standing room only crowd.

As always selectmen sat along their side of the old work table. Reporters sat on the opposite side. Spectators and others with business to discuss sat behind the reporters along the wall.

Peg Ramsay, the board's secretary, baked a chocolate cake for the occasion. She served the confection with gooey frosting and coffee.

"The people of this town have been so good, so easy to deal with. The people have always been agreeable," Arthur said, his closing remarks as a town father.

Rocco Laugelle, looking like a man just back from vacation (he's been working outdoors lately), told Arthur it has been a pleasure to work with him.

"It's been a pleasure for me, too, Arthur," the other member, Henry Ainslie said.

But the cake said it all. "We love you, Arthur." The cake was more than a going away offering for the man who retired from the plumbing business and went to work fulltime for the town back about 10 years ago.

It was an early birthday celebration for Arthur who turned 73 Sunday. He spent the day in Northhampton attending the wedding of Judy Epstein, former community editor for the Cohasset Mariner.

He took a bit of kidding from the crowd when he told them his plans for the day.

Arthur has been on the board of selectmen for 14 years. The last 10 years he has served as chairman. But his role in town government goes back much further than that. He began his involvement in government on the school committee. He has also been a member of the advisory board and the water commissioners.

"Well fellows, I appreciate your taking the time to be here," Arthur said.

Among those attending the farewell session were: Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, a former selectman; her husband, Phil Murray; Town Accountant, Bill Signorelli; J. Blake Thaxter, town counsel, and associate town counsel, Richard Henderson; one town resident who just happened by; Fred Hanson of the Mirror; Dot Perkins and Mark Morrow of the Ledger; John McNabb, who reported the meeting for the Mariner; Greg Derr, who captured the festivities in the lens of his camera for the Mariner; and Patricia Desmond, Mariner community editor who wanted to watch the beginning of the changing of the town's guard.

Granted auctioneers license

Evan Crosby of 600 Jerusalem Road was granted an auctioneers license last week. She said she needed the license to aid her law practice, which is based in Brockton.

She and Selectmen, after discussion of the license, agreed that she needed a license in Cohasset to allow her to auction in Brockton, since she was a Cohasset resident.

More destruction

The wanton destruction of science projects at Deer Hill School Friday deserves more than a quick gasp of outrage.

From what some police officers surmise, the vandals are our children. What are we going to do about that?

It's true the percentage of trouble makers is small. There were 125 children in Grade 6 at Deer Hill who worked industriously to produce displays for the annual science fair. Those 125 children are accomplishments the town can be proud of. And surely they are the majority.

But what is wrong with our community? Why does it seem vandalism is on the upswing? Why do kids throw rocks at car windshields? Why do they smash beer bottles at the beach until the parking lot glitters?

We no longer seem capable of teaching our children to respect property. Unfortunately, there is no simple solution. Maybe there's no complicated one, either.

For now the best we can do is to dwell on the example of the Deer Hill children who managed to pull together a science fair from the broken remains left by the vandals.

Good work, kids.

The election

Interest in Saturday's election was keen with better than 40 percent of the registered voters turning out.

Even the losers deserve congratulations for the effort of the campaign.

Frank England deserves aroundof applause from the townspeople he worked for on the school committee for over the past six years. His defeat by Dick Conley was one of the surprises of the balloting.

Pat Walsh, who chose not to run for reelection as the number of school committee seats dropped from six to five, should also be thanked for her time and energy.

The Mariner sends its best wishes to Conley, a man long active in youth groups, although a political newcomer.

The race for the open seat on the board of selectmen brought out only 44 blanks, indicating the importance of the office and the race.

Mary Jane McArthur, in her first bid for elective office, walked away with the title. Congratulations. We know she will work hard for the town.

Report from Somalia

Eileen Mullaney has been working at the Somalian refugee camp "Ali-Mutan" since early March where, as a nurse, she runs two feeding centers and a clinic where medical needs are assessed. She is part of an eight member team sponsored by Inter-Church Response (Catholic Relief Services, the Lutheran Church and Church World Services). They are the first American assistance group to be accepted by the Somalian government. They are working to help alleviate refugee problems of famine and disease caused by severe drought and a border war with Ethiopia. Their camp is located on the Jubba River, a day's journey from Mogadishu, the capital of Somalia.

Eileen's parents, Pat and Paul Mullaney of South Main Street, and her sister and brother, Beverly and Brian, have received three letters from her and have generously shared them with the Mariner. They have been summarized somewhat because of space limitations.

We wish Eileen well in her work and hope to hear more about life at "Ali-Matan."

By Karin Bartow

My work is certainly cut out for me and I'm already learning some Arabic words. The work is clear, basically simple, interesting and, at times, heart-breaking. What makes it special is the people. The Somalis are proud and have so much dignity, never afraid to speak up, never feeling inferior and are so tall and attractive and best of all, kind.

I'll be running two feeding centers for approximately 300-400 children, assessing their medical needs and teaching the auxiliary (Somalian trainee). I have my own interpreter, Farah, who's with me during all working hours. He does well in the managerial aspects leaving me free to work with the auxiliaries in the clinic. I never diagnose or treat a case without an auxiliary. It's so important that they learn, in hopes that when I leave they'll be capable of taking over.

Each feeding center is capable of providing porage (milk, soy and corn flour) to children or the sickly. There are seven feeding centers, supposedly in care of the 40,000-50,000 people in our camp. The children who are allowed to enter are only those who are seriously malnourished or sick. Most of them have a compounded problem because their resistance is lowered and living quarters are close, enhancing disease. The nomad way is definitely one of survival of the fittest.

We're up at sunrise and I'll tell you no alarm clock is needed (the tent tends to have a baking effect), we eat at 6:30 a.m., out by 7, work until noon and rest from 2 to 3, as it's so hot it's impossible to get anything accomplished (110 degrees during the day and 90 degrees at midnight).

I've never lived so closely with eight people before! I imagine it's like being married, except there's no place to go besides work. So you can imagine how well we already know each other. From time to time we get a chance to visit the other European camps, a nice change (French and Swiss).

Each one of us is extremely conscious of food waste. Our plates are left clean or we save what's left for the next day. Breakfast consists of dried milk and wheaties or graham crackers and peanut butter; lunch is soup and for supper, goat and spaghetti with canned vegetables or camel, sometimes a tuna fish casserole. This varies depending on our monthly food rations.

We wear either long pants or skirts to cover our legs and a hat or scarf on our heads in agreement with the Islamic way of life.

I check shoes, bedding and don't touch anything before looking as the scorpions like to investigate. Steve, the camp director who's also a doctor, got bitten by a scorpion and said it felt like a bee sting and only swelled a little, so don't worry.

The war is pretty low profile and no one is concerned; we wouldn't be here if they were. (Ethiopia and Somalia are fighting over their boundary in the Horn of Africa. Somalia is one of the most refugee crowded countries in the world. About one-third of the population live in refugee camps or wander the bush as nomads and because of the worst drought in thirty years, are without food or water.)

The prevailing diseases here are malnourishment, TB, pneumonia, malaria and parasites.

In her third letter: So far so good, except we had our first major catastrophe at supper tonight. A huge gust of wind blew a tree down and all our tents and tables collapsed. The problem was easily solved as we had spare tents and were able to refurbish them. The camp site was specifically chosen because of the tree (shade). Anyway, at least we'll have firewood (which is difficult to obtain in the middle of a barren desert). The tree was not like any I've ever seen as each branch has huge thorns, so we must always be careful and watch each step; they go through your sandles.

You should have seen me a few days ago. After working in a camp not far from Ali-Matan, a sudden rain storm hit us and literally flooded all. Our jeep ended up to its ears in mud and needless to say, we arrived home six hours later by foot. After the fact, it was funny, but at the time it was horrible as rain storms always bring out snakes and so I was a bit nervous.

The saddest part (of a rain storm) is the fact that the Somali people are not at all prepared for such environmental disasters. Their homes are unable to withstand the pressure and they're not waterproof. With the already low resistance of the people, compounded with malnourishment, disease spreads quickly.

The supplementary feeding center and the pediatric clinic now serve 500 children (the numbers are always increasing) so I've been treating continuous cases of pneumonia and fever. Trying to prevent deaths is a difficult task especially now.

Although the people have suffered, the rain is largely welcomed. Our overnight grey turns to green. After a five year drought it's no wonder. Our hope is that it will continue for at least two more weeks and maybe eventually famine will taper down.

Selectmen briefs...

Dog restrained

A white dog belonging to Francis X. Mahoney of 91 Beechwood St. has been ordered restrained, pending a public hearing, if the owner requests one.

Dog officer Jack Barret recommended that the dog be restrained, after hearing a complaint from Alice Hall of King Street. Hall said that the dog bit her, and gave her a severe wound.

The Selectmen took the action last week after hearing the report from the Dog Officer.

Antique license granted

A junk and antique license was granted to Rose Lyons, who operates an antique shop on Route 3A and Marion Way. Selectmen granted the license last week, after agreeing that she would be able to sell old gold and silver with that license, and would not need a separate gold and silver dealing license.

Lyons said she would open a new store, the "House of Hummels," soon. She said her expertise was in hummels and antiques, but would like to expand her business to include dealing in gold and silver.

Lyons has been buying and selling gold and silver for some time now, she said, without knowing that she needed a separate license for it.

Short takes

The telephone company will be digging along Old Coach Road soon. Selectmen voted last week to approve their request to dig there to repair a telephone line that has been damaged.

The Williams Brothers, who operate a flea market in the summer along 3A across from the Donut Tree, were granted a junk license by the Selectmen last week.

Although the Selectmen questioned whether the flea market was held often enough to justify a license. Chairman Arthur Clark said he didn't see any problem and that it was a well-run operation.

Watch out for slate falling off the Town Hall roof. Retiring Selectman Arthur Clark said last week he would have a slater he knows check out the roof to see what can be done.

Clark said the problem is that the nails which hold the slate to the roof are rusting out.

only one of the three to have held previous elective office.

But Mary Jane is hardly a novice in the political arena. She worked on three campaigns produced by former Sen. William Weeks. The first campaign she worked on she coordinated Cohasset. Later she worked at the district level. And in 1970, she was assistant campaign manager of Weeks' campaign for Congress.

She worked hard in the town campaign this year. Some involved going door to door. And there were a number of coffees. Much of the work was done over the telephone, the successful politician said.

Former selectman Arthur Clark came by the party to congratulate the winner. Arthur chose not to run for reelection this year. Later the new selectman said Arthur deserves a lot of thanks from the townspeople for the years he's given.

Mary Jane was appointed to her first committee in 1960. Before that she was active in the Community Center and Nursery School. She said she's looking forward to the challenge.

Among the hundreds at her party were: Bill Weeks, Pat Facey, planning board chairman, Jan Daggett, sewer commission chairman, David Place, town moderator, Connie Parker of the historical society, Barbara Kern, new member of the board of health, Richard Silvia, new member of the South Shore Regional Vocational District School Committee and on and on.

Dick Conley, meanwhile, had a full house on Holly Lane celebrating his victory over the incumbent England.

There were fewer town officials in the crowd at Dick's home. And his mood was one of good sportsmanship.

"I'm excited and humbled by the results," he beamed. "I want to thank all the people who worked so hard for me. It was a tremendous victory."

Conley, a firefighter, is the father of five children who attend Cohasset schools. He has been active in youth groups for years and was one of the key people on the committee pushing for health education in the schools.

He recently criticized the school committee on handling the budget. But after the election he said he hopes to begin on a positive note and work with the decisions already made by the committee.

Charles Maloney, former Cohasset superintendent of schools, was in the gathering at Dick's home.

The ex-superintendent said he thinks Dick's election will make a great change for the better on the committee.

He criticized the committee of the past as being too involved with power struggles to deal with the issues.

"Dick isn't like that," he said.

Back at Mary Jane's celebration, Barbara Kern, newly-elected member of the board of health, said she hopes the board will get on with finding a solution to the landfill before the present landfill closes. The site has an expected life of seven years.

Barbara was on a study committee for the League of Women Voters five years ago that recommended a solution be found. The League is beginning a new study of the problem. The old study also recommended a town-wide recycling program, which Barbara hopes can be implemented.

The other new face in the field of town officials is Daniel Cotton who was opposed by Ernest Stevens.

The rest of the town officials ran unopposed. That included: Charles Bliss, member of the board of health, Moderator Place, Assessor Warren Pratt, Brian Wilkins, who won a two year term as assessor, Gordon Flint, treasurer-collector, Highway Surveyor Harold Litchfield, Sewer Commissioner Daggett, and Bill Montuori, water commissioner.

TO THE VICTOR went the school committee and a few happy hugs. New School Committee member Dick Conley is in the center as Mary O'Brien and Issie Salvador congratulate him.

CHS juniors to hold Las Vegas night

The Cohasset High School Class of 1982 will hold its Second Annual Las Vegas Night on Friday, May 8 in the Sullivan Gym of the high school from 6:30 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Students, parents and senior citizens are welcome to have a fun, "legal" night of gambling. Blackjack, poker, roulette and craps games will be set up and manned by juniors for the first part of the evening. Adult volunteer dealers will spin, shoot and shuffle the rest of the night away.

Prizes donated by local merchants will be auctioned off at the end of the evening. Proceeds will go towards the Class of 82's senior prom.

Political advertising around Common criticized

To the Editor:

The use of three large trucks and a van parked on North Main Street by the Cohasset Common for two days this past week to advertise the names of candidates for town office demonstrated an appalling lack of consideration at best and a hazard to public safety at worst. Visibility of vehicles entering North Main Street from Long Road was dangerously obscured, and the breadth of the trucks narrowed the passage of traffic on North Main Street to the point where cars aproaching in opposite directions could not pass. Should there have been a need for emergency vehicles to move through the area the situation could have been a disaster.

Even when only automobiles are parked on both sides of North Main Street the flow of traffic can be difficult and hazardous. To then place trucks right in front of a building where a nursery school and senior citizen activities are in progress and close by a church building where people are gathering first for a memorial service and then, a little later another group is meeting to celebrate a wedding is to be insensitive to the extreme to the broader welfare and activities of the community.

Of course the town election is very important as well, and a certain amount of congestion on election day is to be expected and even welcomed as a sign of good voter participation. But to deliberately and grossly add to that congestion a full day before the election by placing one's name before the public on the side of a truck is a practice which should be discouraged by a negative vote for that candidate at the polls.

Edward T. Atkinson
Minister, First Parish in Cohasset

☐Congratulations to Joanna (Prudden) and Josiah Drummond, Jr. who became the parents of a new daughter on Saturday, March 28 in Portland, Maine. Damaris Thurber arrived weighing a healthy 7 lbs. 1 oz. Her brothers are Caleb and Bart Snyder, age 10 and 12, respectively.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Drummond of Portland, Maine and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Prudden of Hingham. Joanna's sister, Penny Redfield, says that everyone is doing just fine!

☐Happy birthday to Paul Mullaney and his twin sister Pauline Gilman, celebrating April 13.

☐Nancy Anderson and Marie Dolan can no longer take their morning walks together and it all has to do with Jean Higgins' new job...

Jean Higgins leaves her post as half-time instructional aide at the Joseph Osgood School to become secretary to high school principal Richard Streeter. Jean will replace Linda Jorgensen who takes Josephine Laugelli's job as bookkeeper. Josephine retires at the end of this month — happy days, Jo!

Jean Higgins' job will be filled by activity aide Marie Dolan and Nancy Anderson (who has, in the past, worked in both the Osgood and high school offices) will take over Marie Dolan's job. Nancy's and Marie's new jobs will make the morning constitutionals together impossible.

Jean Higgins has worked with the first grade students at Osgood for the past ten years. Although she leaves this job for another in the school system, she may as well be moving away as far as the first graders in Mrs. Fink's class are concerned. They're going to miss their "second" teacher who worked with them five mornings a week.

They presented her with gifts, a cake, hugs and lots of, "We'll miss you" and "Come visit us soon" cards at a party in her honor last Friday.

Jean was also "partied" by the teachers and staff of the school after Friday's dismissal at the Greenhouse Restaurant.

Good luck, all of you, in your new jobs!

☐The "FOUND" item in last week's Osgood School menu proved to be an interesting "little" story. It said that a turquoise parakeet had alighted at Mrs. Hope Seeley's home on Fairoaks Lane and please call her with information as to its owner.

Amy Crafts, Mrs. Seeley's granddaughter and first grade student in Faith Bowker's class, brought the "found" item to school for sharing, coincidentally, the day after her class had read about another lost parakeet in a story.

Amy recounted how her grandmother looked out of her window and saw the little parakeet. Her grandfather went out to get him and, said Amy, "The bird jumped right on his finger!" The Seeleys put the parakeet in an old fish bowl with a screen on top for safe keeping and set out to find the owners.

The bird's keepers, a family from Scituate, were successfully located. Amy learned that they let the bird fly free in their home. "The only time he was in his cage," she explained, "was when he was eating." She described the little fellow as "greenish" and agreed that he must have gone exploring through an open window.

☐Carl Emilson, 170 N. Main St., landed a 32-pound jack in the 20-pound division to take a lead in the 46th Annual Metropolitan South Florida Fishing Tournament.

It was the heaviest jack landed so far. If no lucky angler lands a larger one, it means Emilson is in the lead for an award for the heaviest entry of that species.

The Met Tournament ends May 3.

☐Renee Mograss of 11 Spindrift Lane, has been accepted at Bunker Hill Community College in Charlestown for the fall semester.

☐This is the last week that my name will appear at the end of Around Town. It has been a privilege reporting the "people" news of Cohasset for the last two years.

I'll miss writing the details of your babies' births, the accomplishments of your growing children, your birthday celebrations, your awards, promotions and arrivals and departures from town.

Your trips, parties, pranks, pet stories and pasttimes have kept Around Town lively and interesting. Your tributes to friends and family, your caring for causes and experiences of all sizes and kinds, have made this column interesting reading.

Thanks for sharing the unique and sometimes moving events of your lives, and, keep the "good" news coming in the Mariner!

Rep. Murray files casino study claims of the proponents of casino gambling in Massachusetts suggests empty promises, contradictory facts and inconsistent conclusions," she said.

"Due to lingering controversy pertaining to transportation, jobs, taxes and the influx of crime, it is necessary to clarify the picture."

A spokesman for Tom O'Neill said the issue of casino gambling would have been dead for this year — except for Rep. Murray's bill.

"It's a calculated risk appointing that kind of committee. The five people the governor appoints will probably favor casino gambling. You can't tell for sure who else would be on it. But you could have it stacked in favor of gambling before it begins," the spokesman said.

Cohasset's town meeting voted last week to support a study on gambling done by Harvard University. There was no mention of a legislative study at that time.

Recently the Catholic bishops came out with a statement voicing "clear and categorical opposition to any attempt to legalize casino gambling in this state."

Mary Jeanette said several months ago Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, archbishop of Boston, would come out against the gambling question.

The Cardinal was one of four bishops listed on the document. The basis of the opposition listed a series of negative effects including the involvement of organized crime, the potential for corruption of public officials, the probability gambling would mean higher taxes and displacement of the poor and elderly.

The lieutenant governor believes enough study has been done. He sees no need for public commissions, having looked into the situation extensively.

And recently Jack Conway, member of the board of directors of Citizens Against Casino Gambling and a local realtor, used strong words decrying the possibility of legalized casinos as he spoke to the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

"The nature of casino gambling is that of a vampire which sucks the monetary blood from the veins of the community and disgorges it in the nest of the operators of the casino enterprise," he said.

It's Roger, not Robert on Historical Comm.

Plumbing Inspector Robert Leonard said he didn't mind too much when he read he had been appointed to the Historical Commission.

He knew it was his son, Roger Leonard, a mail carrier, who was really the new commission member. And so he didn't complain. And so we didn't correct the mistake two weeks ago.

But he said he found people in town thought he was the new member and that began to bother him a little. He said the town's other weekly had the name reported correctly.

When he received a letter of congratulations from Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray wishing him well in his new position, the elder Leonard decided he had to call the Mariner to set the story straight.

All we can say is, sorry.

C.A.G. mans gambling booth

An informational booth was staffed by members of Citizens Against Casino Gambling at Saturday's Democratic Issues Convention in the Springfield Civic Center.

The booth featured continuous replay of John Chancellor's recent NBC Nightly News report on casino gambling. C.A.C.G. President Carol Oteri, of Hull; Vice-President Fred Moran and Paul Demastire, of Adams; and Beth Harling and Otto Harling of Hingham, answered questions and distributed fact sheets and magazine reprints.

Sign-up sheets provided delegates and state representatives an opportunity to register their opposition to casino gambling in Massachusetts. Oteri expressed "extreme satisfaction" with the offers of support received from all areas of the state.

"People are beginning to realize that any town in Massachusetts faces the possibility of becoming a company town where a casino is the company," she said.

Obituary

William John Edwards

A graveside service for William John Ernest Edwards, 76, of San Diego, Calif., formerly of Cohasset, a retired electronic engineer and inventor, was held Monday in Woodside Cemetery. The Rev. John Gallop, retired pastor of Hingham Episcopal Church, officiated.

Mr. Edwards died January 6 in San Diego.

Born in Wales, he came to the United States as an 8-year old, and his family settled in Cohasset.

He invented an antenna which is used on Navy vessels and was one of the early pioneers of the two-way radio. He installed some of the first police radio systems in the United States and made the first two-way police radio.

He was an electronic engineer at the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C. and for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology radiation laboratory, where he worked from 1943 to 1945. He also was chief engineer for the Worldwide Broadcasting Company Corp. from 1936 to 1943.

He was a graduate of Wentworth Institute, class of 1924.

He was a former member of the Rotary Club and Masonic Lodge, Cohasset.

Husband of the late Eleanor (Duff) Edwards, he leaves a son, William Ernest Edwards of Argentina; a daughter, Martha Epler of LaMesa, Calif.; two brothers, Noel Edwards of Cohasset and Victor Edwards of Springfield, Vt.; a sister, Eileen Shuebruk of Larchmont, N.Y.; and three grandchildren.

DOVE needs a new home

DOVE, a Quincy-based group dedicated to the end of domestic violence, is looking for a new home for its shelter.

The shelter is currently located on the grounds of Quincy City Hospital. The hospital is being sold to a private group and the agency which offers shelter to women and children throughout Norfolk County must find a new facility.

Officials of DOVE plan to release more information at a press conference later this week. They hope someone hearing about the plight will come up with an alternative shelter.

Temple schedule

The weekly schedule for Congregation Sha'ray Shalom, 1112 Main St., Hingham is as follows:

April 17 — Friday. Shabbat begins at 6:16 p.m. No Shabbat services.

April 18 — Saturday. Passover begins. First Seder.

April 19 — Sunday. No religious school. Second Seder — Community Seder at Temple at 6 p.m.

April 20 — Monday through April 26, Sunday — spring vacation, no school.

Congregational services

The Rev. Robert Campbell and the members of the Beechwood Congregational Church invite you to come and worship with us on Good Friday, April 17, for prayer vigil, 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at the church, located on Church St.

Easter Sunday sunrise service will be at 6:30 a.m. at Lily Pond on King Street. The church service is at 10:45 a.m.

Eastern Orthodox Easter

Attendance at religious worship is expected to hit a seasonal high this weekend. But our town's newest church won't be celebrating along with the rest.

Greek Easter is still a week away.

Baseball boys falter, tennis teams win twice

By Rob Tis

At best it was a slow start for a baseball team that seems to have a lot of potential. Opening day at Milliken Field pitted the Skippers against their arch rival the Hull Pirates.

The Pirate pitching was spectacular; however, the Skippers got runners on base in four of the first six innings but could not bring them home.

By this time the Pirates had put three runs on the scoreboard. In the sixth they got a pair of runs coming off the bats of Rich Evans and Paul Buckley.

The Pirates wasted no time whatsoever, as in the bottom of the sixth they hit up relief pitcher Andy Songer for four runs and clinched the victory 7 to 3.

Friday the Skippers faced Middleboro and went out to a quick 1-0 lead in the first inning.

Unfortunately their fate seemed doomed as the Sachems pelted Skipper pitching for six runs in the second inning. Middleboro hung tough and though the Skippers got four runs on the board, the Sachems countered with five to put the Skipper fire out 11-4.

TENNIS

Both the boys and the girls tennis teams have started out on a good note this year.

The girls team has yet to allow its opponents a single point this year. On Wednesday they faced Hull and singles players Sue Dalrymple, Mia Graham and Joy Pratt all won in straight sets as did the first doubles team of Lauren Alemain and Krissie Ralff, and the second doubles team of Katie Smalzel and Karen Murphy.

On Thursday the Skippers pulled a repeat performance, 5-0, against Middleboro. Sporting a 2-0 record the girls will face Duxbury and Abington this week.

The boys team had an equally fantastic week as they destroyed Hull, the doormat of the South Shore League, 5-0. Thursday, however, was the big test.

The Skippers faced the Middleboro Sachems, the defending champions of the South Shore League. The mighty boys tennis team, however, was up to the challenge and waded through the Sachems to an easy 4-1 victory. Joe Whelan, Mike Brady, Jason Gill, Paul Riley, Shannon Collins, Gerry White and yours truly all recorded at least one victory in these two matches.

SOFTBALL

After a tough opening day loss the Skipper softball team got back on its feet and looks to be headed in the right direction.

The Skippers faced Hull on Wednesday. They were held to six hits, one, however, was a three run homer by Stacey Thompson. The Pirates stayed in the lead most of the way and managed to inch ahead of the Skippers 8-7.

Cohasset turned it completely around the next day as they destroyed Middleboro with a whopping 18 runs to a minuscule 3. This offensive onslaught was led by Lindsay Gilmore who drove in four runs with two hits, one of them a three run homer. As well as Laurie Sandblom who gave the number three a good name with three hits, three R.B.I.'s and a triple.

Norwell & Cohasset

You don't know what you're missing!

. . . but one thing's for sure!! It's costing you a lot of dough on shoes and some other things for your family.

This is no phoney claim, ask around, or better yet, here are some of the reasons.

1. We're a 3 day store, that means you save 50% on utilities and help!

2. We pay our suppliers on the spot, so we get a good discount. (You know what money costs.)

3. We do not accept charge cards, that means we don't pay 5 to 8% to the charge card companies, that's another saving.

4. Our stores are small (but full), neat and clean, but no fancy fixtures or opening expense to pay for over a number of years.

What it all means is you save 35% to 75% every day, and that's no bull.

We save! and you save!

. . . So come see us in our Norwell or Cohasset store and save.

Connie

P.S. Thanks for making our Cohasset opening a big success.

Track teams launch new season

By Stephen Bowen

Last week was not a very good week for the track teams.

The boys track team lost two meets and the girls lost one and won one.

These were the first meets of the year and hopefully will be the last ones lost.

Last Tuesday Norwell traveled to town. Norwell dominated the entire meet with Cohasset winning several events on their way to a 103 to 42 romp.

The girls fared better, only losing 45 to 65. Norwell has a good team and will do well in their season.

On Thursday the Skippers boarded a bus (yes, one bus for both teams — it was only slightly crowded for those who got seats) and were on their way to Middleboro.

The boys did better this meet, reducing Middleboro's 25 point lead after the field events to 15 points in an 80-65 loss. The girls, however, won their meet on this cold, damp day, 63-47.

Over April vacation the team will work on their skills and become prepared for Duxbury.

Rec. hockey ends on high note

The recreation department street hockey program wound down its fourteen week season recently with the final playoffs and championship games in three divisions. Jack Langmaid, who coordinated the program for the sixth (and final, he says!) year, said that approximately 170 kids age 6 to 12 participated. There were a few girls playing, but most were boys.

The championship game in each division and teams and coaches were as follows:

Division A, ages 6, 7 and 8, the final game was between the Canadians, 1, coached by Bob Izzo, and the Islanders, 0, coached by Bucky Redfield; other teams in the division were the Bruins, coached by Jack MacDonald, Flyers, Jeff Ludlow, Jets, John Campbell, and the Rangers, Bill Baird.

Division B, 9 and 10 year olds, ended with the Red Wings, Dennis Rossi coach, in first place after winning the final game with the Black Hawks, Bob Beggan coach, 8-6; other division B teams and their coaches were the Kings, Gary Drinkwater, Maple Leafs, Jim Gallagher, North Stars, Tom Meyers, and the Blues, Tara and Chris Pompeo and Tracy Fitzpatrick.

The Flames, coached by Jim Leonard, won division C, ages 11 and 12, over the Whalers, coached by Steve Bowen, by 6-3; other teams were the Capitals, John Scott coach and the Rockies, Jim Allen coach.

To all the youngsters who played this season, congratulations!

THE COHASSET LAMPLIGHT

Cohasset High School

A Letter to the Editors

What About the Alternative School?

Who was the Cohasset High student who bicycled to Hingham High and back every morning in order to take German? Which CHS student was the youngest and first girl to be an EMT-trained ambulance attendant and seen around school with a medical on-call "beeper?" Which CHS guy got his training at Ken's Foreign Auto and now runs his own auto repair shop? Who was the first CHS student to take AP English as a junior and start college when her CHS classmates were here starting their senior year? Who was flunking English at CHS but became the best telephone salesman at New England's biggest motorcycle parts company? What girls taught sign language for credit while still at CHS? Who ran her own nursery school before graduating? Who were the guys who put in a thousand hours making a movie, now showing the same kind of industriousness in politics and in business?

Cohasset High's Alternative School makes no claim to have cornered the market on creative productivity, but in the nine years it has been in existence, it has provided unusual opportunities for growth to more than three hundred students.

How did Alt School start? In the spring of 1972 a group of Cohasset parents and teachers got together because they were concerned about a growing number of students whose potential was not being realized. These students were being turned off for one reason or another even though they wanted to learn. The Alt School was born and presented to the authorities.

The program was designed to push learning under guidance that was both personalized and family-like. The goal was for the student to respond, to be productive, on the hunch that everyone has a curiosity for learning. The plan was to ferret out this curiosity through experimenting with all kinds of curricula.

Alt School uses a number of techniques in its operation, all based on either individualization or community — personal check in and out, mailboxes, weekly logs, weekly meetings, encouragement of outside educational activities to supplement CHS classes, stress on values, goals, and personal conduct.

While not intending to compare itself with the CHS athletic program or the music program or any other specialized facet of CHS but sharing the same principle of individualization as these groups, Alt School has come under criticism on occasion from people who felt it gave too much personal attention and unfair opportunities to a limited number of students. Fortunately the majority of Cohasset policymakers agreed that education is a personal matter, and Alt School became another service offered its young people.

Alt School membership is open to any eleventh or twelfth grader and, with Mr. Streeter's special consent, a limited number of ninth and tenth graders. Cooperation and interaction with the rest of the school is not only encouraged but essential to the functioning of the program.

More than one Cohasset school authority has said in public that Alt School techniques could and should be implemented in the regular school. Who knows? Maybe they will. Ironically for Proposition 2½ advocates, world conditions today cry out for more education, more individualization, more family, not less.

Allan MacDonald

Another World

by Jeff Giles

It happens to everyone of us at one time or another, when we start looking through the mirror instead of in it, we realize that reality has let us down. If you have found that if the music is loud enough you don't even have to pretend to care, you're not alone. Society has taught its children to live with depression but not how to deal with it. Consequently, we often experience lapses into imagination, where there are no restrictions, no responsibilities, and no pain. It is inevitable that each one of us will eventually seek out a haven from reality, a sanctuary, our own world of fantasy.

And when we do, there will be a world waiting for us. One famous man put it this way: "Fantasy will set you free." If this is true, Gary Gygax, inventor of Dungeons and Dragons, has sent more than his share of people to their creative freedom. Dungeons and Dragons is more than a game, more than a set of rules, or someone's way to get rich quick. D&D, as it is called, has been turned to by people of all ages, it has been used as a way to escape, a way to act out the secret fantasies of thousands.

In the world we live in creative illusions often become realistic delusions, but with D&D the world of the imagination is only as limited as you make it. At the game's outset, each prospective player assumes a chimerical character whose life would fit well in a novel like Lord of the Rings. Each player's personality, physical attributes, and intelligence are determined by a simple roll of a dice. From then on the character exists for the most part in the mind of its owner. Teamed with other characters of the same origin, the characters set out on adventurous travels through the world of fantasy. A shy, introvert in this world may find himself battling a dragon for a golden ring in the next. An awkward, clumsy youngster may find himself raising a bloodstained sword or casting a spell to conquer any one of the hundreds of creatures that go bump in the night. With each victory, however small, the players become more and more powerful until they may have the command of an entire kingdom at their feet. The possibilities of the game are endless. After becoming sick with living a holy existence, you may choose to hide in the shadows as a thief, or carry the dagger of an assasin.

As a game, Dungeons and Dragons has been created with fine detail. Every possible aspect of life has been outlined with care. There are pre-made maps of adventurous dungeons filled with treasure and terror. Anything you have ever wanted accomplished is as close as the roll of a dice. So if you have ever wished to seek a break from monotony, something different or unusual, Dungeons and Dragons is waiting.

The Junior High Transition

by Stacy Stobart and Beth Riley

Advancing to junior high school may be fun for a while, but a lot of hard work comes before and after.

Teachers at the Deer Hill Elementary School prepare the students in sixth grade for the following year. For example, last year's open space was well prepared for seventh grade in math, but was weak in geography. Mr. Schultz, one of the teachers of the open space classroom, is emphasizing geography for next year's seventh graders.

Most seventh graders agree that there is a big difference between the two schools. One difference, they say, is their newly acquired independence. They now have five minutes between classes in which to go to their lockers or visit with friends. During such periods they are given certain freedoms, such as going outside when the weather is suitable. They can't, however, go into the West Wing before the end of their lunch period because of a new rule.

The curriculum of C.H.S. is also different from the Deer Hill curriculum. The majority of students we interviewed told us that their classes and work were much harder than they were in previous years. Also, they have to change classes more frequently because their subjects are taught to them by individual teachers. Changing classes, they say, can be confusing but, as one seventh grader said, "after a while you get used to it."

The grading system at C.H.S. puts more pressure on the students than the Deer Hill system does, the 7th graders informed us.

Electives, according to the seventh graders, are a welcome change from classes. Gym is enjoyable, although they dislike wasting time changing into their gym uniforms. Shop is complicated but most students enjoy it. Home Economics, music and art are also widely popular.

As one seventh grader, Michelle Shane, said, "You're treated more as an adult at the high school than you are at Deer Hill.

CHS NEWS

AFS students...DeBassio talk...Student Government Day

AFS CHAPTER

A group of interested parents met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Spooner to start an AFS chapter in Cohasset. Those attending the first meeting included: Mr. and Mrs. John Langmaid, Shirley Martin, Mr. and Mrs. John Kornet, Nancy Sandell, Mr. and Mrs. Diarmuid O'Connell, Mr. and Mrs. James Urmson and Jane Goedecke.

The AFS (American Field Service) program is a very active national organization whose purpose is bringing foreign students into this country as well as sending American students to other countries. These students live with a family, becoming part of the family, school and community for their length of stay.

The Cohasset AFS chapter needs a strong support group and would welcome wholeheartedly anyone who is interested in the opportunities of travel, family, education and friendship for foreign students and our own students. Mr. and Mrs. Alex Spooner (383-0347) are the group coordinators and would appreciate your help and support. It is a wonderful program!

CHIEF'S TALK

Cohasset's new police chief, John DeBassio, addressed a group of students of Cohasset High School recently. The chief met with the members of Mrs. Dorothy Wondolowski's senior social studies elective offering on the American Legal System.

The chief told his interested audience that he personally feels that his varied police experience plus his educational background enabled him to win the appointment as Cohasset's police head.

He stressed how much law enforcement methods had changed in the past 20 years. The veteran law enforcement official said that government training programs, extension courses and college degrees must be taken advantage of by any officer wishing to advance in rank in police work.

Relating to the specific concerns of Cohasset residents, Chief DeBassio explained that police patrols in the town will be realigned to meet the summer needs of the local area.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Two Cohasset High School juniors and their school advisor took an active role in the Student Government Day activities at the State House in Boston on Friday, April 3.

Steven D'Onofrio and Holly Grant were two of over 300 Massachusetts high school students taking part in the day long exercise.

Edward F. Sheehan, Chairman of the High School Social Studies Department accompanied the Cohasset delegation to the government program which was jointly sponsored by the Mass. Department of Education and the Massachusetts Teachers Association.

Steven was elected as Cohasset's representative and Holly as his alternate at general elections in the high school held earlier this school year. In a later drawing at the State House Steven was chosen as a state representative from Plymouth, District Three. Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, the present holder of that position, served as personal host and guide for the Cohasset students and their advisor.

During the day's activities, Steven and Holly participated in the regular daily duties of a member of the State House of Representatives. Both students attended and actively spoke out against a student-sponsored bill to allow gambling (casino gambling) in certain localities in the Commonwealth. After caucasing with other local South Shore student representatives both Steven and Holly led the floor fight to overwhelmingly defeat the measure by a margin of six to one.

Observed in accordance with state law and conducted under the general direction of the bureau of student services, Student Government Day represents one of our nation's most interesting experiments in state government in action.

According to Mr. Sheehan, "Student Government Day is a wonderful vehicle to show future voters how state government actually works." He went on to praise Steven and Holly for their "forceful presence in the committee hearing room and during the actual floor debate."

Steven is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. D'Onofrio of 96 Fairoaks Lane. A very active student, he is class president and a member of the student council. Among his other many school activities, Steve is a member of the Town Health Advisory Committee, as well as a member of the varsity soccer and track teams. He is also a pianist in the school jazz rock ensemble.

Holly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Galt Grant of 258 South Main St. She is the secretary of the Joseph Osgood Chapter of the National Honor Society. In addition, Holly is a member of the Cohasset High School girls track and soccer teams. She has also served on the Student Advisory Board to the Cohasset School Committee.

Women's defense course at CCC

In response to many inquiries, the Cohasset Community Center will sponsor a Women's Defensive Awareness Program under the direction of Robert Blaisdell, 3rd Degree Black Belt, and his staff from the New England Academy of Karate.

Registration is now taking place at the center and class size will be limited.

Blaisdell, who is a former high school teacher, is currently Massachusetts State Director to the United States Karate Association and is a Massachusetts police officer. He was formerly a Baltimore City police officer and has had over 15 years of experience in karate and self-defense training.

The course has been designed to enlighten potential victims of the very real possibilities of an unexpected and unpredicted assault that could leave them scarred for life or even mortally wounded.

"With crime on the increase and the law unable to adequately protect us all, it seems necessary that one's own protection rests ultimately with self-defense," emphasized Blaisdell. "Crimes against women are some of the ugliest and inhumane in the world today," he adds.

The course will consist of eight consecutive 1½ hour sessions with an optional ½ hour seminar following each class at a cost of $30 per person. The classes will be held from 7 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. at the center each Thursday evening beginning April 30. Additional free clinics will be available for more interested students while this course is in session.

Junior and senior high school girls susceptible to this type of problem are encouraged to attend. The program could be a joint venture for mothers and daughters. Further information is available at 383-0088, weekdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Kids bored...how about the theater

For parents looking for "something Special" to do with children during the Spring Vacation, the Cohasset Community Center is sponsoring a bus trip to the well known Children's Theatre's production of Thumbelina and The Ugly Duckling.

Reservations are now being taken for the trip which costs $8 and includes the bus and performance. This special event is scheduled for Wednesday, April 22, from noon to 5 p.m. and the center hopes it will be as successful as its February vacation theatre trip.

BOWLING PROGRAM

Due to popular demand, the center will reoffer its bowling program for children from 5-10 years old. Registrations are now being accepted for the six-weeks program which will meet at the center's alleys from 3 to 4 p.m. Thursdays beginning April 9. The program cost is $8.

Registrations are now being accepted for the center's Decorated Easter Egg Workshop to be held Thursday, April 9, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The $7 cost includes materials.

Further information may be obtained by calling 383-0088, weekdays, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Toma goal at halfway mark

As a public service to the children, parents and other residents of Cohasset, a group of concerned citizens has been raising money to bring Toma to Cohasset June 9 and June 10 for a drug education program.

They have reached half their goal but will continue fund raising activities by selling coupons for an 11x14" family photograph at the High School during the Town Meeting and in the lobby of Town Hall on Election Day, April 11.

The family picture is valued at $40. The coupons will sell for $7.95. The photo sessions will be by appointment May 2. Five dollars from each coupon will go to the Toma Fund.

Donations may be sent to the Cohasset Savings Bank.

CCC annual meeting

The annual meeting of the Community Center of Cohasset will be held Monday, April 27, at 7:30 p.m.

At that meeting, two amendments to the by-laws of the center will be proposed and voted on. The first amendment pertains to absences of board members from three consecutive monthly meetings without justifiable cause which would result in that office being declared vacant. The other proposed amendment concerns the indemnity of board members.

All committee reports will be submitted at that meeting and officers will be elected. The meeting is open to any member of the center. Refreshments will be served.

School Board elects Brown as new chairman

By Ann Fogg

The School Committee reorganized for the 81-82 school year by seating Richard Conley as the new voting member and Holly Grant ('82) and Paul Johnson ('83) as non-voting student members. They elected Irene Brown chairman, Jack Langmaid vice chairman, and Diane Kornet secretary.

The Committee considered five alternative calendars for the 81-82 school year presented by School Supt. Eugene Crowell. The traditional opening, the Thursday after Labor Day, would be late, Sept. 10, and the year would end late, June 23, which would hurt summer job opportunities for students.

The alternatives all featured an early start, Sept. 2, before the long Labor Day weekend, and various energy saving options of long closings during the year. One would close for two full weeks at Christmas; others would close for long spring vacations or for three day weekends in the coldest months of January, February, and March, but no week long vacations.

According to energy engineers, school buildings operate at lower efficiency in the spring, when they're often overheated, than in the coldest months of the winter. In addition, closing in the spring, the building can be shut down completely without danger of freezing pipes, whereas shut down in winter cannot be complete.

One suggestion of a three week closing in late March and early April might save $7000 to $9000. The advantages, according to Supt. Crowell, are that it comes at the end of the third quarter and corresponds to many college spring breaks. The disadvantage is that younger children and special needs students might suffer from the long break and that the cost to families of the additional energy used by vacationing children might offset the savings.

"Whether the savings are significant enough to throw the community into turmoil is the question," said Dr. Crowell.

A fourth alternative, featuring a short Christmas vacation, two weeks in March, and an early, June 18, closing, initiated a discussion of the value of the traditional February vacation in conjunction with flu season. "It helps to have everyone go home and let the buildings cool down to kill those germs," said one citizen.

The Committee urged parents to call them or the superintendent's office to make their preference known before the Committee votes on the calendar at the May 4 meeting.

The Committee directed the superintendent to investigate further the legal and liability ramifications of a request of a private agency to rent space in the High School for six weeks in the summer to run a reading clinic for dyslexic children and adults.

"It may become more common as we proceed with Proposition 2½," said Dr. Crowell, "to consider unused space as an income source. It is doubtful that the School Committee would have control over the rental fee; that would probably go into the general fund."

WHALE WATCHING

The Committee approved a request from High School science teacher James Franey for a May 20 Whale Watching trip from the Plymouth State Pier. The trip is student funded at $10 apiece and completely insured.

Syma Komarin brings her talent to the Art Center

By Patricia Desmond

Picture the world of the dreamer, artist, sculptress.

It's a world of fairy godmothers and princes charming and Syma Komarin.

Syma, who truly appreciates the world of hazy inspiration, is teaching a new course at the South Shore Art Center. Something called "Drawing from the Right Side of the Brain." As the schedule goes she begins April 30 and continues on eight Thursdays from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

As everyone should know most of us use the left side of our brain and that's why most of us are right handed. The right side of the brain holds a more uncharted region, a space believed to give thought to dreamers and artistry.

Syma — her name is the Hebrew word for Rejoice — won first place in the center's crafts show in 1980. She lives in Hingham with her daughter, Dory. In a house where the moon can shine through the roof, bringing its pale and magical inspiration.

Her latest project is a series of boxes. Treasure boxes, of course. Fashioned in the design of wizards. In her home, she has a special piece of what some people think of as pottery and what others study as art. It's a ceramic bell to summon the Force.

The concept of fairy tales being something open to the world of the future.

One of the characters any feminist would love is Syma's version of Prince Charming. It happens he is a bell. It also happens he is two-faced.

She offers the artwork for sale with the loving note that "This unique bell is gifted with the magical powers necessary for the celebration of the alteration of the myth of prince charming. The user should keep in mind that magic operates on its own timetable and also that ringing bells can get you high. Assume nothing. Expect even less. But trust that it will work."

Now the not so secret truth hidden in each of her prince charmings is that there is a frog hidden inside.

Syma smiles knowingly, sips her coffee from a ceramic cup of her own making and points out that there is indeed a frog inside every prince charming.

That's the way of the world.

SEARCHING FOR TRUTH — Syma Komarin sculpts a wizard in clay in her Hingham studio. The wizard will end up becoming a treasure box, fired in copper and ceramic. (Derr photo)

The Recreation report

Registrations will be accepted by calling the Recreation Office, 383-6791, for a Grades K-3 kickball league to be held at Osgood School from 3:30-4:45 p.m.

Grades K & 1 will meet Thursday afternoons, and Grades 2 & 3 will meet Tuesday afternoons for a seven-week period beginning Tuesday, April 28, and Thursday, April 30.

The fee for the program is $5 per child and a 50 per cent discount will be offered for two or more children registering from the same family.

Children will be assigned to a team and will play a schedule of seven games. Jeff Ladd will head the program.

CHILDREN'S EASTER EGG HUNT

On Saturday, April 18, the Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct an Easter Egg Hunt for children ages 3-11, at the Deer Hill School Field, at 1 p.m. sharp!

The Recreation Department will supply organization and candy for the program. Local merchants are contributing merchandise for prizes. Children will be grouped as follows: 3-5 years old, 6-8 years old and 9-11 years old.

Parents are asked to accompany younger children.

Each child will receive candy, and prizes will be awarded to those children finding eggs with an attached number corresponding to a prize.

OPEN GYMS

The Recreation Department will conduct an open gym program at Cohasset High School, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, from 6:30-8:30 p.m. for junior and senior high school students, beginning Tuesday, April 14.

The gyms will not be open during April vacation, but will resume again during the week of April 27. There is no fee for this program which will be supervised by Ed Minelli. Sneakers must be worn by participants.

Cohasset B soccer club trips Dedham

By Charlie DeSantis

Cohasset's B Division soccer team, the Seamen, traveled to Dedham on Saturday and emerged from a determined contest against the "Destroyers" with a 2-1 victory.

A high-pressure midfield stymied the Dedham attack, while Greg Igo and Billy McKenna tended goal.

Cohasset goals were by Michael DeSantis and David MacDonald, with an assist from Bobby Schultz.

The Seamen will play against Needham next Saturday, April 18 at 4 p.m., Milliken Field

Two local hockey stars Europe bound

Long hours of hockey practice are paying off for Joe Hoffman and Lee Wilson.

The pair who are two of the town's finest hockey players will represent the country in games in Austria, Germany and Switzerland over school vacation.

Both are 14. Both are thrilled with the honor of being selected for Team USA.

Joe at 14 just finished his first varsity season with the high school hockey team. He is the son of Joe and Joyce Hoffman and the brother of Justine Hoffman, 16, and Janey Hoffman, 10.

The boys were selected to play international hockey after attending Exeter Hockey Camp. Most of the others on the team are from the North Shore.

Team USA is sponsored by the Melrose Sport Shop.

Lee Wilson is the son of Helen and Leland Wilson. Both boys play for the Seahawks, a team composed of young players from Norwell, Scituate and Cohasset.

Helen, who will be going along on the hockey trip, said she has been taking Lee to hockey rinks to play since he was five.

"This makes all the time that I was cold worthwhile," she said.

The team members will be staying in the Olympic Villages during the tour. Their parents will be able to stay in nearby hotels — all the better for sightseeing while the teams practice.

The games or junior Olympics as they're called will be played on the Olympic ice.

Gymnastics program continues at CCC

Because the center's gymnastic program has been such a success, the Community Center of Cohasset will offer an additional eight-week course consisting of tumble tots and gymnastics for beginning, intermediate and advanced students.

The program will begin Saturday, April 18, and will continue through Saturday, June 13. Course cost is $16.

Registrations are still being accepted for the center's theatre trip to be held on Wednesday, April 22, during the spring vacation. The Children's Theatre will present 'Thumbeline' and 'The Ugly Duckling' and the cost for the bus and the performance is $8.

Further information is available weekdays at the center from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Benefit continued for Fine Art Museum

"The Fine Art of Living," a benefit featuring a trip to Paris, a Maximilian fur coat, jewelry, antique rugs, original paintings, and other object d'arts totaling more than $25,000, will be conducted by the Ladies Committee of the Museum of Fine Arts.

Each of the 18 donations is valued at $500 or more.

"A Fine Art of Traveling" vacation package for two includes accommodations at the Hotel Meridien in Paris, France, donated by the Hotel Meridien in Boston which will open later this year at Post Office Square, and air travel via Air France.

Other prizes include an oil painting by Charles H. Woodbury, valued at $7,500, courtesy of Vose Galleries; a natural taupe beaver fur coat, donated by Maximilian Furs at Bonwit Teller; reproduction of a George II Irish silver coffee pot, given by Firestone and Parson; a fan-backed Windsor side chair, circa 1780, courtesy of Robert W. Skinner, Inc.; an antique coral and silver gilt necklace from Israel, courtesy of Marika's Antique Shop, and several other valuable items.

Proceeds from this benefit will be used to help the Museum of Fine Arts meet its daily operating expenses and to provide community programs.

All benefit prizes will be displayed in the Museum during March and April for all visitors to preview. Tickets are available from members of the Fine Arts Museum.

For more information call Cohasset Chairman, Millie Mitman at 383-9766 or Nancy White at 383-1411. The drawing will be held May 7.

IT'S A GREAT DAY...

Health Works 81 coming to Hull

Health Works 81, a one week, statewide public screening program, is being planned for the week of April 27 through May 2. The campaign is a joint endeavor between WCVB-TV, Red Cross, and WHDH radio.

The Hull Medical Center will be the area site on April 30.

Some of the proposed screening clinics include: height & weight; blood pressure; anemia; vision) hearing; summary & referral; and the optional tests — glaucoma; PAP; oral; blood chemistry (for a fee of $7).

A babysitting service will be provided between the hours of 3-8 p.m. For further information call 925-4550.
